Ex-Radio Priest Breaks Silence

By HAROLD SCHACHERN

DETROIT (AP) — The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, one of the most controversial American figures in the 20th Century, broke a 20-year public silence Saturday.

And the once-famed radio priest insisted in an exclusive interview he was right in his caustic denunciations of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in the days during the rise of Hitler and the world's move toward World War II in the 1930s.

He said:

"I still think I was right, for instance, in breaking with Mr. Roosevelt for recognizing Russia. I still think I was right when I opposed him for giving the Russians $11 million to set them up in business. And I still think I was right in opposing our entry into the war on the side of Russia."

NO COLLISION IN TWO WEEKS

$500 WORTH OF PAINT CUTS DEATH ALLEY TOLL

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

Two strips of white paint, each two feet wide, have put an abrupt halt to Death Alley's tragic traffic toll, Lt. Orville James of the Long Beach Police Department reported Saturday. The cost was about $500.

Since the strips of reflecting paint were placed on the inner edges of Long Beach Freeway between Artesia Street and Pacific Coast Highway, there has not been a single collision.

The strips were painted two weeks ago.

Prior to their installation, 20 people had been killed and nearly 100 seriously injured since Jan. 1 of this year.

The freeway north of PCH is the responsibility of the State Division of Highways, which applied the reflecting paint.

It was a study of the Long Beach Freeway's traffic toll made by Lt. James and his staff that resulted in an expose by The Independent, Press-Telegram, in November, of the situation.

At that time, Lt. James said the freeway—christened "Death Alley"—was poorly lighted, poorly policed and lacked safeguards for motorists.

He noted particularly that night drivers had difficulty following the curving lines of the road.

Lt. James said:

"We cannot expect to end traffic accidents and fatalities with a strip of paint, because of the human factors involved. But we have provided motorists with some sort of protection, and the results show it works."

Lt. James said the assignment of additional officers to patrol "Death Alley" must also be considered a factor in halting the death toll.

"For two weeks we issued a great many citations to speeders, reckless drivers and drinking drivers. The result of that campaign is reflected in the fact that our officers are issuing far fewer citations now."

Another project to increase safeguards on the freeway is now in the planning stage. Reflecting barricades will be placed on the divider strip, to prevent out-of-control cars from crossing to the wrong lanes.

Plans for this are being drawn by the state, and the city has announced it will carry the same safeguards through its section of the highway.

FLIER'S WIFE UNEASY

'Silly Feeling' Traps Bandit

By GEORGE ROBESON

When Abe Paster landed his plane at McCarran Field in Las Vegas, the lights went out at the gas pumps and in the Alamo Airways office. It was the first unusual thing that had happened to him all night, as far as he knew.

But unusual things had been happening for several hours.

His passenger was a 27-year-old man who had wired himself as a "human bomb" a few hours before to rob a Long Beach bank. Paster's wife, at their home at 3302 Huntley Dr., Rossmoor, was in telephone contact with the FBI in Los Angeles.

The passenger was Allen Ray Lisenbury of Shasta County, Calif., and the briefcase he carried on the two-hour flight from Fullerton Airport contained six sticks of dynamite which he could detonate either of two ways. It also contained $20,547 of the $29,980 Lisenbury had taken in his robbery of the Security First National Bank of Long Beach Friday afternoon.

He had held bank manager Roy Showalter, 44, and bank operations officer M. B. Park, 55, at gunpoint for an hour and 15 minutes before leaving with the money.

The bankers gave him the money — $20,000 in cash and a cashier's check for $9,980 — when Lisenbury convinced them he had a briefcase full of dynamite and a bottle of nitroglycerin with which he would blow up the building if defied.

* * * *

AT 7:15 P.M., Lisenbury arrived at the Paster home. He wanted Paster, who owns the Sunset Beach Charter Service, to fly him to Las Vegas.

"I don't know what it was," said Paster's wife, Betty, 34. "Just a hunch, I guess, but I kept asking him questions. He didn't seem to be right."

For one thing, the man would not remove his black gloves. Mrs. Paster could not know that the glove on Lisenbury's left hand contained a battery and wires to detonate the dynamite in his briefcase.

* * * *

"MY TWO-year-old girl started to play with his briefcase, and he became very frightened," Mrs. Paster said.

"I really pumped him. His answers didn't always agree. I began to feel suspicious, even thought I told myself I had no reason to. I get these hunches now and then."

Mrs. Paster did not know of the bank robbery in Long Beach. But another hunch told her to call the FBI

Laughton, Dramatic Star, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Charles Laughton, whose gluttonous performance as Henry VIII and exquisite sadism as Captain Bligh became screen classics, died of cancer Saturday. He was 63.

Laughton waged a long but hopeless fight against cancer. He had been growing steadily worse during the past few weeks.

Laughton knew for some time he was afflicted by the disease that first was detected by doctors last January. He underwent surgery last summer when the malignancy reached his spine.

After the spinal operation the actor was subjected to cobalt treatment, but recently chemical therapy was used.

* * * *

LAUGHTON, a master thespian in the British tradition equally at home in comic and tragic roles, had been troubled by a back ailment for several years. The ailment was treated previously in early June during a five-day stay at New York's Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases.

At the time, Laughton's manager, Bob Hulton, said the rotund actor's back had been bothering him for some 20 years. He had twisted his spine in an accident some three weeks before he entered the hospital.

The Flying Tiger Line Super Constellation, arriving after a regular daily flight from Boston and Chicago, tore down crackling power lines and smashed or burned nine houses and two industrial plants. Two houses were destroyed.

Greek Ship Sinks; Crew Safe

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands, Sunday (AP)—The Greek steamship Aristoteles radioed today she was sinking in the North Atlantic and her crew had abandoned ship.

2 Peace Corps Members Safe

LABUAN, North Borneo (AP)—Two American Peace Corps members were reported safe Saturday after being trapped for four days in rebel-infested territory in Sarawak.

Reports reaching here said Fritz Klatenhoff, 19, of Washington, D.C., was freed by British Marine Commandos Wednesday after being a prisoner of the rebel Northern Borneo National Army at Limbang in Northeast Sarawak.

The second Peace Corps member was Andy E. Powers of Fresno, Calif. He was stationed at Lawas, which was surrounded, but never taken by the rebels.

Cuba Purge of Consuls Under Way

MADRID (AP)—Cuban sources here said Saturday a sweeping shakeup is under way in Fidel Castro's diplomatic and consular service in Europe, with many consular and other envoys either quitting or being removed.

Behind these moves, these sources said, is a desire of some anti-Communist Cuban officials to get out, and a general move from Havana to weed out all representatives of doubtful loyalty to Castro.

Five Cuban consuls and vice consuls in Madrid, Vigo, Sevilla, and Barcelona are reported to have resigned or been ousted. All five were described by anti-Castro Cubans here as basically anti-Communist.

Cuban sources here said the former Cuban ambassador to Austria, Fernando Gainza Gonzalez, had arrived in Spain by automobile after abandoning his Vienna post. He was expected to seek political asylum, they asserted.

* * * *

SPANISH government officials would not comment on these developments and the Cubans themselves could not be located for comment.

Among consular officials ousted in Spain is 72-year-old Luis Sotto, Cuban consul in Madrid. He is a career veteran of 43 years in the Cuban consular service. In affirming that he had received a message of dismissal, he said he intends to remain in this country.

Others named by Cuban sources as quitting their posts or being removed were Vice Consul Oscar Lorenzo Jorganes in Madrid, Consul Virgillo Remos Carballai in Vigo, Consul Josafina Quinones in Sevilla, and Consul Luis Bas Molina in Barcelona.

A 20-year-old member of the Cuban Embassy staff named Del Rio is said to have taken over the Madrid consulate, while two Embassy staff members left here for Vigo to take over the consulate there, Cuban sources said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The SS African Pilot has been placed on stand-by ready to sail Monday night for Miami to take on medicines and other supplies demanded by Cuban Premier Castro in exchange for Cuban invasion prisoners, the Baltimore Sun reported Saturday night.

Dentists Get New Charter

By BEN ZINSER
Medical—Science Editor

The Harbor Dental Society pulled out of the Los Angeles County Dental Society Saturday, a move that will ultimately improve the dental health of the community.

More than $12,000 which formerly went to the county organization annually, now will be retained by the harbor society, to be used for more extensive school dental health programs.

The harbor society, 420 dentists in 26 communities, was granted a component charter Saturday by a unanimous vote of the executive council of the Southern California State Dental Association. It becomes effective Jan. 1, 1963.

* * * *

COMPONENT status, which means the local society now rates official recognition by the California Dental Association and the American Dental Association, climaxes three years of work by local dental officials.

The move was initiated by Dr. H. Chester Moore of Long Beach when he was president of the Los Angeles County Dental Society in 1959.

It wasn't until last April, however, that state by-laws were amended at a state convention to permit county society districts to apply for a component charter.

Dr. W. Howard Davis, Bellflower, president of the harbor society, said that withdrawal from the county society will enable the harbor organization to earmark an additional $12,000 or

INEFFECTIVE AGAINST MISSILES

Air Defense Ready to Repulse Bombers

By LEE CRAIG
Military—Space Editor

COLORADO SPRINGS — North America's vast, incredibly complex air defense system, extending from the polar ice cap to the Mexican border and from east to west far beyond the edges of the continent; today stands ready to do the job for which it was designed.

Created to defend this country and Canada from nuclear attack by manned bombers, the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) is capable of holding losses from such an attack to a minimum so that our striking force remains able to counter with massive retaliatory blows.

Along the Arctic Circle, from Alaska to Greenland and in the United Kingdom, gigantic radars of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System — BMEWS — probe beams 3,000 miles into space searching for signs of missile firings.

These monstrous radars — each larger than a football field — would provide NORAD with, at best, 15 minutes warning of a Russian ICBM attack from northern launch sites . . . enough time for our worldwide forces to strike back devastatingly.

But if the Red attack should come from the south with extended range ICBMs,

L.A.C. Says:

G.O.P. Hassle

The Republican Party leaders in California are doing a lot of campaigning to see who is to lead the party for the next two years. The hassle is over who will be the head of the state central committee now held by Chairman Caspar "Cap" Weinberger. We hear stories how Shell-Knight-Powers are moving to take over this leadership. The result of these movements may decide if Republicans will continue as a strong force or again be dissipated by dissensions and bitterness. It would be a tragic loss to the state if this is to continue.

Animosities continue over the parts played in the recent campaign by Shell, Knight and Powers. Shell was reticent in his support of Nixon. Knight refused to support him and Powers endorsed Brown. This was another split in the party that caused its defeat. With only a 3 per cent margin enjoyed by Brown, it is very probable the party would have been victorious had these former party leaders given it their full support. The question now is, Will they combine their efforts for the coming campaigns, or continue to sulk and discourage a united party?

The Republican organization in the state did a remarkable job. Its precinct work and local organizations generally were made up of dedicated workers. As their campaign was reaching its heights of achievement, the Cuban crisis changed the whole picture. But it is doubtful any other leadership could have materially improved the organization work that was done.

It seems to this writer that the outstanding vote-getter for any state office was George Christopher. As candidate for Lieutenant Governor he came within about two percentage points of defeating the incumbent. His campaign was largely eclipsed by the savagery of the Nixon-Brown and Rafferty-Richardson campaigns. The large vote he received was a tribute to his long record as Mayor of San Francisco and in the Republican Party. The only state Republican candidate with a larger vote was the incumbent Secretary of State Jordan, who has announced his retirement.

If an individual is to lead the Republican Party in California, Christopher certainly stands out as a logical candidate. In Long Beach he carried the city by a margin of 8,000 votes over his incumbent opponent. It is an example of how his prestige has held up during the turmoil within the party the past five years.

The time is about here for the party to organize for 1964. It is time for every Republican to avoid the inter-party wrangles that came near to destroying it. It was not destroyed. It recovered to prove itself a vital fighting force that came close to victory. But it was not helped by those who placed personal grievances or pride and ambition before their loyalty to the party and its candidates elected in the primaries.

It is encouraging to find so many of the precinct workers who continue to show their dedication to the party and the principles for which it stands. These people are not concerned over personalities or leadership as long as it is dynamic and dedicated to the party principles and victory. This is essential to the preservation of the two-party system and the American way. It calls for leadership from men and women who have demonstrated their dedication and loyalty to these principles. Those of the party who consider themselves conservatives or liberals, should realize that they are not far apart in fundamental philosophy. But they permit their common opponents to accentuate their differences to the point of dividing their real strength. There should be a mutual understanding that from now on they will fight against Democratic candidates and not each other. The trend toward socialism will be slowed only if Republicans accept this responsibility of unity and discard dissensions.—L.A.C.

* * * *

AS PASTER and his passenger drove toward Fullerton, the vast machinery of the FBI swung into action. Mrs. Paster told agents what time the pair would arrive at Fullerton Airport, and what the flight plan probably would be. She warned them not to contact her husband by radio in mid-flight, for Lisenbury would be able to hear it on the airplane's loudspeaker. She listed the radio contacts her husband would make en route, and what alternate fields he might chose if his passenger suddenly decided the plane should be turned back.

Meanwhile, a dozen Las Vegas agents rushed to McCarran Field to make arrangements with airport employes. (Los Angeles agents had missed Paster and Lisenbury at the Fullerton Airport by 10 minutes.)

* * * *

LISENBURY chatted pleasantly during the flight. He said he wanted to learn to fly. The two men drank coffee and at sandwiches.

As Paster brought the plane to a halt on the landing strip at McCarran, a gas boy came out of the Alamo Airways office. The lights at the gas pumps and in the office went out.

"Looks like we blew a fuse again," the gas attendant said to Paster. Then, to Lisenbury. "Follow me, sir. I'll show you where you can get a cab." And this seemed odd to Paster.

* * * *

LISENBURY, still carrying the briefcase full of dynamite, was led into the darkened office where he was immediately overwhelmed by the federal agents.

Paster learned the whole story a few minutes later when the lights went back on and he entered the office. He called his wife immediately.

"How in the world did you know who he was, honey?" he asked.

"I didn't," said Mrs. Paster. "It was just one of my silly feelings."

"I've gotta hand it to her and her silly feelings," Paster said Saturday.

CROWDS SEE NAPLES PARADE

THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS LINED NAPLES BRIDGE, PATHS, STREETS

By RALPH HINMAN JR.

It was a real swingin' parade through the Naples waterways Saturday night!

Brightly lighted boats, barges — and Grinch, a "captured marine monster" — moved along canals and bay to the audible delight of many thousands of spectators.

Music echoing between the water and gaily-lit houses included traditional Christmas carols—plus South Seas hula bongos.

Even the weather handsomely cooperated.

A predicted rain shower failed to fall, temperatures stayed in the high 50s and visibility, undimmed by more than a trace of fog, was excellent.

Onlookers began assembling along the parade route well before sundown, hours before the 6:30 starting time. Then, after the 38 parade units moved into position, the crowds loudly applauded their favorites.

Cries of "Merry Christmas!" rang between boats and shore and back again.

Two crowd favorites were a sea monster, "Grinch that stole Christmas" before being "captured by the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club," and four "Christmas toys" assembled by "just a gang of kids."

The monster, complete with flippers, deep groan, steamy breath and an ugly human face attracted much attention: "What is it?"

Pulled behind an old-style "toy fire engine" were a pair of building blocks and a jack-in-the-box, the Yule toys.

The show, sponsored by Naples Improvement Association, will be repeated tonight after a 6:15 starting time.

Route to be followed remains unchanged: starting near 2nd Street and Bay Shore, following Bay Shore to Appian Way Bridge, east to Marine Stadium, under J. H. Davies Bridge, past Basin 4 and Long Beach Yacht Club, to Vista del Golfe, entering and leaving canals at the Colonnade. Then, moves around floating Christmas trees near 2nd Street Bridge, down Bay Shore to Peninsula, into Alamitos Bay Marina Basin 1 to disband.

Romney, whose leadership revived the American Motors Corp. and made it a money-maker through volume sale of the Rambler, has told state police he wants a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth for everyday use. All three models are produced in Michigan, while the Rambler is made in Wisconsin.

Romney will retain for standby use on special occasions the luxurious Chrysler Crown Imperial limousine which outgoing Gov. John B. Swainson and former Gov. G. Mennen Williams used as the official car for the past four years.

Ask PUC Regulation of California Airlines

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A legislative committee has recommended that "commercial airlines operating solely within California be regulated by the State Public Utilities Commission."

The assembly interim committee on public utilities and corporations announced the recommendation was included in a report to be submitted next month to the 1963 legislature. Legislation designed to implement the committee's recommendations also will be introduced, the group said.

Spain Warns of Threat by Communists

MADRID (AP) — Spain's government feels it is the main target of a new Communist campaign from abroad. For the first time it is telling its own people about the threat.

Swedish newspapers are encouraged to publish details of the anti-Franco activities abroad. Such a thing was unheard of in previous years.

Franco officials, including two cabinet ministers who called news conferences to discuss the situation, say international Communism openly guided a recent series of attacks on Spain and its 70-year-old leader, Gen. Francisco Franco. Both described recent activity as part of a Communist plot to subvert in turn Portugal, Spain, Greece and West Germany.

Food Stamp Plan to Aid Needy Said Proving Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After experimenting in test areas for 16 months, the Kennedy Administration appears ready to embrace the Food Stamp Plan as a permanent project to improve the health of the nation's poor.

Howard P. Davis, director of food distribution for the Agriculture Department, estimated about 4 million people would be eligible if the program were nationwide.

President Kennedy set up the plan shortly after taking office two years ago. Its purpose is to cut farm surpluses and help raise the nutritional level of men, women and children who are destitute and hungry or whose income is so meager that their diets are sub-standard.

It provides families with coupons—the food stamps—which may be exchanged for groceries at a neighborhood store.

THE PILOT food stamp operation began in May, 1961. It was tried in selected counties of Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana New Mexico, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

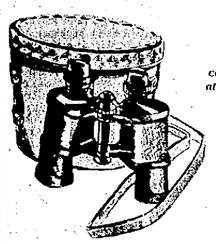

About 150,000 persons received the stamps during this trial stage.

The Agriculture Department now is extending it to test counties in Alabama, California, Kansas, Louisiana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Washington, Wisconsin, Arkansas, North Carolina, Oregon, Virginia, Missouri, Indiana and Tennessee.

Those close to the study say the pilot operation already has proved the idea will work. Additional research is needed only for refinement of administrative machinery. Then the prospects are it will stop being an experiment and become an institution.

EMBASSY AIDE STILL ON JOB

U.S. Officer Accused as Spy Stays in Russia

(Combined Wire Services)

ATLANTA—A U.S. Embassy official in Moscow telephoned his mother in Atlanta to assure her Saturday that he was all right after the Russians accused him of espionage. He was one of three Americans most recently accused of spying.

Mrs. Hal M. Davison, mother of Air Force Capt. Alexis H. Davison, said her son reported that he would continue in his Moscow assignment until his duty tour ends May 1.

"He said the whole thing was tremendously exaggerated," said Mrs. Davison, referring to reports of the spy charges.

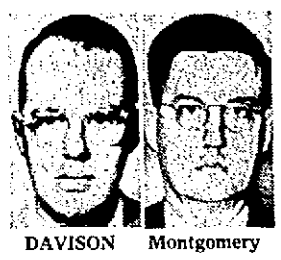

* * * *

"OF COURSE I did not ask him whether the accusations were true or unfounded," said Mrs. Davison who ridiculed the charges as typical of the Russians.

"The Soviets are always doing that," said Mrs. Davison, who is Russian-born.

The allegations published in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda brought to seven the number of persons accused here of spy activities for the West within six weeks. They include five U.S. diplomats, a British businessman and a Russian scientist.

Two other American diplomats were expelled on spy charges earlier in the year.

DAVISON Montgomery

GERMAN JACOB

Pravda, promising more disclosures, named these other Embassy officials in a cloak-and-dagger description of the alleged network:

—Hugh Montgomery, 39, of Springfield, Mass., attache and security officer.

—Robert K. German, 35, of Dallas, Tex., second secretary.

Neither the Embassy nor the three men would comment on the charges. No expulsion orders have been received from the Foreign Ministry.

The Embassy declined comment, but Carlson said in Copenhagen he was not ordered to leave by Russia or the Embassy. It was believed, however, there were fears for his security and that embarrassment over the charges no longer permitted him to carry out his duties.

* * * *

THE EMBASSY has denied spy charges against Richard C. Jacob, 30, of Egg Harbor, N.J., secretary-archivist who was expelled in early November.

Russia has jailed British businessman Greville Wynne, arrested in Budapest, who claims he has confessed. Also under detention and presumably awaiting trial with Wynne is Oleg V. Penkovsky, employe of the Soviet State Committee for Coordination of Scientific Work.

With this cast of characters, Pravda gave the following description of how the so-called spy ring worked:

Penkovsky, the key contact man, would draw a circle with a piece of coal on a gray lamppost at a bus stop in front of Davison's downtown Moscow apartment whenever he had information to pass. The apartment is near the Embassy.

Davison knew when to look for the signal because on the previous day Penkovsky telephoned twice in succession each to Davison and Montgomery with the Russian hanging up when they answered.

Davison would loiter around the post or pretend to line up for a bus. When he spotted the coal mark at knee-high level he would hop into his car and dash for the Embassy. Once in his rush to get to the Embassy he made an illegal U-turn, Pravda said.

* * * *

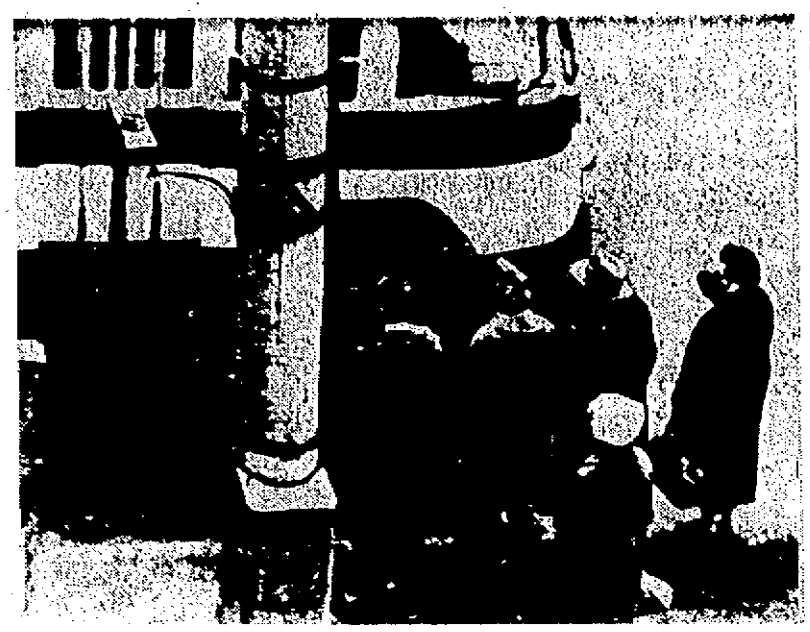

THEN JACOB and German would drive to a downtown bookstore. German would browse around and read while he held books "with trembling hands," the Communist newspaper said. Jacob would walk over to 5/6 Pushkin Street where he would find a matchbook of secrets wired to a radiator under a stairway.

Pravda published a photograph of a man purported to be Davison standing by the lamppost, with a mug shot of Davison set into the picture. A second photograph showed a bespectacled man in a raincoat—Jacob—bending under the stairway.

If anything went wrong with the routine, Penkovsky, who went by the code name of Alex, would telephone Davison and Montgomery, breathe heavily three times into the mouthpiece and then hang up, Pravda said. This was the signal to check the lamppost for a cross instead of a circle, indicating something amiss.

The Russians said Jacob was caught red handed in a pickup, held for questioning and expelled over Embassy protests.

RUSSIAN PHOTO IN SPY CASE

Religious scenes, lighting displays, pageants, parades and eleborate decorations in various sections of the Southland mark the Christmas season.

In Long Beach the two principal points of interest are the Daisy Avenue decorations and the Naples Water Pageant which was held last night and will be held again today at 6:30 p.m. Costumed carolers ride barges, and decorated boats wind through the canals and in the bay, where 24 floating "Christmas trees," are lighted nightly through the holiday season.

* * * *

IN SAN PEDRO, Western Avenue, south of Ninth Street, presents a number of colorful yule displays. Voladar Place to First Street, west of Western Avenue, also has elaborate Christmas decorations.

The first and most famous of Southern California's Christmas lighting effects is on Altadena's Mile of Christmas Trees. Giant deodars along Santa Rosa Avenue, leading down from Mt. Lowe, are strung with colored lights—about 10,000 on 100 trees. The display will be lighted from Dec. 24 to Jan. 1.

The town of Joshua Tree, in the desert, recreates shops and homes of Bethlehem Dec. 18-24 and a tableau is presented nightly.

* * * *

IN ONTARIO, Euclid Avenue is transformed into a focal point of religious emphasis until Jan. 2. Choirs from local churches present nightly programs and the parkway is lined with elaborate life-like Christmas scenes.

In Glendale, thousands of elaborate colored lights roof Brand Boulevard, making it a "tunnel of lights" through December.

Christmas decorations at individuals homes and in civic exhibitions may also be found at these locations:

Anaheim — Park Avenue and North Street and both Kenway and Parkway Streets, off Citron Street.

Garden Grove — Royal Palm Boulevard, west from Brookhurst Street and Town and Country Drive in the same area. Some displays of note will be seen in Nichols Manor, Garden Grove Boulevard and Gilbert Street, and a mechanical display is at Orangewood Avenue and Gilbert Street.

Huntington Beach — The parkway in front of the oceanfront Pav-A-Lon is decorated and houses on Main Street, south of 17th Street, have been dressed up for the season.

* * * *

NEWPORT BEACH—The City Employes Association will launch its floating yule tree in the bay Monday. It will be lighted nightly through the holiday season from 6 to 10 p.m. "Seahorse" decorations line the old Pacific Electric parkway and a giant tree is decorated in the plaza. In Corona del Mar, well-lighted miniatures are on exhibit on the 500 block on Poppy Avenue.

Downey — Outstanding decorations in private homes in the northwestern part of the city, north of Firestone Boulevard and west of Lakewood Boulevard. Junior Chamber of Commerce operates tours 5 to 10 p.m. Dec. 21 through 23, starting from Stonewood Shopping Center Mall, Lakewood and Firestone Boulevard. Charge for tour tickets.

Norwalk—Freddie Cook plays St. Nick in front of his decorated home at 11931 E. Allard St., and passes out candy gifts to youngsters from 7 to 10 p.m.

Deal With Europe, U.S. Firms Urged

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — American trade officials here feel too many U. S. firms are saying "no thank you" when invited to try their luck in the burgeoning European Common Market.

"A lot of American producers just don't seem to understand what this market of 170 million people can mean for them, now and in the future," says Edmund F. Becker, director of the new U. S. trade Center in Frankfurt. "We have a dickens of a time persuading some companies to exhibit here."

Becker, whose aim is to help the United States offset its gold outflow by increased sales abroad, presents several reasons for doing business here.

The gross national product in Europe is growing faster than in the United States. The amount of disposable income, while still less than in the United States, is growing faster and the area has a buying population potentially bigger than that of the United States.

Estranged Dad Threatens Wife, Children, Arrested

ONTARIO (UPI) — Virgil Nichols, 37, of Ontario Saturday was booked for assault with a deadly weapon after holding his four children and a man captive several hours.

Police said Nichols barged into the home of his estranged wife, Marjorie, 32, pulled a gun and threatened his family and a man who was visiting his wife, Clarence Worthington.

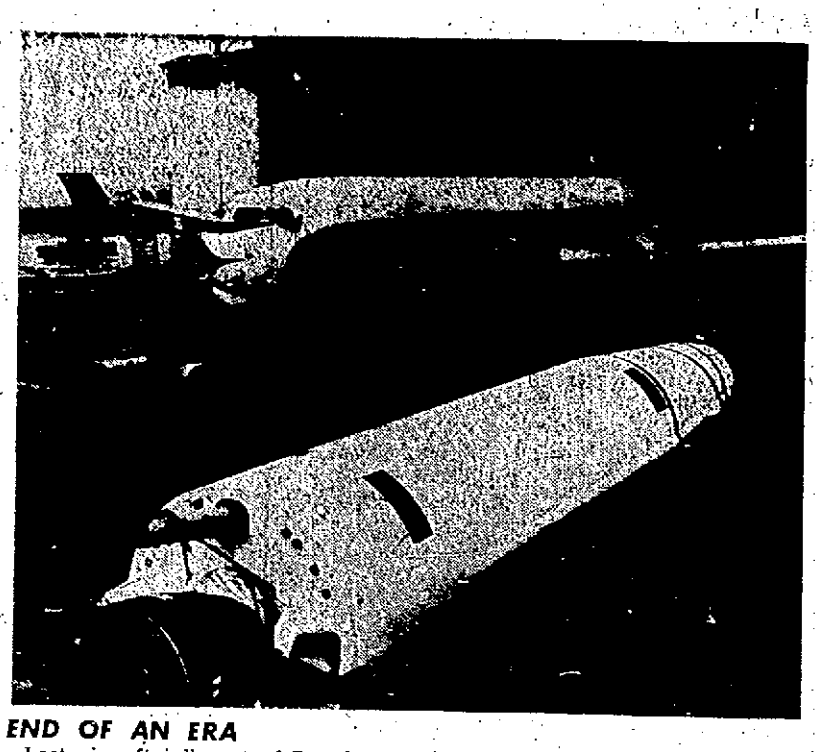

Sixteen police and sheriff's deputies converged on the home.

Nichols' 15-year-old daughter, Sheryl, dressed her two small brothers and a sister and ushered them out the back door unknown to her father. His wife ran to neighbors to call police immediately after Nichols threatened her with a pistol.

After the children were safely out of the house, police used tear gas to force Nichols outside where he was captured without further incident.

U.S. Airmen Adopt 15 Scots Children

PRESTWICK, Scotland (UPI)—The Air Police section of a U. S. Air Force squadron here said Saturday it had become so fond of 15 children from a Scottish welfare home to whom it gave a Christmas treat Saturday it had decided to adopt them on a year-around basis.

END OF AN ERA
Last aircraft rolls out of Douglas Aircraft Company's facility at Santa Monica where thousands of famed DC series of passenger transports and various military aircraft were produced. Transport, originally a DC6B built at the Douglas plant several years ago, was returned for conversion to a cargo carrier. Thor rocket, workhorse satellite launcher produced by Douglas for Air Force and NASA, is being towed into building area vacated by departing aircraft.

Santa Anan's Party Shoots Rough Rapids

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ, Mexico (UPI) — A government helicopter following the progress of a group of American adventurers through rugged Sumidero Canyon reported Saturday they have crossed the first stretch of rough rapids and are navigating down the Grijalva River.

The helicopter makes a daily check on the rapid-shooters and reports to the Tuxtla Gutierrez mayor's office. Progress is being charted on a map hanging in the city hall.

A Mexican army expedition into this most rugged terrain in Chiapas state ended in disaster in 1959 when a raft capsized and three soldiers were drowned.

Indian-Chinese War Cancels Tiger Hunt

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee museum had to give up its plan for a February tiger hunt in India, it was announced Saturday, because of the Indian-Chinese war.

A museum official said he hoped the expedition could be rescheduled for 1964.

Santa Monica Plant Shifts Plane Work to L.B. Douglas

The final link in the Douglas Aircraft Company's integrated aircraft division at Long Beach will be forged this week with the transfer here of the last remaining production work on airplanes at the Santa Monica plant.

The last aircraft to roll out of the Santa Monica facility was a DC6B passenger transport which had been returned to the plant where it was built for conversion into a cargo carrier, like some 70 of its sister DC6 and DC7 piston-powered craft.

Marking the occasion by taking off from Santa Monica's Clover Field, the newly converted cargo craft passed a Douglas Thor rocket on its way into the building area vacated by the aircraft.

FROM NOW on, all cargo-conversion work will be done at the aircraft division here, home of the Douglas DC8 Jetliner and DC8F Jet Trader, cargo - passenger convertible carrier.

At the sprawling plant in Santa Monica, oldest of Douglas' four major facilities and the headquarters location, some tears may have been shed over this passing of an era. But the bulk of the workers hardly noticed it. They were too busy making missiles and space vehicles.

In production at the Santa Monica missile and space systems division are the famous Thor and Thor Delta rockets, the air-to-air Genie nuclear missile and the Saturn S-IV space vehicle. Under development are the S-IVB advanced Saturn upper stage and the Nike Zeus anti-ICBM missile.

CLOVER FIELD, however, will miss the big DCs thundering off the runway. For almost 40 years, a Douglas airplane of one sort or another has made its maiden flight from Clover Field.

From here thousands of DC3's, most of them still flying somewhere in the world, first took to the air. In 1924 a group of frail Douglas biplanes soared off this field, flew around the world and landed here again. In 1941 the huge B19 lumbered from this runway while thousands held their breaths.

From this field over 10,000 Douglas-built airplanes have made their maiden flights.

* * * *

AT THE aircraft division, cargo-conversion is expected to continue for several years. Worldwide, there are about 600 DC6 and DC7 series passenger transports eligible for conversion.

Since the program was inaugurated in 1958, 15 airlines have contracted for modification of their DC6Bs, DC7s, DC7Bs and DC7Cs.

H. W. Melon, chief project engineer and deputy program manager for the modification work, says the new freighters will be useful as cargo airplanes for at least 15 years.

"They are invaluable as interim airplanes in the growth of air cargo," he said, "but even when the DC8F Jet Traders are available in large numbers, they will be ideal for dispersing cargo from the larger jets."

$4.7 Billion Urged to Bolster Science

WASHINGTON (AP)—A White House advisory committee recommended Saturday that government and private interests provide $4.7 billion in the next seven years to train more graduate scientists and engineers.

President Kennedy accepted the panel's central conclusion that something special must be done if the supply of highly-trained engineers, mathematicians and physical scientists is to keep pace with demand.

In a 45-page report, Kennedy's science advisory committee suggested the federal share of the program's cost might approximate 60 per cent, or about $2.8 billion.

However, the group said a substantial portion of this amount would come from existing federal programs. It did not give a precise estimate of the additional cost involved.

The committee proposed that the nation's colleges turn out 7,500 PhD.s a year by 1970, compared to 3,400 in 1962. It said the number of students receiving masters' degrees in the science and engineering fields should be boosted to 30,000 a year from the present 13,000.

TWO CONFESSIONS TO MURDER

Air Force Justice on Trial in Idaho

By JAMES PHELAN

MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE, Idaho — The sign at the entrance to this giant Strategic Air Command installation reads "Peace Is Our Profession." But there is no peace here today, even in this Yuletime season of peace as this base and the countryside about boils with controversy over the strange case of double murder.

Most murders are solved by someone confessing the crime. The problem here at Mountain Home, 50 miles southeast of Boise, is that two men confessed the same crime.

To tangle the problem further, both men have repudiated their confessions.

* * * *

HOW THOSE confessions were obtained—and why they were repudiated— has stirred tempers, brought serious charges of violations of civil rights, and set in motion a series of investigations that are causing concern in the far-off Pentagon.

Under scrutiny is the conduct of the hush hush agency known as OSI — Office of Special Investigation—a sort of FBI for the Air Force. But the OSI is an independent agency not responsible to the usual chain of command at this and other Air Force bases.

* * * *

ANDERSON has been accused by civil authorities—and released by them—in the brutal murder last April 9 of Nancy Joy Johnson, 23-year-old wife of an Air Force man, and their two-year-old son, Daniel. Mrs. Johnson was found hacked to death in her home, with the dead body of her son nearby, his throat cut.

Anderson was turned over to Elmore County officials here last April after a lengthy interrogation by OSI agents produced a confession that Anderson later repudiated. His attorney charges the confession was obtained by "virtual brainwashing" and that much of the confession was dictated by OSI agents and not by Anderson.

A month ago Anderson suddenly was freed by civil authority when a second man, a civilian named Theodore Thomas Dickie, confessed to the two Johnson killings. Anderson was promptly arrested by Air Force officials and held for investigation of whether court-martial proceedings should be initiated against him in the dual murders.

* * * *

THE CONTINUATION of Anderson in military jeopardy for a crime which civil authority had freed him is at the heart of the turmoil that roils this Idaho countryside. Friday, Congressman Ralph Harding told this reporter that the U.S. Justice Department is investigating the entire affair. "There is no doubt," said the congressman, "that the image of the Air Force has been damaged."

This week a military hearing began here to determine whether the Air Force will proceed with a military trial of Airman Anderson.

The hearing is taking place in an incongruous setting, the Christmas-decorated ballroom of the Air Force Station community center. Beneath the gay crepe paper and the shiny yule ornaments a grim struggle for a man's life grinds on through thousands of words of testimony.

* * * *

AMONG THE dozens who testified, and underwent sharp cross-examination by Anderson's civilian lawyer, Robert McLaughlin, have been a parade of plain-clothes agents of the OSI.

This week brought testimony that OSI agents broke Anderson's initial claim of innocence by grilling him more than 40 hours. It brought further testimony that other OSI agents broke Dickie's confession to the same crime—and obtained his repudiation of that confession — by grilling Dickie more than seven hours.

"This just doesn't look like an impartial investigation to me," declared attorney McLaughlin. Under his repeated hammering, however, OSI agents insisted they are seeking "only the truth" and are not attempting to retrieve the Air Force's embarrassing position of holding a man for a crime that another has confessed.

Saturday McLaughlin obtained admission from OSI agent John W. Peters that independent evidence backs Dickie's confession on 10 points. These points include:

1. The murder weapon, a hunting knife, has been identified as the property of Dickie.

2. A series of items stolen from the Johnson home the night of the murder—including two purses—were found where Dickie said he had thrown them after leaving the murder scene.

3. Minute details about items in the Johnson home—such as the location of a shotgun shell—were verified by police officers examining the murder scene.

4. A piece of the murder knife which Dickie said broke off when he stabbed Mrs. Johnson—was found in her body in the autopsy. It fitted Dickie's knife exactly.

Against this and other details upholding the original Dickie confession, OSI agent Peters could list only four points of what he claimed was "corroboration" of Airman Anderson's confession.

* * * *

DICKIE later repeated the confession of slaying the Johnson mother and son to OSI agents. Despite this confession they returned later and continued to interrogate Dickie until he orally repudiated the confession. Dickie, who has signed three separate confessions to the Johnson murders, refused to sign a statement repudiating his admission of guilt.

The hearing here will continue through the weekend with a full session scheduled today. It is being conducted by Maj. James D. Goddard, staff judge advocate, from Biggs Air Force Base, El Paso Tex. When the hearing is completed Maj. Goddard will pass a record to his superiors. In a month or so the commander of the 15th Air Force, at March Air Force Base, Calif., will rule whether a military trial will be ordered for Anderson.

Meanwhile, civil proceedings in Boise against Dickie for the same crime are expected to proceed.

Over this state, in this Yuletide season, hangs a specter of a legal monstrosity.

What will happen if Airman Anderson is sent to military trial—and then Dickie is convicted of the crime by a civilian court?

Or vice versa?

LIBERALS WARN STATE REPUBLICAN LEADERS

GOP Must Be Big Enough to Hold Everybody

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

FRESNO—If the Republican Party "is not big enough for everybody, it's too damned small to get anybody elected," National GOP Committeeman Joseph Martin Jr., of San Francisco, told the party's State Central Committee executive committee Saturday.

Martin, after a theme set by state GOP Chairman Caspar W. Weinberger, joined other party leaders here in concerted attention toward washing labels out of the party. They used the most powerful detergent—power—which they hope will make the party not just surface clean, but clean clear through.

* * * *

WEINBERGER, a moderate and a Nixon supporter, appointed about half of the executive committee's 61 members; the rest are automatic appointments fixed in committee by-laws. While deploring labels, he answered a reporter's query about how present party leadership would meet any challenge by "unhappy elements" by saying such elements, in his view, are very small and "we are fully prepared to meet such an effort."

The reference was to conservative Joe Shell who lost to Richard Nixon in the gubernatorial primary. A Friday night planning session to reorganize the GOP along "conservative, constitutional lines" turned out to be a fizzle both in numbers and enthusiasm. The meeting, to which county central committee chairmen were invited, was called by Modoc County Chairman Carmen P. Fleming.

* * * *

WEINBERGER also cautioned against the "waste of time" of selecting a state titular head of the GOP. He said he presumed the titular head would be the Republican nominee for governor in 1966. This too was judged to be a conciliatory gesture by the state chairman; he had been quoted as saying Nov. 14 in San Francisco, along with Martin and State Senate minority leader John F. McCarthy that U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel is the unquestioned titular head of the party here.

The power of Weinberger's unity team was evident also in a revelation by California Republican Assembly President Fred Hall of Long Beach. Hall, a former Kansas governor, said considerable attention is being given the nomination for Los Angeles County CRA president of Los Angeles Attorney George Ricci.

RICCI, defeated early this month for the county Young Republican presidency by an ultraconservative bloc of YRs, would thus be installed in a position of relatively greater importance than the YR office and Hall said, might transfer dissatisfied YRs into a block of moderate voting strength in the county CRA.

Weinberger, blue printing recommendations he hopes the executive group will make to the full state committee next month, emphasized the strong foundation of California Republicanism in its three million registered voters and the "major indication," in Kuchel's example, that this state "is perfectly willing to vote for Republicans."

* * * *

AMONG HIS recommendations: Avoid the trap of "divisive, lazy, shorthand labels" for people; concentrate on basic major party differences with the GOP as the party dedicated to human freedom and Democrats as dedicated to big government and the narrowing of human, individual freedom.

He stressed the need for year-around precinct orgaization, close liaison with congressional and state elected delegations and among volunteer groups such as the Federation of Republican Women, CRA and CYR. He said registration drives to narrow the 1.3-million advantage of Democrats should be enough in itself to keep precince workers and mainly-social clubs active between elections.

* * * *

GLADYS O'DONNELL, of Long Beach, state vice chairman, was commended to the group by Weinberger for her speakers' bureau activities. He noted the need for supporting a GOP research center in Sacramento to serve legislators and all party workers to "use the reservoir of party assets in a mighty army."

Speakers also stressed an all-out effort to win the Jan. 22 special election in the First Congressional District, won by deceased Democrat Clem Miller Nov. 6. Miller's GOP opponent, Don Clausen, will oppose Miller's former aide, William Grader in the special contest.

Unity and a stop to intra-party bickering over labels was clearly the chief concern of the leadership here, but the ghost of division persisted.

* * * *

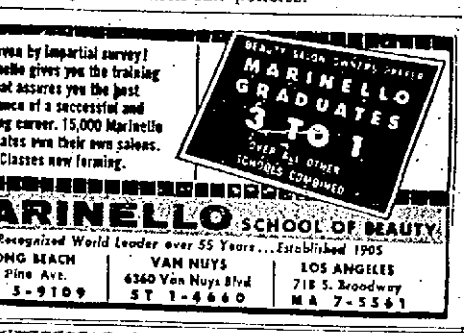

CHAIRMAN Weinberger was quoted in a Fresno paper with comments on Joe Shell's stated threats to overthrow his leadership in favor of a more conservative brand. Said Weinberger: "I don't want to see the party driven into such a narrow corner as advocated by Shell. That's the way to end the Republican Party in California."

Modoc County's Carmen Fleming was quoted in the same story: "The Republican Party is bound to drift into oblivion if we do not adopt sound, conservative, American policies."

Hiss Broadcast Blast Shelved

FRESNO — Long Beach delegate Gladys O'Donnell touched off the only controversy in Saturday's executive committee meeting of the State Republican Central Committee with a strongly-worded resolution over "Richard Nixon's political obituary."

The resolution deplored the appearance of Alger Hiss in the ABC broadcast last Nov. 11, presented by commentator Howard K. Smith.

Frank Vessels Is Man of Year

After 17 years of operating the Los Alamitos Race Course, Frank Vessels Sr. keeps learning new ways to win.

Last month he joined an illustrious group of Western horse breeders and riding champions when he won the honor of appearing as a "model" for a national advertising program featuring a bourbon whisky.

Last week he joined another illustrious group of Orange County citizens when he was chosen by the Orange County Press Club for its man of the year award.

FRANK VESSELS SR.
Keeps Learning

Vessels took his place in the whisky ad because he is the outstanding breeder of quarterhorses in the country and operates the most successful race track for them.

He won the man of the year award for his philanthropic and civic work, which has benefitted innumerable individuals and organizations throughout the county.

* * * *

FOR THE RANGY former oil well roustabout, the award represents a "coming home." He first came to Orange County after World War I and worked in the oil field at Huntington Beach.

After putting together two successful construction businesses, Vessels found he had never lost the love of horses picked up in his birthplace of Ft. Knox, Ky., so he built the Los Alamitos Race Course in 1945.

The first track was a scrubby, halfmile affair hewn out of part of his 457-acre ranch.

However, in the last 17 years it has taken on with such a bang that one of the richest horse races held anywhere — the $207,750 Los Alamitos Futurity—is a highlight of the racing year.

GOING TO FLORIDA

JFK Will Lead Holiday Exodus

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington promises to be a sort of lonely town at Christmastime, with the presidential family leading the holiday exodus.

Most of the members of his cabinet, along with their families, plan to be away, three of them on skiing jaunts in Colorado and Vermont.

The some 250,000 federal workers in the Washington area will have a four-day Christmas weekend, by executive order of the President. With Monday, Dec. 24, declared a holiday for most of the workers, thousands of them, too, will be heading over the Potomac and through the woods to hometowns.

The presidential family plans Christmas at Palm Beach, Fla., with the President joining Mrs. Kennedy and the two children, Caroline and John Jr., there next week.

* * * *

VICE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson are counting on an old-fashioned Christmas at their ranch home near Stonewall, Tex. Mrs. Johnson expects to leave Dec. 19 for Texas, taking daughter Lucy, 15. Another, Lynda, 17, a freshman at the University of Texas, will join them at the ranch. The vice presidents plans to arrive later.

Skiing vacations are planned by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and Postmaster General J. Edward Day. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman hopes to enjoy a similar holiday.

The attorney general, his wife and seven children expect to spend Christmas at their home in nearby Mclean, Va. Then it's off to Aspen, Colo., for skiing.

McNamara and his family are going to Aspen, too, for Christmas.

* * * *

DAY AND HIS WIFE are taking their three teenage children to Stowe, Vt., the day after Christmas. They have a home here.

The Freemans are staying here for Christmas so Connie, 17, and Michael, 14, can sing in the choir at St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Silver Spring but skiing may come later.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Douglas Dillon will be heading for their Florida home at Hobo Sound Dec. 20, to remain until Jan. 7.

Staying here will be Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Stuart Udall and their six children, joined by some relatives from Arizona.

* * * *

SECRETARY OF STATE and Mrs. Dean Rusk will have their three children home for the hohlidays. And though the youngest, Peggy, is 13 years old, they still will follow family tradition by leaving out a piece of cake and a raw carrot for Santa Claus and his reindeer on Christmas Eve.

Secretary of Labor and Mrs. W. Willard Wirtz and their two children will go to De Kalb, Ill., to spend the holidays with the secretary's father.

For Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Luther H. Hodges, it will be a family reunion at their home in Chapel Hill, N. C.

But while people are going, people will be coming, too.

For one thing, the new Congress convenes Jan. 9, and there are a lot of new congressmen who'll be here looking for a house for their families.

And there always are the tourists.

BOSS LEAVES HER $1 MILLION

Secretary to ALCOA's Davis Willed Fortune

By JAMES R. CAZALAS

MIAMI (UPI) — The dream of every secretary came true for Miss Evelyn Mitchell—she inherited $1 million from her boss.

But Miss Mitchell, secretary to one of America's richest men for 12 years, says the inheritance won't change her way of life.

* * * *

DAVIS, a diminutive, silver-haired magnate with holdings ranging from land to aluminum, once called Miss Mitchell "my right hand." Gradually after he hired her in Washington in 1950, the publicity-shy chaiman of the Aluminum Company of America gave her more and more responsibility.

Within a few years after arriving here in 1950, Miss Mitchell, the pretty stenographer from Newport News, Va., was arranging schedules and running an estate for one of the busiest men in American business.

When Davis suffered a stroke in 1952, the statuesque Miss Mitchell went to his side and stayed there for 10 years, becoming more of a comrade than a coworker.

* * * *

WHEN THE end came, only a chosen few stood at the deathbed of one of the least-know millionaires in America. One of them was Miss Mitchell.

"He was a great man, a hard worker," Miss Mitchell said of Davis.

"When we got here in 1950, I tried working in the downtown office, but before long I was at Journey's End (Davis' estate) more and more." She said.

EVELYN MITCHELL
Lifetime Income

"I became sort of an assistant. When the cook was off, I cooked. When the butler was gone, I butled."

* * * *

TODAY, Miss Mitchell is still living at the sumptuous estate, quietly running matters "which still go on."

"There's still lots to do an I am content," she said.

Asked if she has any plans, Miss Mitchell smiled and said: "No. There is too much to do."

"Besides, I haven't received any money yet. Maybe when I do, I'll go to Europe. I've always wanted to go there." She said her duties have increased since Davis' death.

* * * *

"BESIDES regular duties, I get about 100 letters a day now," she said.

She said she hadn't thought about marriage proposals in the offing.

"I have to kid and say no one ever asked me," she said with a twinkle, "but then again, I don't expect I'll have to beat swains off with a bat."

Young Americans Bring New Hope to Slums of Venezuela

By JOHN GOLDMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—In a dingy slum of Caracas, where cab drivers refuse to go because Communist bands burn cars, two young American girls are satisfied over the success of their cooking school. Even the local Communist leader wants to be listed as a sponsor.

At Sierra Maestra, in the heart of Venezuela's pro-Castro country, a young Californian looks up from the wheelbarrow he is repairing and grins at the new brick and steel community center being built.

More than 700 miles to the east, water rushes through a 2,000-foot pipeline for the first time to the village of San Felix and another American smiles.

* * * *

Joseph H. Blatchford, the tennis player, dreamed of a private Peace Corps in December, 1960 and Jerry Brady, 26, and Gary Glenn, 25, fellow law students at the University of California, agreed.

The three students managed to raise $90,000 from businesses, foundations and charities in North and South America and about a year later Accion was born.

* * * *

ACCION volunteers today live in the slums of politically explosive Venezuela. They help build schools, community centers, water systems and small industries. Thirty-five Americans are serving in the South American country. Ten are women. The volunteers serve for 18 months and receive $150 a month. They get travel expenses.

The private Peace Corps hopes to have 60 Americans in Venezuela by next summer. The U.S. Peace Corps has 67 volunteers in the country and 28 training to go there.

Blatchford heads Accion's operations in South America. Brady is in charge of the New York office and Glenn handles recruiting in New England. Accion hopes to recruit volunteers in Canada as the next step to expanding the corps.

* * * *

SUZY NAVARRETE, 29, of Los Angeles, and Winifred Marich, 24, of San Pedro, Calif., discovered a hodgepodge of wood and cardboard when they moved into a slum on the outskirts of Caracas last January. The slum is a Communist stronghold.

"We looked for some community organization to work through, but none existed," the girl wrote. "Nor was there any community awareness or consciousness."

The volunteers gained the help of some natives, rented a building for $50 a month and started a community center. Soon there were classes in cooking, sewing, English and literacy.

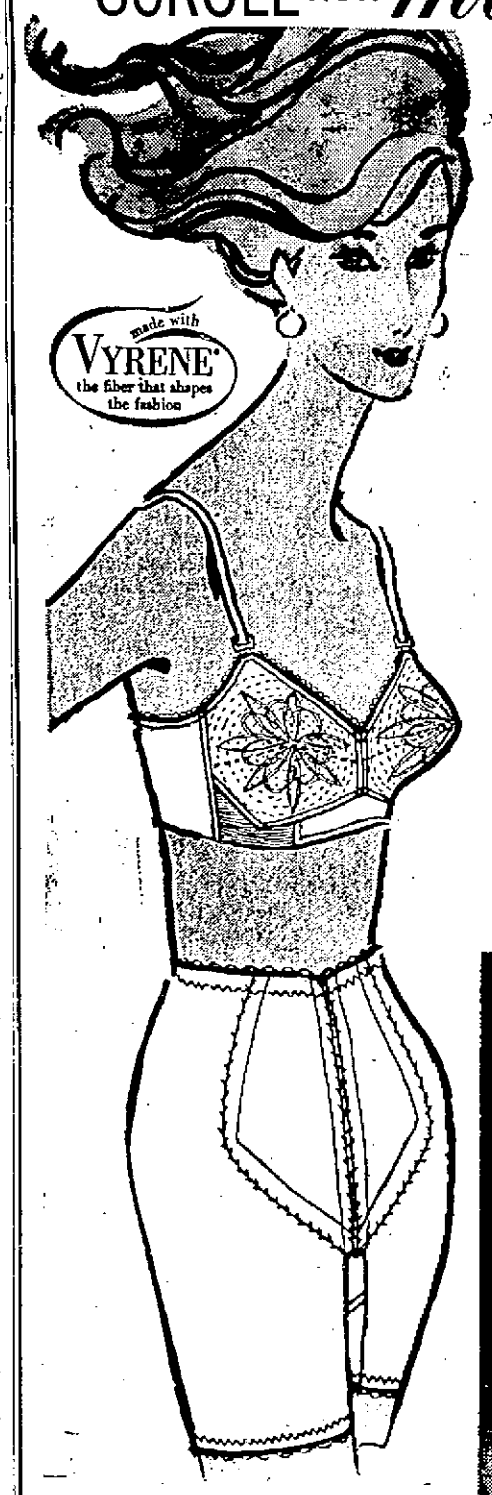

Holdup Men Rob Doctor's Patients

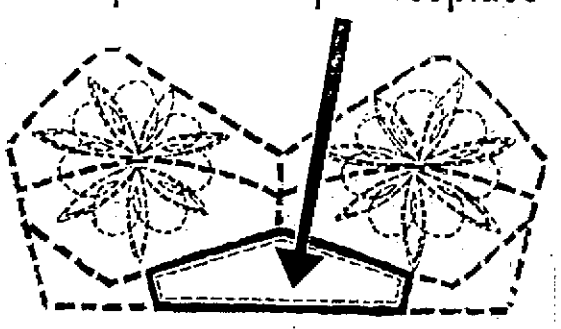

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Holdup men walked into the office of Dr. Alphonso Willard Saturday and passed the hat among 18 patients waiting in his reception room.

Police said the bandits took $300 from Dr. Willard and about $200 from the patients.

Cuba Sets Rules for Yuletide

HAVANA (UPI)—The government Saturday halted the sales of roasting pigs in Havana and its environs, reversing an earlier government pledge to provide the traditional Cuban Christmas delicacy.

Residents of the capital will be able to eat "lichon," or roast pig, however, at government-sponsored banquets for $7.00 per plate.

The Internal Commerce Ministry warned grocerymen to sell Christmas fare, duck, turkies and pork, only to known neighborhood customers with ration books.

THE MINISTRY said turkey will be sold to grocerymen for 75 cents a pound for resale at 80 cents a pound. $95.00 per 100 pounds, for resale at $1.00 per pound.

Postponement of rationing on diapers, teething rings, and other baby articles was announced by the ministry pending an ironing out of details. The rationing was to have gone into effect Monday. It had been announced by the directorate of the neighborhood revolutionary vigilance committees.

The government announced political prisoners and prisoners taken in the Pigs Bay invasion will be allowed to accept Christmas packages Dec. 20 and 21, and visits from relatives later.

* * * *

THE ANNOUNCEMENT would seem to squelch any conjecture that the invaders will be released before Christmas

PRESIDENT KENNEDY will occupy these living quarters in the Nassau home of Canadian industrialist Edward P. Taylor when the chief executive meets with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan this week.

PRESIDENT, PRIME MINISTER MEETING

Kennedy, Macmillan Stay in Swank Private Homes

By JOE McGowan Jr.

NASSAU, Bahamas, (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan will live in two luxurious private homes when they come to the Bahamas for their conference on world problems Wednesday and Thursday.

The houses are on Lyford Cay, a multimillion-dollar private membership club and residential resort at the northwestern tip of New Providence Island (Nassau).

Macmillan will use the home of Mrs. Robert Holt, widow of a Canadian banker. Her mansion, Mali H'ai, follows Bahamian architectural patterns and is expensively furnished, yet has a pleasant, casual atmosphere. Wide jalousie and picture windows admit sunshine and ocean breeze.

KENNEDY will stay next door in the moré formal, $1-million mansion of Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor, who bought 4,000 acres of pasture and swampland in 1946 and several years later began development of exclusive Lyford Cay.

Some of the summit discussions may take place at either the Taylor or Holt beachhouses. They are 100 yards apart on a secluded beach washed by a gentle surf.

The plush development, largely a winter resort for wealthy Americans and Canadians, contrasts with the old - world atmosphere elsewhere on New Providence Island.

FIFTEEN miles to the east lies Nassau, capital and with 50,000 people the largest city in the British Colony.

Built along a hill overlooking the harbor, the city has narrow winding streets. Some barely permit passage of an automobile between the low stone walls that surround most the homes.

Kennedy Parley to Help Briton

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is journeying to Nassau in the Bahama Islands this week on a trip which is designed to do more good for Britain's prime minister, Harold Macmillan, than for Kennedy. An American Democrat is giving a lift to a British Conservative.

This paradoxical situation comes about through the somewhat confused state of the world. The Kennedy-Macmillan meeting on Wednesday owes at least some of its genesis to the recent Cuban crisis. At that time, the United States moved unilaterally. It did not consult its allies who were left just as much in the dark as to American intentions as was the general public.

* * * *

WHILE OUR allies were sympathetic to the reasons for American secrecy and "lone wolf" action, the fact that they were not consulted did not sit too well with them and raised some political problems for the heads of our allies states. It was murmured that the United States and Russia had brought the world to the very brink of nuclear war without so much as a "by your leave" to our allies. The Macmillan-Kennedy talks are planned to indicate Macmillan is still very much on President Kennedy's calling list.

Its political purpose is to give a hand to the British prime minister. He is in some political trouble at home. Polls and other indices have shown that he personally and his government have skidded sharply in popularity. Recent by-elections in Great Britain have resulted in substantial losses in the Conservative vote, large gains for the Labor and Liberal parties.

* * * *

WHILE IT MIGHT be deduced that Kennedy, a Democrat, supports the British Labor Party rather than the Conservative, such is not the case. The U.S. for instance would like to see Great Britain in the European Common Market. Macmillan has the same desire. The Labor Party is split on the issue. Under a Labor regime, Britain's entry into the Common Market would be extremely doubtful and for that reason Kennedy would just as soon see Macmillan and his Conservatives stick around until the Common Market is joined.

Not entirely dissociated from the political field is the question of the Skybolt missile which will be discussed between Kennedy and Macmillan. Failure of Macmillan to obtain the Skybolt would leave him open to charges that he had left Great Britain denuded of atomic weapons and that his policy was making Great Britain completely dependent militarily upon the United States. Such charges could do him considerable harm at a time when he needs bolstering.

De Gaulle, Macmillan Talk Over West Europe Future

PARIS (AP) — President De Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan began Saturday a phase of diplomatic consultation with historic implications for the future of the Western alliance.

In the quiet of the fortified 15th-Century Chateau of Rambouillet, the French and British leaders dwelt on the philosophical aspects of East-West relations, Europe's place in the unfolding power struggle and the roles France and Britain can play in it.

Yet the basic purpose of Macmillan's informal weekend with De Gaulle was to find out, if he could, just what the prospects are of Britain's entering the French-led Common Market. In the answer to this riddle lies the fate of his government and the future of his island country.

Gaitskell in Hospital

LONDON (AP)—Hugh Gaitskell, leader of Britain's opposition Labor Party, entered a London hospital Saturday, suffering from influenza. A party spokesman said "there is nothing seriously wrong" with Gaitskell "but he wants to get quite fit before his visit to Russia."

JFK Makes Cuba Policy Crystal-Clear to Khrushchev

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy made it crystal-clear last week that the United States is not backing down one whit from its tough Cuban policy.

He put it this way in a nationally televised press conference:

—We will not pledge against invading Cuba until Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev lives up to his bargain for on-site weapons inspection.

—We will not tolerate reintroduction of offensive Soviet rockets in Cuba nor the continued presence of thousands of highly trained Russian troops.

—We will continue our own daily aerial inspection until Fidel Castro's Communist government is rendered powerless to wage offensive war.

—We will continue negotiating for on-site inspection by qualified officials but will accept nothing short of Russian acquiescence.

—We soon will impose further crippling shipping restrictions on Castro's foreign trade, whether or not Khrushchev or our Allies like it.

The President restated the U. S. position in the wake of a Khrushchev speech in which the Russian leader warned him to keep his "no invasion pledge" or Russia "would take appropriate action."

Truth is, Kennedy didn't give a flat pledge. He stipulated there must be mandatory on-site inspection and other safeguards which Khrushchev has ignored on the pretext Castro won't stand for them. Under this situation, Kennedy is perforce released from his pledge.

* * * *

KHRUSHCHEV, addressing the Supreme Soviet (parliament), attempted to explain publicly for the first time why he sent nuclear rockets to Cuba. It was, he said, to save Castro from U. S. aggression, not to establish a Communist bridgehead in Latin America. And he claimed full credit for averting a nuclear war by withdrawing his missiles, without once mentioning Kennedy's war-or-else ultimatum which forced him to ship the rockets home.

Khrushchev ridiculed suggestions that the Kremlin had chosen Cuba for a jump-off war against the United States. "A malicious fabrication," he said. "Had we wanted to start war we would not have dismantled the bases." But Kennedy had warned Khrushchev that the firing of a single missile from Cuba would bring U. S. nuclear destruction to Russia.

It was the first time the Russians had been forced to look down the fearsome nuclear barrel which it had pointed at the United States once too often.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, attending a NATO strategy meeting in Paris, said the United States will undertake no new negotiations with Moscow on Berlin or other cold war crises until the Cuban problem is solved satisfactorily. At the same time he reaffirmed the West's determination to defend isolated West Berlin.

* * * *

KHRUSHCHEV, in the most direct Russian attack yet on Red China which holds that world communism can triumph over capitalism only by war, warned his Peking associates that the world can survive only through co-existence.

He rejected Chinese charges that he had bowed to a U. S. "paper tiger" in Cuba and cautioned Peking to remember that the paper tiger "has nuclear teeth." Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko joined in the denunciation and called for Russo-American cooperation like that of World War II.

Rusk, looking beyond Cuba, said the ideological ferment in the Communist camp and other developments had created "a more fluid situation" which might offer opportunities to solve other major cold war issues. But he warned that there also might be greater dangers, as illustrated by Red China's border war with neutral India.

* * * *

AT HIS PRESS conference the President renewed a U. S. proposal that some form of instant communication be set up between the White House and the Kremlin to prevent war by miscalculation.

The President moved to put the quietus on the "Affair Stevenson." Controversy swirled about U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson after a Saturday Evening Post article portrayed him as "soft" and "wanting a Munich" in the Cuban crisis. The article was written by two close presidential friends, Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett who quoted "anonymous officials" in Kennedy's National Security Council executive committee. Stevenson personally denied it.

ADLAI STEVENSON

The President told his press conference he was satisfied that no member of his super-secret council spread such a story. Then, in ringing tones, he again praised Stevenson's U. N. stewardship and added: "I am surprised that anyone would possibly think it would be in the interest of the country, the administration, or the White House that any lessening of his influence would be provided.' "

* * * *

KENNEDY said in effect that he considers the matter dead — "something for the historians" — and he again emphatically denied he had given his friends access to security council goings on. He said they alone must stand responsible for what they write; that he had no intensions of trying to bridle the press. The President took his action in the Cuban crisis on his own responsibility on the basis of the pooled judgment of the executive committee which heard scores of cause-and-result ideas from Stevenson and many other top advisers.

In other news spheres, Kennedy spelled out his pump-priming tax-cut plans for 1963 in a speech before the Economic Club in New York Friday night.

Earlier he had mapped strategy for forcing Congress to cut taxes despite slow-down warnings from powerful Democrats alarmed by the spectre of huge budget deficits. Tax reforms to recover some of the loss may be part of the program Congress will insist upon. The President's new budget goes to Congress in January. It is expected to jump spending to nearly $100 billion and reflect Congress' refusal to enact cheaper farm legislation. A big deficit is certain.

* * * *

MONDAY night Kennedy will review his first two years in office in a one-hour, pre-taped television program.

In the space realm, America's Mariner-2 space ship made a historic rendezvous with Venus, 35 million miles away, took an electronic look and sent back to earth signals that may determine whether life can exist beneath the planet's shroud of clouds.

Days or weeks may elapse before a substantial part of the findings are made public.

* * * *

JAMES E. WEBB, national space administrator, said the feat may add more to man's knowledge of Venus "than has been gained in all the thousands of years of recorded history."

He said it was "an outstanding first for our country and the free world and the most sigificant and spectacular of our scientific efforts to date."

He said all information gained would be shared "with all men and all nations to ensure maximum progress in science."

The rendezvous climaxed a 109-day, 182-million-mile flight from Cape Canaveral, with Mariner-2 passing within 21,000 miles of Venus, then going into orbit around the sun.

Meantime, the United States orbited a new radio-television "Relay" satellite to link America, Europe and South America. It replaced the now-dead Telstar but there was doubt about its success.

One of the most destructive cold waves in history eased its grip, with 200 dead across the nation. Normally balmy Florida faced tremendous losses in its citrus, vegetable and tourist industries. The lowest Florida temperatures since 1899 were recorded.

The J66

Fully automatic, no focusing, nothing to set—the J66 is the simplest Land Camera ever, and it costs about the same as the first Land Camera model on the market! All you do is aim the camera and snap and, of course, your picture is ready in just 10 seconds. No extras to buy, either. You don't need an expensive light meter. Even the flashgun is built right into the camera.

The J33

The brand new J33 Polaroid Land Camera has all the exciting automatic features of the J66 but makes a smaller sized picture—just the size to fit conveniently in your wallet. The price, lowest of all the Polaroid Land Electric Eye Cameras, puts 10-second automatic pictures well within the reach of every budget.

The 900

This is the most sensitive electric eye camera in the world—of any kind! Its tiny micro-eye is capable of adjusting both lens and shutter speed even in a dimly lit living room. And with the Polaroid wink-light you can forget about the expense and bother of flashbulbs for all your indoor pictures. This is the deluxe Polaroid Electric Eye Camera.

that 15-minute warning time would be reduced to zero.

* * * *

The air defense system also gives no protection against missiles which could be launched from Russian submarines off either coast. With their 900-mile range, these missiles could deliver heavy blows against coastal cities and defense installations.

Khrushchev has boasted of a "global weapon," against which our defenses would be powerless.

NORAD officials, while skeptical that it now exists, recognize that the next great offensive threat will come from space, in the form of satellites serving as platforms for thermonuclear bombs.

* * * *

A RUSSIAN attack within the next eight to ten years, however, would begin with ICBMs followed by submarine-launched ballistic missiles and, finally, manned bombers, according to Gen. John K. Gerhart, commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command.

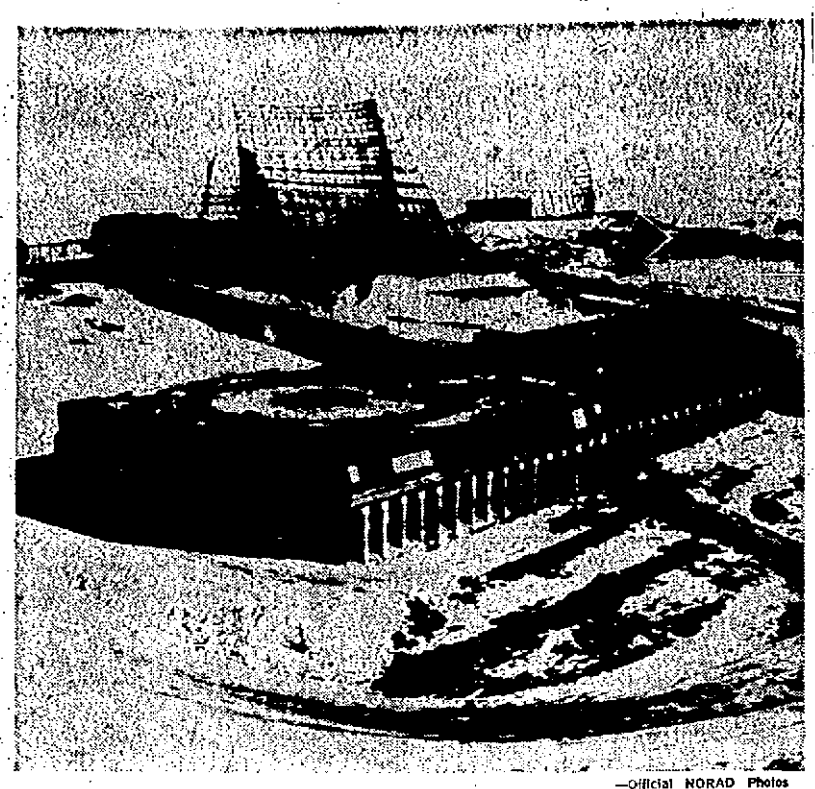

Yet he and other NORAD officers think it's highly unlikely that the Soviets would launch such an attack.

America's ace in the role is its vast strike-back power from missile bases ringing Russia, from Polaris-armed submarines and from the Strategic Air Command's armada of bombers.

"If the Reds should attack, we'd obliterate Russia, and they know it," a NORAD officer said.

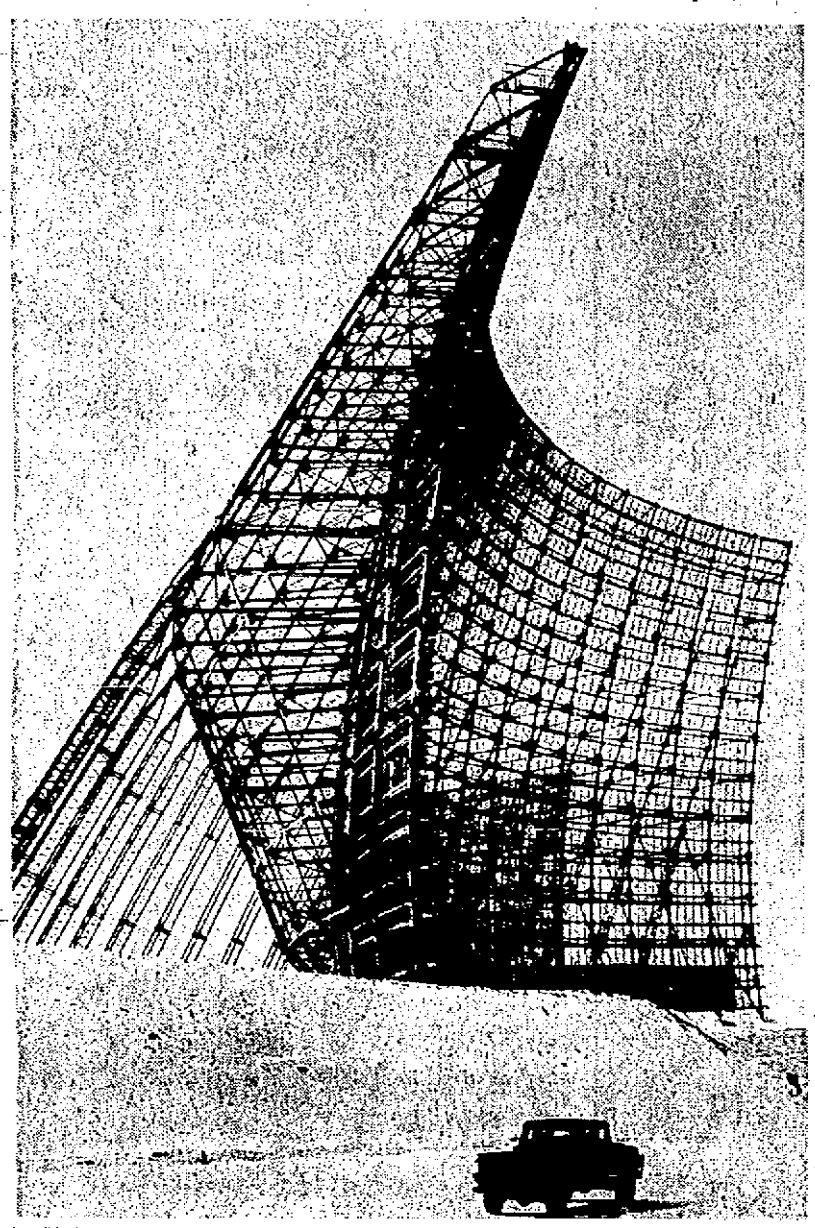

Those charged with our air defense are fully aware of its shortcomings. Research, under tight security wraps, is proceeding on a high priority basis to fill these gaps in our protective screen.

National survival may depend on its success.

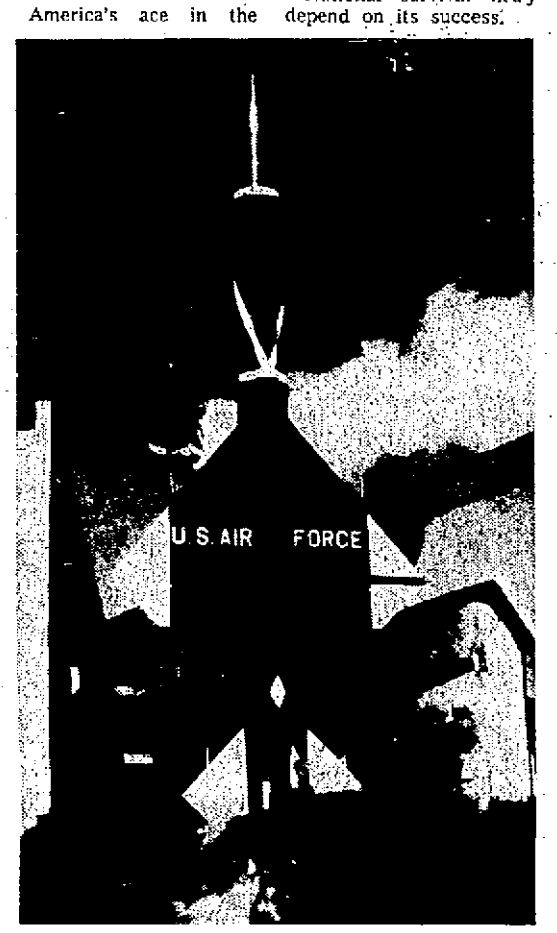

—Official NORAD Photos

THIS BMEWS ANTENNA reflector rising upward from the barrens of North America is 165 feet high and 400 feet long. A scanner building in front of each BMEWS reflector feeds it energy which it bounces into space to seek enemy ballistic missiles.

SUPERSONIC DEATH for a hostile bomber rides on the stubby wings of this BOMARC interceptor missile. Latest models of BOMARC can range 500 miles with nuclear warheads. Speed: Mach 4. Altitude: 100,000 feet plus.

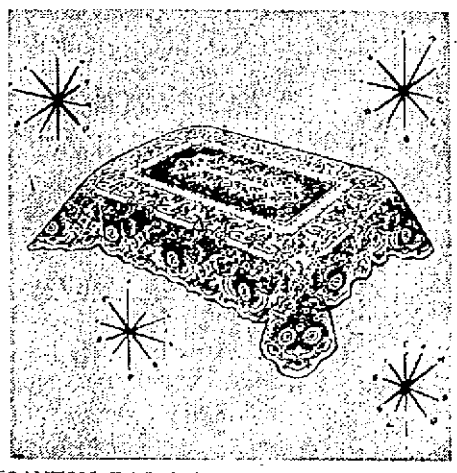

FIRST WARNING OF A manned bomber attack against North America might well be flashed from this Distant Early Warning (DEW) Line outpost on Baffin Island. DEW Line radar stations such as this stretch from the Aleutian Islands across northern Alaska and the Canadian Arctic through Greenland to Iceland.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP

Students Exchange Thoughts, Customs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Eighth graders in an American public school exchange letters with pupils in a Tokyo eighth grade.

Soon they are trading scrap books and examples of each other's culture. A little Haiku poetry goes West and descriptions of New York go East.

It's all part of the people-to-people international classroom exchange program in which 450,000 children around the world are engaged.

* * * *

THE PROGRAM matches American classrooms, schools or whole city scrool systems with their counterparts in other lands — linking young minds of York, Pa., and Arles, France; Toledo, Ohio, and Toledo, Spain; Montevideo, Minn., and Montevideo, Uraguay.

Alreaiy U.S. grammar and high school students in 71 classrooms 020 schools and six city school systems have been matched with a foreign equivalent — and it's just the beginning, according to project director Dr. J. Cloyd Miller.

Miller hopes to have 900,000 students in the program by the end of 1963.

"International friendship appeals to youngsters," Miller said. "They are more open minded an dcurious—anxious to know more about everything. They are less handicapped than adults by prejudices and strong opinions."

JUNK-WAGON HORSES HAVE YULE FIESTA

DETROIT (AP)—Santa Claus brought red apples and carrots and his guests munched them appreciatively, along with some hay he also brought along.

The guests were 11 horses that pull Detroit junk wagons. They showed up for the annual Christmas party of the Michigan Humane Society.

"Years ago," mused Clifton Johnson, society director, "there would have been 100 horses in a line four blocks long."

Baca Grant Ranch in Colorado Sold to Phoenix Land Concern for $3 Million

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Lawrence & Stegall ranches of Phoenix today announced the purchase of the 180,000-acre Luis Maria Baca grant ranch in central Colorado for more than $3 million.

The historic ranch is located in the San Luis Valley about 200 miles southwest of Denver.

Included in the purchase from the Newhall Land and Farming Co., Castaic, Calif., were 3,000 head of cattle.

The San Luis Valley ranch now has 150 miles of irrigation ditches and 150 artesian wells. A number of mountain streams flow through the property. Within the ranch are 10,000 acres of irrigated farm land and 40,000 acres of sub-irrigated meadows.

The Phoenix firm, organized seven years ago by M. Taylor Lawrence and Arthur J. Stegall, now owns 420,000 acres of Arizona ranch land; another 141,739 acres in Colorado and leases some 403,000 acres in New Mexico.

RELINQUISHING ASSEMBLY POST

William Grant Named Chairman of Red Cross Campaign in L.B.

Assemblyman William S. (Bill) Grant, who relinquishes his Sacramento post in January will plunge immediately into Long Beach civic activity as chairman of the Red Cross campaign.

Grant, 66, headed the second most successful drive for funds for the Red Cross in Long Beach history when he led the campaign in 1945-1946. Under his chairmanship the goal was $278,500—the amount raised was $314,701. The largest amount raised in Long Beach was during the war years when the drive, headed by Lawrence Collins Sr., brought in $605,000.

The drive will get under way in March. The goal is for "about $400,000," said Phil Hattery, chapter chairman, who announced that Grant had agreed to take over the chairmanship for Lee N. Mulligan, who died recently.

* * * *

GRANT plans to spend a day or so in Sacramento in January, then return to Long Beach to become active in civic work.

"My wife, Ethel, and I, had planned to go on a vacation immediately after January," said Grant, "but the tremendous need of the Red Cross must be recognized and we decided to put it off until after the campaign.

"This need for funds to carry on the program of the Red Cross must be brought to the attention of the public forcefully—some take it too lightly. The job must be done. It takes enthusiasm and work. The organization has been set up and I will be glad to do my part in making the drive successful."

* * * *

THE RED CROSS is active in providing home services aid to veterans and men in the service and their dependents; nursing service; first aid and water safety programs; a blood program; disaster services and numerous other activities.

* * * *

"THE RECENT Cuban crisis, involving shifts of families, was a drain on the resources of the local Red Cross," said Grant. "This is a strategic area and experience has shown that in the event of emergency, natural disaster or otherwise, we must be prepared to meet the crisis."

Grant was first elected to the Assembly for six years in 1947, then after a term out of office was re-elected in 1954 as 39th District representative. He declined to run in the last election.

San Diego Freeway Link to Open

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Another major link in the San Diego Freeway—this one a 5.7-mile stretch over the Santa Monica Mountains from Sunset Boulevard to the Ventura Freeway—will open to traffic Friday.

Dedication ceremonies will be held at 10 a.m. on the southbound lanes of the freeway just north of Mulholland Bridge.

Gov. Brown and Rex M. Whitton, federal highway administrator, will head a group of federal, state, county and city officials taking part in the dedication.

The new section was built as part of an 11.9-mile project which cost $20 million, the largest single freeway construction project ever undertaken in California.

Ninety-two per cent of the cost came from federal funds as a link of Interstate Route 405.

The new eight-lane section parallels Sepulveda Boulevard north from Sunset Boulevard to a point just south of Mulholland Drive. Here, Sepulveda winds westward through a tunnel and over the ridge. The new freeway curves only slightly as it shoots northward to the Ventura Freeway interchange.

The "big cut" through the mountains has a maximum grade of 5½ per cent. There is a 22-foot median strip with cable chain-link barrier, 10-foot shoulders on each side and an extra southbound lane uphill for trucks.

Sepulveda Boulevard itself, which has been carrying traffic on a winding four-lane highway since 1935, has been rebuilt and realigned to eliminate many sharp curves, according to Edward T. Telford, Metropolitan District engineer for the State Highway Department.

Guy F. Atkinson Co. was the contractor.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Syria Masses Near Israel

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—Syria has moved half of its army up to the tense border with Israel, and heavy military traffic can be seen across the border, informed sources reported Saturday.

The sources said Syria also had recruited all the country's surgeons but there was no indication whether Syria might be preparing an attack or merely strengthening its defenses.

Israeli leaders have said the Syrian government is stirring up border tensions to divert attention from internal political problems. The other half of the Syrian army was reported deployed throughout the country.

President to Review Own Work

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy, after nearly two years in office, prepared himself Saturday for a novel experiment in communication with the American people—a television review of his own stewardship.

The chief executive flew here from New York aboard an Air Force DC6B Saturday afternoon. He will devote himself the rest of the weekend to surveying his two-year record in preparation for putting it before the public by television Monday.

The one-hour review of his first two years in office will be video taped at the White House Sunday afternoon and put on the air Monday at 6:30 p.m. (EST) (3:30 p.m. PST) over facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co. The same show will be shown over the television network of the National Broadcasting Co. at 8:30 p.m. (EST) Monday.

Crashed Plane Sighted in Jungle

MANUS, Brazil (UPI)—A Brazilian airliner missing since Friday with 50 persons aboard was sighted in a clearing of the steaming Amazon rain-forest Saturday, the Brazilian air force announced. There were no signs of life.

The Panair do Brasil plane was located finally just 30 miles from this Rio Negro River port in northwestern Brazil. It was seen by an air force search plane, one of nine aircraft which resumed the search at dawn. All aboard were believed to be Brazilians.

Police Hunt Bombers of Church

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Police Commissioner Eugene Connor promised an all-out effort to apprehend those responsible for an explosion which heavily damaged a Negro church and two nearby houses.

Twelve children practicing a Christmas play in the church basement escaped injury but two babies in nearby houses received minor injuries from broken glass.

Scene of the Friday night explosion was the Bethel Baptist Church, which has been bombed twice before in recent years.

Mariner 2 to Eternal Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Its main job done but its big story still untold, the Mariner 2 satellite sped on Saturday into its eternal orbit around the sun after probing deeply into Venus' secrets.

Mariner 2 scanned cloud-shrouded Venus with sensitive instruments for 42 minutes Friday and sent back to earth a vast amount of data expected to tell men far more than they've ever known about earth's sister planet. It will be several weeks, however, before these data are evaluated and the results made known.

Relay Satellite Loses Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—A continued drop in power supply aboard Relay Sattelite forced Saturday an indefinite postponement of efforts to relay communications signals via the orbiting space vehicle.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the extensive series of experiments planned for Relay — including an international Christmas television show—can not be undertaken unless the situation changes markedly.

The NASA announcement said telemetry information from the satelite "has shown an abnormal drain upon the power supply which is the probable cause of the low voltage."

Troops, Technicians Still in Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four elite, fully-equipped combat units of the Russian army are among the thousands of Soviet troops and technicians still in Cuba, U.S. sources said Saturday.

These tank-supported formations, said to number between 1,500 and 2,000 men each, show no sign of departing despite Premier Nikita Khrushchev's Moscow statement this week that it was not in the interest of peace "to tarry with completion" of a Cuba crisis settlement.

Fr. Coughlin Stands by Criticism of FDR

71, said he had not granted an interview since his nationwide broadcast disappeared from the air in 1940, and his newspaper, Social Justice, was closed in 1941.

He conceded that the transition from a world figure to the quiet role of a parish priest had been a "trying one," and to say otherwise "would make me a liar."

He showed much of his old vigur as he made these points in the interview:

Despite his defense of his own actions, he now believes that Presidents should not be criticized.

Although convinced he was justified in denouncing not only Roosevelt but England and Russia as allies as well, he added: "It wasn't because I was for Germany, but here you had the extreme left and the extreme right of totalitarianism, both the same, and I felt we should let them fight it out among themselves."

Although once accused as an anti-Semite, he concluded "Bigotry is passe" and is today the private pursuit of professional hate peddlers.

He listed obedience to authority as the primary duty of men in all walks of life, a virtue he himself demonstrated in acceding to the wishes of his archbishop.

He advocated a revolutionary method of education which would turn classrooms into theaters fed elite instruction from Telstar.

Although Father Coughlin has continued as an active preacher in his own pulpit at the Shrine of the Little Flower in Suburban Royal Oak, his oratory has been but a pale echo of the flamboyant and often vitriolic radio addresses that won him an estimated 80,000,000 Sunday listeners on 47 stations.

His first broadcast brought eight letters, but soon they began to snowball when he introduced political topics into what originally had been instructional sermons.

"It got to the point," an old associate said, "that he needed something like $15,000 every Monday morning to pay his radio bills. Bishop Michael J. Gallagher had always gone along with his right to say what he pleased on political matters, but other bishops of the country were opposed.

FATHER COUGHLIN
'Empires Still Falling'

* * * *

"WHEN Edward Cardinal Mooney (then an archbishop) came here in 1937, everybody assumed this would be his major problem. But . . . he used that fine style of Italian diplomacy, learned in Rome, of cutting him off gradually. When Father Coughlin said on radio that no Catholic could join the CIO, the archbishop came out with a flat contradiction that was headlined in the daily press.

"The archbishop then came up with a section from canon law which provided for a board of censors, to which he was required to submit his radio talks . . .

"The archbishop then, very quietly, informed him that his newspaper, Social Justice, also was subject to censor.

9 Homes Wrecked by Plane

exploded, flames engulfing a house. One engine hit a truck. The fuselage ground ahead for about 500 feet, battering into a home where a couple —unhurt—watched television.

* * * *

Six Civil Aeronautics Board investigators, with more en route from other field offices, probed the scorched, wreckage-strewn scene Saturday, seeking the cause of the crash. Firemen pried into the ruins, looking for possibly more bodies.

The area of damaged homes, garages and trees measures approximately 1,200 by 85 feet. One fireman — among 19 companies that responded — suffered a badly cut wrist, and several residents were injured. But other families told of miraculous escapes.

The Flying Tiger Line offered food, clothing and shelter to half a dozen families reported by the Red Cross to have lost all or more of their possessions in the tragedy.

* * * *

THE DEAD were mangled and burned, making even their counting difficult. Coroner's aides awaited dental charts and other clues to identification.

Police Sgt. T. H. Gerber said, "We have four female bodies and five male bodies—parts of bodies. We're making nine death reports."

A Flying Tiger spokesman said four men aboard the plane were presumed dead although the coroner's office had identified only the body of flight engineer Jack W. Grey, 33, San Mateo.

* * * *

THE AIRLINE spokesman said the others were Capt. Karl C. Rader, 38, Burlingame, pilot, a veteran of 12 years with the company; co-pilot David L. Capro, 25, Compton, and John A. Olsen, of nearby Sunland, a passenger. Olsen's wife Janet works in the accounting department of Flying Tiger's nearby Burbank office.

Flying Tiger said Mrs. Violet Blazek, 57, of Chicago also was tentatively identified as having been on the plane. Mrs. Blazek was the mother of Mrs. Jack Elliott of nearby Northridge, wife of a Flying Tiger employe, and had a pass to ride the plane here, a spokesman said.

It was the line's fourth crash this year. A transport carrying 107 persons vanished in the Pacific last spring. Another later crashed in the Atlantic, killing 29 of 75 aboard. A crash off Cold Bay, Alaska, killed one man.

* * * *

A WITNESS, Mike Powers, said he saw the big plane come in low out of the mist.

"It had its landing gear and flaps down," he said. "The landing lights were burning. The left wing dipped, and the plane smashed in, nose first."

Flames shot 100 feet into the air. Children screamed.

SHE'S NO MERE DOLLED-UP TUG

By DICK EMERY

SAN PEDRO—Take a tugboat, and doll her up with pumps and nozzles and you've got a tug that can fight a fire—but still she's only a tug, not a real fireboat.

She can push in close and throw water, but she can't jump sideways to keep from getting scorched. She can't slam water from all and any angles without sapping engine power.

"What we dream up," Asst. Fire Chief Bethel F. Gifford used to say, "is a fireboat built to BE a fireboat right here in this port!"

That boat they dreamed of stayed in the dream stage 15 years and then came true. The dream boat, shining new, 76½ feet long, of 24-foot beam, now rests at the Los Angeles Fire Department dock at Fort MacArthur.

* * * *

THE THINGS about her that Chief Gifford used to dream of—they have been built into her. They are real, like her six (that's right: SIX!) power plants—two 400-horsepower diesels to drive her at 13 mph, two more 400's for main pumps and two smaller diesels to pump water and stir up electric power.

Other features:

Maneuvering jets at waterline, by which she can whoosh herself sidewise to jab at a blaze and leap back!

Foam tanks to hold 585 gallons of oil-fire-quashing goo, a lifesaver in an oil port!

Because she is a fireboat and not just a fire-fighting tugboat, "L.A. City Number Four" already has become famous among harbor firemen the world around. Salty firemen are coming to see her from far ports—and they like her.

The firemen who man her are proud of her.

"She's a dream boat," they say.

Beach Combing
With Malcolm Epley

A YOUNG Long Beach housewife, Dolores Kerr, is a political seeress of great merit, she's not bad as a weather prophet, and she has good hunches on football.

All of this makes her the winner of Beach Combing's "Predict the November Headlines" contest, results of which are announced today after painful processing of hundreds of entries.

Mrs. Kerr, mother of three and a resident of 1511 Vuelta Grande, was one of 15 contestants who made perfect scores on the seven political questions in the contest. Of this select group, she came closest on predicting November rainfall and she got the right winner in the USC-UCLA football game.

Dolores, who was excited as a kid when I told her about it, is our champ and gets a $25 savings bond.

SECOND prize, an overnight stay at Imperial 400, 848 E. Pacific Coast Highway, goes to Mrs. Jo Turner, 1128 E. Fourth St., who hit the football game score (14-3) right on the nose but missed one political question and was pretty far off on the rainfall.

Third, dinner for two at Hoefly's fine restaurant in Belmont Shore, goes to Mrs. Ramon A. Ellis, 3515 Lemon, also a perfect political prophet in this contest, but whose rainfall prediction wasn't as good as that of Mrs. Kerr.

Runners-up, who get $5 bills each, are T. G. MacDonald, 6900 W. Park Pl., Westminister; Val Matcheski, 652 Molino Ave.; Mrs. E. W. O'Donnell, 6158 Cerritos Ave.; John M. Heida, 17632 Ardmore, Bellflower; Ethel Scott, 344 Quincy Ave.

All of these people scored perfectly on politics. They picked the winners in the governorship, lieutenant governorship, 39th Assembly District, U.S. Senate, state superintendent of public instruction races, and predicted Prop. 1A, the education bond issue, would carry and that Prop. 24, the anti-subversive measure, would lose.

THAT'S mighty good picking. Here are the others who hit the political answers on the nose, but missed out on weather and football:

On the hottest race of the election—governorship — a majority of our hundreds of contestants picked Brown over Nixon. In fact, the outcome of our contest on that race was just about the way it went, percentage-wise, in the statewide election itself.

GETTING back to the champ, Dolores Kerr, she says that she is really no political expert and that her husband is the family smartie on such things. Both she and her husband are graduates of USC, and her pick was for the alma mater to beat UCLA may have had some sentimental motivation.

Mrs. Kerr's prediction of .37 of an inch for November rainfall was closest of all the political perfectionists. The actual rainfall was .04 of an inch. Nobody hit that one exactly, but Mrs. J. Schroyer of Paramount and P. O. Hoy of Long Beach get the prizes for being within a hundreth of an inch of the perfect answer.

Mrs. Jo Turner is a double winner in the contest, having already gotten her Notre Dame-USC tickets for her perfect guess on the USC-UCLA game.

THAT winds it up and thanks to the good readers who participated. It was a lot of fun and we'll be trying something like it again before long.

Polio Outbreak Called Unlikely

ORANGE—Possibility of a polio outbreak in Orange County appears "extremely remote" as result of the Sabin oral vaccine clinics set up by the Orange County Medical Association, it was predicted today.

At the two "Sabin on Sunday" clinics in October for Type 1 vaccine, 546,000 persons were immunized.

Ruling on Agreement Drafted

By GEORGE WEEKS

For the first time, state officials have set target dates for action on the city's proposals to tap the largest undeveloped oil pools in the United States.

The projected deadline is Jan. 31. Action could occur a week earlier.

Frank Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission, has told city officials he believes the remaining technical and legal analysis of the program will be completed in time for the commission meeting Jan. 24.

If not, Hortig added, "we would turn ourselves inside out" to be ready for a special meeting Jan. 31.

Fred Kreft, assistant executive officer, also told the Independent, Press-Telegram he believes this schedule can be met "short of some major complication not in sight now."

* * * *

ATTY. GEN. Stanley Mosk's office, it was learned, is drafting a 75-page opinion reviewing the unit agreement, unit operating agreement and the form of operating contract submitted by the city last September.

These documents form the framework for developing the huge oil deposits, an extension of the Wilmington Field, believed to underlie the ocean bottom and the adjacent uplands in southeast Long Beach. The city is taking the initiative in the program, and will award the operating contract. It controls almost 90 per cent of the area—the tidelands—under a grant from the state.

Unitized operation is proposed so that maximum safeguards may be put into effect, particularly against subsidence. Under these agreements owners of some 10,000 upland parcels will share in the estimated revenues of $3.5 billion or more.

* * * *

ONE POINT still not settled is whether and how the state will bring into the unit the State Park area at the extreme southeast tip of Long Beach. Under a court decision, the city trusteeship does not apply in this section.

Indications are that special legislation will be necessary to enable the state to depart from its established policy of leasing oil-bearing lands under its control, rather than development by an operating contract.

* * * *

THE STATE'S timetable was reported last week by City Atty. Gerald Desmond to the City Council, which had asked the Lands Commission to conclude its studies as speedily as possible.

Guardsmen Prepare to Man Nike Hercules

National Guardsmen this week got acquainted with the Nike-Hercules, big brother of the Nike-Ajax guided missile which they have manned at sites in the Los Angeles area.

Officers of Battery D, 4th Missile Batallion, 251st Artillery, inspected the Point Fermin site which they will take over next year.

The Long Beach unit, which previously had manned a Nike-Ajax site at Playa del Rey, will begin formal instruction on the new missile next week.

Selected personnel for the unit will undergo a six-week training program next year at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex., before the unit takes over complete operational control of the site here next summer. More than 100 officers and men from the Long Beach battery, under the command of Lt. Col. Neil E. Allgood, will man the site.

The Nike-Hercules has a range of more than 75 miles, three times that of the Nike-Ajax, and can reach an altitude of more than 28 miles.

L.A. Studies 'Double Taxation' of Maintaining Health Service

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Whether health services for the City of Los Angeles are to be taken over by the Los Angeles County Health Department may be decided Monday.

The question is of importance to Long Beach because it, too, maintains its own health department and thus has the same problem of "paying double taxes for health services."

Four cities—Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Vernon—maintain their own health departments. Through payment of county taxes, however, they also maintain the County Health Department — although they obtain no service from this department.

* * * *

UNDER STATE law, any city can get county health services merely by asking for it. The county is compelled to provide such service.

The four cities, however, have felt they get superior service from their own department. They have, at times, tried to get reimbursement from the county for the health services for which they pay, but don't receive.

Roger Arnebergh, Los Angeles city attorney, appeared before the State Assembly Interim Committee on Municipal and County Governments last Nov. 13 and asked for state legislation which would direct a county to reimburse cities which have their own health departments.

* * * *

A MOVE has been under way recently in Los Angeles, however, to transfer city health services to the county. Councilman Ernani Bernardi has advocated transfer of some, if not all, health services to county responsibility.

C. Erwin Piper, city administrative officer, submitted a report last week in which he said transfer of the services to the county could result in a reduction of 6.8 cents in the Los Angeles city tax rate.

The change would boost the county tax rate by 3.4 cents, he said.

* * * *

PIPER did not recommend the transfer, however. He said the main problem is ending "a tax inequity."

"The citizens of the city are required to support two health departments and receive services from only one," Piper said.

Long Beach officials have voiced the same complaint.

Los Angeles city and county officials agree that under the present operation, there is no problem of inefficiency, excessive costs, duplication or overlapping services.

Piper pointed out that the city could take one of two courses: close its own health department and let the county do the job, or get state legislation which will in some way relieve taxpayers of a city which provides its own health services.

Christmas Postage Stamps Available

Postmaster David Selcer said he has received 2 million of the 4-cent stamps, which are now on sale.

"We received 1½ million of the stamps and quickly sold out," he said. "We haven't had any for weeks, but now we're back in business."

City Counsel OKs Study for Renewal

Final legal steps for urban-renewal studies in the West Beach area are scheduled for this week as a result of an opinion filed Friday by City Atty. Gerald Desmond approving the financial arrangements.

Desmond told the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency that a proposed agreement for the use by the agency of funds alloted from the special projects account is proper.

City Council already has authorized the $34,500 allotment, but agency members sought the opinion to make sure that the money will be available when needed for payment to two firms of consultants.

* * * *

ALL THREE agreements—one between the agency and the city and one with each of the two consultants—will be submitted to the Council for formal ratification Tuesday. They were approved in principle Friday by the agency.

Candeub, Fleissig & Associates will make a technical survey of the area and prepare a proposed redevelopment plan for a fee of $26,000. The second contract, with Ashton & Associates, will cover economic and marketing factors. It will cost $8,500.

Military Retirees Conference Set

The Navy Department has invited Frederick A. Wyatt, a captain in the Naval Air Reserve at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station, to attend a conference Monday in Washington, D. C., on placement of military retirees.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the Air Force Association and the Department of Labor.

Oil Strike in Park Could Help Build Needed Projects

The oil that flowed last week from the first well drilled in Recreation Park may very well speed up solution to the city's long standing problems regarding civic improvements.

There are still some uncertainties involved:

—Is the whole 270-acre field productive?

—At what rate?

—How much total oil is there?

—How many years will the oil flow?

Answers to these and similar questions can be found within the next few months. And with these answers will come the necessary information to intelligently plan for future civic development.

This city—unlike many others—has been very fortunate in the past in having various upland oil fields provide funds for city public works. At present, for example, we are now paying off public improvements from upland oil funds to the tune of some $1.5 million each year.

These payments involve parks, playgrounds and public buildings of various sorts. Some were acquired as long ago as 1922, but most have been acquired since 1956.

All money from upland oil properties owned by the city—and this includes Recreation Park—goes into the city's Bond Redemption and Interest Fund for the exclusive use of long-range public improvements.

There has long been a misconception held by many folks in California—not excluding some in Long Beach—that the city has hundreds of millions of dollars of oil money to use for general city purposes because of the large field under the harbor and the soon-to-be-developed offshore oil field in front of the city.

Absolutely none of the funds from any of the city-owned state tidelands under the harbor or in the new offshore field can be or ever has been used for city projects.

These funds are held in trust by the City of Long Beach for the benefit of the people of the State of California and can only be administered by the city for state purposes. This money, in fact, can only be spent with specific advance approval of the State Lands Commission and only on projects that will benefit the purposes of the tidelands grant—generally commerce, fisheries and navigation.

So just like other cities we must raise the money for public improvements from taxes or other city income. Where we are fortunate is having "other city income" from upland city-owned oil fields. Among the fields that are producing for the benefit of the city now are the Harbor Upland, Signal Hill, Airport and Community leases. Now we can add Recreation Park lease.

It looks as if the city's golfers have for years been playing over an oil "bank" that has been saving funds for such needed facilities as a new main library, city hall, music building and art center.

Let us hope the new field proves that productive.

"There's Nothing in Here About Oil Spouts!"

DREW PEARSON

Administration Is Charged With Softness on Monopoly

WASHINGTON—In the obscure files of the Joint Economic Committee is a revealing story of how the Kennedy Administration ran out on its pledge to crack down on big business monopoly but did crack down on the small business price-fixing.

PEARSON

The story is revealed in a withering cross-examination of Judge Lee Loevinger, who operates directly under Robert F. Kennedy, as assistant attorney general in care of antitrust.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Chairman Wright Patman of Texas, both Democrats, gave the man who is supposed to enforce the antitrust laws one of the worst grillings the Democrats have given a member of the Kennedy administration. When it was all over, they were convinced that the Kennedy Administration was not doing as good a job at prosecuting monopoly as the Eisenhower administration, but they also suspected that this was on direct orders from the two Kennedys, not the fault of Judge Loevinger.

"Gasoline station operators who agree upon prices at which they will sell their products are speedily brought within the criminal reach of the law," Senator Proxmire charged, reading from a report by Prof. Richard J. Barber of Southern Methodist Law School. "But the major oil companies who are able to achieve price coordination because of the concentrated character of the industry, go free."

* * * *

JUDGE LOEVINGER protested this.

"If they mean that we haven't taken a list of the 50 or 100 largest corporations and gone out and started to break each of them up into smaller pieces, they are quite correct," he said. "We haven't. I don't believe we are authorized to do this under the present law.

"We have maintained as high a level of vigor and enforcement activity as any prior administration," continued Loevinger. "As a matter of fact, in 1961 we brought nearly twice as many cases under the Celler-Kefauver Act as any prior administration."

"Yes, but what is the significance of the cases you bring?" inquired Proxmire. "Venetian blinds, kosher food products in New York, service station prices in Washington — these are trivia.

"These are not the fundamental moving groups in our society, these are not the big steel, automobile, oil and other dominant industries where there seems to be a real power to hold up prices, and in the judgment of some, to retard growth and economic expansion."

Chairman Patman, the Texas trust-buster, then took over the criticism.

"In your previous report," he charged, "some industries appear to be habitually making identical bids. Have you compared the new report with the previous one to see whether these industries have changed their bidding practices since the President's executive order (on price-fixing) was announced?"

Loevinger—"Not yet, no, sir."

Patman—"Is there anything you can do about cases like General Electric, which has been convicted, and is paying terrific damages for admitted collusion, and yet they still go ahead and submit these identical bids? Is there anything being done about that, Judge Loevinger?"

Loevinger—"Well, I am sure the electrical companies would say that these were largely shelf items, which were bid out of catalogs on standard prices, and that this accounts for the identity rather than any collusion."

Patman—"Are you and the Justice Department convinced that identical bids submitted to the Agriculture Department for the school lunch program are not the result of collusion? Have you investigated this situation thoroughly, judge?"

Loevinger—"I suppose a candid answer is 'No,' we have not investigated the situation thoroughly. . ."

* * * *

AT THIS point, a Republican, Sen. Jacob Javits, N. Y., joined the Democratic criticism.

"I just don't think that that the Department of Justice, whether under this attorney general or any other attorney general, has been inventive enough," he said.

"You are not restraining competition today, you are allowing a monopoly because you are not allowing the small fellow to have some of the advantages of bigness which he might get by cooperation under complete supervision. I have the opinion that the antitrust division is living in the past, and you prove it to me. . ."

BILL SUMNER

Freeman Presses Hard for Supply Management Scheme

WASHINGTON—That master propagandist Orville Freeman, the Secretary of Agriculture, is upon the land once again to sell the Kennedy administration and promote its farm program, present and future. His approach is direct and simple, built upon the proposition that the opposition (the Eisenhower administration) did nothing for the farmer and that his own will eventually provide a rural heaven on earth.

SUMNER

This is what we are going to do for you, he says, and this is what they didn't do. It is the way politics always has been conducted, but the massive federal participation in what had been the basic county courthouse-Boston technique has reached its perfection since 1960.

The basic philosophy is that they will reward you if you are good (for them) and punish you if you are bad (against them).

Possibly that is over-simplified. But so is the Freeman style in the world of gut politics. In speeches Wednesday and Thursday—in Chicago, Las Vegas and Denver—he made it plain that the administration would reward those who cooperated, with federal grants and loans, and nice things like subsidies, and would punish those who did not by undercutting them at the market place.

* * * *

UNFORTUNATELY, the program has appeal both to the farmer, who will end up with less if he finds its unappealing, and to the city dweller, who has been baffled and enraged for some years by farm programs which have worked against the basic concept of supply and demand, and common sense.

The principle Freeman is trying to sell he calls "supply management," which may be easier to stomach than a term such as "managed economy."

It is his proposition that if the federal government is to guarantee the price a farmer shall get for a bushel of wheat it should then be able to control the amount of wheat the farmer can have subsidized. On the land thus made vacant the farmer can put in a skating rink or a bowling alley—with federal funds—and, as I read it, live on easy street. He would receive aid and comfort from a domestic peace corps.

* * * *

FREEMAN REJECTS the concept of laissez faire. He calls the course he says was advocated by the Committee for Economic Development "thoughtless, cruel and uncivilized." He says that this private group recommended "that farm income should be systematically lowered to drive people out of rural America." The CED, of course, did not recommend any such thing, but it is business (i.e. Republican) oriented and did suggest there were too many people in the business of farming, growing too much of everything, and that a return to the law of supply and demand might be the solution to the farm program.

Such a solution was acceptable to no one, the farmer being regarded as the backbone of America in some quarters and a bloc of votes in still others. Freeman, however, does provide the ultimate solution for an economy based on the federal handout, and he reminds us that we must reject the old cliches.

"An agricultural policy for today's world," he says, "must be based on the principle of supply management, whereby agriculture would be provided with a means of doing, through government, what most industry does for itself when it adjusts production to the amount it can sell for a profit."

Freeman says this is neither "un-American or even sinful." And with this assurance he promises that if his wheat program is not adopted "it will be disastrous for the great majority of farmers."

Then there is reassurance. When his supply management programs become truly effective, "government operations in handling commodities can diminish." This is when easy street will have been reached, but he does not say whether it is a Five or a Ten-Year Plan.

Pat Casualty of Campaign Misery

By J. P.T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Pat Nixon has shared many a tense situation with her husband—the danger of mob violence in Venezuela, his defeat by John F. Kennedy in 1960—and many have marveled at her courage and her calm.

Evidently the California gubernatorial campaign and defeat was one blow too many, too much of a load to bear. Her day last Nov. 6 may, in fact, have contributed to Richard Nixon's somewhat irrational statements to the press the day after the election.

For once, Pat Nixon was not at his side, and for good reason. Here is the story as it was told to this bureau—Mrs. Nixon voted on Nov. 6, then went to the hairdresser. There, something triggered her into a fit of hysterics, the result of nervous tension and the physical exhaustion brought on by months of campaigning, plus the findings of a last-minute poll that showed her husband was doomed to defeat.

A doctor was summoned. She was given a sedative and taken home. She has made no public appearance since, nor did she accompany the former vice president when he first went to the Bahamas. She has joined him since.

Added to Mrs. Nixon's campaign miseries were three broken ribs, the result of a fall Sept. 29 or 30 in her San Francisco hotel room. Despite the injury, she kept up her full schedule of campaign activities.

ABOUT $700,000 was raised here Nov. 29 at the big national cultural center $100-a-plate banquet, a show regarded as possibly the worst live television show ever put on tape. But while sponsors of the $30-million center go about the business of putting this show on the road for additional fund raising, the National Symphony Association and the Washington Opera Society are deep in the red and can see no way out. The symphony association needs $320,000 for its 1963-64 season, but everyone is taking the larger, longer view of culture here. When finally the big cultural center goes up in Foggy Bottom someone then may find himself saying, "Oop! No orchestra."

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Survival of Two-Party Idea in State Depends on GOP

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The views of Thomas W. Riley, vice chairman of the Republican Central Committee in Contra Costa county, on the two-party system in California, expressed in a recently issued monograph, and his suggestion for correcting some of the difficulties of maintaining such a system, are worthy of consideration.

MacARTHUR

"Any resemblance between the two-party system in California with that of the two-party system elsewhere in the nation is purely accidental," Riley declares.

He states it is his opinion that if the two-party concept is to survive in California, that the Republican party must undertake a monumental task to overhaul its entire organizational system, and in so doing, must revise and review a body of political tradition which it has endeavored to live with for nearly half a century.

RILEY points out that few realize that candidates are under no obligation to any set of party principles except that which they desire to submit to after they receive the party nomination.

The fact is, he declares, California does not have a two-party system in the classic sense. Rather, it is a personality party system. The direct primary, he implies, has lopped off party bosses in theory, but while the theory is laudable, it fails because it neglects to take into account the very process which enables the candidate to take his candidacy to the people. Thus, through financial considerations, funds come from the same kind of agents referred to as political machine bosses.

"It is a fact of life," he says, "that in politics, as in government, the power of the purse string is most profound!"

* * * *

SECOND, Riley calls platforms platitudes, and states the party conventions called for by California law have produced some of the most "remarkably innocuous documents of compromise and vagueness ever to be handed to a party organization as its foundation building blocks.

"The convention system in California politics must be resurrected," he declares. "Diffusion of the natural powers which will invariably fall into the hands of a few must be accomplished."

Third, he recommends the establishment of the convention system in California, pointing out that the convention serves with good use in almost every other endeavor of California's daily living. The direct primary, he states, has become a tradition, apparently meaningless. Neither party, from 1958 through 1962, the years cross-filing have been abolished, neither party has received a clear-cut dictum from the people.

"For the Republican party," Riley says, "the problem can only be solved by truly bringing the people into active, participating contact with the party organization. They must be made to feel they are a part of the system. At some moment in the nominating and election process, the rank and file must be consulted."

* * * *

IT MAY be argued an entire new body of law must replace the present code regarding political organization, he states, with possible elimination of expensive primary election where convention action is not challenged.

These proposals are not new or novel, he says, but are time-proven and workable.

School Head's Election Defended

EDITOR:

Your recent editorial agrees with Governor Brown's wishes to make the superintendent of public instruction an appointive rather than an elective office. I do not!

You suggest that because there are many citizens who do not feel "equipped to judge," they should be released of the responsibility of voting and have one man who is a qualified expert appoint his choice. I do not!

There are many citizens who do not feel they are "equipped to judge" for many other elective offices on the ballot. (Let me remind you that there are many who are "equipped to judge.") Would you suggest that these offices, too, should be filled with appointee positions?

Governor Brown reappointed Thomas Braden as president of the State Board of Education for another four year term. I have heard some of Mr. Braden's choice remarks. Governor Brown believes Mr. Braden to be qualified for this position. I do not!

It is this right and responsibility, the opportunity to elect our leaders, that has made our country great.

There are those who might be ready for a dictatorship. I am not!

Judicial 'Lawmaking' Hit by Reader

EDITOR:

"The courtroom is not a legislative chamber."

That quotation is the last line of your editorial this morning commenting on the decision of Judge Leonard M. Friedman in the Lokey murder case. How true! And it should be blazoned in banner headlines across every newspaper in the land.

The tendency of courts to assume powers delegated to the Congress by the constitution seems to have developed during my lifetime, although there may have been instances of it before. Nowhere in any books of law that I have read do I recall any enactment giving a judge the power to set aside the verdict of a jury, but they do it.

Neither is the courtroom a branch of the president's office with the power to direct U. S. marshals to enforce its edicts. The complete separation of the legislative, judicial and executive branches of government must be maintained or we will rue the day we permit any one of them to dominate the other two.

Can't Follow Editorial's Logic

EDITOR:

It is impossible for me to comprehend the thought processes of your newspapers' editorial writer who recommends that the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction be filled by appointment, ostensibly to remove it from politics.

Rubbish! Is there every ANYONE appointed to an office without some consideration being given to the candidate's political leanings? Who would be our State Superintendent of Public Instruction today had it been governed by appointment? One guess is enough; Dr. Richardson would most certainly have received the nod, to compliment the Brown appointees on the State Board of Education.

* * * *

BUT REALLY, it is not difficult to see what is sought after; it is to remove more and more positions from the ballot and thus leave the citizenry with less and less opportunities to express a choice.

The political philosophy of recent years has been (and is) to govern by decree and executive order, with a "To hell with the Constitution and the Monroes Doctrine."

Wake up, fellow citizens! It is later than you think.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Berlitz and Robert Strampe-Durrie

Santa Claus, although a European invention, has become an increasingly important worldwide personality. Here is how he is known in the languages of various countries around the globe.

French: Pere Noel
Dutch: Sinter Klaas
Hungarian: Mikulas
German: Nikolaus
Czech: Svaty Mikulas
Japanese: Sanuta Kurosu

Arabic: Baba Noel
Swedish: Jultomite
Norwegian: Julenisse
Danish: Julemanden
Greek: Ay Vasilis—"Holy Basil"
Chinese: Sun tan lao ren —"Holy birth old man"

Our words "Santa Claus" are derived from St. Nicholas, once the bishop of the now vanished city of Myron Likias, Asia Minor. St. Nicholas, incidentally, was the patron saint of Russia, and is still revered by religious elements of the population.

The word "Claus" is a corruption of the last syllable of Nicholas, which in Greek means "Victory of the People."

MIRROR OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

KING ARTHUR STEAKHOUSE FIVE YEARS OLD; ANNOUNCES OPENING OF THRONE BANQUET ROOM

Quality, Economy Stressed

In five years King Arthur Steak House has grown to become one of the Southland's outstanding restaurants.

Opened in 1957 at 5511 E. Spring St., just east of the intersection of Bellflower Boulevard and Spring Street, it began operations on a policy laid down by its three operating officers: good taste, good food and reasonable prices.

Growth of the Steak House was rapid. Now, with its Throne Room completed and ready for use, the restaurant can seat 250 people at a time, yet preserve the warmth and intimacy that has made it so famous.

* * * *

KING ARTHUR Steak House is operated by a trio of expert men in the field. They are John Apostle, president; John Paulos vice-president; and Anthony Apostle, secretary-treasurer.

This year the restaurant expects to serve 75,000 meals. About 80 per cent of them will be the twin specialties of the house: steaks and prime rib.

In expressing the policy of King Arthur, President Apostle says:

"It has been our contention that a restaurant can be first calibre in every degree, and yet meet the budgetary demands of its patrons."

* * * *

HE POINTS out that the English cut of prime rib is $2.95 on the King Arthur menu. For those who like, the "Diamond Jim Brady cut" is priced at $4.15.

Special cut top sirloins are $2.95. "Cattleman's Cut" steaks are $4.25. The fabulous New York steak is priced at $4.65.

King Arthur's menu, however, doesn't cease there. Lobster tail, fried chicken, veal cutlets, chopped beef sirloin, turkey, filet of sole, scallops, sandwiches are all available at low prices.

* * * *

CHILDREN'S special menus include roast beef, ground sirloin, roast turkey, fried shrimps and calves liver, and prices for children's dinners run from $1.55 to $1.75.

For Apostle, who entered the restaurant business as a dishwasher in Ely, Minn., as a youngster, the growth of King Arthur Steak House has been a rewarding experience.

"We have made thousands of personal friends since our doors opened, and we have learned from them that our insistance on quality and good taste has made this business venture a success."

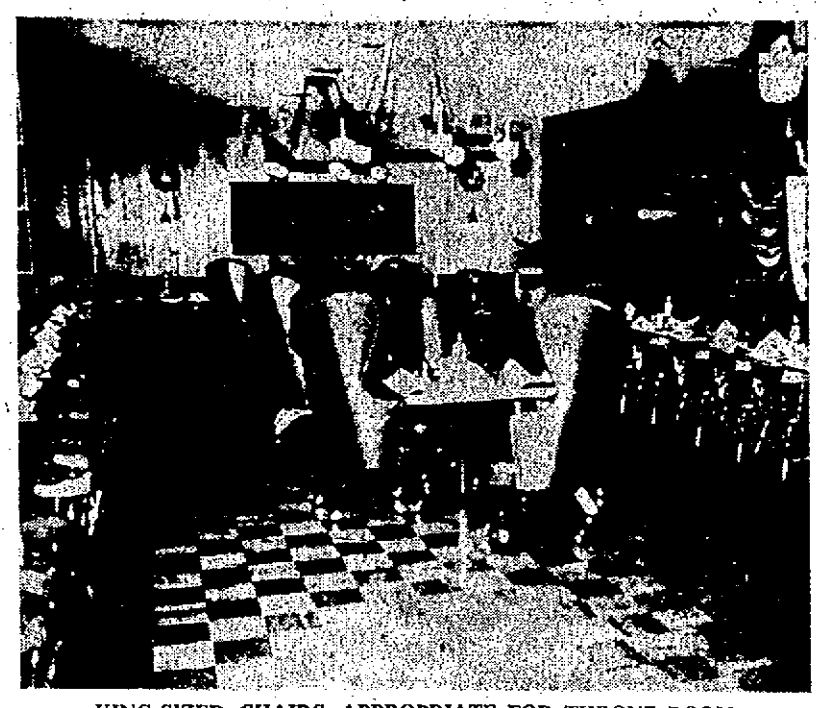

* * * *

THE "LITTLE things" are stressed heavily at King Arthur. For example, Apostle points out, the Steak House prepares its own bleu cheese dressing, from a recipe kept secret. Every item on the menu is prepared in the King Arthur kitchen.

The meat purveyors to King Arthur maintain a special storage section for the hanging and aging of King Arthur beef—food that is selected for the restaurant and distributed to no other eating house.

* * * *

FOUR MAJOR facilities are open to public use at King Arthur. The main dining room, seating 80 people, is separated from other facilities to insure privacy. The bar, with Bob Moreau at the organ, seats 55 people, with its adjoining fireplace nook. The Throne Room, now open for parties, banquets and special occasions, handles 100 people with ease and comfort.

KING-SIZED CHAIRS APPROPRIATE FOR THRONE ROOM

Facility Set for Holidays

This banquet-sized accomodation will handle private dinners and parties for up to 100 persons, adding to the Long Beach-Lakewood area a superb feature that carries on the decor and traditions of King Arthur.

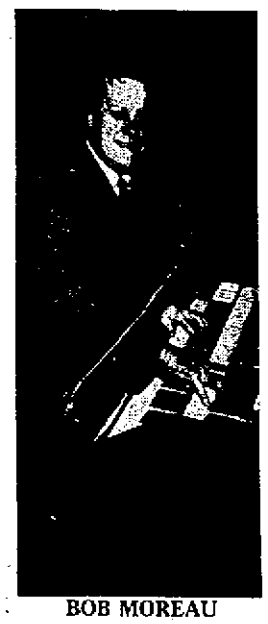

Mr. John Apostle of the corporation operating the restaurant reports that he is accepting immediately reservations for holiday entertainments and functions.

A characteristic of the Throne Room is the use of King Chairs through the center of the hall. The Throne Room, however, is adaptable to all types of social occasions.

The King Arthur kitchen and other service and entertainment facilities will be available to patrons of the Throne Room.

Warmth, Intimacy Give Charm to Dining Room

BOB MOREAU

Organist Has Third 'Birthday'

Bob Moreau, talented organist and entertainer at King Arthur Steak House, marked his third anniversary there Nov. 27.

He is continuing a recording, singing and entertainment career that began in Escanaba, Michigan, in 1945. He zoomed to the national spotlight as an organist and vocalist with the Vel Tones.

Bob appears at King Arthur six nights a week (he rests Sundays) from 8:45 p.m. to 1:45 a.m.

Popular ballads, semi-classics and Hawaiian numbers are featured. His talents have attracted scores of guests from the professional world, who join patrons in music and song.

Plans for New Facility Told

The proprietors of King Arthur restaurant announce today plans for opening of a second dining and entertainment center to serve Southern California.

As yet unnamed, it will be located on Pacific Coast Highway between Colorado and Second Streets, on the east side. It will serve the Martha area.

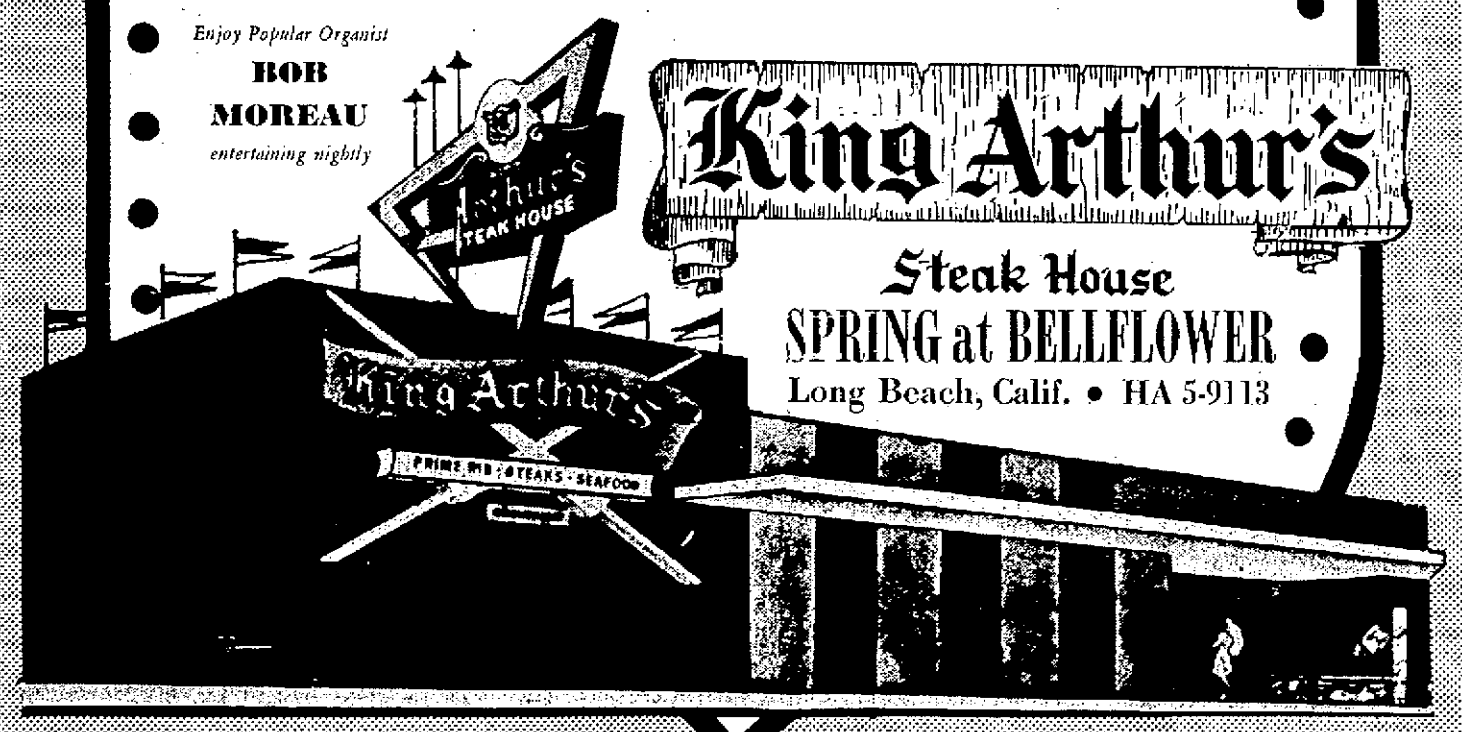

The restaurant and entertainment facilities, being owned by John Apostle, and associates are part of a $2 million motel accommodation being erected on the site. More than $400,000 will be spent to make the new restaurant one of the area's outstanding dining facilities.

"We intend to carry on the policies of King Arthur in our new restaurant," the partners state. "Our aim is to bring good food and good taste to people of moderate means."

THE
"ELEGANT WORLD of PRIME RIBS"

It's too bad Diamond Jim Brady didn't live to enjoy the King Arthur cut of succulent Prime Ribs of Beef that bears his name. Diamond Jim spent much of his life searching for the finest in food, but he couldn't have found a tastier, more generous slice of eating pleasure than the Diamond Jim Brady cut of Prime Ribs that we offer. Lucky you . . . you can enjoy it tonight . . . just by telling the waiter, "I'm in a rare (or medium, or well done) Diamond Jim mood!" You'll like what happens next!

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Savannah Sails for Isles Tonight

Her labor disputes finally settled, the NS Savannah is scheduled to sail at midnight tonight from Los Angeles for Honolulu.

Nuclear engineers had resigned as a group after their wage scale was tied with that of deck officers by a federal labor mediator.

But "the engineers have withdrawn their letters of resignation and agreed to said the ship," William Buttram, West Coast business manager of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said Saturday.

Although cargo loading began Saturday at Matson Navigation Co.'s Wilmington Pier 195, where the Savannah has been berthed since Tuesday, a previously scheduled public tour will be held today.

JFK'S Ex-Skipper Gets Squadron

CAPT. JACK E. GIBSON

Capt. Gibson is returning to sea duty after spending eight months as technical adviser on a motion picture, "PT 109," which tells of the President's experiences commanding a patrol torpedo boat in South Pacific combat.

The 1937 U.S. Naval Academy graduate relieved Capt. C. O. Akers in ceremonies aboard the USS McKean, squadron flagship, at Pier 15.

When asked to comment on Kennedy's wartime role, Gibson quietly said, "No one even knew who he was, then."

Special Research Lab for Douglas

A special research laboratory will be incorporated into the Douglas Aircraft Co. Space Systems Center now under construction at Huntington Beach, it was announced Saturday.

Company president, Donald Douglas Jr., said the $2 million Advanced Research Laboratory will be erected on 10 acres of the 245-acre tract bought last summer for the center.

More than 100 specialists in aircraft, missile and space-systems development eventually will work in the facility.

The 34-voice Korean Orphans' Choir, which recently completed a 16,000-mile tour through 12 European countries, will join 23 local musical groups in the county's all-day Christmas program on Monday, Dec. 24.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn announced that young Korean singers would sing as part of the program in the Board of Supervisors' hearing room, Hall of Administration, 500 W. Temple St., Los Angeles.

The Christmas program, free to the public, runs from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Parking will be available in county parking lots on Temple Street between Hill and Grand, Hahn said.

$7.5-Million Flood Curbs Put In

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

More than $7.5 million in floor-control and storm-drain projects were completed in and around Long Beach in the past year, the County Flood Control District reported this week.

In Long Beach, two projects were completed totaling $6,564,140. Largest of the two was the $5,132,789 third unit of Los Cerritos storm drain, which serves East Long Beach, Lakewood and Bellflower.

The other local project was the $1,431,351 first unit of the Bixby Knolls and second unit of the pump district storm drains in West Long Beach, built under a single contract.

In nearby communities, $7.3 million in projects were completed in 1962.

Judges Ask Change to 8-Member Juries

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Eight-member juries, instead of the traditional 12, should be used in all trials except those in which the death penalty could be imposed, according to judges of the Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Presiding Judge Thomas L. Griffith Jr. will so inform the Board of Supervisors next Tuesday.

Judge Griffith said jurists of the Los Angeles Judicial District have endorsed recommendations of the county's Special Study Commission on Judicial Procedures and, in fact, have gone one step further.

* * * *

THE COMMISSION recommended that the number of jurors be reduced from 12 to 8 in all civil cases and in criminal misdemeanor cases. The judges proposed the smaller jury for all civil cases and for all criminal cases except those involving capital offenses.

Such a procedure would reduce the county's cost of jury trials from its present estimated $2.5 million annually to about one-third that amount, Judge Griffith said. It also would cut court time needed to select a jury.

"The judges do not believe this plan will lessen the quality of justice administered," Judge Griffith said.

* * * *

IN THE absence of a demand by either party in a civil case for a 12-member jury, both Superior and Municipal Courts should use the eight-member jury, with the number of peremptory challenges proportionally reduced, the judges said.

Either party in a civil suit could demand a 12-member jury, but the party making the demand would be required to advance fees and transportation costs for the additional four jurors and such costs would not be recoverable from the opposing party.

* * * *

IN CIVIL cases, the present ratio would be retained in which three-fourths of the jury can return a verdict. This would mean six jurors out of eight or nine out of 12.

In criminal cases, a unanimous verdict would be required from either the eight or 12-member jury.

21 Bars Closed, 100 Arrested in Tijuana Cleanup

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI)—Several bars remained shuttered Saturday as this border town's police force swung into action in a new drive against vice.

More than 100 persons were arrested and 21 bars closed Friday on the direct orders of Ildefonso Velasquez, Tijuana's new mayor.

A police spokesman said 70 of those arrested were girls charged with prostitution.

The spokesman said further arrests and bar closures were anticipated.

Even Bircher Pair Ran Ahead of Nixon

WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon ran behind every incumbent Republican congressman in last November's balloting in California.

John Birch congressional candidates received support from at least 15 per cent of Democratic voters and may have secured up to 25 per cent of the opposition-party vote. They were less successful in this respect than other Republicans, however.

Republicans with moderate or liberal voting records did better outside their party than those with strongly conservative labels.

* * * *

THESE ARE some of the vote patterns discernible in Rep. Craig Hosmer's biennial exercise with the California tally sheets and a slide rule. The Long Beach GOP congressman has developed a rule of thumb by which he attempts to determine the success of Republican candidates at winning Democratic votes.

In California, Democrats outnumber Republicans in total registration three to two. Most Republican candidates estimate they need to win at least 20 per cent of the Democratic vote on election day to avoid losing.

A culmination of 25 years of pain-staking work by the Armstrong research department, this is a true dwarf—not a regular peach on a dwarfing rootstock which stunts growth, but a real bush size plant which will stay small throughout its lifetime.
And just wait until they (or you) pick the first tree-ripened fruit of BONANZA. They'll marvel that a "vest pocket" tree like this could produce these big, golden, red-cheeked beauties—and the rich peach flavor will send them scurrying for a "second".
Its size and distinctive good looks make BONANZA a "natural" for use as an ornamental shrub—beautiful in the back yard or front, as a single specimen, as a hedge, a border for walks or drives—even as a container-grown specimen for porch or patio.
BONANZA will thrive wherever ordinary peaches grow and, usually, in the second season, there will be luscious fruits peeking from beneath the big, long, lustrous green leaves. Armstrong guarantees that BONANZA will grow wherever ordinary peach trees thrive or it will be replaced absolutely free.

Russ Dentistry Free but 50 Years Outdated

Most dental care in the Soviet Union is free, but progress in dentistry there is 50 years behind that of the United States, a Long Beach dentist reported today.

Dr. Earl A. Hershman, president-elect of the Harbor Dental Society, disclosed that Russian dentists use outdated equipment, pay little attention to the teaching of oral hygiene and, in many instances, are not very skillful.

Dr. Hershman, 4220 Virginia Road, recently returned from a trip to four Soviet cities. His tour included a half-day visit to the Moscow Institute of Stomatology (science of the mouth) and an interview with the school's prorector (dean).

"I didn't see a single air rotor (high-speed drill) in the school's clinic," Dr. Hershman said. "The Russian dentists were using pulley-type drills that turned at 2,000 to 4,000 revolutions per minute."

U.S. dentists, he explained, now use air rotors that turn at 150,000 to 200,000 r.p.m. or pulley drills that turn at 80,000 r.p.m.

Equipment was old and in disrepair, he continued. Surprisingly, the clinic was equipped with 50 American-made dental chairs, all about 30 years old. Forty-nine of the 50 dentists in the clinic were women.

"School was out when I visited the institute," Dr. Hershman said, "so the dentists I observed were graduates. I saw a great lack of skill and technique."

He said that 29,000 of the Soviet's 45,000 dentists have only three years of training, much of it from night school or by correspondence course.

These three-year dentists, he said, practice regular operative dentistry (fillings, crowns, bridgework), prosthetic dentistry and periodontia (treatment of gum and jawbone diseases). They do some extraction work.

The other 16,000 dentists are known as stomatologists. They have five years of medical training and a medical degree. These doctors have chosen dentistry as their medical specialty. They do oral surgery chiefly.

"This is the only branch of dentistry in which the Russians excel," Dr. Hershman said.

Crowns and bridges are made of stainless steel, but the Russians can have gold if they are willing to pay for it.

Dr. Hershman described filling techniques as "crude."

"No anesthesia is used except for major oral surgery," he said.

Fluoridation of public water supplies, to prevent tooth decay, is nonexistent, he reported. Instruction in oral hygiene—how to use a toothbrush—is not emphasized.

Dr. Hershman said he distributed a gross of American toothbrushes to the Soviet people.

"They were very happy to get them," he said.

Natural-bristle brushes in the Soviet are inferior, he said. Nylon-bristle brushes are not available.

Dentistry as a profession held a very low priority in the Soviet until 1940, Dr. Hershman said. Now the government is beginning to upgrade dentistry. Although 75 per cent of the country's dentists and doctors are women, enrollment in dental and medical schools now is 50-per-cent male.

Soviet dentists belong to a union, Dr. Hershman said. They start at the same salary as a skilled laborer. After five years they get a 20-per-cent raise in pay.

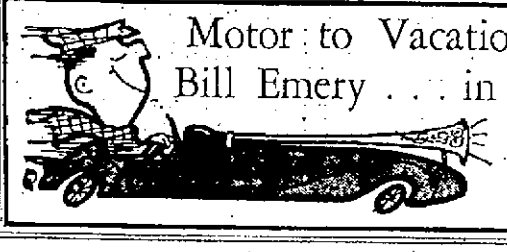

According to union rules, dentists work only 33 hours a week, but this is not enforced, Dr. Hershman disclosed. Many Soviet dentists work at two clinics in an effort to boost their incomes.

Gas Industry Awaits Move by El Paso Co.

By HARRY W. SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. got the unhappy choice last week of accepting a costly Federal Power Commission rate decision or challenging it in court.

Because vital issues are at stake, the gas industry, and particularly interstate pipelines, will be following the company's course closely.

The commission, on a 3 to 2 vote, stood by its landmark decision of Oct. 19 which denied El Paso a higher rate of return on its riskier exploration and production properties than on its pipeline investment, and ordered the first of a series of refunds which could total $68 million.

* * * *

THE FIRST installment — almost $25 million — must go immediately to utility customer's in El Paso's southern system, principally California. This involved one of four rate increases totaling $80 million dating back to April, 1955.

Other refunds must be made as the other rate cases are disposed of unless the commission reverses its stand on production properties. This is deemed unlikely in view of the majority's October statement.

At that time it said El Paso had failed to justify a higher rate of return or to prove that it was needed as an exploration and production incentive. In the meantime the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans, following an appeal from El Paso, had directed the commission to "fix a rate of return that will permit a fair return on Wellmouth investment and provide the incentive necessary to attract capital to the exploration and development activities, supported by findings on the amount 'actually necessary' for this purpose."

* * * *

BUT THE commission majority defied the court with the declaration that while consumers undoubtedly would benefit from El Paso's production operations, there was nothing in the record to prove it. "Moreover," it said, "the company has not proven that an added element of return is needed as an incentive for El Paso to continue its production activities."

The majority added that it was guided in its decision by El Paso's failure to make an adequate showing "on many of the complex factors required to convince us that an added return on pipeline production would be in the public interest."

El Paso had sought a 6½ per cent return on its pipeline properties and 9½ on its production properties. The commisison allowed only an overall 6 per cent in two rate cases and 6⅛ in the other two.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Clear Congress Sailing for Tax Slash Doubted

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy reaffirmed this week that he would ask Congress for a quick income tax cut but there was evidence that clear sailing through Congress is very doubtful.

Taxes and weather were the most talked about influences on business — future and present.

Proponents of a tax cut retroactive to next Jan. 1 contended that it held the key to a better business in 1963. Others cautioned that precipitate action wouldn't be looked upon with favor and some said the economy was good enough to get along without tampering with taxes.

A cold wave, accompanied in some sections by heavy snows, had a two-fold effect on Christmas buying. In some areas it aroused lagging enthusiasm and in others bogged shoppers down. The storm threatened millions of dollars in damage to Florida crops.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Kennedy told his news conference Wednesday that he would ask Congress for an early, substantial income tax reduction when it convenes in January.

"We intend to go ahead with our program," he said. "What I think should be of concern to us all is not the question of the immediate prospects for the next three or four months but, really, the general trend of our industrial growth, our employment lag, over the last five or six years."

He added that "it will be up to the Ways and Means Committee and the Congress to make a judgment."

The Ways and Means Committee—which originates tax legislation—held the answer, and its chairman, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has definite ideas about tax reduction, and they don't coincide with those of the administration.

* * * *

MILLS HAS been represented as opposing a tax cut that would take effect in 1963, prefering a slower approach toward tax reform on a broad basis. However, he indicated that his committee will give priority to consideration of the President's program if Kennedy insists.

Another powerful member of Congress, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., predicted that Congress will reject the tax proposal if it isn't coupled with a reduction in spending.

Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., too, said that people are concerned that there may be a tax reduction without a cutback in expenditures.

Statements of cautious optimism about the outlook for next year came from several quarters. Ladd Plumley, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, predicted 1963 will be "a good but not a boom year." He added that a recession may have actually occurred last summer and the country may now be on the way to recovery. . .

* * * *

PLUMLEY SAID a tax cut "could go a long way toward restoring more satisfactory economic growth." Henry Ford II, in his tradditional year-end statement, said the country needs a sharp advance in investment spending and a broad tax cut "to give the economy enough momentum to carry it past rough spots without stalling."

In New York City, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. concluded that business is finishing 1962 "in a phase of hesitant expansion" and that "sentiment is better than it was last summer, although fingers have not yet been completely uncrossed against the possibility of a downturn in early 1963."

While attention was centered on the pace of Christmas buying, a heartening indicator was the Commerce Department's report that retail sales in November rang up increases of two per cent over October and five per cent over November 1961.

* * * *

GOING BACK a little further, the same agency reported that sales of merchant wholesalers set a monthly record of $13.5 billion in October.

A survey indicated that many big corporations are planning to increase their advertising outlays next year to promote new products and to go hand-in-hand with an expected increase in sales.

Automobile production this week spurted to another weekly record for this year. The output of an estimated 175,000 passenger cars was second only to the December 1955 pace. Last week poor weather held production to 169,159.

The automakers, who have been building their cars with steel pulled out of big stockpiles amassed early this year in anticipation of a strike that never came off, have begun buying as much of the metal as they use.

THEY ALSO are considering stepping up their orders in the next few months to again build stockpiles in anticipation of the steelworkers Union reopening its contract with major producers next spring.

Output last week was an estimated 1,858,000 tons, off one per cent from the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: Americans boosted their financial savings by $6.8 billion in the July-September quarter. . . . Consolidated Edison Co. has applied for government permission to build a $175 million atomic power plant in New York City. . . A major oil and gas recovery has been reported by Gulf Oil Corp. 32 miles off the Louisiana coast . . . J. C. Penney Co., the department store chain, sold $1,153,711,175 worth of merchandise in the first nine months of this year.

Rain in North Moving South

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rain dampened much of Northern California Saturday and spread steadily southward. Snow fell at high mountain levels as far south at the Tahoe area.

By midday the rain had reached Monterey and Merced and the Weather Bureau said it probably would hit the Tehachapis by nightfall and Southern California Sunday.

Christmas Arrives in Harbor

—Staff Photos by Dick Talbert

With part of her crew lining the forward flight deck, the 33,000-ton converted carrier Valley Forge emerged from the fog off Pier E Saturday morning after eight months' duty with the Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific.

It was one of 16 Navy ships with more than 6,000 men due in their home port this weekend. For thousands of Navy families here it is the nicest Christmas present of all.

Tyke with the too-big sailor hat is hoisted aloft by his mother to see if he can spot daddy.

Navy Airman Robert M. Ross, 21, of Whittier, got a pretty nice present, himself, when he debarked from carrier. Mrs. Ross watches expectantly while her husband looks for the first time at their son, Robert Albert, 6 weeks.

She breaks out in smile when airman turns toward her with obvious "Yeah, I think we'll keep him" approval.

U.S. Has A-Missiles to Wipe Out Soviet

PARIS (UPI)—The United States has enough atomic missiles today to be able to survive a surprise nuclear "Pearl Harbor" and then launch a counterattack that would erase existing Soviet society, informed American sources said here Saturday.

This assessment of the relative nuclear strength of the two countries was given to America's allies during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council session in Paris last week.

The source said Soviet and Western Allied ground forces on the Iron Curtain frontier in Europe are about equal, although the Soviets probably could build theirs up more quickly in an emergency.

* * * *

BUT THE WEST has a strong edge in the air and big superiority in nuclear power which it expects to retain indefinitely, the sources said.

The sources said McNamara and Norstad did not wish to convey the impression that the Allied forces would be overrun quickly but simply that they should be strengthened, if they were to carry out their mission properly in the future.

The sources explained that in the U. S. view the mission of these forces will extend increasingly into the conventional field. This theory is based on the idea that the vast nuclear strength of both the United States and the Soviets will make each increasingly wary of a nuclear showdown.

Youth Officers Convene in L.B.

Long Beach has been selected as the site for the 1964 convention of the California State Juvenile Officers Association, Captain Paul Landsdowne, head of the Long Beach Juvenile Bureau and first vice-president of the southern division of the association, announced Saturday.

Capt. Landsdowne, head of the site selection committee, said more than 400 officers are expected to attend the annual training conference March 17 through March 20.

Headquarters for the conference will be the Edgewater Inn Marina Hotel, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway, now under construction.

* * * *

WILLIAM J. MOONEY, Long Beach chief of police, and Pete Pitchess, Los Angeles County sheriff, will be co-hosts.

"National experts will discuss the latest techniques in combatting such statewide delinquency problems as narcotics, glue sniffing, auto thefts, burglaries and the ever-increasing problem of child neglect and mistreatment," Captain Landsdowne said.

California, the captain added, has long been recognized in forward planning for juvenile control, has emphasized the professional training of juvenile officers and pioneered in coordinating the efforts of juvenile officers, school authorities and private and public organizations in combatting juvenile delinquency.

Urge E. Germans Fete Border Guards

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communists are seeking to boost the flagging morale of policemen forced to shoot down unarmed fleeing refugees. They urged East Berliners to invite their "loved" border guards to Christmas dinner.

According to Red propaganda campaign, the guards are worthy of love and respect from young and old for preventing Western militarists and imperialists from disrupting East Germany's "merry and prosperous" holiday season.

Extortionist Gets Term in State Prison

One of three men accused of a blackmail incident to a "shakedown" involving morals violations will be taken to Chino Prison Monday under a commitment order from Superior Court Judge Stephen Tamura.

Charles R. Ross, 46, drew a term of from one to 14 years following his conviction Friday in a court trial.

* * * *

ROSS WAS found guilty of extortion after Lawrence L. Downs testified that Ross had posed as a police officer and "fined" him $46 after threatening arrest on a trumped-up morals count.

Held in Los Angeles on a similar charge is Frank Louis Siegel of Buena Park, alleged ringleader of the trio who, officers said, used faked credentials to pose as police officers.

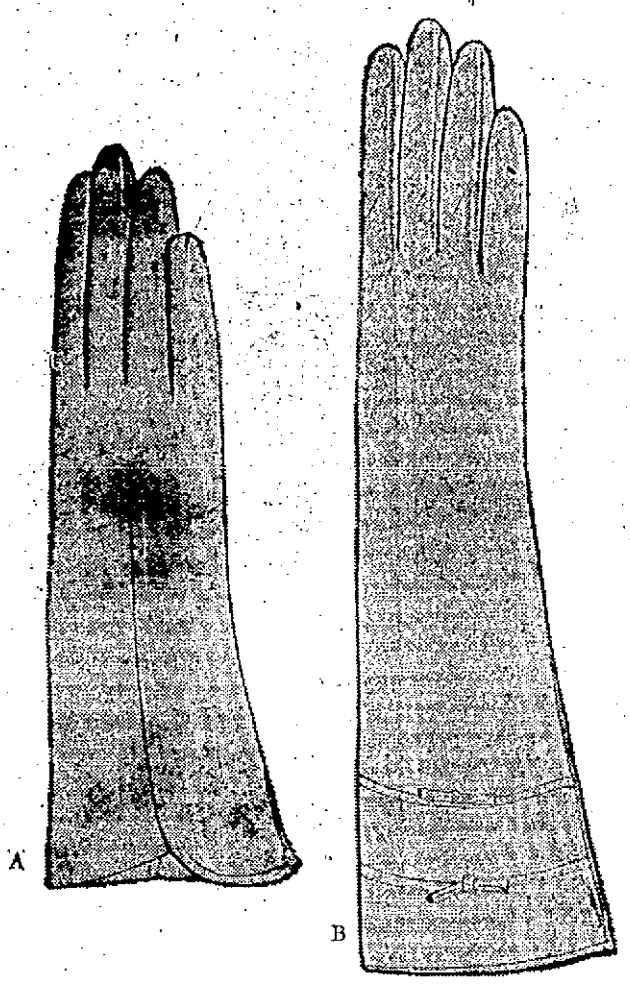

A man identified as James J. Finigan still is sought. He was named as third member of the extortion ring.

Volunteers Rally to Assist Y

Two oil companies and a labor union combined efforts Saturday to tear down a house and garage in 3½ hours to make way for two new YMCA handball courts.

Twenty - eight volunteer workers of the Laborers and Plasters Union, Local 507, wrecked the two buildings at the North Long Beach Branch of the Y, 6095 California Ave.

Shell Oil Co., and Richfield Oil Corp., furnished the trucks to haul away the debris.

* * * *

CHAIRMAN of the Y branch, R. E. (Pat) Corbett, said the donated labor and trucking saved funds the Y needs to buy the materials for construction of the handball courts.

A marked increase in the number of young men participating in the Y program at the North Long Beach Branch has overcrowded its facilities.

PALOS VERDES

BUILDERS SALE
SAVE $6500
You'll be $6,500 ahead of the crowd if you shop this address this weekend. Come to 3564 Starline Drive and look for the desperate expression on the face of the builder.

We'll then tell you the sad-for-us, but good-for-you facts. We custom-built a section of four-bedroom ocean view homes in Palo Verdes prime section, sold most, and now find we can't wait for the usual profit on the remaining few.

We took last weekend's price tag of $54,000 and changed it to $17,500. Since these homes are surrounded by $75,000 to $100,000 neighbors, you can appreciate the appreciation possibilities. Next weekend the big-time speculators move in and we really begin to hurt. This weekend we hope to reach a few sophisticated individual buyers and give them a chance.

It will be worth a sure $6,500 if you will simply come now over to Palos Verdes Drive East to Crest Road. Go west up Crest to Starline. Admire the view. Admire the architecture. Cheer us up.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

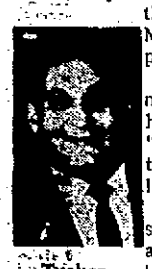

Grand Opera Big Lover

NEW YORK — Richard Tucker remembers that when he and Maria Callas were embracing in their first operatic love scene, Maria whispered, "Richard. . . ."

He answered her with his eyebrows—the boy alto from the Allen St. Synagogue who had sung his way up to become the Caruso of the 1960s.

"Yes, Maria?" the eyebrows inquired.

"Why do I feel so comfortable with you and not with the others?" Maria whispered on.

Tucker

"Because, tonight Maria," he replied, "you are in the major leagues."

Tucker considers himself a major league lover in the opera world—Maria had been having stage love made to her by "inferior tenors"—Tucker was positively blunt with Renata Tebaldi the first time they ever rehearsed a love scene, because when they should have been clinching, she started to walk away.

"I stopped the rehearsal!" Tucker enthusiastically recalled.

"I said, 'I have to tell Miss Tebaldi that if she is going to be singing this love scene with me, she's got to be in my arms. She's not going to be on 40th St. while I'm on 39th'."

* * * *

TUCKER feels this onstage love-making must be worked at and cultivated, and he admits it's nice work . . .

"But I promise you I don't carry it beyond the opera house. Though I don't think there's a man alive who wouldn't think about it . . ."

Once during a love scene with a star, she whispered, "Move up a litle closer, you're sitting on the edge of the bed." A less friendly prima donna might have let him crash onto the floor.

"There was another leading prima donna I squeezed so hard she said, 'Richard, I can't breathe'!"

* * * *

DOUBTFUL that he'll ever again work with Callas, he said, "My teacher, Paul Althouse, said that you could usually tell a person's character by the voice—and it was true of Callas. They were both"—Tucked didn't pause a second—"miserable."

"My wife and I were instrumental in geting her married to her husband," he recalled. "She weighed 240 pounds then.

"We fed her—which she failed to reveal when she told her story for publication."

TUCKER HAD just been in to "talk to the boss," Rudolf Bing, about the '63-64 season. Bing had wanted him for 27 or 28 appearances. Tucker wanted half that.

"I've got 13 dates right here on this list," Tucker said, brandishing a paper. "They pay an average of $40,000 to $50,000 . . ."

"Don't talk to me about money!" Bing protested.

"I like to talk about money," Tucker said.

LAST OF OLD-STYLE CLOWNS

Lahr Plays 6 Roles in New Comedy

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all that zany company which lit up show world from the torride '20's through the frantic '50's, — Bobby Clark, Willie Howard and others—a single star still romps in '62, Bert Lahr. Very chipper, full of talk.

Looking around him, the putty-faced veteran considers only one comic has emerged in recent years to carry on the old tradition of grand and glorious buffoonery, Jackie Gleason.

YOU'VE GOT to always be on the lookout for new challenges also, he insisted. His latest excursion into such fresh adventure is "The Beauty Part," a comedy by S. J. Perelman, an expert at plucking the cliches and foibles of contemporary life.

Lahr will be busy in six diverse roles. Among them, he will be a lady magazine publisher and an elderly oriental.

The workout, like others in which he has indulged during recent seasons, marks a sharp departure from the burlesque japery which shot him to fame in countless revues and musical comedy.

"AT THIS point in my career," says the 67-year-old star, "I want to develop all my alleged talents as much as possible.."

CAPT. BLIGH SAILS AGAIN

H.M.S. Bounty Rides Waves After 173 Years With Cargo of Picture Studio Handouts

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

ABOARD H.M.S. BOUNTY (AP) — Orders crackled in the pre-dawn darkness like the lash of a cat 'o nine tails.

"Pilot's aboard, sir."

"Very well. Cast off bow line."

"Bow line away."

"Cast off stern line."

"Stern line away."

"Starboard easy . . . midships . . . steady as she goes . . ."

"Midships . . . steady, sir."

* * * *

THE SAILING ship slipped down the Delaware on the slack tide, bound south for strange waters and strange ports with a cargo of precious handouts to placate the natives and enrich the coffers of the owners. Chief placater and coffer enricher was an enormous cardboard cut-out of Marlon Brando stored in the main hatch just aft of the great cabin and hard by the frozen locker.

Thus, more than 173 years after the famous mutiny, the Bounty rode the waves again. This time she was in the service of the movie lords at Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, who built the replica at a cost of $750,000 as a set for a remake of the movie "Mutiny On The Bounty." Then she was launched on a two-year, 40,000-mile publicity tour.

* * * *

BLIGH and Fletcher Christian, the mutinous first mate, would have had much to admire in the handiwork of the shipbuilders of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, who recreated the Bounty with loving attention to detail. Particularly the saucy carving of the English woman in riding habit lifting her skirts above the billowing waves on the bowsprit.

But they would have flipped their periwigs over the soundproofing and air conditioning below decks, the stainless steel galley, the bearded guitar player bawling "All Night, Mary Ann" into a microphone in the crew's mess, the twin Diesel engines purring a path of progress through becalmed waters, the radar scanner flapping its ears among the top gallants, the Japanese transistor radio lashed to the mizzen mast so the helmsman could tug at the great wheel in tempo to Perry Como's crooning of "Moon River" and all the other manifest benefits of modern civilization.

There was, alas, precious little time for such ruminations.

AS WE slipped under the Benjamin Franklin Bridge a pink finger of dawn was drawing the darkness from Philadelphia's receding skyline.

"Breakfast now being served in the great cabin," called out a salty, apple-cheeked lad who only a few moments before had been scampering through the rigging.

Having signed aboard the Bounty for a weekend as a supernumerary at the munificent sum of 25 cents a month, to get around a Canadian regulation that forbids passengers of certain-sized commercial ships, we went below to take up our duty as quondam historian and permanent chow hound of the cruise.

UNAFRAID OF MUTINY, AP writer Hugh A. Mulligan takes the helm of the Bounty and heads down Chesapeake Bay with a cargo of publicity for the "Mutiny on the Bounty" film.

* * * *

"WE SHOULD be in the Chesapeake Canal in a couple of hours," muttered Capt. Ellsworth Coggins, debonairly placing a glass of frozen orange juice amid the charts and maps spread out on the navigation table. Framed in the porthole behind him, an atomic cruiser rode at anchor in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, its workmen no doubt matching the Bounty's deck crew gape for gape.

Coggins, a retired Canadian Naval Commander, has sailed the rebuilt Bounty across both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. His worst experience so far had nothing to do with a mutiny, which is highly unlikely among his well fed, well-paid crew of Nova Scotian sailors. Rather, it involved transporting a cargo of well-oiled Italian and French photographers across the English Channel.

"Despite their condition, most of the chaps insisted on climbing the rigging," Coggins recalled. "All concerned became dreadfully seasick. We had to swab the decks to make a proper appearance."

* * * *

BLIGH NEVER had to contend with with sullen photographers but he did suffer from one annoyance that still plagues the modern Bounty: Thefts by the natives. In Tahiti two centuries ago, they stole the ship's anchor. Today the thousands of sightseers who flock aboard in every port will steal anything that isn't lashed to the masts.

"They've stolen so many belaying pins, we can hardly work the sails," moaned First Mate Ralph Hemphill.

Like everyone else on the Bounty, the matey has learned to live with the Bounty's infamous past, especially the various movie versions. Hardly a day in port goes by without some extrovert hopping up on the hatch cover, curling a lip menacingly and shouting at the top of his lungs: "Mister Christian, I'll see you hanged from the highest yard arm in the British Navy."

* * * *

THE FACT that the line, first uttered by Charles Laughton, does not occur in the current movie version did not dissuade Trevor Howard, the new Capt. Bligh, from using it when he came aboard the Bounty in London for his first visit since the filming.

Not a man in the Bounty's crew ventured so much as a groan.

'Male Animal' Limp, Spiritless

By ROBERT C. WYLDER

James Thurber and Elliot Nugent co-authored "The Male Animal," but no one should blame them for what took place in the Horseshoe Theater of Long Beach City College Business and Technological Division this weekend. Neither was around to protect himself.

The show is a mildly interesting comedy if left reasonably to itself, but when it is assaulted by too many actors with too little experience it emerges limp and spiritless. That's what happened this time. Director Herb Caesar was able to salvage only a portion of what might have been a delightful play.

"The Male Animal" is concerned, via the Sacco and Vanzetti case, with the question, among others, of academic freedom, and has just enough serious comment in it to serve as a solid background for its laughs. While Sacco and Vanzetti may be a dead issue now, the larger question of the freedom to teach isn't, so the show still has some pertinence. Its edge, however, was pretty well dulled in the local production — and the laughs were lost in the process.

Jim Contis portrayed the English professor who is forced by circumstances to assert himself. Mildred Contis played his wife; John Nasheim, the former football hero; Lester Britton the trustee. Others in the cast were Bea Bozeman, Elenor Hunden, Charles Fein, John Kuklinca, Monna High, Nancy Johnson and John Solbes. They all tried hard.

Everyone has a bad day now and then. This was it at BTD.

10,719 See Rich Romp by Jet Deck

By ERNIE MASON

Confident Jet Deck stepped easily and swiftly down a gold-paved 350-yard chute to victory Saturday in the $207,750 Los Alamitos Futurity — the richest race ever run in California before 10,719 fans.

The bay 2-year-old son of Moon Deck won as easily as expected by his supporters who bet him down to 2-5. He rewarded them $2.80, $2.60 and $2.20.

But he rewarded his owner, J. B. Chambers, far better. The winner's share was $93,265 and Chambers also received a $2,500 award as the nominator of the winner.

* * * *

THE $95,745 returned to the Denver owner was a handsome return on a $24,000 gamble. He made both Jet Deck and Jet Flash supplementary nominees, but Jet Flash failed to qualify.

Jet Deck stepped the distance in 17.7 seconds, which gave him a princely wage rate of $5,409.32 per second.

Second place, three-quarters of a length back, was Anacacho Ranch's Lightning Belle, followed in order by Go Eagle Go, Miss Corsair, Moolah Bar, Bar Depth, Miss Bar Leo, Dogface, Romabar and Palleo's Jeep.

* * * *

LIGHTNING Belle earned $28,385 for second place, returning better than 14-1 on the $2,000 in nominating, continuing and entry fees paid.

Miss Bar Leo, the swift little Houston, Tex., filly made a supplementary nominee, was the only horse in the event to lose money. She placed seventh and returned owners O. C. O'Quinn and Calvin Klein $7,096.25 on their $12,000 investment.

Even the last place horse showed a profit. Jerry Thompson's Palleo's Jeep earned $3,041.25 on his $2,000 investment.

The public had so much confidence in Jet Deck that it set a new track wagering record for a single race. The crowd chunked $123,989 through the mutuel machines to pass the previous mark of $110,219 set two weeks ago when Jet Deck won the Calbred Futurity and paid the same price, $2.80.

The day's handle, $850,356, was the second largest in the history of the track.

In the race, Jet Deck showed he was just as confident of victory as were his supporters. He came out of the gate on top with Lightning Belle and the rocket-starting Miss Bar Leo — just as jockey Charles Smith had predicted.

FROM THE gate he steadily and easily pulled away from the field, though Lightning

Basin Sets 17-Yr. Mark: 'Most Inept'

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

Santa Ana College humiliated Columbia Basin College of Washington, 20-0, in the 17th Junior Rose Bowl football game Saturday before a crowd of 41,709.

It was the first shutout since the game's inception in 1946, and Columbia Basin's showing was the most inept in the game's history.

In 59 plays from scrimmage the Hawks netted a combined total of 59 yards rushing and passing. And their four first downs were the least any JRB team has ever compiled.

Santa Ana was in charge all the way although the Dons didn't hit the scoreboard until the second quarter when quarterback Dunn Marteen kicked two field goals and plunged for a touchdown to pile up a 12-0 halftime lead.

* * * *

MARTEEN WAS named "player of the game." He received 35 of the 63 votes cast to beat out teammates Don Davis and Wylie Carlyle.

The all-America sophomore actually did not turn in one of his better performances. He was obviously bothered by a swollen finger on his right hand, and he completed only one of nine passes and had two intercepted.

It was field leadership and general all-round excellence that accounted for the award.

Marteen and halfback Mike Anderson each netted one more yard rushing than the entire Columbia Basin team totaled both rushing AND passing. Fullback Steve Ledbetter was only two yards behind the entire Hawk squad in rushing.

* * * *

COLUMBIA Basin was so inadequate offensively that it is difficult to give all the credit to a fine Santa Ana defense—especially after watching Hawk halfback Bud Hare run into a teammate on five occasions.

The Hawks netted only six yards rushing and one yard passing in the first half. They could advance no further than their own 39. In the last half they spurted to the Santa Ana 28 and to their own 45, but on six other opportunities they couldn't get past their own 24.

With all due admiration for Santa Ana, the Dons by right should have doubled the score. Instead of settling for two field goals, they should have had two more touchdowns. And in the final half they were stopped on the 1, 4 and 5 yard lines, the last time by the clock.

* * * *

IT IS debatable whether this lack of punch was because of a spirited Hawk defense or in actually sputtering Santa Ana offense.

But it really doesn't make any difference. The win was the 10th in a row for the unbeaten Dons and it enhances their claim to the mythical national junior college championship and a ranking as the best of all Orange County football teams.

K.C. Routs Chiefs, Only 4 Percentage Points Out of Lead

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Steers pulled within four percentage points of the Long Beach Chiefs in the tight American Basketball League race by swamping the California invaders, 110-89, here Saturday night.

The victory gave Kansas City a 16-7 record for a .696 percentage. Long Beach stands at .700 with a 14-6 mark.

High-scoring Bill Bridges, who recently set an ABL record of 55 points and has been around 40 ever since, had to settle for 27 points Saturday night, but it was enough for high-scoring honors.

* * * *

THE GAME was decided in the first half as the Steers built up a 14-point advantage. They were 11 points on top after the first 12 minutes.

Long Beach had only one less field goal than the Steers, but K.C. converted 34 shots from the foul line, including 19 in the first half. Long Beach made only 18 of 31 from the charity line.

Guard Grady McCollum of the Chiefs kept Long Beach from being demoralized in the second half. He wound up with 21 points.

These same clubs battle again tonight. In three games to date, Kansas City has won two.

LBCC BAND HAD ALL BEAT

Hawk 'Power' Jammed

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Long Beach City College's fine marching band represented Columbia Basin College at halftime Saturday in the Junior Rose Bowl and after it was all over, Hawk supporters wouldn't have cared if the Viking football machine were on the field in its place.

The Hawks from Pasco, Wash. probably wished they were back among the tall timber playing the likes of Yakima and Grays Harbor after what Santa Ana College did to them in what must go down as one of the duller JRB games on record.

* * * *

WHEN HERALDED Dunn Marteen was able to complete only 1 of 9 passes playing with a jammed finger and still win "player of the game" honors simply because he runs and kicks better than most halfbacks do, one gets the feeling CBC wasn't the greatest JC team ever to trot onto the Rose Bowl turf.

"Marteen was psychologically 95 per cent ineffective out there because of that finger," said Don coach Homer Beatty after the game.

"Even Orr (second string QB Don) had one of his poorer days. We were simply able to jam all their power plays up the middle.

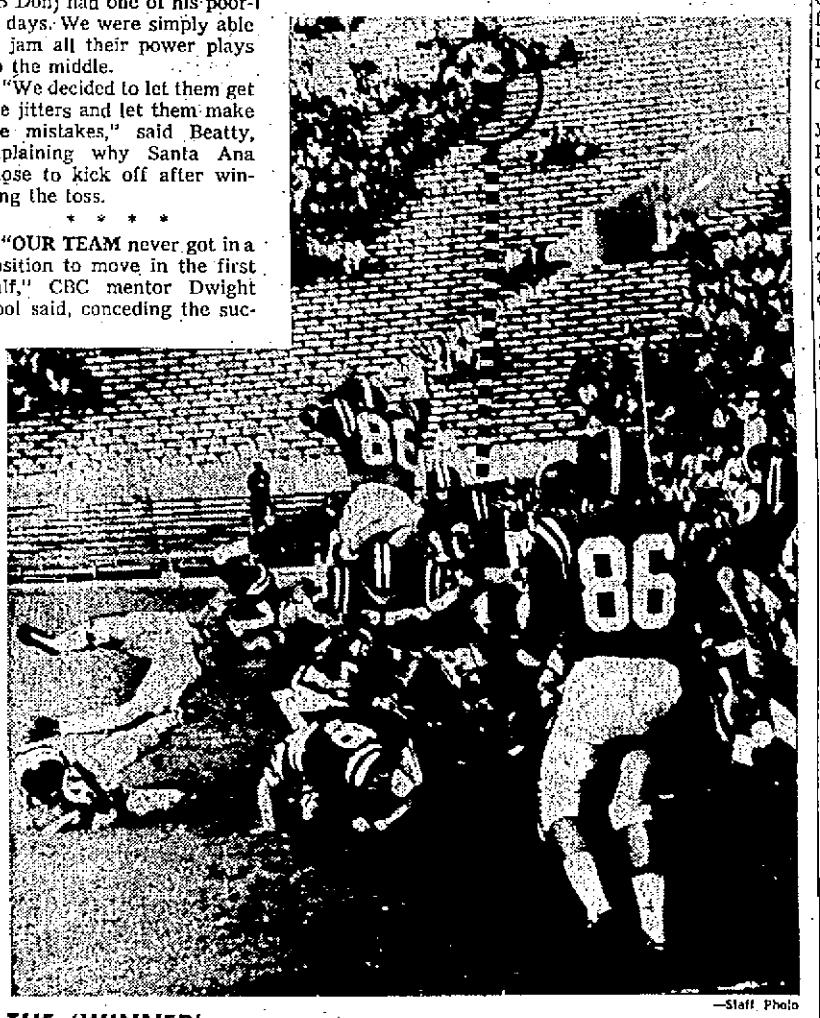

"We decided to let them get the jitters and let them make the mistakes," said Beatty, explaining why Santa Ana chose to kick off after winning the toss.

* * * *

"OUR TEAM never got in a position to move in the first half," CBC mentor Dwight Pool said, conceding the success of Beatty's decision. Pool, who closed the dressing room to the press for 10 minutes, said Santa Ana "did just about what we expected on offense. I have no complaints on how our boys played."

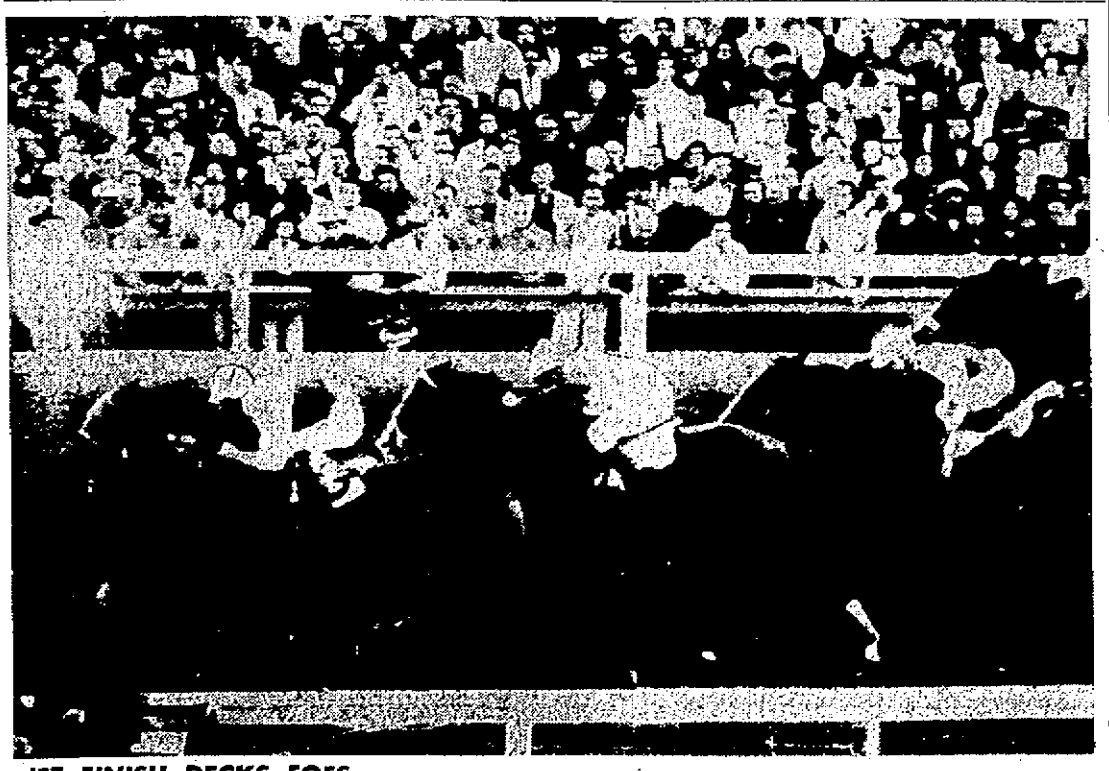

Pool admitted that maybe he should have opened up a little more in the second half, but he didn't sound too convinced.

It was a great day for the Dons, but that Viking band still had them all beat.

Giants Trade Miller, McCormick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Giants and Baltimore Orioles made a wholesale exchange of 1962 pitching disappointments and threw two young catchers into a six-man deal announced only a few hours before Saturday's midnight inter-league trading deadline.

The National League champions sent Stu Miller, Mike McCormick and catcher John Orsino to the Orioles for Jack Fisher, Billy Hoeft and ex-National League catcher Jim Coker.

In other late inter-league transactions, the St. Louis Cardinals sent first baseman Fred Whitfield to Cleveland for pitcher Ron Taylor and infielder Jack Kubiszyn, and Washington purchased catcher Don Leppert from Pittsburgh.

Miller, who will be 35 Dec. 26, was the National League earned run average champion in 1958 and a 14-game winner in 1961 as he led the Giants' bullpen staff. But the righthander slumped to 5-8 and a 4.12 ERA last season as wildness plagued his effectiveness.

McCormick, a 6-year veteran though he is only 24, signed with the Giants for about $65,000 in 1956. He won 15 games in 1960 but was only 5-5 in 1962, complaining that his left pitching arm hurt whenever he threw hard.

Oddly, he and Miller each had .500 career records: 59-59 and 67-67, respectively.

Fisher, at 23 the youngest pitcher in the deal, won 12 games at Baltimore in 1960 and 10 in 1961, but was 7-9 this year with a poor ERA of 5.09. He is a righthander.

Hoeft, 30, has been in the majors for 11 seasons. He won 16 games at Detroit in 1955 and 20 the next year but has won no more than 7 in any year since 1958.

Troy Wins 7th in Row; Bruins Drub Missouri

By JEROME HALL

The Trojans continued their mysterious romp through supposedly strong opposition Saturday with a 66-51 triumph over Oklahoma U.

UCLA's defending Western champion Bruins put on a racehorse exhibition for the second night in succession and downed Missouri. The score was 72-55 in a game played at Santa Monica CC before a capacity crowd of 2,200.

"I'd have to say we're coming along pretty good," commented Trojan coach Forrest Twogood who pointed out that his team was behind by 14 early in the game and won by 15 over a ball club that previously had beaten Southwest Conference kingpin SMU and eastern power St. John's in this young season.

"I guess that shows we've got the makings of 'something,'" the Troy coach concluded.

* * * *

THE TROJANS do not as yet resemble world-beaters, but it's undeniable that already this season they have collected about as many victories as most thought they'd get for the entire schedule.

Saturday they played an afternoon game before 14,435 empty seats in the 15,000-seat L.A. Sports Arena and got off to a horrendous beginning, falling behind by 10 points before they could score their second basket.

The Oklahomans were shapes of wrath after the 101-64 licking they'd taken the night before against UCLA. The Sooner bench was a wild scene—a stark contrast in the huge arena otherwise uncluttered by onlookers.

The Trojans stole the ball in the first 10 seconds of the game, cashed it in for a quick field goal, and then didn't get another for five minutes as Oklahoma ran up a 13-3 advantage.

It went to 21-7 before Troy settled down. USC caught up 2½ minutes before the half (27-27) and everybody knew it was all over.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

Hockey Looms Big Business Here

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . That ice hockey is destined to go over with a big bang here was demonstrated in tremendous fashion Friday night when the semi-pro Gulls lured 3,436 souls into Long Beach Arena. The action was considerably more lively than in most of the Western League games at Los Angeles . . . and you can wager safely that most of the patrons on hand Friday night will return.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Action in American Basketball League games here involving the Chiefs similarly has been lively, yet only two dates of 11 yielded throngs of over 2,000. The reasons for the attendance difference are twofold, as far as this corner is concerned. One: The $2 hockey tops compared to the $3.50 basketball ceiling. Two: The considerably more time the hockey people have been able to spend in legwork and grass roots promotion.

. . . The Long Beach area is completely qualified to support hockey and basketball. Unless I'm 100 per cent wrong, hockey is here to stay. With a season under its belt to correct unintentional errors and make important adjustments, pro basketball could flourish here also. Certainly, the brand of ball exhibited by the Chiefs has left nothing to desire.

. . . Art Wild, the able city editor, takes permissible exception to an L.A. newspaper story describing the Chiefs as "colorless." His proof was in a wire service story that made the first page of most sports sections this past week. The wire story described the Chiefs as "a colorful, fighting organization." (Art should be informed that this particular L.A. paper has done nothing to push sports in Long Beach. On the contrary, it has tried to squelch every sports improvement we have made!)

PAUL HORNUNG, whose status for today's game with the Rams is doubtful, is furious over a San Francisco newspaper story citing his "lack of humor" at being awakened at 1 a.m. before last Sunday's 49er contest. Four college students decided to make Hornung's acquaintance at that particular hour, then went crying to a 'Frisco columnist when Paul gave them the bum's rush.

. . . The fraternity boys then broke into the room of Jim Taylor and Jerry Kramer . . . and surprisingly were given a five-minute audience with the two Green Bay Packers.

. . . Asked about the incident when he arrived in Long Beach last week, Hornung said "no comment, but I'd act the same way all over again." I admire the friendliness of Taylor and Kramer, but I can't blame Hornung for his attitude. (Everything goes when the whistle blows, but not after you hit the sack!)

. . . The Packers, incidentally, were all business here this past week in preparations for their joust with the pitiful Rams. To the consternation of some, Coach Vince Lombardi treated the players as if they were being readied for the NFL title game. One athlete supported his coach for the simple reason "that if we blow this one to the Rams, we probably have to meet Detroit again in a playoff game." (After the way the Lions manhandled the Packers on Thanksgiving Day, more than a few people think the Detroiters right now might be the best ball club in either division of the NFL.)

BOB BLACKMAN, the Poly High product, was the subject of a lengthy feature in a national magazine last week for leading Dartmouth to the Ivy League championship. In relating how he was amazed by things that happen in the Ivy League, Blackman made this comment:

"A few years ago I had a valuable player come in before the Yale game and ask to be taken off the traveling roster. 'I can't make the trip,' said the boy, 'because I've got to study.' They'll never believe that in Long Beach."

. . . The Chargers' all-league defensive back, Dick Harris, is back in his San Pedro abode nursing a seriously injured eye incurred when he blocked a field goal attempt. Asked his viewpoint on the astonishingly sudden Charger downfall this season, the diplomatic redhead declared: "No comment. I may want to play there again next year.

. . . Ben Agajanian, who spent most of the past week working out at Vets Stadium with the Packers (humorously enough in getting ready for today's work with the winless Oakland Raiders), was grousing that he didn't join Marty Nishkian in purchasing a quarter horse named Tiny Chick. All Chick has done at the current Los Alamitos meeting is win three races. Ben threw all his eggs into the basket of a thoroughbred called (aptly enough) Tiny Spender, which hasn't yet been to the races, is out of training and (with luck) may limp into the Hollypark meeting.

. . . Best definition of the Green Bay club (as expressed by a Ram who wishes his identity concealed): "Playing the Packers is like reading a book that is difficult to understand. Those are the kind you learn from." ("And "our" boys have a lot to learn.)

Poly Five Races to Tourney Title

By NORM WILKY

Poly High withstood a late Dominguez rally to whip the Dons, 57-51, to win the Dominguez basketball tourney for the second consecutive year Saturday night.

Little Bennie Richard paced the Rabbits to their seventh successive win with 18 points and was named player of the tourney.

ALL-TOURNEY TEAM

Most valuable: Richard.

POLY HAD a 11-point lead midway in the final period, but the Dons pulled within in three, 50-47, with 2:53 to go. Richard's two free throws and John MacArthur's basket put Poly back in command, however.

Glendale defeated Crescenta Valley, 44-34, for third place, St. Anthony topped Palos Verdes, 54-50, in overtime for consolation honors and Jordan took seventh place by beating Lynwood, 67-44.

Guard Mike Horan was the hero in St. Anthony's win. He scored 20 points, including six in overtime and a basket with three seconds to go in regulation play to force the game into the extra period.

Bad Dream for Vikings: Bow to Palomar, 79-66

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Somewhat surprised to find themselves enjoying an eight-point halftime lead, host Long Beach City College found little Palomar College harder to shake than a bad dream Saturday night in the last 20 minutes and when they awoke it was too late.

The Comets, from the little town of San Marcos in San Diego County, came on strong to nab an impressive 79-66 decision and hand LBCC its fifth loss in 11 games.

* * * *

AFTER PLAYING their best half of the season, the Vikes tired badly and faded. The absence of regular Bob Lowes who turned an ankle Friday night, caught up with the Norsemen who have relied on a liberal substitution policy to go with their fast-break offense.

John Fairchild, 6-8, and Ted Repa, 6-5, pulled down numerous rebounds and tipped in those they didn't grab to pace the comeback.

Palomar, trailing 32-40 at half, slowed down the action and caught up 46-46 with 12 minutes remaining. After that the Comets gradually pulled away.

* * * *

THE VIKINGS rallied once and closed to two points, 54-52, with 6:30 left, but that was as close as they could come.

Despite a slow start, LBCC got great shooting from Frank Roy and Romie Hargrove in the first half. But both tired badly in the latter stages and when Hargrove fouled out it was all over.

John Rambo played his usual steady game and scored 27 for high point honors. Roy had 16 for the Vikes while Repa with 21 and Fairchild with 20 led Palomar.

52 for Elgin as Lakers Rip Warriors

By ROSS NEWHAN

The organist at the L.A. Sports Arena no longer serenades the Lakers with "Angeltown." Instead, in honor of Elgin Baylor, the hit parade favorite has become, "It's Getting to Be a Habit With Me."

Tick Tock clicked off 52 points Saturday night — the third consecutive evening he has surpassed the 50 mark—as the Lakers ran the San Francisco Warriors back to the Bay, 113-104.

A crowd of 8,013 gave Baylor a standing ovation when the pros' pro left the court with 52 seconds remaining after directing the Lakers to their 12th victory in 13 Sports Arena contests and their fifth in a row over the "Stilted" Warriors.

* * * *

THE LAKERS thus kept intact their three game advantage over St. Louis and will turn the sports scene over to the Rams today as they rest in preparation for an invasion by the high-scoring Syracuse Nationals Monday evening.

Baylor's superlative performance marked the first time in his spangled pro career he has scored over 50 points in three consecutive games. He hit 19 of 32 shots and his passing was something for Roman Gabriel to behold.

While Baylor was supplying the offensive spark, rookie Gene Wiley and veteran Jim Krebs were throwing a blanket over Wilt Chamberlain. Wiley, guarding the Bay giant in the first and third periods, and Krebs taking over in the second and fourth stanzas, held Chamberlain to 24 points, his low water mark of the season.

* * * *

"THEY BOTH did a great job on him," said coach Fred Schaus. "You've got to make him move back instead of laterally when he goes for the jumper and that's exactly what they did."

Leading only 57-54 at halftime, the Lakers salted away their 16th victory in their last 18 games with a mighty surge in the first four minutes, 11 seconds of the third period.

While holding the Warriors scoreless, Jerry West pumped in three consecutive field goals and the Lakers raced to a 70-54 advantage. Ex-UCLA and New York star Willie Naulls put the Warriors' offense back together, but it was too late and the Lakers coasted and clowned—Hot Rod, of course—to victory.

49ERS BEST GAME, BUT . . .

Free Throws Beat Long Beach State

By AL LARSON

Orange State's deadly accuracy at the foul line paid rich dividends as the Titans outscored Long Beach State, 100-89, Saturday night in a tension-packed contest on the Fullerton JC court.

A crowd of 600 held its breath as coach Alex Omalev's club, outshot by two field goals, cashed in 32 of 41 free throws to lock up its fifth win without defeat.

The setback for Long Beach was a bitter one since the 49ers turned in their best performance of the season, and at distinct odds.

Stan Andersen, the 49ers' leading scorer, was shut out completely for the first time in his career, but there was ample reason.

* * * *

THE FORMER Millikan great was strapped with his fourth personal foul by the time the game was only seven minutes old. He finally fouled out with 16:10 remaining after playing a total of only 13 minutes.

Orange State had to turn on its fiercest firepower of the season before locking up the game with three minutes to go. Until then the 49ers matched the Titans basket for basket. But then Orange State went into 1-and-1 foul situations and Edgar Clark, Jon Brettman and Terry Hermann rattled off six gift shots and LBSC was doomed.

By contrast, Long Beach never did get to the line for a bonus shot. A total of 25 personals were whistled against Long Beach while officials detected 14 on the winners.

* * * *

ORANGE STATE jumped off to an early lead and never trailed, although the 49ers did deadlock the contest twice in the late stages, 68-68 and 70-all on baskets by Lyn Hodge.

HODGE SHARED scoring honors with Johnny Johnson as both pumped in 25 points. Hodge had another perfect night at the foul line and now has slipped in 15 attempts without a miss this year.

Brettman won individual scoring honors with 32. The Titans hit 45 per cent of their shots compared to 40 for the visitors. Long Beach sank 17 of 20 at the foul line.

Dick Perry discovered a new star in Al Windfeldt, who came on for Andersen and scored 16 points. The former San Pedro High flash sank seven of eight shots from the field as he kept the 49ers in the game late in the first half.

Man to Man

WYNN

STARR

By JERRY WYNN

He has the name of a two-gun cowboy, the fame as one of the finest quarterbacks in football, and he makes claim never to use "that greasy kid stuff."

Yet Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers really is not at home in the hero image he commands.

A quiet, publicity-shunning pro veteran of seven years with the sandy hair and soft smile of the nice boy next door, Starr graduated from the University of Alabama with a Phi Beta Kappa key as well as gridiron honors.

Today, in addition to leading the NFL in passing and pulling the trigger to one of the most explosive offensive teams ever seen, he probably is the foremost authority on the Civil War among pro football warriors.

As a transplanted Southerner living in Green Bay, Bart, are you reconciled to the North having won the Civil War?

"No. At heart, I'm still a boy from Alabama and favor the South."

How do you like living in Green Bay?

"Very much. It's a little town, but first class. The people are great and the living is easy. I love most everything about Wisconsin except the temperature in the winter. My wife and boy (Bart Jr., 5) have grown to like it too. You can't beat the recreation."

What are your favorite recreations?

"I like to hunt, small game, no deer. I like to golf, score about 80. I like to read, mostly articles and Civil War books."

Do you consider playing quarterback more of a mental or physical challenge?

"I consider it more of a mental challenge because I'm not big enough (6-1, 195) physically to challenge anybody. Pro football is the greatest game of cat and mouse ever seen. It's a lot of fun to play."

Sideline experts have said that anyone can play quarterback on such an outstanding team as the Packers. How would you answer them?

"I would agree. I feel very privileged to play for the Packers. We've got a great line and great backs. I'm not naive enough to believe I could play on some other teams although I have my strong points too."

What makes the Packers world champions?

"Many things. Pride, a tremendous dedication by every one from the head coach to the trainer, a feeling of unity between the players regardless whether they play offense or defense. You could go on and on."

Millions of TV viewers felt sorry for you against the Lions Thanksgiving Day. How did you feel?

"Those things happen, but they haven't happened many times to us in the last four years. I'd call it one of my sorriest days. I'm sure they couldn't play that way against us again."

Would you like to enter coaching when you retire as a player?

"Yes, very much so. It's a great challenge and becoming greater all the time. In just my seven years in the league, I've seen the game change tremendously. The players are smarter, faster and rougher. Coaching is teaching and I've been fortunate to play under a great teacher like coach Lombardi."

What has been your greatest thrill in football?

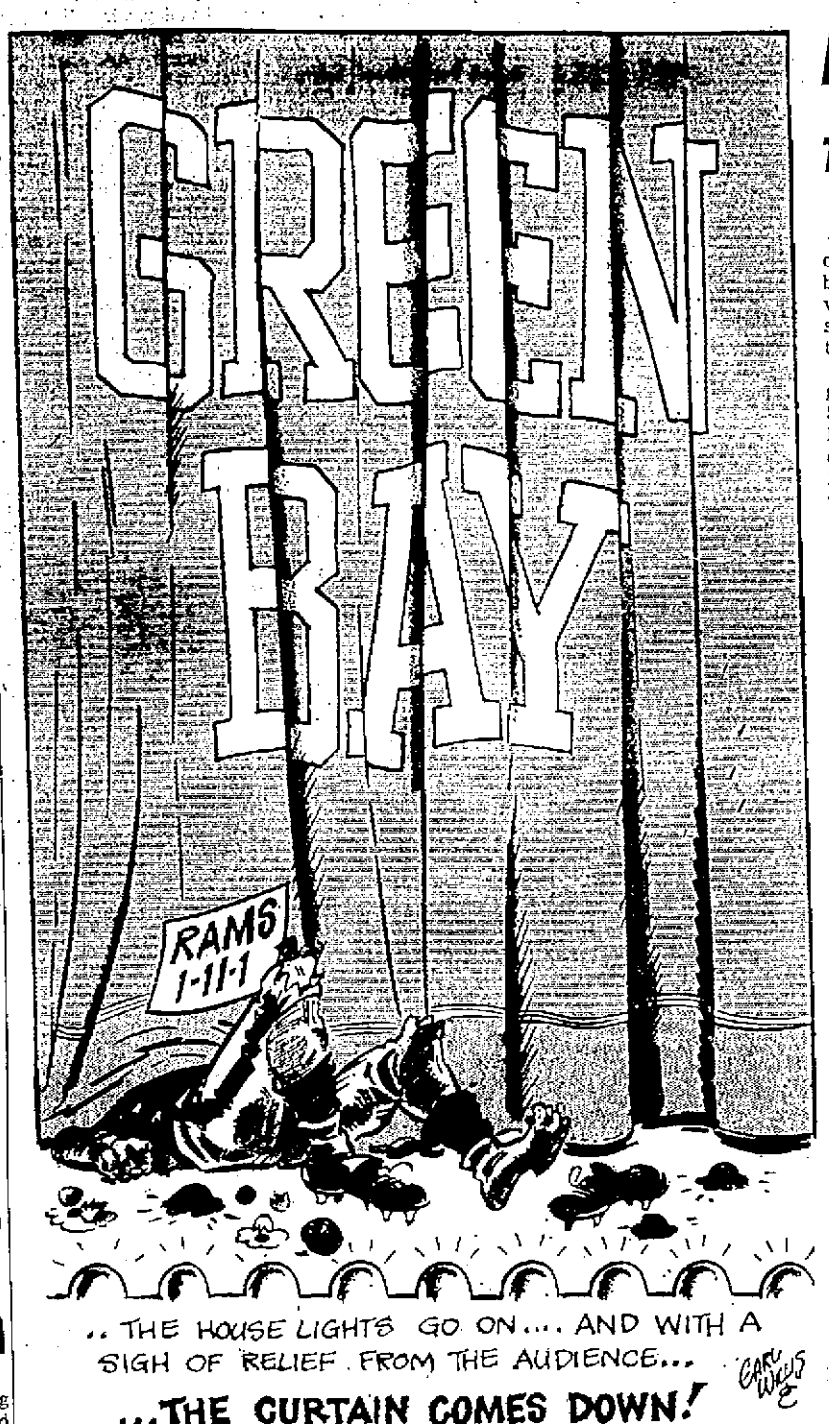

"It was great to win the championship game last year, but just playing on this club is the greatest thrill. It really is."

Do the Packers fear the Rams Sunday?

"We don't fear any team. We respect the Rams. They've always played their heads off against us. I think Gabriel's going to be a great quarterback, and I wish I had his height. After looking at their game films against the Bears, I think Bass was born to play in the snow. He sure can run. We're looking for a rough game against the Rams.

A star among stars—and a fine person—is Bart Starr.

Rams End Black Season

Expect 55,000 to See Packers

By JERRY WYNN

The Rams pack up all their cares and woe and say bye-bye black 1962 season today when they engage the fearsome Green Bay Packers at the Coliseum at 1:35 p.m.

While the Rams will try to give an anticipated crowd of 55,000 a good final show, the Packers will be playing this one for keeps. The current Long Beach tourists have gone through a total of 20 games this year, and won 19 . . . and yet, a loss today could be the ruination of the entire campaign.

WYNN'S WINNER
Packers 35, Rams 17

For if Green Bay should lose and the Detroit Lions beat the Chicago Bears, it would throw the NFL Western Division into a deadlock and force a playoff game. And you remember what happened to the Packers the last time they encountered Detroit!

* * * *

BUT SPECULATIONS of a Ram upset today borders on fantasy. The savage young men of coach Vince Lombardi trounced the Rams, 41-10, in Milwaukee two weeks ago and are favored by 18 points to coast into their third successive division title today.

Still, Ram coach Harland Svare isn't conceding.

"We've had the odds against us all year," he said, "and we're not going to toss in the towel now."

"Player of the year" Taylor will seek to nail down league titles in both rushing and scoring. He has a comfortable 216-yard lead in the first category, and is seven points ahead of Lou Michaels in scoring. He needs 210 yards to break Jim Brown's league yardage mark.

* * * *

BASS IS ONLY 45 yards away from becoming the first Ram player to gain 1,000 in a season. In the game at Milwaukee, he outgained Taylor 90 to 71 on two less carries.

Another interesting duel will be between Bart Starr, No. 1 passer in the league who has an amazing 64.0 completion percentage, and rookie Roman Gabriel, who in the last game of the season will be making his Coliseum debut as a starter.

The Rams lineup has several changes.

Linemen Duane Putnam and Joe Carollo and fullbacks Glenn Shaw and Art Perkins are out with injuries. Bass will be at fullback with Jon Arnett returning to left half. Lamar Lundy and Larry Stephens will switch defensive tackle and end positions in an experiment which worked well last week.

Baker's 99-Yard TD Gives OSU 6-0 Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Terry Baker, the Mr. Everything of college football, turned a threatened safety into a 99-yard touchdown run Saturday and it carried the Beavers of Oregon State to a 6-0 victory over underrated Villanova in the fourth annual Liberty Bowl game.

The Beaver all-America quarterback, winner of the Heisman and Maxwell Trophies and UPI college back and player of the year awards, spun his way from his own end zone midway through the first period to go off on his scoring jaunt which gave Oregon State the verdict before 17,048 frost-nipped fans.

Baker pulled the Beavers from a deep, deep hole, set up when Villanova's Larry Glueck touched a booming punt by Dick Sherlock dead on the Oregon State one-foot line.

* * * *

HE CONTINUED wide, outstripping the massed-in Villanova defense to head for the clear. Glueck seemed to have him pinned against the sideline at the 15, but Baker eluded the tackle and went racing behind blockers the length of the field to count.

But, in the nationally televised game played in numbing 25-degree temperatures with players of both teams wearing sneakers, the afternoon was one of frustration for Villanova, including the recall of the tying touchdown by Billy Joe for a holding penalty.

Barely rated among the first 10 teams in the East, and facing one ranked nationally in the top 20, the Wildcats carried the fight to the Pacific Coast eleven, which was a two-touchdown favorite, and almost pulled it from the fire.

* * * *

VILLANOVA outgained Oregon State 309 to 299 overall and outrushed them 246 to 176, with the Westerners' ground total including Baker's 99-yard sprint. Baker, the nation's leader in total offense, completed nine of 21 passes for 123 yards.

Mira Brilliant, but Miami Bows

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Ross ran 92 yards with a kickoff return and scored a second touchdown in the final period Saturday as Nebraska edged Miami 36-34 in a spectacular Gotham Bowl football game despite a dazzling passing show by George Mira, Miami's all-America quarterback.

It was a pity that only a small crowd of 6,166, not including the kids in the bleachers, sat in nearly-empty Yankee Stadium to see this gaudy battle of wide open offense.

* * * *

NOBODY stopped anybody. That was about the story of this contest in which both teams scored in each of the four periods. In the end it was a two-point conversion run by Bill (Thunder) Thornton after Ross' second touchdown that proved to be the difference.

When Mira started firing away with his passes in the final minutes, Bob Brown, the Cornhuskers' 6-foot-5, 251-pound guard, intercepted a pass to stamp out the last threat of the Hurricanes with only seconds to play.

Mira, voted the outstanding player in the game, broke a University of Miami record by completing 24 of 46 passes for 321 yards and two touchdowns.

His scoring pitches were a 10-yarder to Ben Rizzo in the first period and a 30-yard bomb to Nick Spinelli in the second.

Dennis Claridge, a junior quarterback so highly esteemed that Green Bay recently drafted him as its No. 3 choice as a "future," did a brilliant job of meshing the Cornhuskers' solid ground game, built around Ross, Thornton and Dennis Stuewe, with his own passes.

The statistics looked like a lopsided Miami victory for the Hurricanes had 34 first downs to 12 for Nebraska and outgained the winners in total offense 502 yards to 296 yards.

The game was tied at 6-6 at the quarter, 20-20 at halftime. Each team held the lead twice before Nebraska went out front to stay with Ross' 1-yard drive over center, completing a 39-yard march in five plays, after 3 minutes, 28 seconds of the final period.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Quarterback Len Dawson of the Dallas Texans, was named Saturday American Football League's official "Player of the Year" in a poll conducted by the Sporting News.

49ers Lose in Mud Bowl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fullback Jim Brown sloshed through the mud for 135 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 13-10 victory over the San Francisco 49ers Saturday.

Ripping off huge chunks of yardage nearly every time he got the ball, Brown scored a touchdown on a five-yard run in the first quarter and scored again in the second stanza on a 12-yard romp.

Despite his great effort, Brown failed to join the 1,000-yard circle when he was thrown for a four-yard loss on the next to last play of the game. He finished the season with 996 yards.

San Francisco scored a touchdown on a 74-yard march the first time it got the ball. The score came when quarterback John Brodie rolled around end from the one.

On the next series of plays Brown carried the ball three times for 21 yards in a 52-yard march before he scored.

Tommy Davis kicked a 14-yard field goal for the 49ers midway in the second period.

San Francisco had a 7-6 lead in the first period because of a missed conversion attempt by Cleveland. Lou Groza was back to kick the point after touchdown, but the ball squirted out of the hands of Ross Fichtner, who was supposed to hold, and Groza picked it up and passed to one of the linemen. The play was ruled dead.

USING HIS HEAD

Head blocks, as thrown by Dave Phillips of Washington against Spencer Puls of Kansas State, may be controversial subject at January meeting of football rules committee.

GORING MANNER?

Head-Blocking Stirs Controversy

SEATTLE (AP) — To hit a man in the chest with your forehead deliberately may sound like courtship with disaster. Football linemen at University of Washington consider it a way of life.

This forehead-block or head-block may be a controversial subject at football committee rules meetings at Los Angeles, Jan. 12-14.

Coach Jim Owens, if the matter comes up, will defend the style of blocking that helped his Washington teams post two Rose Bowl victories and win 30 and tie three of its 40 scheduled games in the past four years.

* * * *

HERBERT O. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan, chairman of the NCAA football rules committee, said recently he expected the group to rule out blocking with the head or require a change in headgear.

"Many coaches have players using their heads in a spearing or goring manner," Crisler said, adding there have been reports of an increasing number of head injuries.

"It is widely taught," Owens said Saturday, "and probably all coaches do not teach it in the same way. Our sole object at Washington is to obtain blocking efficiency and there is no spearing or goring.

"I cannot recall a single instance of a player being hurt, even enough to necessitate a time out, from being blocked in this manner. I have never heard a coach complain about our use of the block.

"It is a technique of teaching and I do not see how our blocking differs much from any other team's. We teach players to aim for the middle of the opponent's chest or his leg—depending upon the type of block desired—keeping his eyes on the target.

"If we tried to teach the shoulder block contact still would be made with the head much of the time. If there is a danger in our system it is to the blocker."

Can USC Repeat as No. 1?

Nobody dreamed USC would wind up the 1962 unbeaten . . . and ranked No. 1 in the nation. The talent was there for a big season, of course, but there were an awful lot of "ifs" standing in the way of such a high finish.

Some consider the Trojans were a bit on the lucky side . . . and that is probably true. Whenever any team wins a championship, there have to be a few lucky "bounces."

Next year, of course, Troy will be favored from the very start to wind up No. 1 again.

The manpower is proven and deep; losses few, and the replacements more than adequate. In fact, winning is a great recruiting factor and the Trojans reportedly will get some outstanding performers from the junior college ranks again next season who will be ready to step into first and second string positions.

Even without further help, the Trojans would still be all right. They lose only four starters and just five more men off the next three units. Tackle Marv Marinovich possibly will be the most serious loss, but help in that position appears coming from the jaysee ranks. Ben Wilson will be gone, but he was a factor only in the final two games. Pete Beathard, Willie Brown and Hal Bedsole will still be the offensive threats.

IT WILL BE A tremendous team. There is no doubt about that. But will the Trojans be able to go through unbeaten again next year and retain the No. 1 rating?

The schedule is representative enough to maintain top ranking—Colorado, Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Washington, Stanford, Oregon State and UCLA. And it is also one that the Trojans could sweep through if they don't suffer a letdown along the way.

COLORADO—Riddled by losses the past year due to recruiting scandals, the Buffs were kicked around pretty good . . . 62-0 by Oklahoma and 57-0 by Missouri. There is no hope of rebuilding in time for next year and it should be a very easy opener for Troy.

OKLAHOMA—Sooners came on strong during past season as their sophomore crop developed. Won Big Eight title and will play Alabama in Orange Bowl. Club figures to be even better next year and will be one of USC's most rugged tests—if not the very toughest.

MICHIGAN STATE—The Spartans, who had a very disappointing season this year after a high pre-season rating, suffer crippling losses. No less than seven seniors have been drafted by the professionals.

NOTRE DAME—Irish turned in disappointing showing for followers against USC after smashing Iowa the week before, 35-14 . . . but 25-0 loss was not as bad as it may seem. Might have been different story in rematch a week later. Trojans got the jump and that was it. Final two touchdowns came late in game as N.D.'s gambles began to backfire. Irish have nine starters, nine second stringers and six more from third unit returning. If they can replace Daryle Lamonica at quarterback, this could be another team that could stop the Trojans next season.

OHIO STATE—Buckeyes also had disappointing season after being a hot favorite for national crown. They lose seven starters, but have 16 back from second and third strings. Key losses are in line, but replacements appear available to take up nearly 90 percent of the slack. Three fine backs returning in quarterback Joe Sparma and halfbacks Paul Warfield and Arnie Chonko. Fullback is question mark, though, and that spot usually is key to Ohio's success.

CALIFORNIA—Bears definitely will be better, but caliber of manpower still very much shy of that at USC. Key to what success Cal may enjoy next year is status of quarterback Craig Morton, who was sensational late in season. Two injuries had baseball scouts in a frenzy and it is reported they may pressure him into signing a bonus contract this spring.

WASHINGTON—Huskies lose seven starters and six second stringers. Only "class" back returning will be Junior Coffey. Club is big questionmark as it now shapes up—before Jim Owens starts bringing in replacements. It seems doubtful he can come up with enough new talent to threaten Trojans even though he'll have home field advantage.

STANFORD — The Indians new coach, whoever he will be, might make some noise next season. Stanford was doormat of Pacific Coast in 1937 and '38 and then Clark Shaughnessy arrived in 1939 and swept to title and Rose Bowl in 1941. Indians have seven starters back plus 30 of next 33 men.

OREGON STATE—Beavers lose exactly half of their first 22 men plus ace quarterback Terry Baker. Thus, it appears that next season will be spent rebuilding.

UCLA — The Bruins can always be depended upon to give the Trojans trouble. They lose six starters including Kermit Alexander and Andy Von Sonn, but have good nucleus of 16 from second and third units. The backfield should be better even though Alexander will be sorely missed. Mike Haffner is due back after being out this year with a knee injury; Warren Jackson will be at fullback; and Carl Jones and Larry Zeno will produce steadier quarterbacking.

Top Fives Head for L.B.

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State joins the rest of the nation in celebrating the holiday basketball spirit next weekend when it hosts the first Long Beach Invitational Tournament at the new L.B. Arena.

The two-day classic will give fans a look at representatives of four of the nation's top cage conferences.

Drake, the pre-tournament favorite, will tangle with Loyola of Los Angeles in Friday's opener at 7 p.m. while L. B. State battles Oklahoma State, perennial power from Stillwater, in the 9 o'clock nightcap.

Drake is from the Missouri Valley, which had four of its members, including two-time NCAA champion Cincinnati, in the nation's top 20 last year. The once-beaten Bulldogs have turned back William Jewell, Indiana, West Texas and Iowa State this season.

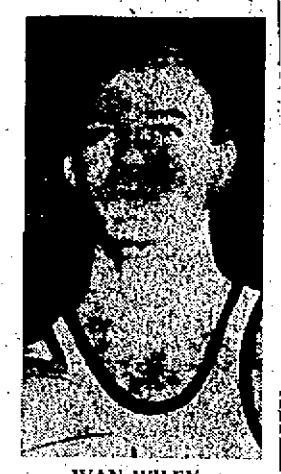

Oklahoma State represents the Big Eight and also comes into the Long Beach classic with an unblemished record. Oklahoma State is well known through the years in NCAA championship circles and is under long-time coaching great Hank Iba. The Cowboys have dumped Hardin-Simmons, Montana, Arkansas and Texas to date.

Drake arrives this afternoon and will be quartered in the Lafayette Hotel. Oklahoma State has games with New Mexico and Texas Western Monday and Wednesday and will arrive here Thursday morning.

Tickets are on sale at nine locations: Chamber of Commerce, Apple Valley Steak House, Proctor's Sporting Goods, Humphrey's Music, Kenny's Sporting Goods, Johns Men's Shop (Los Altos), Music City (Lakewood) and the LBSC athletic office and school bookstore.

Reserved seats are $2.50 and $2 per night and general admission is $1.50. Students and servicemen in uniform may obtain special tickets for $1.

Bentleys Reunite Today When Gulls Test Burbank

By DOUG IVES

There will be a Bentley family reunion today when the Long Beach Gulls battle the Burbank Stars in a California Hockey League matinee game at the Arena.

KTLA, channel 5, will televise the contest beginning at 2:30.

Four Bentleys will be on the ice today, but three of them will be skating for the opposition. Long Beach, of course, is coached by Doug Bentley.

Brother Max is the coach of the Burbank team and his son, Lynn, is the star performer. Nephew Bev will be the starting goalie. He was the No. 1 net-tender with the San Francisco Seals of the WHL last year.

At stake will be the CHL lead as Burbank currently holds a two-point bulge. The Stars have a 3-0-1 record as compared to 2-0-1 for the Gulls.

With both squads featuring young and rather inexperienced players, more fireworks appear likely. In the Gulls' home opener Friday against Bakersfield, there were no less than three fights and 16 penalties.

JONES KOs FOLLEY IN 7

The knockout came suddenly as Folley was leading going into the seventh round. The fifth ranking heavyweight contender had floored Jones with a left and right in the first round and seemed on his way to his second victory over Jones and his tenth in a row.

Italy's Loi Regains Title From Perkins

It was their third meeting and evened the series for the 140-pound division title. They drew in their first fight in Milan Oct. 21, 1961.

After losing the crown to Perkins three months ago, Loi said at first he was through with the junior welterweights because he found it too difficult to make the weight limit. He said then he intended to campaign only as a welterweight and defend his European welterweight 147 pounds crown.

Hunters, Look South to Catalina

As incredible as it might seem, the best quail hunting in California is within an hour from Long Beach, but to get there you have to drive to Long Beach Airport, board a Catlina Channel Airways plane, fly to Catalina Island's Isthmus, climb into a four-wheel-drive station wagon and start shooting a mile from where you landed.

Photographer Chuck Sundquist and I did just that last week, going over one day and returning the next. A limit of California Valley quail was no chore except to use some rather flabby leg muscles climbing Catalina's hilly and rugged terrain.

We could have had several limits of bird except that the Department of Fish and Game frowns upon more than one limit each in possession.

Had we stayed several days, we could have shipped two limits each and still have brought back one each. And, in case a hunter wants to try for a prize trophy goat, or a wild boar, he has an excellent opportunity of getting both.

In fact, Flavio Bisignano, 2137 W. 183rd St., Torrance, who owns the Flavio Beauty College in Torrance, had done just that. He had preceded us to the Isthmus by several days and already had killed six boars and one big billy.

HUNTING ON CATALINA ISLAND calls for more than just a mere flight across the channel and a hurried ride into the hills. First, you must have a state hunting license, then a permit from the Santa Catalina Island Company.

You can not rent a U-drive car and do your shooting. You must go with a licensed guide and in his vehicle, even though you are gunning only for quail.

Harbor View Inn at the Isthmus—in the summer it is used as the Cataline Island Girls' Camp—is your hunting-lodge headquarters while shooting on Catalina. It's possible to land at Avalon and go by car to the Isthmus, but it's far more convenient to fly directly into the Isthmus. Catalina Channel Airways provides that service from our own airport and then picks you up on a flag-stop arrangement.

Fred Kindel, Catalina's game manager since August, meets you as the amphibious CCA goose "walks" ashore and deposits you in a matter of minutes. In our case, we got a brief look at the hunting lodge, then drove on around two or three bends in the road.

We found our first covey of quail within sight of the famed Isthmus, jumped from the station wagon and started a chase that led up and down hills through patches of cacti, toyon bushes, manzanita, scrub oak, sugar and lemonade berry bushes. That might sound like a soft drink but, all in all, the scramble through such brush can be rough.

A LIMIT WAS a quick cinch for rugged Fred, who has spent many years climbing Idaho's great mountains hunting everything that state has to offer. For Chuck and me, the story was different. Chuck was armed primarily with cameras, I with my trusty 20-gauge Savage pump.

To get a limit of quail on Catalina, one has to shoot twice that many birds because the quail fall and disappear in cacti and sugar-bush thickets and not even a dog can get 'em out.

When we returned to the lodge—and Isthmus visitors might recognize it if I called it Banning House—we found Flavio in a terrific state of excitement. While hunting quail, he had run into perhaps the largest boar seen on Catalina for years. He had only a handgun, .44 Magnum, and he let old grandpa boar have it with that before gramps got to him.

It was the sixth boar in nine days for Flavio, as exhuberant an Italian as I have ever seen. A man in his thirties, Flavio sports a handlebar mustache and certainly doesn't look like the operator of a beauty college.

Chuck and I then met three guides, Gene Wyman, Stan Wells and Ken Meador. Also Fred's attractive wife, Ruth, and their two lively sons, Tim, 8, and Tom, 3.

CATALINA'S QUAIL SEASON, conforming to California's general quail-shooting period, ends Dec. 31, but goats and boars may be taken through March 31. There is a state limit of eight on quail, one boar per day, but no limit on goats. The hills are full of goats and are they wild!

The island has a small population of deer, but there is no open season for those animals. Likewise, there is no season on the 100 head of buffalo that roam the island. One hunter, poaching on the island, killed a buffalo, paid a $500 fine and had to produce an additional sum to replace the animal.

While it might seem easy to land on the island and start hunting without a permit, don't try it. The island is well patrolled by security officers and there are heavy penalties for poaching.

Finally, let me say that hunting on Catalina isn't cheap. When a guide's pay, a vehicle, comfortable sleeping quarters and three wonderful meals per day are considered; a hunter certainly gets dollar-for-dollar value. We had steaks and prime ribs that couldn't be excelled anywhere on the mainland.

For information, write Fred Kindel, Box B-2, Avalon, Calif., or call Avalon 650-J or 650-W.

ANDERSON'S 23 runs tied the JRB ball-carrying record set in 1951 by Pasadena's Al Napoleon and Addison Hawthorne.

The shutout was Columbia Basin's first in 19 games and makes you wonder to whom they've been playing.

With 35 seconds gone in the second period Marteen booted his first field goal to climax a 38-yard drive. Three plays earlier Dunn had sprung into the end zone from the two, but a penalty nullified the touchdown.

With 10:05 left in the half Marteen capped a 40-yard march with his one-yarder, then with six seconds to go he kicked a three-pointer from the 17-yard line to climax a 30-yard drive.

Anderson leaped for a yard with 6:12 left in the game, and Marteen sprinted around right end for the conversion to end the scoring. It was set up after the Dons had been stopped on three tries from the one. Carlyle intercepted Mike Monahan's pass on the Hawk 12 and returned to the five. Marteen rammed to the one, and then Anderson went in.

Runabout King Joins Wilson Regatta Field

Towle, who will drive his champ boat Haf-Gast-Too, won the title this year in the nationals at Guntersville, Ala.

Competition for Towle will come from the likes of Ed Olsen of Garden Grove, Tony Maricich of San Pedro and Carl Dethlefsen of San Rafael among others in the 5-mile SK feature.

Olsen, cigar chewing baker, will drive his hot Cream Puff VIII, Maricich will pilot his Suddenly and Dethlefsen is bringing Honker Too south.

THE SK DIVISION is but one of nine classes of inboard competition in the benefit regatta. All proceeds go to defray Wilson's medical expenses. The popular Long Beach boat racer was critically injured recently in a race at Parker Dam, Ariz.

The benefit is co-sponsored by the Southern California Speedboat Club and J. C. Agajanian.

L.B. Surf Club Sends Powerful Team to Hawaii

The Long Beach Surf Club will send the strongest surfing team in the nation to Hawaii this weekend for the Makaha International Championships.

Heading the Long Beach team are Ilima Kalama and Gudie Wilcke, 1962 men's and women's West Coast champions, and Marge Calhoun, former Makaha International champion and recognized as the greatest woman surfer of all-time.

The Long Beach team will be seen on TV's Wide World of Sports, which will cover the entire event.

STARR BATTLES MASKED CHAMP

Ricki Starr, who tries to do with trickery what others fail to do with force, will get his chance against the heavyweight champion in this week's wrestling attraction at Municipal Auditorium.

Starr will battle The Masked Destroyer Tuesday night on a program that also has the former champ, Edouard Carpentier, in a tag team event.

T. Davis Wins Three NL Batting Categories

The 23-year-old outfielder-third baseman led the league in hitting with a .346 average, drove in the most runs, 153, and collected the most hits, 230.

Davis thus became the first National Leaguer to lead all three of those departments since 1948 when Stan Musial of the Cardinals accomplished the feat.

The only major title Davis failed to capture was the home run championship and that was what cost him the triple crown.

Willie Mays of San Francisco was the league's home run leader with 49. Davis had 27.

Frank Robinson of Cincinnati led the league in runs scored with 134, and hit the most doubles, 51.

L. B. Soccer Club Hosts League Leader

Long Beach Soccer Club, trailing the Pacific League with three wins and six losses, plays host to leading Pico Rivera at Pan American Park today. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Pico Rivera is undefeated in 10 games.

Long Beach manager Herb Rogers still is in need of players and asks candidates to call him at GA 6-2734.

JET DECK WINS--

Belle tried to make a run at him toward the end.

At that, she improved over her finish in last week's trials, when she finished second, 2¾ lengths behind.

After the race, the usual solemn-faced Smith wore a broad grin as he sat astride the tall colt posing for pictures — and who wouldn't smile for 10 per cent.

The winner's share also gave Jet Deck a money-earning record for 2-year-old quarter horses. He now has banked $130,092, beating the great Pokey Bar's $120,697.

And Jet Deck still has one more race to run this year — the $15,000 Kindergarten Stakes next Saturday at Los Alamitos. The winner's share of that one is $8,200.

Hornsby Condition Said Satisfactory

CHICAGO (UPI)—Hall of Fame baseball player Rogers Hornsby suffered a stroke Friday while recuperating from minor eye surgery in Wesley Memorial Hospital, it was learned Saturday.

A hospital spokesman said Hornsby, 66, was in "satisfactory" condition. Hornsby served as a scout for the New York Mets of the National League last season.

Foul Rejected, Switchback Nabs San Mateo 'Cap

SAN MATEO (AP)—Switchback slogged through the mud and became the 2-year-old champion of the current Bay Meadows season by beating Luck O'Lea by a neck Saturday in the $15,000-added San Mateo Handicap.

Jockey Alex Maese on Luck O'Lea lodged a claim of foul against Ray York and Switchback, but the stewards did not allow it.

The winner ran the distance in 1 minute, 47 3-5 seconds and paid $8.80, $4.60 and $4.00.

Free and Easy Parking in New Lincoln Park Garage

SHOPPERS in Downtown Long Beach can now pamper their cars in this sheltered, underground facility. There is no need for them to pay the twenty-five cents per hour parking charge (with a maximum of $1.00 for all day).

Most Downtown merchants give Free Park & Shop stamps. All that is necessary is to ask for them at the time a purchase is made.

One Park & Shop stamp is good for one hour of free parking in Lincoln Park Garage. If an extended shopping session is planned, all the shopper has to do is ask for additional stamps when additional purchases are made, at the same store or at different stores.

That takes care of the "Free" part.

Now for the "Easy" part. All shoppers have to do is drive down the wide, gently curved ramps—one is located just west of the intersection of Pacific Avenue and Broadway, the other just east of the Library, at Pacific Avenue and First Street.

Take a serve-yourself ticket on the way down. Park on the first level if there is room, if not, go down to the lower level.

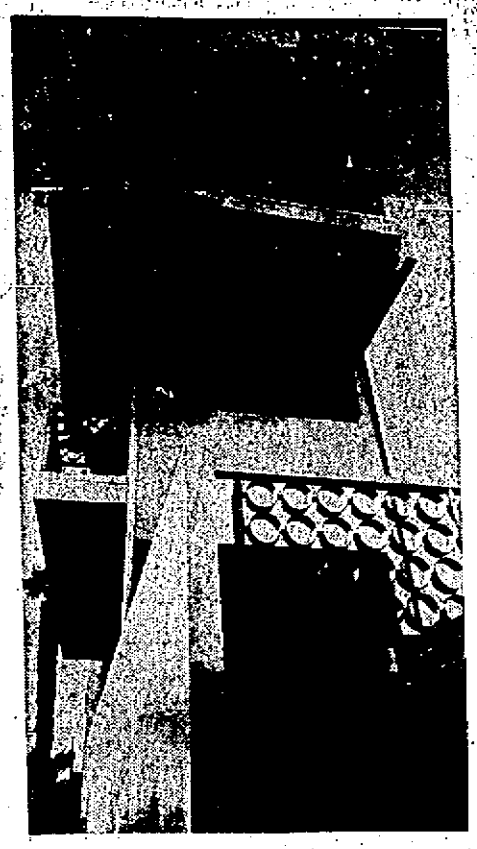

Park your car yourself—nobody but you will be moving it. Lock your car if you wish, then take the handy escalator to the surface.

Shop with the assurance that your car is receiving the finest storage it is possible to get, anywhere.

Free and Easy? You bet it is! Try parking at Lincoln Park Garage next time you are downtown—and make it soon!

BALCONIED APARTMENTS typical of 'new look' on Ocean Boulevard.

PALM TREES LEND TROPICAL TOUCH TO OCEAN BOULEVARD

FLOW OF 'LOCAL CAPITAL' URGED

Ocean Boulevard High Rise Buildup in Sight

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Millions of dollars have been spent the past few years in modernizing apartment houses and in construction of plush new rental units.

Balconied fronts lend a Waikaki touch and offer tenants box seat views midwesterners dream about. Many dwellers of new apartments now tuck their cars away in underground garages and ride elevators to their abodes.

MODERN APARTMENT LIVING'S 'DIFFERENT' NOW

Plan Pageantry When L.B. Notes 75th Birthday

When Long Beach has its 75th birthday next year there will be a month-long party, with everybody invited, according to plans now taking shape.

Topping the program is expected to be a "musical spectacular" of pageantry telling the story of this city and Southern California.

* * * *

IT IS HOPED that arrangements can be made for an internationally known entertainer to headline the pageant, in which a thousand or more local residents would participate.

Already, the City Council has approved naming of Harry Buffum, merchant, and A. L. Code, Edison Co. executive, as honorary chairman and general chairman, respectively, of the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Long Beach was incorporated in 1888.

* * * *

COUNCIL ACTION followed recommendations of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce for a month-long celebration. Harry Knusz, Chamber executive vice president, was named secretary of the planning committee, which is currently selecting a general advisory committee.

In addition to the pageant, suggested festivities include:

A history of Long Beach in book form sold to the general public.

Special days recognizing elements in the community spectrum to celebrate the diamond anniversary, including military, church, industry, women, youth, sports and the Port of Long Beach.

A temporary civic mall on Pine Avenue.

"This is an opportunity to focus the nation's attention on Long Beach's assets and activities," a spokesman stated. "And it will serve to unite all community organizations in a common purpose."

* * * *

He is very active in civic and service work and has just been elected president of the Bellflower Community Chest for 1963. She was chairman of the Achievement Book Committee for 1962 which won first place in the state competition for boards of its size and was quarterly chairman of the Weekly Caravan of the board.

While not having been "selling" many years, she has a background in the industry through her connection for several years with the board office.

ing sites are getting scarcer and costlier.

So, it's high rise time in Long Beach. And the future is fantastic, according to expert observers.

These authorities foresee that numerous tall buildings will dot the skyline along Ocean Boulevard between the downtown district and Belmont Shore in not too many years.

Those already started or on the drawing boards include:

600 East Ocean apartment building, 15 stories.

These are only a beginning, a survey indicates.

This does not include other high rise structures being built or planned in other parts of the city. Already on the beach skyline are the Breakers International, Doric Capris and Villa Riviera hotels and the Pacific Coast Club.

* * * *

NO SATURATION point problem is seen. On the contrary, it is noted that more "high rise" will draw higher-income people to Long Beach —already a "Star in the West" for many easterners who yearn for warmer climes.

Population growth of neighboring Orange County also is expected to add to the density of Long Beach, which is the "big city" of the area below Los Angeles.

It is pointed out, too, that high rise will be a natural development as old buildings prove unable to carry the tax burden.

* * * *

LAND VALUES have pushed ever upward, with current going prices in the neighborhood of $1,200 to $1,500 per lineal foot, and depending on size of the parcel.

One source speculates that the increased affluence of Ocean Boulevard high-growth will tend to encourage uplifting of the downtown district, bringing in more "big name" stores.

* * * *

BUT MAJOR handicaps are seen in zoning and traffic conditions; and in lethargy of local money in "getting in" on big projects.

Citizens should "get off the dime," one prominent citizen says, and push for R-5 zoning along the ocean front.

Another commentary deplores the fact that much "outside money" is coming in and "exploiting" Long Beach whereas local money interests —which are abundant—seem slow to seize their opportunities.

* * * *

EMPHASIS also is placed on urgent need for improving downtown traffic conditions to meet future needs. It is noted that this could be a factor in keeping more big stores from locating in the central area. It is observed, too, that the problem already is under study in connection with the plans for the World's Fair here.

* * * *

BUT THE potentials are amazing, says one commentator, disclosing that even now a monied San Francisco group, which had voiced enthusiasm over Long Beach's "natural resources" on a recent visit, is contemplating a big project here.

The trend to high rise on Ocean Boulevard is expected to have great effect on adjoining properties. Highly restricted zoning is urged by some observers in order to maintain fine standards.

Mixed with high rise, it is forecast that garden type apartment projects will find favor along nearby streets.

* * * *

BARRING WAR or unexpected economic snags, general concensus is that the city is on the way up in more ways than high rise. Development of the World's Fair and consequent influx of many thousands of visitors, it is felt, will persuade many people to locate here.

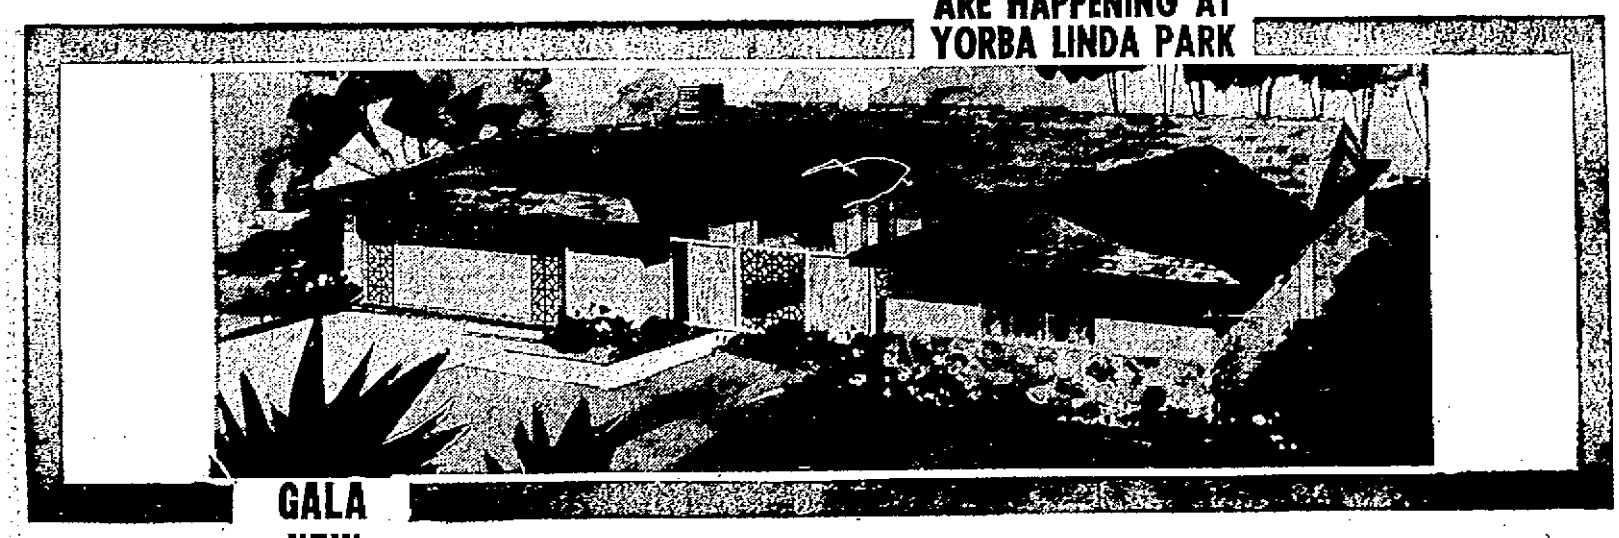

Persons who can afford luxury living. Persons who will patronize stores with fine merchandise. Persons who will help build a greater Long Beach.

Sales Total $1½ Million in November

November sales of homes in the Lakewood-Long Beach areas six regional offices of Walker & Lee, Inc., showed a gross dollar volume of $1,500,000, Art Hancock, a vice president of the firm and manager of the Carson Street-Palo Verde offices, has announced.

"The figure represents a total of 65 resale homes sold," Hancock said.

Other offices and managers contributing to the high volume of November sales are Park Estates and Los Altos, managed by Dave Rams; and Dutch Village and Woodruff Center, managed by Ollie Speraw.

During the last week of the month's sales effort—ending Dec. 2—there were 19 homes sold for a volume of $381,451, Hancock said. Eight of the sales were made by the Carson Street office for a total of $161,000.

Oil Group to Repeat L.B. Meet

Petroleum Production Pioneers, some 300 of whom recently met at the Petroleum Club in Long Beach for the group's 19th annual meeting, have announced they will meet in this city again next year.

Dave Carnahan, reporting on membership, said 261 new members had been added the past year, making a total of 2,306 in PPP.

This growth was attributed largely to establishment of additional luncheon clubs, at Bakersfield and Ventura.

* * * *

PRESENTATION of various awards was a high spot at the dinner session which concluded the meetings.

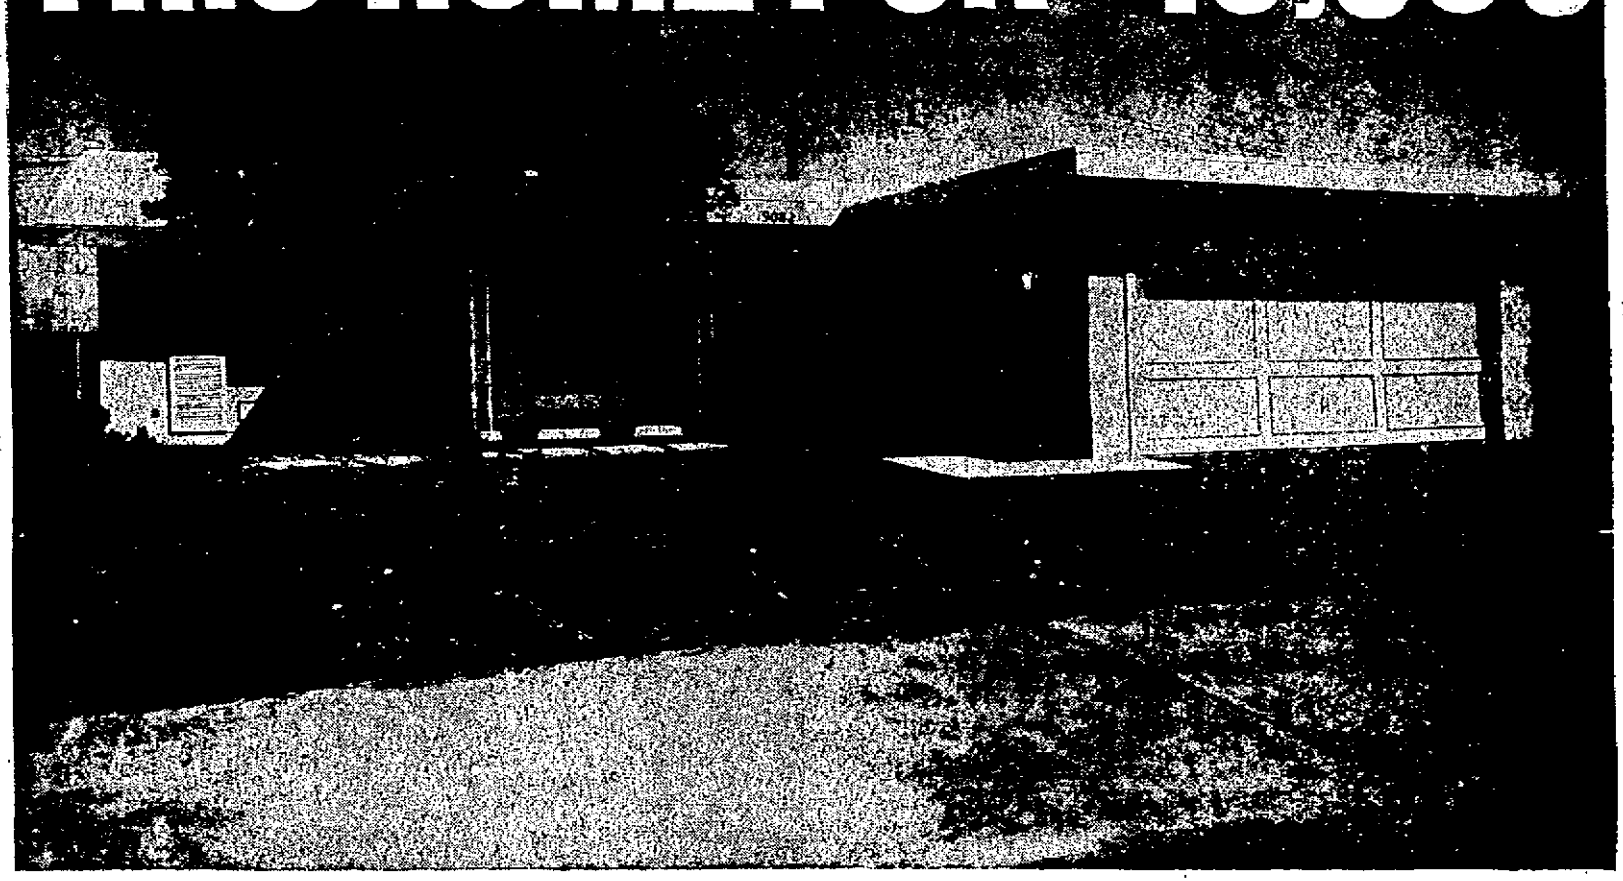

William 'Andy' Anderson, founding chairman of the Long Beach PPP Luncheon Club, was recipient of a plaque, as was Floyd York, the 1961 chairman, for their efforts in organizing and supporting the luncheon club program.

Lending emphasis to the support being given the parent organization by the luncheon clubs, was the presentation of a check for one hundred dollars by Floyd Vaughn, chairman of the Long Beach PPP Luncheon Club, to Hensel as a donation to the PPP Memorial Fund, the second such gift made by that club this year.

Kruz and Watson Get Appointment

Two leaders in the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce have been appointed to the Management Standards Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives, according to Albert C. Boyd, Lansing, Mich., president of the national association.

Named were Harry J. Krusz, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber, and Ron Watson, manager of government affairs for the body.

Boyd said Krusz and Watson had distinguished themselves in the field of Chamber administration and that he was pleased to "call upon their knowledge and experience", in furthering work of the organization.

Purpose of the committee is to study and make recommendations for improving standards of performance of Chamber executives.

Bekins Dividend Increase Voted

An 11% increase in the quarterly dividend from 9 cents to 10 cents per share on Bekins Van & Storage Co.'s common stock has been declared by the Board of Directors payable Feb. 15, 1963, to stockholders on record at the close of business on Feb. 5, 1963.

Daniel P. Bryant, president, announced that the outlook for sales and earnings for the upcoming year appear optimistic, and said it is anticipated that the increase in the quarterly dividend will continue and result in a total yearly dividend of 40 cents per share for 1963 versus 36 cents a share for 1962.

TROPHY FOR REALTOR OF YEAR

James E. Odegard (right) receives Realtor of Year trophy from Max Livoni during Long Beach District Board of Realtors installation program, held recently at Elks Club. Livoni made presentation as 1961 winner. Odegard has served on board of directors and as secretary-treasurer, first vice president and president. He now is vice president of the Apartment House Association and has been a California Real Estate Association director.

Orange County 'Builders' Elect

The 1963 edition of the Orange County Home Show will be first major project for incoming officers of the Orange County Builders' Exchange, to be installed next month at a date still to be announced.

COLOURIS BRADLEY

George Colouris of Newport Beach will become president of the association, succeeding Ray Bradley of Costa Mesa. Other officers include John Backman of Santa Ana, first vice president; G. W. (Bud) Coombs of Garden Grove, second vice president; and Andy Dudics of Anaheim, treasurer.

Colouris said that the home show will be April 3 through 7 at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa. It will be the ninth to be sponsored by the builders' association.

Chairmen to plan the show and handle other details of the exposition will be named soon, the president-elect said.

Starts Work on Addition

COSTA MESA — Servonic Instruments, Inc. has started construction of a major building addition—a 10,000 square foot facility to house Research and Development, Prototype Production and the Environmental Test Laboratory.

Scheduled for completion on or about the first of March, it will bring the total company plant area to over 35,000 square feet.

This new area represents the first major addition to the company's facilities since it was occupied in late 1960.

P. S. Chase

It will be temperature-controlled with pressurized filtered air to maintain the dust-free atmosphere necessary for the production of sensitive instrumentation.

According to Patrick S. Chase, president of Servonic, this new addition plus its equipment will represent an investment of almost $250,000, making this the most modern facility in the industry.

Servonic Instruments is one of Orange County's fastest growing electronic companies. It was founded in 1952. The products, primarily used in the aerospace industry, convert physical phenomenon such as pressure and motion into electrical signals, and are used on virtually every major U. S. missile and spacecraft.

'ASSOCIATE OF THE YEAR' AWARD MADE

Mrs. Norma Dodge (right) accepts trophy honoring her late husband, Gus Dodge, as Associate of the Year as named by the Long Beach District Board of Realtors. Presentation was made at recent installation dinner at Elks Club by Ellen Levesque (center), award winner last year. Retiring board president James A. Edmonds Jr. hands trophy to Mrs. Dodge. Her husband had been chairman of the Realtor-Associate Committee this year and had been active in board activities. He had been associated with Lou Francis of A-1 Realty.

College Park, Norwalk, OpeningNew Apartments

OPEN HOUSE BRUNCH TODAY
This is the Wilshire, newest in the Garden Park apartments in Norwalk which will be open today with brunch offered. They are at Alondra and Gard in Norwalk.

An open house "brunch," to which the public is invited Sunday, will launch the luxurious new "Wilshire" at 15900 Gard Ave., corner of Alondra, in Norwalk, newest in the elegant Garden Park complex of spacious "balanced power" apartments, according to officials of S&S Construction Co., builders. Owners are the Shapell Brothers and Max Webb.

Theme of the open house is "Start the New Year Right—See 'The Wilshire' Today and Move in Tomorrow." From 11:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday, the Gas Co., co-hosts, will serve coffee, sandwiches and other refreshments, and there will be an exciting demonstration of the art of cookery.

* * * *

"THE WILSHIRE" is the third of College Park Apartments' multiple-unit buildings. There is diverse selection of one and two-bedroom apartments keyed to the maximum of privacy and gracious living. Large living rooms open to private patios or balconies, and the lovely deluxe wall-to-wall carpeting or rubber padding and the beautiful draperies are included in every apartment.

Examples of the "balanced power" concept where gas and electricity each does the job it performs most efficiently and economically, the kitchens are equipped with built-in gas wall oven and range and built-in fully automatic electric dishwasher plus refrigerator, the spokesman said.

* * * *

WITH THE draperies and carpeting furnished, and the host of attracive appointments, apartments in "The Wilshire" are ready for occupancy. They are now leasing from $110 a month.

There are a select few apartments available in College Park's "Bel Air" and "Beverly," with monthly rentals from $99.50, and there are both furnished and unfurnished apartments. The "Beverly" welcomes children.

The College Park apartment complex is, the spokesman said, "a way of life", offering three heated pools, a playground, and a luxuriously appointed recreation room.

There is ample covered parking, with individual storage lockers in the parking area, and the laundry facilities are excellent. And, Max Webb, one of the principals says, all of this is centered in one of Norwalk's finest and most accessible areas.

College Park Apartments new "Wilshire" is at 15900 Gard Ave. at the corner of Alondra, Norwalk.

New Property Exec Named by Home Savings

ROSS WOOD

Long Beach-Belmont Shore resident Ross M. Wood, veteran real estate and constructive executive, has been named property manager of Home Savings and Loan Association, it has been announced by Kenneth D. Childs, Home president.

Before joining Home, Wood was employed by the Lansdale Construction Co., Downey, for eight years. Previously he served as commercial supervisor for General Telephone Co. in the Downey, Long Beach and Santa Monica offices.

Too Much Work Not Too Good, Businessmen Told

The businessman who puts in long hours, makes frequent business trips, takes home his work, and plays golf with customers may think he's doing his firm a favor. But he may very well be handicapping himself, denying his family, and hurting his company.

So say two industrial psychology specialists in Business Management magazine.

Furthermore, they assert that corporations which encourage this kind of behavior are being rewarded with less efficiency and production from their top managers.

* * * *

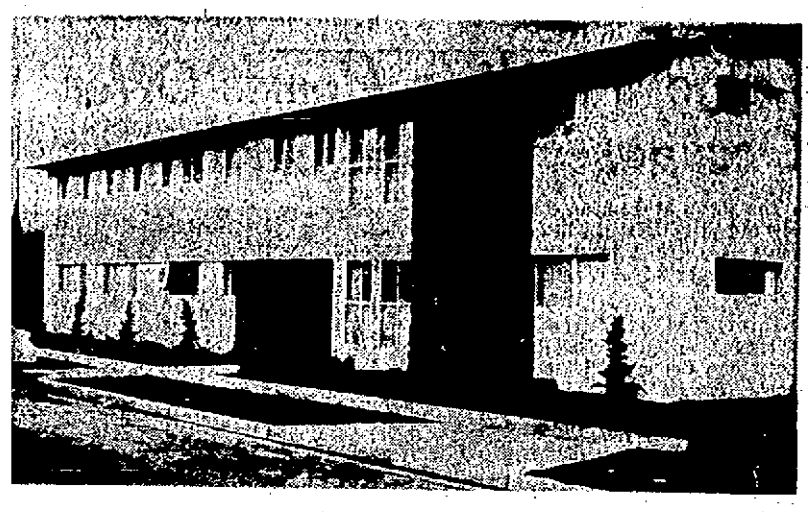

THEIR REASONING — which may strike discordant notes in some corporate circles — is this: The businessman who focuses on work at the expense of all other interests creates both a personality and emotional imbalance because of his constricting range of interests and limited viewpoint.

Also taking an emotional toll are conflicts and guilt feelings on the part of an executive who neglects his family for his work, and receives hostile reactions from his wife and children.

Drs. Srole and McLean suggest a solution. To work at his most productive level—for the good of himself, his family, and his firm—executive should apply some business methodology to his personal life.

"Businessmen spend a lot of time in long-range and short-range planning," notes Dr. McLean. "I say, let's do more of the same for our personal lives."

They agree that he should take a few steps back periodically to take a good look at himself and his goals, and apply the principles of diversification to his private world.

Large Sol Vista Homes Offer Occupancy Before Christmas

This is good news for boat and camper owners who can move into the new "Sportsman's Special" series by Christmas. These homes have a detached garage which faces on an alley to facilitate moving equipment and storing it with ease. A limited number of these plans are available within the Santa Ana development.

* * * *

FUN-LOVING families have bought an average of one home a day in this quality community by Alco-Pacific Construction Co. One of the reasons for the success of the sales program is that these elegant residences are conveniently located near the beach and recreation centers of Orange County and Southern California.

They are loaded with features to insure "easy living" such as Frigidaire range and oven, color coordinated range hood, brick planters, ornamental street lights, Whirlaway disposer, new or used brick fireplace, and Payne forced air heating.

The three and four-bedroom, two-bathroom homes sell for $16,950 to $18,100, with FHA/FA terms available as well as conventional financing.

Prospective home buyers may view the models at the corner of Sail Avenue at Sugar Street, just east of Brookhurst, Santa Ana.

SANTA ANA HOME

Builder Blasts 'Archaic' Codes

CHICAGO—The United States is being pushed toward socialized housing by archaic building codes and inflexible community planning, according to the West Coast's largest home builder.

Lawrence J. Weinberg, president of the Larwin Co., Los Angeles, told a news conference at the National Association of Home Builders convention that the free enterprise builder finds it increasingly difficult to provide low cost housing.

"If the public doesn't take the steps to make low cost housing feasible," Weinberg said, "a tidal wave of public housing projects and the increased taxes to support them are imminent."

Outmoded zoning requirements and inflexible community planning are "discouraging home ownership for a substantial segment of the population," he said.

* * * *

ROBERT C. WEAVER, administrator of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency told the convention the home construction industry is making more money this year because of the Housing Act of 1961.

Weaver said the industry has enjoyed a 16 per cent increase in dollar volume under the Kennedy administration.

Bank Establishes New Data Processing Center

Citizens National Bank has established a new Data Processing Center at 2706 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, which consolidates all electronic equipment and supporting manual operations for the bank's headquarters office and 72 branch offices in the Southern California area.

Location of the modern two-story building, near the major arteries and freeway systems stemming from Los Angeles, makes transportation, deliveries and pickups easily accessible to all branch offices.

The latest equipment in this system is a 1419 Magnetic Character Reader, one of the fastest machines yet offered to the banking industry for the electronic processing of checks. This machine automatically "reads" and sorts checks encoded with magnetic ink characters at speeds up to 1,600 a minute.

Specifically designed for the installation of heavy-duty electronic equipment, the 43,000-square-foot building provides 17,903 square feet of operating space on the ground floor and 17,266 square feet on the second floor.

The basement contains the service areas, boiler room, air-conditioning unit and storage rooms. Parking is provided on the roof.

Citizens, one of the first West Coast banks to utilize electronics, is now in its 73rd year and has total resources of more than $700 million.

Bolsa Park Sales Soar Over $4 Million Mark

ATTRACTIVE LIVING ROOM

The large fireplace adds much to the attraction of this large living room in a Bolsa Park model. The homes have been selling faster than anticipated.

Sales totaling more than $4,000,000 have been reached at Bolsa Park since the opening of the Huntington Beach community's newest unit. "The success of our homes has gone beyond all expectations," stated Ernie Merrill, sales director. "We are now completely sold out of our first two units, and we except to begin delivery on homes in our new unit at the end of this month."

Merrill reported that the Bolsa Park sales' leader is a three-bedroom design with a free standing floor-to-ceiling Palos Verdes stone fireplace. Other plans, including a new one offered for the first time in the recently opened unit, include three, four, and five bedrooms. All homes have two baths.

THE homes offer lath and plaster construction, as well as a lavish use of ceramic tile in ceramic tile kitchen with breakfast bar, full ceramic tile bath with shower over tub, and separate ceramic tile shower with special decorator tiles.

PRICED FROM $20,300 to $23,490, Bolsa Park Homes may be purchased with veterans no-down-payment terms. Available also are FHA 30- and 35-year 5¼ interest terms with $1200 down, Cal-Vet and conventional financing.

Merrill also announced that only 3 homes remain in the previous unit. Two of these were used as model homes and are complete with carpets and drapes, landscaping, sprinklers, and fenced-in yards. Also available is one four-bedroom home with some of these features offered at a special low close-out price.

'COSMIC SPACE' SHOWROOM

Artist's rendering of new Simpson Buick agency shows cosmic-space showroom in foreground. The new 22,894-square-foot facility will be built on a two-acre site at the corner of Firestone and Dolan in Downey. It is the first unit of the $6½ million Downey Exchange Center.

City Must Be Good Place to Live as Well as Work, Planner Says

"If our downtowns are not to become ghost towns, we have to re-inject quality into our cities so that they are good places to live as well as work," says Victor Gruen, a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and a noted city planner.

His remarks about the state of the nation's urban centers, large and small, appear in a study of "Cities and Urban Growth" in the current issue of INCO Magazine, a publication of The International Nickel Company, Inc.

The issue examines the subject of quality in its relation to many aspects of modern living.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH four out of five Americans live in urbanized areas, many of our cities "are languishing in social and cultural life, deteriorating physically and shrinking as far as their economic importance is concerned," Gruen points out.

"The towns themselves are not growing; it is the number of people in them that is expanding. As quantities grow in our urban areas, quality seemingly disintegrates, and the cities now have less to offer more people."

If we want to revitalize our cities, the architect continues, "we must understand that quality is the main criterion of urban life. Quality of environment, of public services, of buildings, of transportation should make the city different from less organized human settlements, from the suburbs and the countryside.

"A city which doesn't offer excellence in all of these loses its raison d'etre and thus will languish and finally cease to exist."

* * * *

QUALITY OF ENVIRONMENT can be achieved, Gruen writes, first through a realization that the city must be a many-purpose place, with diversity and variety, representing the finest in many fields: the best stores, the best hotels, the best restaurants, prestige office buildings, highest types of civic administration, the best theaters and other cultural and recreational facilities.

"If, as so many of our downtown areas tend to do, it winds up being only a place to work," then, in Gruen's words, "it is not a city but just a factory. The city must also have desirable living quarters to attract and hold its own resident population. Only by being a complete expression of all the diverse human interests and activities can the city work."

Low Price Luxury in Garden Park Estates

A GARDEN PARK ESTATE

Peak sales at Garden Park Estates, where a new unit of one and two-story executive-type residences has just opened at Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Freeway, are credited to the quality construction which meets the high standards demanded by today's value-wise home buyer, officials said.

Because "upgrading" is an important requisite to today's knowledgeable home buyer, the quality components incorporated in Garden Park Estates' one and two-story luxury homes is rated a top contributor in the community's sales success, officials said.

Homes in this walled "city-within-a-city" are constructed with lath and plaster walls and ceilings, cast iron tubs, rockwood insulated ceilings, custom-type electrical fixtures, and driveways of concrete. They also have forced-air heating, baths with imported mosaic tile and pullman lavatories.

The new Garden Park Estates unit at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway offers an exciting selection of architect-designed conventional and contemporary residences. Floor plans are flexible and there are one-story models with two bedrooms and convertible den, and three and four bedrooms with dining rooms and family rooms. The beautiful "award-winning" two-story dwellings have five bedrooms and each is highlighted by two lovely fireplaces: one is in the second floor master bedrom, and the other in the spacious living room.

The impressive roster of luxury and convenience features is included in the moderate full prices from $18,250 to $25,600. Garden Park Estates also offers an exceptionally comprehensive range of financing plans. Veterans may purchase on VA loans on terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs with monthly payments from $101.00 including principal and interest, and for "everyone" there is choice of 30 or 35-year FHA loans, Cal-Vet and conventional loans are also available.

FOR LARGE FAMILIES

Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes Units 2 and 3, a residential development by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders, offers floor plans designed to provide maximum living for the larger families.

Yule Party Held

Fence, Landscaping Free Now to Buyer

A free gift of a completely fenced rear yard and front yard landscaped to home buyers of Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, Unit 2, who move in before Christmas has attracted many interested home buyers, according to S. V. Hunsaker Jr., vice president of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders. He further stated that the new 1963 series Unit 3 homes offered with a down payment of $95, plus nominal impounds, has created great buyer acceptance.

Offering the home buyer a widely diverse selection of architectural elevations with all models offering floor plans designed to provide maximum living for the larger families, Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, Units 2 and 3, have three and four bedrooms, two full baths, family room, and large two-car garage.

* * * *

DESIGNED for the active family, the interiors feature wall-to-wall carpet, floor-to-ceiling wardrobe doors, silent forced air heat, all-copper plumbing and ample closet space. The ultra-modern kitchens have built-in range and oven with hood and exhaust fan over range, disposal, Fabricon counter tops, and natural finish cabinets.

Located in one of the fastest-growing areas of Orange County, Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes are only minutes to the Southland's finest beaches, and close to schools, churches and shopping center.

Model homes are open daily for inspection from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. Unit 2 homes may be seen on Golden West and Smeltzer. Unit 3 homes, located adjacent to a park site, are on Heil Avenue between Golden West and Smeltzer.

Homebuyers Receiving Membership in Club

Home buyers now offered the combined advantages of California's coast attractions together with their homes in the distinctive Chestnut Lane suburban community, more convenient than beach cities to major industrial, commercial, and educational centers.

Family membership in the exclusive Laguna Beach Golf and Country Club is included with the purchase of each Chestnut Lane home in Orange.

"The young executive families moving into Chestnut Lane have indicated appreciation of their gift membership in the country club, where they can spend refreshing days, meet compatible couples, and participate in individual and family activities," stated T. E. Gildred, president of Costa Pacifica, builders of Chestnut Lane homes.

Elegantly furnished models may be viewed at South Street and Palo Verde in Lakewood.

Bonus Plans Widely Used

Most large American companies are using bonus plans to reward employes beyond their base salaries, according to a National Industrial Conference Board study just released.

This study — which covers 405 manufacturing firms listed on the New York Stock Exchange — shows that about two-thirds of these companies now give bonuses to some or all of their management personnel.

The report indicates that bonuses are not always intended solely to stimulate performance, as is generally assumed.

Other major reasons are: to attract qualified personnel, to hold talent a company already has, to reduce payroll costs during lean times, and to lighten the tax load by deferring part of the employe's income.

Most bonuses are now paid in cash at the close of the business year, but an increasing number of firms are deferring at least part of the bonus until retirement or until employment ends, especially for top-echelon executives.

Virtually all the plans include company officers, but many do not cover lower levels of management and only one-third include first-line supervisors.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT TORRANCE FOR WALLACE CO.

FOR BUILDING FOUNDATION

'Earth Raft' Used Instead of Caissons

TORRANCE — Construction is under way on a new Torrance warehouse and office building for R. G. Wallace Company, Inc., which utilizes the "Earth Raft" principle.

After soil investigations determined a low bearing, spongy soil, Architects Benton & Park, A.I.A., used this principle to avoid expensive concrete caisson foundations.

* * * *

EXISTING SOIL was excavated to a depth of five feet and hauled away. Then high bearing soil was imported and compacted to a five foot thick high density "raft" upon which the building is supported.

The project, which features brick and tapered steel construction, provides more than 15,500 square feet of warehouse and office space. The building is set back from the street and is fronted by extensive landscaped grounds and parking area.

* * * *

THE DECOR is further enhanced in the executive office suite by sliding glass doors which open to the garden and patio area. Kitchen facilities are planned for use of 40 employes.

The project is located at 18333 South Main St., near the intersection of the San Diego and Harbor freeways.

We're in the Pink From Browning As We Visit Nearby Vacation Spot

By BILL EMERY

Last week end, we were introduced to America's full-size sports car sensation. The car—Oldsmobile's stunning new 1963 Starfire.

Dick Browning of Dick Browning Oldsmobile, 1227 Long Beach Blvd., studied my reaction as I took possession of the glamorous hardtop coupe. Little did he know that I am partially color blind. Little did I know the Starfire was pink.

To my eyes, this adventurous Olds was a silver biege ... a most pleasing color to behold. It was not until I drove into my driveway that I learned the car's true color. I felt better about the whole thing when all agreed ... it was a pleasing color, an epitome of elegance suggesting a sports car of distinction.

The Starfire's 345 h.p. engine is the top performer of the Oldsmobile line. The wheelbase is three inches shorter than the 98 but there is less than 100 pounds difference in weight between the two series. Standard equipment on the Starfire includes Hydra-Matic, power brakes, power steering, bucket seats, power console and tachometer to mention a few on the long list.

Tilt-Away Wheel

One major problem on the trip was getting a turn to drive again after letting my wife take a turn at the wheel. She took possession like the Long Beach Chiefs when they get on that basketball court.

An option offered on all '63 88's, 98's and Starfires with power steering is the new Tilt-Away steering wheel. By operating a small lever on the steering column, the wheel can be set in any one of seven angles or released to high position for ease of getting in and out of the car.

A new sponge-type headliner adds attractiveness to the inside decor and cuts wind and engine noise at high speeds to the very minimum. The '63 Oldsmobiles corner better due to improvements in sway control. For added maneuverability, turning diameter has been reduced almost three feet.

Real Playground

Jack Skirball, Hollywood movie producer who gained notoriety with his 1938 documentary "The Birth of a Baby," envisioned a family vacation village designed for companionship or seclusion, depending on the movement of your mood.

Recreation facilities are more varied than a weekend permits, with the opening of the new Barefoot Bar six weeks ago ... a bomb shelter bar for barefooted swimmers and boaters ... and an 18-hole, par-3 golf course three weeks ago, the village continues to expand with activity.

Three swimming pools are strategically located thruout the family area. The cottages on the beach have private patios and sliding glass door access to the beach.

All rooms have combination tub and shower bath, complimentary coffee maker, refrigerator, morning newspaper, television and direct dial telephone.

After several miles of sightseeing in hilly San Diego and more local miles around Long Beach, a gasoline check showed the Starfire averaged 14.9 mpg. That's economical luxury!

TRAVEL ISLAND BY ROAD OR PATH

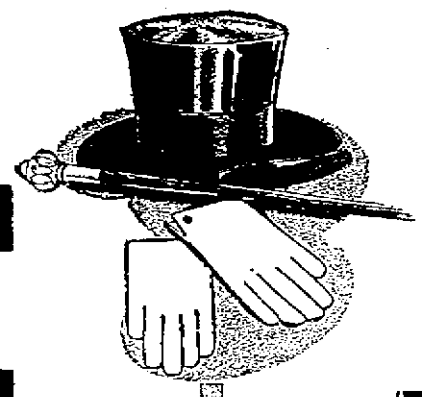

Room service cyclist rolls merrily along the winding trails but yearns for just a little of 1963 Starfire Oldsmobile's power to cross high arched bridge.

MALLARDS PLAY ACROSS ONE OF LAKE'S INLETS

Game fish and birds of all sizes have been introduced to fresh water lagoon. Starfire sports car pauses at arch bridge before crossing to family-size cottage in background.

OPEN SUNDAY

No, Virginia, It Isn't Florida

By MARY ELLIS

SANTA'S SNOWED-IN VILLAGE . . . also at Endriss home. Reindeer huts are plywood covered with foil; snow is fiberglass atwinkle with tiny lights. North Pole (back of Santa's house) revolves on turntable.

Staff photos by Joe Risinger

The cold facts are . . .

Southern Californians don't have to dream of a white Christmas just like the ones they used to know.

Wishing will make it so.

Just ask any one of several self-styled Long Beach snowmakers who have taken the weather into their own hands for the holiday season.

They've found snow in all manner of unlikely places . . . in bottles, boxes and batting; in spray cans, sawdust and styrofoam; in flour, fiberglass and foil.

Some of their attempts have been as unpredictable as Kansas weather, some have been so-so . . . but by trial-and-error methods, many have come up with snow that would buffalo an Eskimo.

He turns his usually sunny abode at 2236 Golden Ave. into a winter wonderland for the Christmas season with fiberglass, plastic sheeting and cotton batting—plus a few dozen other touches.

His snow on the roof is white plastic sheeting anchored down with white rocks. The lawn is covered with four rolls of fiberglass (each 65-feet long, 6 feet wide at $39 per). Shrubs are "drifed" with white cotton batting.

Snowballs are beach balls, painted white and glittered. And the "heavy" in his Christmas display—a 400-pound snowman—is fashioned of two barrels shaped-up with chicken wire, papier mache and covered with 200 pounds of flour!! mixed with water.

In his 24-year "weather" experiment, Fortna has not been without his blow-ups.

Like four years ago when he snowed the roof with cotton batting . . . only to have it blow away in a wind storm.

"There's still some of that 'snow' draped in neighborhood trees and high power lines," he moaned. "That year I wasn't very popular with the neighbors."

COTTON BATTING snow proved unsuccessful, too, for Long Beach's lady Santa Claus, Mrs. Doris Wolfe, 122 Roycroft Ave. . . . unsuccessful, that is, until she made a discovery. . .

"At first cotton blew all the way down to Second Street," she reminisced. "But now I've found a way to keep it on my own home ground."

Her technique: She spreads the lawn with cotton batting, sprinkles it with mica . . . then wets it down thoroughly, three times a day.

"I was afraid water would ruin it," she recounted. "Instead, to my surprise, the water gives it unusual snow-like qualities. The batting becomes lumpy . . . and the mica makes the same sort of hard crust that forms on real snow.

"And after it's been on the lawn three weeks, the grass begins to peep through, just like when snow melts."

Best of all: when you haul the soggy batting off to the trash barrel, the lawn comes out of "cold storage" looking healthier and greener than at any other time of the year.

PERRIN ENDRISS, snowmaker extraordinary at 1860 Faust, finds that the fiberglass covering for his lawn also SHADES OF THE NORTH POLE . . . here achieved by Long Beach's well-known lady Santa Claus, Mrs. Doris Wolfe, 122 Roycroft, who's been handing out gifts to local children for 14 years. Her self-styled snow is cotton batting covered with mica and wet down (three times a day) for anchorage, authenticity. She's "on duty" nightly in her yard from 7 to 10.

GIVING CHEERFUL COLD SHOULDER to his makers, June and Jack Park, this snowman reigns (or snows) supreme in the Parks' front yard, 370 Santa Ana Ave. His hat is weatherproof; his broom, used. Eyes, nose, buttons and smile are Christmas tree ornaments. His covering, a roll of mattress batting; his belt and tie are red fabric. And we've got a secret: his undercover story is on page W-6.

The Wild Waves Say . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

BOYOHboyohboy and ohboy, what a lot of parties. I can't remember a gayer December. Festivities are springing up, like mushrooms, all over town.

"As numerous as . . ."

With a reputation for producing pretty parties, Ola and Don Murphy's open house next Sunday should be one of the real delights of the week. Friends have been bidden to stop by for an egg nog in good cheer from 5 to 9 p.m. They'll have several couples assisting — but don't think there's a one whose name won't appear in other stories as you progress through these lines.

* * * *

ANOTHER large and delightful affair will be Margaret and Marvin Davis' holiday buffet next Friday evening, and that's a known fact, although it's a foregone conclusion, to the about 120 bidden.

Decorations will be in elegant white and gold. Among those assisting will be Doris and Jim Wood, Virginia and Tell Tuffli, Flo and John Brooks, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson of San Marino (Marvin's sister and brother-in-law), Phylis and Dave Alcorn and Maggie and Hal Beckley.

* * * *

READY TO go again? Lillian and Harold Maggart will host another of the week's out-of-this-holiday-world parties, a cocktail buffet on Thursday night from 6 to 9.

A partial list of those assisting reads like Dorothy and Dan Dunlap, Edna and Bill Abrams, Mary and Dr. Ford Kesling, Gladys and Walter Furie and Pauline Simons.

If you're a neighbor of the Maggarts', don't expect parking at your own front door easy to come by that night. Well over 100 invitations (real gay ones, incidentally) were mailed.

* * * *

FOR THE NONCE, let's leave the big, big galas and concentrate on a little one—a warm and folksy one. Four couples will have a progressive holiday dinner Friday for themselves and their children, ranging in age from nine months to nine years (the chillen, not the adults!). Progressing merrily to each others' homes will be Harriet and Reed Williams, Georgeanna and Pat Hamilton, Pat and John Brennan and Ruth and Jack Grisham.

* * * *

SO, MERRY Christmas and away we go again on a really huge holiday open house. This one to be co-hosted by Phyllis and Harlan Miller and Martha and Jack Tyliçki. Brave, wonderful party providers — they've invited 250 to the Tyliciki home for a wassail bowl session from 6 to 9 p.m.

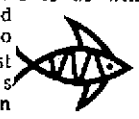

Assisting will be Shirley and "Mott" Peek, Nance and Bill Winston, and Barbara and Martin Paquette. Big hearts, big home, big, merry crowd.

* * * *

A POTPOURRI of lots of favorite people will be brought together by hosts, Coni and "Bud" Townsend, next Friday for a Christmas buffet, 7 to 10 p.m. Party site will be Burton and Polly Chace's spacious home on Country Club Drive. Coni's a smart daughter. Polly always does such wonderful Yule decorations and is such a know-hower about party planning. Besides, Polly and Burt's noses would be out of joint for a month if they didn't get to see the gay, young throng — many of the guests they have known since they were learning their Three R's.

* * * *

TAKING TIME out for a fish story right here. A fish story that has to do with Helen and Jed Welsh, who returned just a few days ago from an extravagantly successful vacation in Puerto Vallarta — almost. That's part of the fish story.

"Fish story"

With friends from Sacramento, they rented a beach cottage nine miles from town and right on the beach. Only way to get to and from town was by a boat provided for them, complete with their own ocean-going chauffeur!

One day going back or forth, whichever the case might be, Helen hooked into a sailfish — a real beaut and the leader broke. Only one poor fish in that crowd. Jed. He had provided the gear.

On the bright side for the "poor fish" is that he subsequently caught a rooster fish which may well be the world's record for medium tackle. It weighed 72 pounds! With the assistance of world famous angler, Art Hall, Jed has sent along to the proper authorities the necessary affidavits, samples of line, etc., needed to record the catch for posterity, if, it is indeed, a new record.

In addition, they flew to Mexico City and Guadalajara and had a ball.

* * * *

"REMEMBER Ellen?"—"What do you hear from Dorothy?"—"How's your brother, Bill?" Questions like these plus answers will hold the conversation tempo to a steady buzz next Sunday at "Baba" Graham's home. It will mark the annual reunion-at-the-holidays for all former Phi Gams. Founded at Poly in 1922, the sorority is now a YWCA sponsored club.

"Baba" wants all alumnae whether they have heard directly from her or not, to feel free to join the teatime fun from 2 to 4 at her home, 3809 Pine Ave.

Thelma Pearsall, one of the founders, is bound to be there. Other well known localites eligible would be such women about town as Georgeanna Hunter, Marguerite McClain, Marian Martin, Doris Secord, "Midy" Masterson, Bea Hart, Dorothy McCook, Pat Van deWater, Laddie Macrate, Lou Lovell, Louise Voigt . . . and on ad infinitum.

Collegians, home for the holidays, expected include Mary Barbee, Karen Browning, Lynn Vignola, Susie Chappell, Diana Wilhoit, Pam Combs, Nancy Elliott, Lori Macrate and Susie Ward.

* * * *

FAR AS I can discover, only Long Beach notable in the very select audience at the Times' Woman of the Year ceremonies Monday was Kay (Mrs. William) Nesbit, a member of "Buff" Chandler's Blue Ribbon committee. President of L.B. Auxiliary to the So. Cal. Symphony Association (it's such a long title you HAVE to abbreviate), Kay said it was very impressive and a real thrill to meet the many prominent winners.

* * * *

MRS. ST. NICKS, at one of the gladest feminine fun fests of the current season, were co-hostesses Byrd Garten and Lillian Irish.

These two provisionals of Assistance League welcomed their old and new-found friends within the group to a brunch at the League House Wednesday. Among sponsors assisting them (remember I'm not naming many complete lists due to duplications this week) were Julia Witz, Helen Reagan, Marion Ritner, Marion Ten Eyck and Kas Barker.

* * * *

STRIDING, verbally, along the suave party path again we come to Dell and Don Berry's happy hours cocktail buffet party of Friday night last. Simply angelic!

"Angelic"

Assisting the hosts greet best-of-friends guests were Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm and "Artie" and Al Stevenson.

* * * *

BEFORE SHE had her suitcase unpacked, Geneva Weiss had pen in hand jotting off invitations to holiday parties. She and Stan returned a little over a week ago from visits in Tennessee (to see her parents at their home in Lebanon) and to New York (lots of shopping and shows) and already, voila!, they have had a cocktail buffet. It was Saturday and included many of their out-of-town friends. They plan to have another an open house, on the 20th to help friends get in training for that date with the 31st!

A MATTER OF TASTE

Tried--But Trite, Not True

By WILLIAM PAHLMANN
Fellow, AIID

The picture window, as its name implies, was originally designed by architects to frame a vista or view. Such windows were intended to be situated so that neither privacy nor the control of light would be a major problem.

However, this concept has been so abused in its adaption to mass-produced housing, or employed in private housing without reference to its original intention, that we have picture windows that have no reason for being.

In new real estate developments, the only view framed by a picture window may be the picture window across the street.

THE CURTAINING of such windows is unusually important. Curtains which traverse or draw across the window are almost necessary to secure privacy and to control light at various times of the day and to cover the large black glass expanse at night.

A lined curtain drawn across the glass expanse of the picture window in the daytime may give a blank look to the exterior of the house. It is better to choose a fabric for such curtains which looks well from the outside as well as the inside.

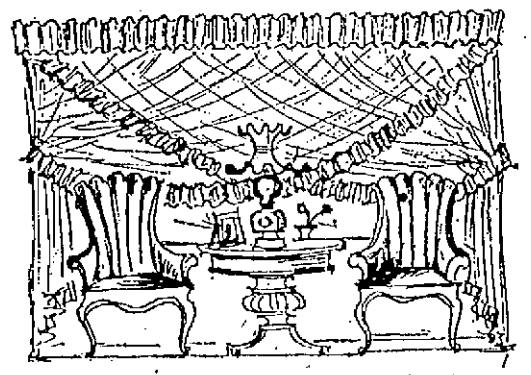

I use glass curtains of semi-sheer fabric, with lined overcurtains that traverse on such windows. Overcurtains go to the floor. The window wall can then be treated as any other wall—furniture placed before it or at angles to it.

* * * *

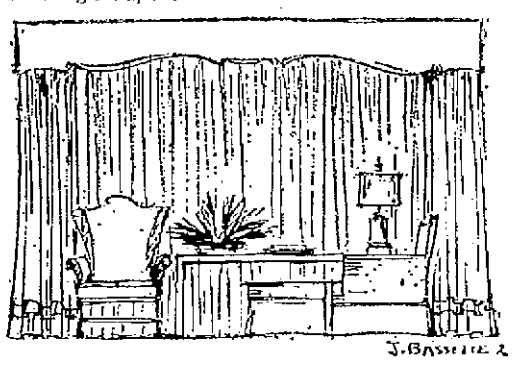

ONE OF THE most depressing aspects of present-day suburban life is the use of the picture window as a set piece—criss-crossed, ruffled curtains which do not allow for privacy or control light in any way, a round table with a lamp directly in its center, flanked by two chairs. This monotonous sight can greet you through miles of streets.

If you have one of these problem windows curtain it so that you have privacy for the activities of the family and so that you will not be blinded by uncontrolled light. To avoid monotony, place a loveseat in front of the window. Put a desk at right angles to it. Try a long rectangular table before the window instead of the ubiquitous round table. If you must use a round table, try a low bowl of greens or flowers on it and don't use twin chairs.

The picture window is neither a shrine nor necessarily the focal point of the room. It is just slightly more difficult than other windows. Treat it so that it becomes part of the room and not something set apart.

TREAT PICTURE windows like other windows for the maximum in comfort, looks and use of space.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Keep Being Responsible

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and am treated like a baby, Abby. My mother says I have to be home by 12 o'clock when I go out on a date, no matter what. If I go to a school dance, and the band plays until 12, I have to leave the dance at 11:30 to be sure I am home on time. Last Saturday night we went to a movie and, Abby, I had to ask my date to leave before the movie ended because of that midnight rule. Please help me make my mother understand how embarrassing her rule is. I have never yet been late coming home.

ABBY

—EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You shouldn't have to leave a dance or a movie before it is over, but if you continue to respect your mother's "rules," she's bound to ease up a bit. I hope so. You seem like a responsible girl.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: We almost came to blows over something I wish you would settle for me once and for all. I have always called my brother's wife my SISTER-IN-LAW. Now they tell me that she is NOT my sister-in-law—she is nothing to me. They say the only sisters-in-law I have are the sisters of my husband! I am going mad trying to figure this out.—EVA

DEAR EVA: Technically, the relatives gained by marriage are "in-laws." Your brother's wife is indeed your sister-in-law.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the solution for decreasing the divorce rate. Marriage licenses should cost $350 and divorces $2. That way people would think plenty before rushing into marriage.

—SUBSCRIBER

DEAR SUBSCRIBER: Perhaps if a marriage license were more expensive people would not be so inclined to rush into what should be a life-long partnership. But why should a divorce be cheap? Perhaps if divorce were even more expensive, folks would try harder to make a go of the marriage.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Am I crazy or are there other people like me? I pusitively go out of my mind when I HEAR someone eating an apple. I can't describe what it does to me, but I feel that I want to jump out of my skin! How can I overcome it? Please don't tell me to see a psychiatrist.—ROSE

DEAR ROSE: An apple a day is supposed to keep the doctor away, so I am not about to send you to one. However, there is no need to torture yourself. When someone starts to crunch an apple—exit.

DEAR ABBY: I think the jerk who invented Mischief Night (Halloween) must have hated his parents. I am the mother of three frustrated children who are not allowed out on Halloween. I fail to see the humor in poor old Mrs. G. down the street with a bad back having to crawl around mopping up squashed pumpkins. Or Mrs. P. across the street, who is pregnant, having to spend hours unrolling toilet paper from her trees and bushes and scoop up smelly garbage from her overturned garbage pail. The children of this nation should thank God that they are living in a country where there are more comforts, more food and more fun than anywhere in the world. I know, for I was raised in a war-torn country.—MAMMA

YOUR HOLIDAY FINERY

In addition to beauty and fashion, you want to know some of the basic facts about any new garments you buy. For example, the new plastic zippers are wonderful — but they do melt when touched by a hot iron. Acetates are beautiful — but they do dissolve when spotted with alcohol. Brilliantly colored garments often run in the first washing and should not be washed with other items.

My advice is to save all of the information tags on new garments — save them and read them. They are most important in maintaining your wardrobe.

Christmas Wrappings
fancy fashion 'furbelows'

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Among the fadiest, fanciest wrappings for the holiday season are fur boas of mink, sable, squirrel or fox.

By any other name—fur ringlets, necklaces, circlets, ruffs or fur fillips—they look just as chic with suits, coats or wool dresses.

A scarf of mink, for instance, can be worn as collar, ascot, muff or hat. Clip it to frame a neckline or create one . . . drape it into a fashionable hat . . . twist it for an unusual cowl collar or set it straight to ring a bateau neckline . . . shape it to collar or scarf your many suits and dresses.

Ranging in price from $25 (squirrel) to $200 (sable), it's the kind of fancy gift wrap every fashionable lady wants for Christmas.

. . . the undercover story

enhances its beauty.

The commercially-made insulation holds in the heat and moisture to give grass a new lease on life, he noted.

Beauty of the fiberglass covering (though expensive): it does not mat or tear, can be washed off, rolled up and used year after year.

Fiberglass on the lawn is anchored securely with staples to underlying wooden planks. And synthetic drifts (fiberglass) on the roof also are stapled to keep the wind from whipping underneath.

"Snow" banked at the entrance twinkles with hundreds of tiny blinking lights.

Endriss has other snow stoppers, too. Like the white-touched evergreen around his windows. It's really last year's blocked Christmas tree, cut up and stored through the year in plastic bags.

BUT WHEN it comes to snow men, king of them all is at the home of June and Jack Park, 370 Santa Ana.

This snow-covered gargantua with the top hat and heart of thistles is eight feet tall and almost as wide.

He's fashioned of huge tumble weeds (snipped from Airplane Hill) and is covered with a roll of mattress batting (it's heavier, lumpy and costs $5).

So proud he almost bursts his buttons (they're Christmas tree baubles), his smile is put on with a string of ornamental beads and his eyes have the twinkle of Christmas tree balls.

Nice thing about him, he won't melt.

Clever these Californians. They can even make weather that doesn't change with the elements!

MR. SNOWMAN keeps smiling as do-it-yourself snowmakers June and Jack Park show his undercover secret. His body and head are made of prickly tumbleweeds, which hold cover of white batting securely.

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Everything is fine with our wedding plans. We expect to have our house finished and our furniture paid for when we move in. He will have his car paid for. What more could anyone want?

Well, he says I must keep my job after we are married. But I think my place should be at home, taking care of it and him and my responsibilities. After all, Molly, that's why I'm marrying him—to be a happy housewife and to be with him. He works seven days a week from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. It's a good-paying job and we can make it without my job. Am I a—SELFISH FIANCEE?

DEAR FIANCEE:

It's not cheaper for two to live than one, but it's smarter for one to work—if it can be done. And it sounds like you have it made if you can bring him round.

Try the taking the "food out of the mouth of another babe" approach. You don't need the job. Someone else does. Promise to keep busy for him. Perhaps a baby-to-be, or night school classes. I think he may be more troubled by your time alone than the money alone.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

An attractive girl from out of the states is dating a campus wolf. He has spread the word that they are doing research in human and social relations.

We really believe she is a respectable girl but is impressed with the cad's money. He says it will buy anything.

We understand she comes from a good family with a professional background and we feel she deserves something much better than this wolf in sheepskin.

Our problem gets closer to home when other boys remind us what is going on and think some of us ought to do research, too. We are here to learn and earn our degrees, but we aren't sold on this course.—JO ANNE

DEAR JO ANNE:

The course has its hazards all right, and there are lots of graduates in unwed homes and ill-famed houses. Co-eds today take the subject lightly, but life invariably downgrades it heavily.

Have a heart to heart talk with the girl on the stand that you're taking. It may surprise her.—M.M.

* * * *

NOTE TO SOUNDS IN THE NIGHT: Your mother, like any woman, has the right to change her mind about the slumber party. Screaming over it is silly. —M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

He's a real dream, all six feet of him, blond hair, blue eyes, quiet but not shy. He's not just another infatuation. He's two years older than we are, but he won't notice any of us. How can we get him to?

—THREE UNNOTICED GIRLS

DEAR UNNOTICED:

Three of you want the same advice? You're joshing, and pulling Molly's leg may be fun; but it isn't very nice to get me in the middle of a four-way huddle like that. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Two men want to marry me. My former husband, and a friend.

My husband and I lived together off and on for seven months. He told me he didn't love me more often than he said he did. Then he told me to leave. He got the divorce and now wants to marry me again. I love him with all my heart and he tells me the same. But how can I be sure?

The other man says he loves me, too, but I don't love him. What shall I do? —J.W.

DEAR J.W.:

Lucky girl. You have a second chance to keep your vows.—M.M.

Exposed by Safety Play

When is a safety play not a safety play? When it guards against one combination of cards but exposes you to a more likely combination.

When South played today's hand he won the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and promptly cashed the ace and king of diamonds in order to discard his other club before the defense could make a club trick. Then he led dummy's jack of spades and the hand collapsed.

West won with the ace and led a club which South had to trump. This put South down to equal trump length with West. Later when West gained the lead with the ace of hearts he forced South to ruff again and South could only make nine tricks.

	NORTH (D) — 15 ♠ J 5 ♥ 10 3 ♦ A K 7 6 2 ♣ A 9 8 6
WEST ♠ A 7 6 3 2 ♥ A 7 ♦ 9 8 3 ♣ Q 7 2		EAST ♠ None ♥ 9 8 6 4 2 ♦ Q J 10 5 ♣ K J 10 3
	SOUTH ♠ K Q 10 9 8 4 ♥ K Q J 5 ♦ 4 ♣ 5 4

North and South vulnerable

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 N.T.	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♣ 2

* * * *

NORTH pointed out that if South had simply led trumps at trick two he would have lost a club trick but made the hand. However, this particular safety play would have cost South the contract if the hearts had broken 6-1 and the spades reasonably and that particular combination was fully as likely as the actual 5-0 spade break.

However, South should have made the hand on his own line of play had he led the five of spades from dummy instead of the jack. He would never lead a second trump and eventually would make his tenth trick by ruffing a heart with the jack of spades.

Doggone It! It Takes Real Bow Wows to Wow Them

By MARY NETH

If you are looking for a stuffed bowwow for Christmas, you're barking up the wrong tree.

Any child would prefer a real Rover.

For, a cuddly canine can perform as well as an automated toy any day.

He'll walk, wet and woof without benefit of wind-up keys or push buttons, and he's friendly and furry, too.

Why, then, the popularity of plush pups with simulated yips and nylon fur?

It's the result of some serious misunderstanding, that's all.

Seems many people—mostly moms—rate dogs a bother.

To combat this anti-pooch attitude and bring dogs out of the dog house (and into human homes), here's a list of puppy ownership advantages.

1. Suffer from insomnia? A puppy will provide friendly company during sleepless nights.

Pups need lots of rest. They cat-nap (excuse the expression) on and off all day. In the evening, they'll snuggle down on a hot water bottle to the ticking of a clock for hours—which usually brings them up to about midnight.

Then, you'll have your company. You can play games, or, if the rest of the family insists on sleeping, go for a ride or sit-it-out in the garage.

2. Do you have children who are careless about putting away things? Don't nag. Leave reforming to the pup.

Here, the rule is everything that's not picked up will be eaten up. Doll house furniture and toy trains make just as good chewing and chomping as do suede goves, feather hats, evening wraps and bone colored shoes. Your little Johnny or Janie will catch on to this quick.

3. Do yesterday's newspapers tend to stack up on your coffee table or back porch? With a pup, you can put them to good use.

They are just the thing for housebreaking. Put a paper down near a door and wait. We guarantee that soon you'll have the best informed dog in town—even if you still have puddles on the floor.

As to that bone of contention, carpet stains, this is a misunderstanding we can clear up right here. They needn't happen. A quick splash of vinegar does the trick—really.

Carry a bottle at all times. One never knows—not even a pup—and you'll find the odor of pickled upholstery does grow on you.

We've listed only a few of the very wonderful advantages to having a puppy in the family. There are others, too. As the pup grows up you won't be annoyed by cats in the back yard or strangers (mailmen, milkmen or meter readers) coming up the front walk.

So, for a real doggy Christmas leave those wind-up facsimiles on the toy store shelf and buy a live one.

This reporter already has. The result: The family has been living a dog's life ever since and my seven-year-old is in seventh heaven.

WHY GROW OLD?

Kitchen Beauty Cabinet Keeps You Always Neat

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How many women have a spot of their very own at home?

Few have a bathroom which is exclusively theirs. Their dressing table may be shared with or raided by a daughter and every bathroom is as crowded as Grand Central station during the early morning rush for work and school.

A spot which is yours alone, no matter how small or how it is or how hectic the rest of the family may become, is a real treat. Have you ever thought that the best solution is a beauty cabinet in the kitchen?

This may sound like a mad idea at first but it really is extremely practical. With a kitchen beauty cabinet you will never greet your family at breakfast without lipstick. You can escape the family rush in the morning and make yourself pretty while the coffee perks and the egg water heats.

* * * *

SUCH A cabinet is wonderful for quick repairs in the midst of work, when the doorbell rings unexpectedly and also when you are entertaining at dinner. While you are getting dessert and coffee ready you can touch up your face without taking time to go elsewhere in the house to do so.

A steel cabinet is probably the best kind to use. It is inexpensive and easy to install.

If you try a kitchen beauty cabinet, don't clutter it up with items you only use once in a while.

* * * *

YOU WILL need:

(1) A mirror which can be attached to the inside of the steel door with adhesive picture hangers.

(2) A couple of lipsticks; one tending toward pink or clear red and the other with some coral, to match whatever you happen to be wearing.

(3) A comb; to flick your hair into place in a hurry.

(4) Powder and a couple of puffs.

(5) An emery board to quickly repair a jagged nail.

(6) Colorless nail polish to temporarily mend a broken nail or catch a run in your stocking the moment it starts.

(7) Cologne, to make you feel fresh and to banish food odors.

(8) Hair spray, to perk up your coiffure after the more strenuous last minute chores are done.

(9) AND, of course, hand lotion, several bottles, to use many times daily.

Jean Norris will play Santa Claus and distribute gifts from her pack during the "no guests" party. She will also play the piano for the singing of carols.

* * * *

PHILANTHROPY committee, headed by Mrs. Russell P. Hill, will accept donations of canned goods for the city-wide Christmas dinner for the less fortunate, an annual event under the auspices of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Don Gillespie, president, will be assisted by members of the executive board as hostess for the brunch. Mrs. E. H. Chase, hospitality chairman, will serve as coordinator. Officers and chairmen include Mmes. Demler, John M. Davis, David MacLeod, Harry L. Wells, Albert C. Ramsey, N. J. Rautenberg, Edward R. Ingle, Dorothy Collins, John A. Graye, Arthur C. Hjelm, Richard P. Glasco, Max E. Nichols, Gilbert Wagner, R. P. Hill, Frederick C. Tebbetts, Scott Gillespie, Thomas J. Norton and Mary M. Lyon.

When it comes to holiday decorating, it's really the little things — those individual little touches — that count.

This year, we again visit one of our favorite places for yule decorations. There you'll find everything from the tree itself to the ornaments to place on it, all selected with the greatest of care.

Under $1

For that odd-size wall that needs a Christmas lift, decorate with white doves. These beautifully fashioned imports from Orient, can be placed in staggered arrangement to balance any size space. With addition of gold tinsel, draped from beak to beak, you'll have complete wall piece at little cost.

* * * *

FOR unusual tree decorations use inexpensive ornaments of paper. You'll find large selection of exquisite baubles to choose from: gold foil birds (four to a pack), fold-out snow balls (all sizes), angles (a number of styles). All can be used in interesting holiday mobiles, too. Imported from Scandinavian countries and Japan.

Under $5

With this sleigh — away you'll go on a decorating binge. From Hong Kong, it's of natural ratan (about eight inches in length) with all curlicues of picture book illustrations. Wonderful for under the tree Santa scenes or sophisticated Christmas centerpiece.

* * * *

JEWEL of a cloth. Shimmering paper cloths in gold, silver, and metallic pink, blue and green add sparkle to Christmas table. Each comes 72 inches long and a yard wide. Useful in many other holiday decorating schemes, too.

Under $7

WOODEN figurines fashioned by old world craftsmen add up to delightfully old fashioned Christmas decor. Included here: tiny creches from Austria and a small angel and piano grouping from Germany. Also, not to be overlooked, minute brightly painted figures from Italy and Switzerland priced 50 cents and up.

* * * *

Window decorating simplified. Simulated stained glass windows of paper do the trick. Easy to put on, they can be removed intact for use next year. Addition of side panels will make colorful scene large enough to cover biggest picture windows.

* * * *

DOWN grows the tree — when it's a hanging one. This mobile is made of three graduating size paper cones. Imported from Japan it's as rakish a tree as you'd ever hope to see. Includes small trunk and gay painted-on ornaments.

Under $10

Light up with a difference. Strings of imported Italian lights almost solve the decorating problem in themselves. Tiny bulbs, fashioned as gay poinsettias, give tree a jeweled appearance. Other strings include small candles which twinkle on and off.

* * * *

WREATHED in pine. Lovely wreath for door made entirely of gilded pine cones, makes stunning ornament for entry way. It is one of many individual custom-made wreaths available at this store.

Conductor Emphasizes the Music of Opera

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — Thomas Scherman, a slender, tireless hunter of forgotten music, has found a new enthusiasm.

It is grand opera — but with a difference. All the familiar trappings of massive scenery and elaborate costume are out. Simplified action and artful lighting are in. The result is intensified performance.

"Without a lot of distracting realism," he explains his purpose, "the music becomes more dramatic."

Scherman's project is being unveiled in a series of four performances at Philharmonic Hall in New York's new Lincoln Center shrine of culture. With a virtually complete ticket sellout in advance assuring the first season's success, he is planning ahead to a cross-country tour next year.

* * * *

THE CONDUCTOR is no road newcomer, for the Little Orchestra Society which he founded 15 years ago travels frequently. Its local and itinerant activities have been somewhat curtailed temporarily while the Concert Opera Association gets going.

The latter actually is an offshoot of the orchestra. In 1950, Scherman tried Gluck's "Orpheo ed Euridice" as a program item.

"I didn't know what I was getting into," he smiles of the enthusiastic public response.

Tenold Peterson's Art Is Mystic and Daring

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The one-man show by Tenold Peterson on view at Atelier 7, 3316 E. Seventh St., until Jan. 5, is a puzzling, challenging one. While Tenold's work in oils, charcoal, graphics, ceramics, and sculpture is in the mode of the present day, his expression is intensely personal.

Tenold is preoccupied with a mystic relationship between indescribable and, oftimes, well-nigh indiscernable forms. It would be valuable to know their significance to the artist himself. To the viewer, they are monumental and angry, reinforced by harsh color, largely black and white.

* * * *

THE CRUCIFORM seems to underlie Tenold's compositions. It is clearly delineated in the graphic "Crucifixion" and again in "Nemesis," a rather lovely, elegant wood structure. It recurs even in small charcoal drawings entitled "Krinkle" and "Krankle."

* * * *

TENOLD gives his works titles which refer to subject matter though the works themselves go way beyond. "Book Burners," a huge oil, does give a sense of self-righteous vigilantes doing their noxious worst. Another oil, "American Gothic," could be a take-off on the classic by Grant Wood.

The scope of media investigated and the daring of his approach indicate that Tenold is embarked on a vast undertaking. He was recognized by inclusion in the La Jolla show this year. This local exhibit is an opportunity for the many art-minded in the community to acquaint themselves with an extremely original and creative body of work.

CLAIRE FALKENSTEIN:

'Artists Must Create'

By ELISE EMERY

Sculptor Claire Falkenstein, who has excited admiration and stirred controversy in the international art world has come from Paris to Long Beach to execute two commissions and arrange for a show at Esther Robles Gallery, Los Angeles.

Now at 25 10th Place in a large room converted into a studio for her use she is surrounded by wire, sheet metal, glass and coils of copper tubing as she creates a suspended fountain for the new home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Buffum.

* * * *

A TALL, slender young woman, Miss Falkenstein works in a bright red peasant blouse, beige wrap-around skirt, brown woolen hose and red tennis shoes. Her softly waved blonde hair is pinned in a French roll, her gray-green eyes are wide and direct, her teeth white and even. Her hands are strong and square. Her chief working tool is an acetylene torch.

In a working day of 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. she paused to discuss her plans and theories.

"When I begin a work, I never start with a preconception. I take myself, my tools and materials and go to the place I am designing for. As you adapt to a new place, the environment contributes something to you, and you sense its mood."

What if an idea for the work doesn't come?

* * * *

"THAT NEVER happens," said Miss Falkenstein firmly. "It is the artist's lot to create. If he cannot, he is in the wrong field."

The fountain she is constructing for the Buffum home will be a 3-foot circular form of welded copper tubing, into which pieces of glowing colored glass are fused. Above this will be a cap of beaten sheet metal. The fountain will be suspended over a basin. Water will fall over the cap and fountain into the basin in perpetual circulation.

"I want the water to come over the fountain in a sheath, not spurting and splashing."

* * * *

IN HER current works, Miss Falkenstein is exploring the "open center" in composition, in which the eye may go into the piece as well as around it.

"We must go beyond the problems of three dimension which occupied artists for centuries, and explore space itself."

Her philosophy is to "touch the eternal with the now, to attach oneself to universal values.

"This attachment can come only through realizing and exploring contemporary attitudes and needs. We can't copy another period; it is useless to try to be any other person than oneself, or to live in any other time."

* * * *

THE UNIVERSAL values, the artist believes, are vitality, ordered expression and communication, and the penetration into the context of cultural and technical developments.

"Our 'open center' in composition is a way of communicating our attitude toward the universe NOW. Euclidean geometry is inadequate as the means of defining our contemporary concept of space."

For her month-long show at the Robles Gallery which will open Jan. 7, Miss Falkenstein brought from Paris part of a chain which she exhibited at the Musee Rodin.

"I decided to exploit open air and to take my commission from the trees.

"The 50-foot chain was made of huge interlocking circles of tubing and was suspended 20 feet above the ground from a cable strung between two enormous trees. I had no idea what would happen when it was hung.

* * * *

"IT WAS astonishing! The chain moved constantly as the trees moved, and the cable alternately tensed and relaxed just as though it were breathing."

After the show, the chain hung for two years by her Paris studio. It was seen there by Esther Robles, who invited the artist to exhibit in her Los Angeles gallery, and also commissioned a new work for the show. About 16 feet of the chain will be hung in the display, which will include some of Miss Falkenstein's gravures as well as pieces of sculpture

When Miss Falkenstein left Long Beach in 1960, she returned to New York for her second show there, then went to Rome to exhibit for the New York Art Foundation, and on to Paris for the show at Musee Rodin. A second show there followed in 1961.

* * * *

NEXT CAME a commission to do the great gates for Peggy Guggenheim's estate in Venice. At 701 San Gregorio, Palazza Venier Dei Leoni, the gates of wrought iron and fused glass are unmistakably the work of Claire Falkenstein.

It was at an exhibit of Falkenstein work in Venice that the Buffums met the sculptor and commissioned her to do the Long Beach fountain. Not until she completed a promised exhibit in Paris was she free to come here.

WHEN SHE completes her work, she will go to New York for an exhibit at the Martha Jackson Gallery, then on to Europe.

"This is 1962," she said, "but I work almost as artists did in the Renaissance. On command, I pick up my tools and materials and go to the spot to work."

'Thailand' Painting at Museum

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

An exhibition of 54 paintings from Thailand, most of them done in the 18th and 19th centuries, opens today at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The works are from the collection of James H. W. Thompson of Bangkok and are one of a series of exhibits on Oriental Art being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution.

The subject matter is primarily religious, for the purpose of the paintings was to inspire the devout. As is typical of Asiatic art, perspective is lacking and the figures and objects are outlined, then filled in with flat color and gold leaf. The paintings are on silk, cotton, paper or wood, with mineral and earth pigments mixed with binders.

The museum will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day. Because no films or concerts are scheduled for Dec. 29 or 27, the museum will not be open on those Thursday evenings.

* * * *

A RECEPTION from 2 to 5 p.m. today will mark the opening of a two-man show at Pacific Coast Club.

Exhibitors are G. Arthur Hopkins, art instructor at West High School in Torrance, and Larry Macaray, art instructor at El Camino College.

Hopkins will show oils, graphics and pastels. He has exhibited in Guadalajara and San Miguel de Allende in Mexico and in several cities in Southern California. His paintings are in collections in Canada, Mexico, Central America and the United States.

Macaray will exhibit oils and collages. He has been represented in the National Veterans Exhibition in Washington, numerous shows in this area and at the Harvey Marlowe Gallery in Hollywood.

This summer Macaray will conduct a six-week tour of Europe. The group will leave July 8 and will visit 12 cities. For further information, write Macaray at El Camino College or at Box 536, Anaheim.

ARTISTS residing within a 125-mile radius of Los Angeles may enter Long Beach State College's fourth annual juried drawing exhibit to be held March 24 to May 1.

Both cash and purchase prizes will be awarded. Deadline for entries will be early in February. The complete prospectus and entry forms will be available after Thursday and may be obtained by writing to Drawing Exhibition, Long Beach State College Art Department, 6101 E. Seventh St., Long Beach 4.

TWO MEMBERS of Artists League of Seal Beach are exhibiting 17 oil paintings in Bay Shore Library auditorium through December. They are Lillian Unruh, who taught for many years in the Long Beach public schools, and May Piatt, graduate of the Artists School in Westport, Conn. Library hours are from noon to 9 p.m.

* * * *

MARIE BUCHER, who currently has an exhibit at Saylor's Art Gallery, 420 E. Fourth St., will leave in January for Paris where she will continue her art studies. She is special exhibits chairman for Long Beach Art Association.

Other association's members having one-man shows are: John Weeks at General Telephone Co., 3925 E. Seventh St.; Elaine Sagerhorn, General Surgical Supply, 1776 Obispo Ave.; Dr. Eugene Wallin at Buffums', Pine and Broadway; Geoffrey Holt, Park Pantry, Anaheim and Long Beach Boulevard; Mary Buhl, Park Pantry, 17511 S. Susanna Road, Compton; and Robert J. Adams, Park Pantry, Katella and Los Alamitos, Rossmoor.

The association's gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. will be closed to the public from Dec. 22 to 29, but will receive entries on Dec. 28 for the January oil painting exhibit.

LONG BEACH artists C. W. Artman and Jack Lowe are represented in "The Southwest: Painting and Sculpture" show in the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, Tex. A three-man jury chose 83 works from 889 entries submitted by artists from Arizona, Southern California, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Thirteen paintings and one sculpture were recommended by the jury for purchase by the Ford Foundation for donation to museum collections. Among these were an oil, "Compote Dish," by Jean Clad of Los Angeles, and a mixed media, "San Pedro Steel Mill," by V. Jaramillo, also of Los Angeles.

* * * *

From the display, 154 pieces were selected to go on a two-year national tour which will start at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City Jan. 25 to March 10. Dr. Youry's small-necked vase, shown last spring at Long Beach Museum of Art, is among those selected for the touring show.

Viola Gains Stature in Hands of William Primrose

By RACHEL MORTON
L-P-T Music Critic

The viola, as a musical instrument, is not the most illustrious among its fellow string members, the violin and cello taking far-out precedence. But when the viola is in the hands of a master like the celebrated violist, William Primrose, the others have to look to their laurels.

Recently this great artist was a guest of honor at a luncheon in the home of two notable Long Beach musicians: Margaret Main, violist, and Lewis Main, violinist. It was a jolly occasion and many a quip and humorous tale flew back and forth among the guests—all well-known musicians.

The strongest characteristic of William Primrose is his contagious, good humor. His blue eyes were full of merriment and the ruddy face bespoke a friendly kindness. Perhaps this disposition is what accounts for his much younger appearance than the 58 years he acknowledged.

* * * *

WILLIAM'S father was a professional violinist in Glasgow, Scotland, where the lad was born. He early showed marked musical talent and was sent to London for study.

"But I wanted the best instruction available," he said, "so I went to Brussels where for two years I studied with that great violinist, Ysaye."

Primrose is not quite sure in his mind whether Ysaye, who loved string quartet playing and needed a viola player to join him, or whether he really believed, as he put it:

"There are many fine violinists, William, but very few excellent viola players. You have just the hands for the instrument and a special aptitude."

* * * *

ANYWAY, from that time on, Primrose concentrated on the viola. Nathan Milstein was also a pupil of Ysaye and played second violin in this informal quartet.

Back in London in 1922 he made his debut under Langdon Ronald, playing Elgar's Concerto. He joined the London String Quartet and played with them in many concerts from 1935 to 1939, using a beautiful Amati viola.

"But now I play on a Guarnarius made in 1694 — an instrument I'd wanted all my life."

Toscanini, under whom Primrose had played on many occasions, casually remarked to him at rehearsal one day:

"How would you like to do the Handel Concerto with me in New York next year?"

* * * *

AND HE MADE his first Atlantic crossing—one of 50 crossings by ship—(now he flies) and played the concerto with the NBC Orchestra in Carnegie Hall.

He remained with Toscanini, playing first viola, until the orchestra was disbanded. Then came the war.

"It was a difficult time;" continued Primrose, "folks would meet me on the street, slap me on the back and ask what I was doing these days. I've quit the orchestra, I would say.

Good, they would reply—you should be doing only solo viola concerts. All very well—but how was I to earn a living when there were no solo engagements?"

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Cooks a Good Deal

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

He'd confuse even the most proficient prognosticator. He's the son of a Baptist minister — majored in geology — and ended up in the automobile business. His eventual fate was probably the result of an accident.

Today's Chef of the Week, James A. Willingham, is co-owner of Boulevard Buick, a partnership which was formed in January 1961, with Charles W. Campbell.

Born in southeast Missouri near Cape Girardeau, his early life, as the son of a minister, was mostly in transit from one pastorate to another. Two years in one state is the longest he can boast. In fact, it took the mileage of four states — Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas—to get him through high school.

* * * *

LATE IN World War II he was exposed to the Marine Air Corps, and two years later, at the government's convenience, was honorably discharged.

Returning to the States, he entered the University of Missouri on a football scholarship. A broken leg and bad knee injury during a football game in the fall of his junior year, ended that chapter of his life.

Good things, however, lay ahead of him. Mary Durkee, a Long Beach girl and a student at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., whom he had been dating, graduated and returned to her home. What better place was there in which to recuperate than on the beach at Long Beach!

He recovered, they were married and the automobile business was the field they chose.

James A. Willingham

Completing an apprenticeship with Studebaker, Pontiac and Buick agencies, he decided to really bone-up on the finance end of the business. They mastered, the present partnership was formed. In October 1961, they took on the Jaguar franchise, also.

PRESIDENT of the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association, Willingham also serves on the state board of Motor Car Dealers. He is deeply involved as chairman of the distinguished salesman award committee of Sales & Marketing Executives, and as member of the Major Gifts Division, Community Chest.

A charter member of the 49'ers Club, Long Beach State College, he belongs to the Century Club, the Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce. He's also active in alumni activities of Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Our "chef" is the proud father of Scott, 11, Melinda, 9, Brent, 5; and "Little Susie" (they hope), will join them in 1963.

He loves to hunt, both big and little game, and shoots to a 13 golf handicap. With a barbecue set-up par excellence, quite naturally, his recipe is for barbecue sauce.

BARBECUE SAUCE A LA BOULEVARD

- 1 cup chili sauce
- ½ cup wine vinegar
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- 1 small onion, grated
- 4 tblsp. brown sugar
- 1 tblsp. paprika
- Dash cayenne
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire
- ½ lemon—juice and grated rind

Blend ingredients in sauce pan and heat to simmering. Simmer 15 minutes. Do not boil. Baste meat ever 10-15 minutes with sauce.

Plan Cheer for Veterans on Dec. 25

On Dec. 25, the 10 chapters of B'nai B'rith Women's Harbor Council will give a tea for men and women at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital who are unable to return to their homes for the holidays.

Tuesday, the council staged a gala variety show in the hospital auditorium. After the entertainment, the women served refreshments and distributed 300 gifts to patients.

B'NAI B'RITH Women have been dedicated to service to disabled war veterans since the end of World War II when they adopted the slogan, "We'll never forget." In addition to the annual parties, chapters sponsor monthly entertainment at the Veterans Hospital on a year-round basis.

Mrs. Sidney A. Hartmann is veterans chairman for the Harbor Council.

White pigeons, rather than the famed swallows, adorn the adobe walls and fountains of Mission San Juan Capistrano at this time of the year. But perhaps to be more permanently engraved on the mind than the birds of a season is the sight of the bell wall as seen through the garden on its north side. It is always there, and through both its own perseverance and the efforts of preservation by others it is likely to afford a memento through another 187 years of European man's arrival in California. Cameraman Roger Coar's talented lens looked through bougainvillaea blooming on the garden wall for this touch of Christmas color. More about Mission Capistrano at Christmastime on Page 7.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What is the difference between an oratorio and a cantata? K. C.

A. An oratorio is a musical composition for chorus and solo voices, with orchestral accompaniment, set to a poem on a religious subject. It may be termed the equivalent of a sacred opera given without scenery, action, or costume. A cantata is also for chorus and solo voices, but may or may not have orchestral accompaniment. The name is sometimes applied to a short oratorio of narrative type, or to a short opera not intended for the theater.

Q. What nation was first to use a divining rod to find hidden things? H.L.

A. The use of a divining rod for locating something hidden is of immemorial antiquity, and most ancient nations used some version of it. In the 1500s, books by two German scientists, Georg Agricola and Sebastian Munster, described the use of a forked twig of hazel or willow (virgula furcata) for locating metal or water beneath the earth's surface. In the 1400s, German prospectors had started to use the "dowsing" rod in trying to locate minerals in the Harz mountains, and its use spread to the mines in England's Cornwall. Later, the dowsing rod came to be used more in the search for water than for metals.

Q. What important mineral deposits are there in the Sahara? E. O.

A. The most spectacular discoveries in the Sahara have been those of coal, oil and gas. The geological configuration of the area and the results of recent exploration indicate the probability of rich mineral deposits of various kinds. There was not even a geological map of the Sahara until the 1950s, and systematic exploration has only lately been undertaken. Among the first discoveries were a lode of manganese estimated at a million tons of ore, a vein of iron ore estimated at two billion tons, a vein of copper with reserves of 500,000 tons of ore. There are indications of the existence of uranium and precious metals.

Q. Does the U. S. Constitution forbid all Americans to hold foreign titles?—P. G.

A. No. The Constitution says (Article I, Section 9): "No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince or foreign State."

Q. Where was the first funeral sermon preached in this country? T. M.

A. In the Colonies, the first sermon over the dead is believed to have been the one preached in 1697 by Pastor Ichabod Wiswall of Duxbury, in burying Jonathan Alden, one of the sons of John Alden. In the early days of the Pilgrims, the corpse was laid away in silence, without prayers of any kind. By 1730 the ceremony of a sermon at the grave had become well established.

Q. What does the federal government do with old records that have no historical value? H. R.

A. The Archivist of the United States is responsible for the appraisal of documents in terms of their value to the government, to scholars and researchers, and other persons. He submits to Congress lists of records which are not worthy of preservation. After Congress approves, these records are destroyed or otherwise disposed of.

P. E. SERVICE IN LONG BEACH TEEN YEARS

The Car That Went to Zapheria

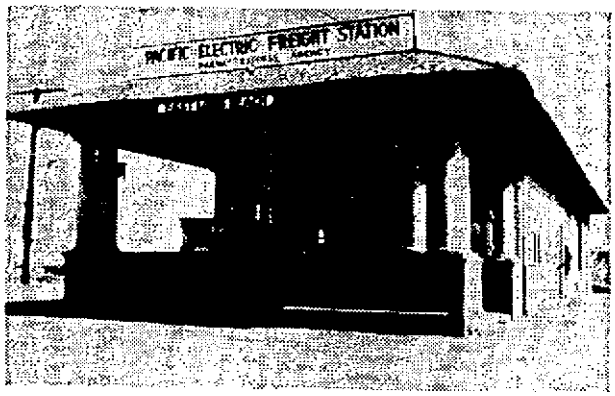

By Mabel V. Hoadley

YOU TAKE the car that goes to Zapheria, but you don't get off at Zapheria. You get off at Serbe Junction."

Two women were planning a day together, and one was telling the other how to reach her home on Orange Avenue. The journey would be made on the red cars which ran from Ocean Boulevard and Pine Avenue by way of East Third Street and Redondo Avenue.

On the outside these cars were bright and shining, and on inside the roomy, restful seats were exactly the right height, with upholstery as good as new. This was in the teen years of the century, for service between old Zapheria and Willows, with stops at Temple, Serbe and Colby Junctions, was not offered in the beginning. Also the name Zapheria was removed from the Pacific Electric station at Obispo and Anaheim and replaced by the name East Long Beach more than 40 years ago.

The Pacific Electric Company had a rail line to Newport Beach, and service between Zapheria and Willows was started by way of that line. Another Pacific Electric line branched from Dominguez Junction to Wilmington and San Pedro. Travel by Pacific Electric between Long Beach and these harbor towns was by way of Dominguez Junction. However, Los Angeles annexed Wilmington and San Pedro in 1909, and shortly thereafter the Pacific Electric Co. announced its intention to build the line which old-timers remember as the Long Beach, Wilmington, San Pedro "short-cut." This line was completed and put into service in June 1910.

East Long Beach, reads the sign, but more than 40 years ago the name was Zapheria on this P. E. station board.

THE RAIL LINE for the red electric passenger cars between Los Angeles and Long Beach was finished July 3, 1902. The next day the first trip, beginning at Sixth and Main streets in Los Angeles and ending at Ocean and Pine in Long Beach, was made. All day long trips between the two cities were made to accommodate the crowds of people who wanted to ride on the new red cars. A great celebration of the event was held in Long Beach, and the story is told that when the last red car left for Los Angeles that night, several hundred visitors who had been having such a good time that the hours sped by unnoticed, were left behind. Long Beach was a small town of 4,000 inhabitants then and was unable to provide shelter for such a host of people, many of whom slept on the beach.

The name of the junction station at Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard (then called American Avenue) was changed to Willowville because a northern California town was named Willows. Sometimes freight intended for the northern town found its way to the Long Beach station. When a junction near Compton was named Willowbrook it seemed advisable to give the station a name which would tie it in with the city in which it was situated, so the name NORTH LONG BEACH was chosen. Everything is comparative, however, and when Long Beach grew rapidly and extended far to the north, the name that seemed so appropriate when it was chosen became illogical. Old-timers went back to calling it "Willows," "Willowville," or "the Willow Street Station."

THE NETWORK of Pacific Electric rail lines served Long Beach and its citizens well. It carried passengers into the very heart of Long Beach, as well as to cities and hamlets to the east, west and southeast. From the beginning it was an important channel of traffic, and for many years the only rail service between Long Beach and the outside world.

Many months ago the Pacific Electric line was abandoned. Only the rails remain. Most of the old red cars have been taken to a junk yard on Terminal Island to be cut up for scrap metal. Even the battered old station near Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard is gone. A wrecking crew made short work of reducing it to dust and rubble. But to many who have lived in Long Beach for 40 or 50 years, memories keep alive the past that lies buried underneath today.

They 'Hypo' the Ocean Floor

By Lou Jobst

SCIENCE is putting the principle of the hypodermic syringe to work in submarine drilling to recover laboratory-perfect bottom samples.

The new type coring device is called a "hypodermic harpoon" by its developer, the ocean systems division of the Lockheed-California Co.

The "hypo" corer is a notable advance over present bit drilling methods in that it can remove a 5-foot long ocean floor specimen without disturbing data on structure, compaction and bearing strength. This has been virtually impossible in the past.

Hypodermic needle principle is called into play for sea floor sampling. Men here ready "needle" for dive.

THE DEVICE, designed by marine geologist A. L. Inderhitzen, a graduate of both USC and Stanford, is currently undergoing tests in off-shore deeps.

By providing scientifically accurate information the corer should be a boon to undersea mining surveys and sampling and testing work for underwater construction including off-shore oil drilling installations, ocean radar towers, bridges, piers and breakwaters.

SCIENTIFICALLY it is expected to collect information needed to unlock geological history of the ocean floors.

The nine-foot long corer is equipped with a stainless steel nose, a piston and expendable plastic barrel, weights and cables.

Weighted to 100 to 300 pounds, depending on the type of ocean floor to be penetrated, the corer is sent plunging to the bottom from a ship or any other structure on the surface.

MECHANICALLY triggered by a small "messenger" device that touches the bottom first, the steel-nose corer is driven into the sediment by its own weight. The piston remains stationary while the plastic barrel gathers in the sample.

Christmas Is Coming Gently to Mission San Juan Capistrano

Mission San Juan Capistrano has an honored place in California's chain of sanctuaries established by the Franciscans, and here Christmas will come gently again as it has over the long years of church history.

By Vera Williams

CHRISTMAS is coming gently—the way Christmas is supposed to come—to the Old Mission at San Juan Capistrano.

As always, the sign at the gate greets you: "Bienvenidos a la Mission San Juan Capistrano de Quanis-Savit, Founded by the Venerable Fray Junipero Serra on November 1, the Feast of All Saints, in the Year of Our Lord 1776 and the 17th Year of the Reign of His Most Catholic Majesty Senor Don Carlos III, King of Spain."

Inside are peace, serenity and the unhurried approach of Christmas. Roses, poinsettias and geraniums are in bloom, and Christmas berries gleam in the green shrubbery.

CLOUDS OF white doves gather as always around the fountain and the pool in the front mission garden. And as always they settle on your head and shoulders and eat from your hands. (There are a few blue ones and you wonder idly who their grandparents were, and what they are doing in the mission garden.)

Bells in the great bell wall or companario ring melodiously, calling the faithful to prayer.

Spanish troubadours stroll through the grounds practicing Christmas music.

Bright-eyed youngsters in the mission school chatter about Las Posadas, the annual Christmas Eve pilgrimage in which children take the part of Mary and Joseph seeking admission to an inn. And they chatter gaily about the pinata, which they will smash with sticks, catching the rain of candy which falls into their hands.

MONSIGNOR Vincent Lloyd-Russell, now in his 12th year as pastor at the mission, and Fathers James Toal and Paul Martin announce Christmas masses from 6 to 11:30 a. m. Confessions will be heard all day before Christmas and until late Christmas Eve.

For the occasion, the altar in Father Serra's Church will be decorated with poinsettias and boughs from the mission gardens.

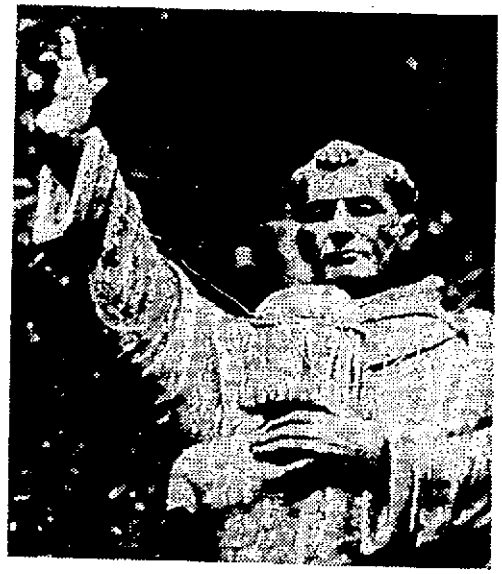

And it IS Father Serra's Church, the only church still standing in which the founder of the Franciscan missions in California officiated—and the oldest building in the state.

Its adobe walls are four feet thick. The structure is long but narrow because when it was built in 1776, only short ceiling beams were available.

Many of the furnishings are originals, older than the church itself. The altar is an early Franciscan baroque of the 17th or 18th century, brought from Barcelona about 1806. The retablo is hand-carved and gold-leafed.

SO FAR AS the public is concerned, Christmas interest in the San Juan Capistrano Mission centers on Las Posadas at 7:30 p. m. Christmas Eve. Children dressed as Mary and Joseph move from door to door of the mission grounds, seeking admission. They are followed by a procession of children in the costumes of shepherds, kings, and wise men—and then musicians and the public, because anyone is welcome to join.

At last the main gate is opened, all surge into the mission grounds past a larger-than-life size Nativity scene, and then on to Father Serra's Church for the benediction.

Fray Junipero Serra founded the mission and this statue of him is erected there.

After that, the youngsters hurry into the gymnasium to hit the pinata, a gaily wrapped basket of goodies. When the pinata breaks, candy pours out and the children scramble for it.

The story of the founding of Mission San Juan Capistrano, in Orange County, 42 miles from Long Beach, is one of the most interesting in California history.

THE FIRST ATTEMPT to found the mission was made Oct. 30, 1775, the octave of the feast of San Juan Capistrano, when mass was celebrated in a shelter of boughs by Father Fermin Francisco de Lasuen. But rejoicing over the happy beginning was halted by the startling news of an Indian attack on the mother mission in San Diego. The small party hastily buried the mission bells and hurried back to San Diego to take refuge in the Presidio.

When peace was assured, Father Serra headed the second founding party which arrived at the spot chosen the year before, found the cross still standing. Digging up the bells and hanging them again from a tree, he recited the service. San Juan Capistrano thus became the seventh mission established in the chain of 21 from San Diego to Sonoma.

In another year, the first little church was built. Father Serra returned to it many times for special services.

In 1796 when the little church was outgrown, work was begun on a new stone church. An expert stoneman from Mexico was put in charge of the construction and he incorporated many unusual features. Designed in the form of a cross, three of its seven domes vaulted the transept and a massive bell tower crowned the main entrance.

HERE STOOD the most magnificent church of all the California missions, 90 feet wide and 180 feet long. It was cathedral-like, yet constructed of local stone, mortared with limestone.

Bells in the companario or bell wall at Capistrano call the faithful to prayer during Christmas season, as they have done for generations. Flowers bloom and peace and serenity reign within the mission walls.

California Christmas ...1846

By Maymie R. Krythe

CHRISTMAS, 1846, the first under American rule, was spent in varying fashion in California. That year was a vital one in the Golden State's history; it was the time of the Bear Flag Revolt and the short-lived California Republic which gave the state its flag. During 1846, Commodore Sloat took over Monterey; both San Diego and Los Angeles gave in to the gringos, and Kit Carson was sent overland to inform President Polk that California was free from Mexican domination.

However, the Californians, angered by Lt. Gillespie's high-handed tactics in Southern California, revolted and the Americans had to go through the process of re-taking Los Angeles, in January 1847. At Christmas time, Americans under Commodore Stockton and Gen. Kearney were marching north from San Diego, while Gen. Fremont and his forces started down from the north to assist in the conquest.

These men were caught in a heavy storm in a difficult pass of the Santa Inez Mountains and spent "what was probably the West's wildest Christmas of that year."

IN HIS DIARY under date of Dec. 25, 1846, Lt. Edwin Bryant wrote of this memorable but unhappy experience. Because of the difficulty of getting the cannon up the slopes, the main body did not reach the summit until noon. When they started down, the storm broke and continued until 2 o'clock the next morning. As the soldiers drove their horses before them, the animals slid down slippery banks; the men had to wade through deep ravines, filled with mud or foaming torrents, where some of the horses were drowned.

That night was unusually dark and the company had to camp on such wet ground that, each time they took a step, men and the animals sank into deep mud. It was impossible to make any campfires as they spread their blankets on the saturated ground; and the officer reported that when he tried to sleep, streams of water ran through the tent and between the bodies of the worn-out soldiers.

Gen. Fremont, in his "Memoirs," left an account of this unhappy experience. Luckily, so he wrote, the next morning the sun came out and the tired forces made their way into Santa Barbara.

THIS SAME holiday season was also a sad one for the ill-fated members of the Donner party, who were snowbound and starving in the Sierra. One man, Peter Breem, wrote in his journal on Dec. 25, 1846.

"Began to snow yesterday, snowed all night; and snows yet rapidly; extremely difficult to find wood; uttered our prayers to God this Christmas Day; the prospect is appalling; but we trust in Him."

On Christmas Eve some of the children recalled the visits that St. Nick had made to their homes, before their families started on that fatal journey across the country. Now these youngsters realized that Santa Claus would not find them "in the pathless depths of snow" in which they were marooned.

One mother, a Mrs. Reed, whose husband was missing, prepared a Christmas breakfast for her children by boiling rawhide. This was called "a pot of glue." However, some time before, she had planned a surprise for the youngsters. When the last ox was killed, she hid the tripe outside the cabin; she also saved a teacupful of beans, a little rice, some dried apples, and a small square of bacon.

If they did manage to live until the holiday, Mrs. Reed wanted to give them a Christmas "feast." When she got this food out of hiding, their "joy and gladness knew no bounds." At their dinner, she cautioned the children to eat slowly; for she knew they faced starvation the following day.

Even though the little family enjoyed the unexpected food, they were saddened by Reed's absence; for they did not know whether he was buried under the snow, or still alive and struggling on to get relief for his snowbound family.

OF THIS SAME Christmas, the Rev. Walter Colton, a Navy chaplain and first American mayor or alcalde of Monterey, has left a detailed account in his book, "The Land of Gold, or Three Years in California."

He was much interested in early California customs, and has given an excellent description of a performance of the old folk play, "Los Pastores" (The Shepherds), at the Mission in Monterey. The theme of the drama is the conflict between right and wrong, with right finally victorious, when El Diablo fails to prevent the shepherds' going to Bethlehem to worship the newborn Christ Child.

Following the church production, the local actors gave the play in various homes, including that of Alcalde Colton. About 50 spectators were present in the hall.

"They brought their own orchestral accompaniment, which consisted entirely of violins and guitars. . . . The dialogue and chant of the shepherds would have awakened their appropriate associations, but for the obtrusions of the hermit, hunter, and devil, who now give much freer scope to their characteristic peculiarities than they did in church."

Rev. Colton did not favor the bits of comedy which the players inserted and declared that they really staged a burlesque. He spoke of seeing the actors on their way on a Sunday to give a performance at the home of Gen. Castro, and said the play was "ill-suited to the sacredness of the Sabbath." He also added:

". . . there is not a truth connected with man's redemption which can derive any force from scenic representation. Every passage in the life of the Redeemer, every act He performed, and every precept He inculcated, are invested with a solemnity, which should exempt them from the attempts of dramatic art. They have a significance and force which transcends the evanescent triumphs of the stage."

Generals Kearney and Fremont and Commodore Stockton left indelible marks on the early history of California and Fremont tells of an unhappy Christmas night spent camping in muck of a pounding storm.

So You Want to Adopt a Baby!

Anglo-Puerto Rican tot is a lively bit of humanity hoping for somebody to love.

By Bob Schmidt

DEPRESSION and World War II have combined to create a unique problem for the nation's adoption agencies.

There aren't enough prospective parents!

Jean Selden, Long Beach district director of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions, explains the problem:

"The birth rate dropped drastically during the 1930s, the depression years, and accelerated greatly during the war years. The result is that there are fewer couples in their 30s—the age when people usually start thinking about adoption—and more in their late teens and early 20s—the age range from which comes the greatest number of adoptable babies."

THE PROBLEM is an uncommon one, Miss Selden points out, because until recently there were so many applications in comparison to the number of babies available that applicants frequently had to wait two or three years before getting their child.

Walter Heath, director of the Los Angeles County agency, points out that only one thing is keeping the problem from being considerably more serious than it already is, and that is the changing attitude toward adoption in this country.

The adoption process begins, usually, with a discouraging report from the family doctor. The couple can't, or shouldn't, have children.

Once, that would have been the end of it. A generation ago, adoptions were comparatively rare. Reasons were many and varied, but sociologists seem to agree that there were four essential factors.

First, couples were reluctant to admit they couldn't have children, and adoption was considered a public admission of the "deficiency."

Second, great importance was placed on family "blood." Heredity was considered to be the key element in the molding of a child's character, with environment not then given the importance it now is. And, of course, one "really didn't know" about the child of unknown parents.

Third, and related to the second, was a rather general belief that children born out of wedlock (then, as now, a major source of adoptable babies) had some sort of moral taint to them.

Fourth, and the reason that adoption agencies themselves have done the most to eliminate, is that there was little legal protection for either the adoptive parent or the child. For despite the fact that the process of adoption was recognized in ancient Roman law, it has only been during the past 100 years or so that legislatures have been paying much attention to it.

There were no adoption laws of any kind in California, for instance, until 1870, and it wasn't until 1923 that legislation was enacted requiring a report on how the child and its new parents were getting along together.

By 1950, 45 of the 48 states had enacted laws requiring an investigation of the prospective parents. It is still possible to get a "quickie" adoption in some states, however, and Miss Selden cited one instance of a couple who took a child to another state, legalized an adoption in a procedure which took all of 15 minutes, then returned to California.

EXPERTS POINT out that loose adoption laws can be harmful to both the child—for example, when couples would adopt a grown child and immediately put it to work—and the parents—as in frequent instances of a couple raising and growing to love a youngster and then losing it via some legal loophole to the natural mother.

There are two general kinds of adoptions. One is the "independent" adoption, which has been the most frequent, and the other is the "agency" adoption, which is probably the more familiar.

An example of an "independent" adoption is the case of a widow or divorcee with children remarrying. Her new husband adopts his wife's children in order for them to carry his name.

With increasing frequency, childless couples are turning to agencies for children. Last year, nearly half of the 3,500 youngsters adopted in Los Angeles County were adopted through the county's one public and six private agencies.

THE OPERATION of the agencies involves a considerable amount of money. When necessary, the agencies assume the cost of the natural mother's lying-in care. The mother is cared for until she is well enough to leave the hospital. The child is cared for in the hospital until it is well enough to leave, and then is placed in a foster home until it is adopted. This stay in a foster home can be of a few weeks duration or a few months, or, possibly, a few years. The expenses are borne by the agency, including, of course, frequent medical checkups.

Meanwhile, possible adoptive parents are being investigated, and this costs money, too. And the family study continues after adoption.

To give you an idea, the oldest of the state's adoption agencies, the Children's Home Society of California, had a budget of $1,353,406 in 1961. Services involving the children, the natural parents, and the adoptive parents cost more than $1 million, with the remainder going for various administrative needs.

First steps in adopting a baby through one of many agencies are a briefing and interview of prospective parents by social worker, as exemplified in this photo. Agencies are finding that there aren't enough parents.

LA REINA RULE WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of TEDESCO—S. H., Harbor City.

S. H.: TEDESCO interprets as "sons of the German." This informative Italian name is from an old imitative word "tedesco," taken by the Italians from the Middle High German word "Tiutsch" meaning "German or Dutch." The Tedesco family ancestor was undoubetedly from Germany, and settled in northern Italy. The Tedesco coat-of-arms, granted at Verona, is a shield having a human forearm in a red sleeve, holding a blue scythe in the hand, on a silver background for the upperhalf. The lower half of the shield is blue with no emblem.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on WEIRICK and WYRICK—I. W., J. L., Long Beach; J. W., Artesia.

I. W., J. L., J. W.: WEIRICK and WYRICK are the result of spelling distortion of the English surname Warwick meaning "fortress of the true one." The English pronunciation of Warwick is "Warrick." In some sections this was further modified to Wyrick and Weirick. This family were natives of Warwickshire, where the famous cities of Coventry and Birmingham are located. The family shield is blue, emblazoned with three rampant silver lions.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on McCAUSLEN.—Mrs. J., Long Beach.

MRS. J.: McCAUSLEN is traced to the Clan MacCaisleain from Tyrone, northern Ireland. This ancient Gaelic name meant "sons of the curly-headed, powerful one." The family shield is gold, emblazoned with a black, rampant lion holding a crooked sword in its right paw.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze NICOLAI.—Mrs. A. N., Garden Grove.

A. N.: NICOLAI is from the Slavic Nikolai, a Polish and Russian baptismal name that became a surname many centuries ago. The ancestor was christened in honor of St. Nicholas, patron saint of old Russia, whose name meant "victorious army." The Nicolai coat-of-arms, granted in medieval Livonia, is a shield colored gold on the upper half, blue on the lower half, with no emblems on it.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you trace WOODRUFF?—C. W., Bellflower; E.B., Lakewood; A. W., Huntington Beach.

C.W., E.B., A.W.: WOODRUFF is from the Middle English phrase "Wode-refe" meaning "forest guardian." Thirteenth century land owner lists include several ancestors, John Woderove of Oxford and Robert Woderove of Huntingdon. A Woodruff was lord mayor of London in 1579. The family shield is red, emblazoned with three black buck deer heads on a silver chevron across the center.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on STEVENSON and STEPHENSON. — B. S., J. H., I. S., Long Beach.

B.S., J.H., I.S.: STEVENSON and STEPHENSON were interchangeable names in the Middle Ages, taken from an English ancestor baptized Stefan meaning "crowned one." Stefan was used in honor of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Old records list Gilbert "son of Stephan" of Lincolnshire in 1273. The Stephenson shield is red, engraved with three green leopard heads on a diagonal silver stripe. The Stevenson shield from Derby, York and Lincoln has the same design.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on SANFORD and SANDFORD. — N. S., Glendale; A. S., S. S., Long Beach.

N. S., A. S., S. S.: SANDFORD and SANFORD, meaning "dweller at the sandy river ford," are old English names. Ancestors include Ralph de Sandford and Richard de Sanford of Oxfordshire, recorded in the late 1200s. Towns named after these families are in Devon, Berkshire and Shropshire. Thomas de Sandford accompanied William the Conqueror in the 11th century Norman subjugation of England. His coat-of-arms was a shield divided in half by a chevron, the upper half black, the lower half ermine, with two gold boar heads across the top. John Sanford was a Massachusetts resident as early as 1650.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give genealogy on OCHOA.—F. O., Long Beach.

F. O.: OCHOA is traced to the Basque provinces of northwestern Spain. In the prehistoric Basque language Ochoa was a baptismal name translated as "little wolf," symbolic of the wolf's proverbial strength. The Ochoa coat-of-arms has a black, gold-bordered stripe across the center of a silver shield. Above the black band is a blue fleur-de-lis; below the band is a green olive branch.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the history on WATERS and WATTERS. — E. J., Long Beach; D. W., Santa Ana.

E. J., D. W.: WATERS and the variation WATTERS are from the early French "Wattier," a form of the given-name Walter meaning "army ruler," a title of prestige. The oldest shield for these families, from about 1377, has three silver swans on a black background.

Extensive use of knotty pine throughout the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Johnson creates an informal, homey theme. Game table (rear) serves for dining and for cards.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

With Emphasis on Knotty Pine

By Stella George

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Terry Johnson took over their home at 3865 Greenbrier Road, they set about erasing evidences of the tract house that it was and creating the atmosphere of a custom-built residence. Today, even the exterior has been given an individual charm.

A low, white fence surrounds the property and a winding walkway leads to the front door. Diamond-paned windows have been installed to give the dwelling a new perspective of the world outside.

The entrance hall, one of the structural changes, provides a clue to the charm of the home itself. A small chest, topped with pitcher and basin, faces the front door and indicates that the decor is Early American. One wall in the hall is fitted with a guest closet. Here a knotty pine motif begins.

Carpeting is brown-beige, an excellent complement to the furnishings. A long brown couch, flanked with fruitwood end tables, faces the fireplace in the living room. At one side of the fireplace are twin wing-backed chairs, upholstered to match the drapes; on the other side are a leather chair and hassock, obviously keyed to the comfort of the man of the house.

Trim, white fence, winding walkway and neat landscaping are exterior signs of well-being; a home that's enjoyed.

Family room, as seen from kitchen, presents this warm scene, a bid to relax and be completely at home.

THE WALL surrounding the fireplace is finished in knotty pine and a small, low cupboard holds extra firewood. This is a fireplace that is used, not merely an ornament.

The dining end of the room is uniquely furnished. The Johnsons like to play cards; therefore, they have a fruitwood game table, heavy, substantial and attractive, placed under an overhead light in the room. This serves the dual purpose of a dining table when needed, but makes the area less formal if furnished with a dining set. Nearby, a low chest topped with a bouquet of flowers hides its other purpose: that of a complete bar when opened up.

The knotty pine kitchen opens to a small family room which has its own used-brick fireplace. Beamed ceilings with attractive wallpaper placed between the beams add to the decor of the room. There is plenty of space in one corner for a round table and heavy, curved, fruitwood chairs. A TV is in one corner, with a small sofa facing. Nearby, a former back porch has been transformed into a three-quarter bath, handy for guests.

Large sliding glass doors open to a surprise area of the home: a large enclosed lanai with a waterfall and fishpond at one end. There is ample room here for dancing and entertainment. Furnishings are casual blue patio pieces.

ONE BEDROOM with a lowered, curved ceiling, is done in maple with twin beds and matching chest. The master bedroom has a canopy bed, and is bright and gay with bright red predominating. The third bedroom has been transformed into a small sewing-TV room.

Still Time to Install Carpeting for the Holidays

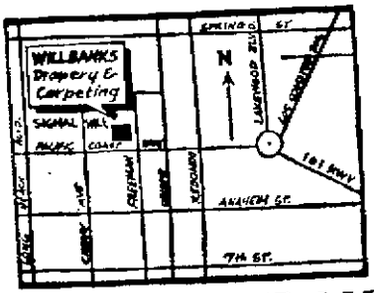

The Willbanks Story

The Willbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark-up in sufficient volume to be profitable.

The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill.

By eliminating high rent and other cost-raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet at less cost.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Detailed plans tell how to build this modern, 3-piece set of couch, glass-top coffee table and armchair.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

WITH JUST a few pieces of wood, a handful of hardware, a pair of foam rubber cushions and an easy-to-follow plans anyone having average ability can build a modern armchair.

Made with arms and legs of redwood, the chair has a light, modern look that belies its strength and durability. To make sure lack of furniture-making experience does not cause trouble, legs are firmly anchored with bolts and metal angle brackets are used to secure the back.

The three-in-one plan also details construction of two other modern pieces: a 72-inch long couch and an attractive coffee table with a drawer section and a glass top.

THE CHAIR has popular low lines. Arms are only 17 inches high, and without cushion — seat is only 7¾ inches off the floor. Removable seat and back cushions are 20 inches square.

Couch stands 11½ inches high without cushion. The coffee table is 40 inches long, by 22 inches deep. Both couch and table employ ready-made legs which are purchased with brackets that make mounting legs easy.

Handy Space Saver

One of the handiest space-savers you ever saw is this back-of-the-door shelf installation pictured with NBC actress Jewell Lain. It can go in the broom closet, basement, bathroom, pantry, linen closet or on back of a kitchen door. It will hold household supplies of many kinds, and it's handy in a workshop, too. Building the shelf is easy by using a full-sized pattern with detailed directions. Just trace the pattern on wood, cut and assemble, make it taller, wider, smaller, as desired. To order the Shelf Pattern No. 171, send 50 cents with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Natalie Wood plays Gypsy Rose Lee in Mervyn LeRoy's production of "Gypsy" for Warner Bros., a gaudy adventure into the life and times of America's most celebrated striptease artist. Costars are Rosalind Russell and Karl Malden.

Here Comes Gypsy Now

Natalie Wood has grown up! Long one of Hollywood's most able child performers, she now plays the provocative role as the worldly burlesque queen, Gypsy Rose Lee, in "Gypsy," Warner Bros. smashing motion picture musical to be released around Christmas time. Produced in Technicolor-Technirama, the film is based on the long-run stage show which was one of the most successful musical comedies in recent years. There are 14 song hits by Jule Styne and Stephen Sondheim, among them "Everything's Coming Up Roses" and "Let Me Entertain You."

Rewards Spur Study

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associate

QUESTION: Should you reward a child for good work in school?

ANSWER: Yes, but not with money or gifts. In school, virtue should be its own reward, and when properly recognized, it will be enough.

Human beings and animals, alike, respond to rewards by seeking further rewards.

Chimpanzees learn how to deposit coins in slot machines to get water and food.

A child's necessities of life are furnished as a matter of course. His reward for good school work must be more subtle, something to raise the spirit and nourish the ego—credit, recognition, praise.

Give him honor for work well done. You'll find him striving to earn it again.

QUESTION: Is there such a thing as "overlearning"?

ANSWER: Yes. But "overlearning" does not mean learning in excess. In the educational jargon, "overlearning" means studying a lesson beyond the point where you are able to give a single recitation.

Overlearning is the difference, for example, between learning a word well enough to use it in conversation just once, and learning it so well that it remains in your active vocabulary for the rest of your life.

Overlearning is the difference, very often, between an "A" student and a "C" student.

Homemade Candy: Welcome Gift

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

HOME-MADE candies are a special treat at Christmas time and are always welcome gifts.

Caramels, chocolate fudge and butter almond toffee are candies to make a holiday more enjoyable.

Creamy Caramels

2 cups sugar
Dash of salt
2 cups light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup butter (1 stick)
2 cups half and half or light cream (1 pint)

Combine sugar and corn syrup in large heavy saucepan. Heat to boiling and cook to 245 degrees F., firm ball stage, stirring occasionally. Gradually add butter and cream, so slowly that mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture returns to 245 degrees F. Stirring is important since mixture will scorch easily. Remove from heat; add vanilla and mix well. Pour into buttered 9-inch square baking pan. When cool turn out on waxed paper and cut into ¾ inch squares. Wrap individually in waxed paper. Makes about 2 pounds.

Chocolate Fudge

1¼ cups milk
4 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate
3 cups sugar
2 tblsp. corn syrup
¼ cup butter (½ stick)
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups coarsely chopped nuts

Heat milk and chocolate together in heavy pan over low heat until chocolate melts. Add sugar and corn syrup; stir until sugar dissolves. Wash sugar crystals from sides of pan with damp cloth wrapped around a fork. Cook to 234 degrees F., or soft ball stage, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; add butter and let cool until 110 degrees F. or luke warm, without stirring. Add vanilla and nuts and stir until candy holds its shape and begins to lose its gloss. Pour onto buttered platter or pan. When set cut into squares. Makes about 3 pounds.

Butter Almond Toffee

1 cup chopped roasted unblanched almonds
1 cup butter (½ pound)
1 cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup brown sugar
2 tblsp. water
½ tsp. soda
3 oz. semi-sweet chocolate, bits or bar

Sprinkle half of the almonds on a buttered 9"x13" pan. Melt butter in a heavy pan; add sugars and water; mix well. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking to 300 degrees F. or hard crack stage. Remove from heat; stir in soda; work fast. Pour carefully over almonds in pan; let cool about 5 minutes. Sprinkle chocolate bits or shaved bar chocolate over toffee; (heat of candy will melt chocolate) spread out evenly. Sprinkle rest of nuts over chocolate and press in lightly. Cool. Break into pieces. Makes about 1½ pounds.

PET PARADE

Handful of Yuletide

By Eleanor Avery Price

IT'S ALL very well to select and buy a peppy puppy for Christmas—provided you are willing to love and care for it properly. There may be lots of emergencies that will arrive at any given time, and you will need information to assist you immediately while awaiting veterinarian help. Dogs are like children. They depend on their older humans to keep them safe and well.

So get yourself a "health book." A very good one is First-Aid and Nursing For Your Dog, by F. Andres Edgson, M.R.C.V.S., and Olwen Gwynne-Jones, (Arco, 480 Lexington Ave., N.Y. 17, N.Y. $1.95). First-aid can be harmful unless you are guided, and this book does just that in as comprehensive a way as possible. It also tells you how to care for your dog in a variety of conditions.

While we are on health of your dog, remember that Christmas "snow", tinsel, and similar items can be dangerous to any pet. Do not let them eat such things. Parakeets in particular must be guarded.

WHEN pet-minded for Christmas giving, don't forget that many desirable dogs and cats and sometimes unusual pets are available for adoption at the Animal Shelter, 3001 E. Willow St.; the Humane Society, 2150 Cowles St., and other humane organizations. It is recommended that adopted animals be altered to help prevent the birth of unfortunate creatures that will never have a happy-ever-after.

Dos Passos and WWI Tensions

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

TENSIONS were building, Republicans were accusing the President—a Democrat—of failing to stand up to the aggressors, a Latin revolutionary was harassing the United States in the South.

No. The 19-teens.

It's the era of John Dos Passos' "MR. WILSON'S WAR" (Doubleday, $6.95).

The title is misleading because the 502-page closely-written volume covers more than the two years of United States participation in World War I. It goes back to the turn of the century when the situations at home and abroad began shaping up, ultimately climaxing in the "war to end war."

It's proof that Dos Passos is a first-rate non-fiction as well as fiction writer.

THE DARKEST thing about Africa is American ignorance of the continent, claims Ruth T. Plimpton in "OPERATION CROSSROADS AFRICA" (Viking, $3.95) which describes the workings of the organization which takes American and Canadian undergraduates to Africa in their summer vacations to do useful manual labor in the bush with their African student counterparts. It is considered one of the most successful of the many American experiments in international living. Preface is by Adlai E. Stevenson.

PICASSO, master of modern art, has created many book illustrations. Printed in small editions, most of the books are so rare that few collectors are able to acquire them. For the first time, a comprehensive study of this art is made public, 'PICASSO AS A BOOK ARTIST" by Abraham Horodisch (World, $6.50). Thirty half-tones, 40 line drawings and provocative text make this an art find.

"We are living in a dangerous and splendid age in which the end of a world and the beginning of another are locked in a desperate embrace . . . We have, I am convinced, to look back to the Middle Ages if we wish to find another age as dramatic as the one in which we now are living." These words by Fernand Leger, Norman artist, set the tone for "LEGER," biographical and critical study by Robert L. Delevoy (Skira Art Book, distributed by World, $6.75). It was translated from the French by Stuart Gilbert.

"THROUGHOUT a third of the earth's habitable surface forms of government and law which men practice are based on forms of government and law evolved in England before the discovery of the ocean trade routes and the colonization of North America."

In these words, Sir Arthur Bryant, recently knighted by Queen Elizabeth, describes the influence of England in "MAKERS OF ENGLAND" (Doubleday, $5.95). It is the first of a projected three volumes collectively titled "Atlantic Saga."

"Makers of England" begins 8,000 years ago with the island's first inhabitants —"solitary, shambling, unaspiring, sheltering among the rocks of the Cheddar Gorge or Gower peninsula." Swiftly sketching in the traces of these vanished men, Sir Arthur moves on to the first major invasion of Britain, that of Julius Caesar and his Roman legions.

Describing the unique contributions of each successive invader, Sir Arthur tells of the unceasing wave of migrations that brought the Jutes, Angles, Saxons and finally the Normans to the shores of England. "Makers of England" concludes with the close of the 13th century, by which time a nation recognizable as England had risen.

EVERY MARINE and every former Marine, if there be such a person as a "former" Marine, should own a copy of Robert Leckie's latest book, "STRONG MEN ARMED: The United States Marines Against Japan," (Random House, $7.95).

Here is the story of "the long dark night of Guadalcanal and the short hell of Tarawa," the stories of Bougainville, Saipan, Peleliu, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and all the others.

The men are here, including the principal Japanese officers in each action. The name of every Marine winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor is woven into this excellent narrative.

The fear is here. And the courage. The smells and noises are here; the heat, the fatigue, death and the laughter are here.

A good part of the Japanese side of the story also is here, from the thousands of yellow-skinned men who fought and died in dozens of Pacific Alamos to the last defender of a stronghold on Guam who, untypically, surrendered and told his captors his commanding officer ordered the position defended "to the last man."

THE "NUCLEUS" of our deer herds, from "THE WORLD OF THE WHITE-TAILED DEER" by Leonard Lee Rue III, with photographs by the author (Lippincott, $4.95).

Dwarf Trees Are Space Savers

Dwarf fruit trees provide the answer for growing fruit in limited spaces. The dwarfs are half the size of normal fruit trees, but they produce heavy crops and the fruit is of standard size.

Another solution for small home gardens is the combination fruit tree—a single tree onto which have been budded two or three varieties of fruit. A typical combination tree might bear plums, peaches, and nectarines on the same rootstock, or three different cherry varieties. These trees are of normal size, but the saving in space is obvious when you consider the variety of fruit which one tree can bear.

Antacid Drug Value Stressed

By Ben Zinser
Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

DIETARY restrictions appear to be of little value in the long-term treatment of peptic ulcer, two San Francisco researchers say.

The important thing is antacid drugs, they contend.

Drs. J. Alfred Rider and Hugo C. Moeller conducted a study among 116 patients attending the Gastrointestinal Clinic of the University of California School of Medicine. The patients had chronic, recurring ulcers.

Half the patients were placed on a restrictive diet and given antacid drugs but were allowed to eat what they wanted.

Finding: No significant difference between the recovery of the two groups.

Antacid drugs were effective when taken frequently, the doctors report in GP, a medical journal for family physicians. Drugs used were a combination of aluminum hydroxide gel and magnesium trisilicate. Antacids neutralize excess acidity in the digestive tract, to permit an ulcer to heal.

The doctors recommend that antacid drugs be taken once every hour throughout the day, if that frequency of medication is possible.

A YOUNG MAN caught in a snowstorm in Northern India was later found in the fields, apparently dead.

His entire body was covered with frost. When doctors struck his body with a percussion hammer, it sounded like wood.

Yet they went to work. They warmed up the victim, rubbed him with alcohol. Heart massage and artificial respiration were begun.

After 40 minutes there were signs of breathing. Then—a faint pulse.

Doctors packed hot water bottles around him. Gradually the victim regained consciousness.

Now a year later he is well and able to work. The only complication: Shortly after recovery, doctors had to amputate portions of seven fingers.

The report is in the Indian Journal of Public Health.

PARENTS of children with rheumatoid arthritis should not coddle them, a team of Texas doctors reports. Coddling, they contend, may hamper normal recovery.

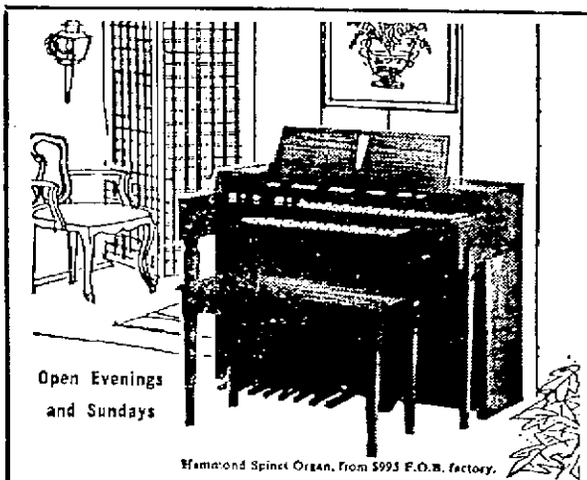

Dr. Earl J. Brewer Jr. and colleagues, after studying 50 young arthritics in Houston, say that parents are the key to success or failure of a home-treatment program.

The doctors say no special privileges should be granted the arthritic children. Regular school attendance is urged—even on days when joints are painful. Arrangements should be made with the school nurse for the child to take his medications at required times.

The Camera Goes to the Theater

Comedy magic and a Rolleimagic on manual produced this theater highlight photo that is a prized album item. Tri-X film was used and the exposure was 1/50 at f6.3.

By Irving Desfor

MEMORABLE on life's pleasant side are many of the happy hours the stage has given us in drama, comedy, musical show and concert and it is with regret that we often find some of the best of these times have faded from memory; at least, into fuzzy retrospect.

Photography is an answer to this problem. With color slides we'll have a permanent record of colorful costumes and artistic settings along with a show's personalities and dramatic highlights. Black-and-white pictures can be put into a photo album along with the printed program where they make a ready reference record, easy to find and talk about at any later date.

There are rarely any taboos on picture taking except in some legitimate theaters in some big cities. Even then the regulations which prohibit taking pictures are theatrical union rules intended to regulate the commercial use of the pictures.

TODAY, with high speed films in both color and black and white, it is fairly easy to capture the natural illumination of stage settings. In fact, it would be a mistake to use accessory flash or strobe light because it would tend to destroy the authenticity of the stage lighting or dramatic effect of a spotlight.

High Speed Ektachrome Type B (for artificial light) is the fastest (ASA 125) color film available for both 35mm and 120 roll film cameras. Super Anscochrome Type B is also available in both sizes and is just a bit slower (ASA 100). An exposure of 1/50 at f/4 with High Speed Ektachrome has proved satisfactory on many previous occasions. This can be used as a starting guide because it is almost impossible to take accurate light meter readings from a spectator's seat. A possible exception is the Heiland Pentax Spot Meter which pinpoints an area of only three degrees for a reading, even from a distance.

In black-and-white, Tri-X film, with a speed of ASA 400, has proved very effective in capturing available light stage action with exposures of 1/100 at f/5.6. Super-Hypan film, though rated at ASA 500, is a bit slower than Tri-X in actual use, I've found. Royal-X pan film is the fastest roll film available (ASA 1600) but it fogs easily and is limited to the developer recommended by the manufacturer for best results.

If your seat is not near the stage, it's an advantage to use a 35mm camera with interchangable lenses. Telephoto lenses will fill the frame fully or get close-ups. The normal 50mm or a wide-angle lens will show the complete stage setting.

Indoor shutters must be made to fit but they are not beyond the skill of the handyman with a workshop. Pattern 445 gives directions for sturdy frames and for the slats that open and close to regulate light. It will be mailed for 35c. This pattern is one of four in the packet "Decorator Projects" from the Home Workshop No. 50, which is priced at $1. TRAVEL REPORTS

Around the World

By Aline and Bob Vosler

YOU SEE the ships pull in and out of Long Beach Harbor. Occasionally you meet a friend who arrives on one. Then comes the time you sail out of the same harbor on a trip of your own.

The trip you've been waiting for—years, perhaps. That trip around the world.

The SS Chusan of the P & O Orient Lines was on its way to London, via the Orient, the night we boarded her and began the great adventure. Sailing at midnight seems to give a special magic to sailing, too. Surely Long Beach looked beautiful in the moonlight, with the lights fading as we steamed out of the breakwater and headed toward the open sea.

Life at sea settles down fast. The ship's a tight little world of its own. Inside a day or two you're concerned by the weather, the mileage, because you've a small wager in the daily ship's pool. You look at the maps and charts on the promenade dock and wonder if you'll really hit all those ports.

The Chusan is a happy ship. Not one of company's largest nor newest, it's nonetheless giving us one of the best cruises we've ever had. As this is a British ship, most of the stewards are British or Australian. Some of the waiters are English; some are from Goa. A few months ago, when they sailed, they were citizens of Portugal. Now they are Indians, due to a political move. Rugged, strong and fearless "Laskars" work on the decks, climb spars and certainly add color. They wear blue demins and red turbans and come from a province of India.

Passengers are a scattered lot, and change from port to port. As we started out, there was a generous sprinkling of Canadians who had boarded at Vancouver; many Californians, some of whom boarded at San Francisco and others who came on at Long Beach. We've now picked up a handsome sprinkling of Indians, Japanese, Filipinos, Chinese, and from Hong Kong on, many British again, with their families, on leave and en route to England for a holiday.

We spotted some passengers from Orange County—Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Esse of Anaheim, Miss Grace H. Hanson of Anaheim and Mrs. Avah N. Fosbury from Garden Grove.

PORTS of call are right out of some of the most colorful sections of the world: we've dined on the beach at Waikiki; joined the traffic at Tokyo; visited shrines at Kobe in Japan; shopped our way through Hong Kong; been enchanted by Manila's reconstruction since World War II; visited Singapore and seen a Sultan's palace in Johore; been enchanted by the lush beauty of Malaya, especially in the Island of Penang; become dizzy with the beauty of Ceylon; thrilled to the harbor of Bombay and the city beyond; seen a genuine camel market on the edge of the great desert in Arabia, and are even now on our way to Suez, where we'll leave the ship long enough for a quick trip to Cairo and a glimpse at the Pyramids before steaming into Naples and ultimately right up the Thames River into London.

It's all just like the folder said—that great, big, wide, wonderful world is all here, and as thrilling as we thought that night we sailed out of Long Beach.

Funny thing, though.

We thought we were taking this trip to get our eyes full.

We're just getting them opened—to how much more there is to see.

We want to sail out of that harbor again.

No Chimneys!

Reykjavik, thriving capital of Iceland, is a town without a chimney! Actually, visitors to this city of more than 70,000 persons will see chimneys, but these were built many years ago and are now inoperative.

The winter climate of Iceland is somewhat similar to that of New York although not as cold, and heating is needed throughout the long winter—but Icelanders have done away with fumes, smokestacks and air pollution by using natural hot water springs to heat their entire capital city.

Even new skyscraper apartment dwellings will be heated by natural thermal water, which is kept under pressure and piped to buildings to provide both heat and hot water. The hot water is "soft," and is perfect for bathing and washing.—It also saves on fuel bills!

New Travel Shop

Because so many of her patrons constantly are inquiring about the proper attire for cruise or resort wear, and packing and coordinating their wardrobes, Rita Dugan has opened Traveline Fashions—a shop offering fashions for "around the clock and around the world"—next door to her Belmont Shore Travel, at 188 Park Ave.

Miss Dugan's unique new shop also offers such items as luggage, travel clocks, travel irons, bon voyage gifts, jewelry and accessories in addition to travel attire.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"What medicine did you prescribe for the stomach problems I understand are prevalent in Mexico?"

I DON'T prescribe anything—in print. Around the house I keep "The Ship's Medicine Chest at Sea"—U.S. Public Health Service. And am a great amateur prescriber for everybody. But not in print. I think there's a law or an AMA resolution against it.

What I said was the Mexican doctors in the fashionable tourist hotels used to give us entero-vioform—a non-prescription pill, made mainly of iodine I understand.

The Mexico City correspondents' club got mad at the Ciba (entero-vioform) press agent. Now the medics seem to be pushing something called Neotracina—also non-prescription at Sanborn's drug stores.

I think this is a press agents' battle. Both did OK for me.

Health in Mexico is a big tourist item of conversation. Couple of things you can be sure: There is a splash of typhoid. You should have shots. You have to have a smallpox vaccination within the last three years to get back into the United States.

There is a country-wide cleanup on malaria-carrying mosquitoes. But a friend of mine got it at the Acapulco airport a year ago. Your doctor will give you an anti-malaria pill.

I AVOID any water but bottled water — there's a big jug of "agua purificada" on every hotel floor. Get the maid to change the water in the jug in your room. It probably hasn't been changed since the last occupant.

Generally, I lay off fruits or vegetables I don't peel myself. A Swiss Army pocket knife with those many, many blades is invaluable in Mexico. You can repair door hinges with it too.

About a million Americans go into Mexico each year. They all come out alive.

It's the most fascinating — endlessly fascinating country to me. From fireplace mountain country to banana tropics in an hour.

If you want a digest of columns I've written on Mexico, send a self-addressed and stamped envelope. If you want specific prices, ask for that.

". . . about driving into Mexico?"

It's the way I like to go. (And the airlines will hate me for saying so.)

Just be careful about driving at night. They don't mark road obstacles with flaring lights.

Little-Known Spots Go on Travel Itineraries

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

IN VIENNA'S suburban villages of Nussdorf and Grinzing and surrounding areas, there are some 1,900 vineyards, some no bigger than a home vegetable plot. No matter, every farmer here fancies himself a vintner and innkeeper to boot.

For more than half a century it has been the custom for these growers, whenever they had a batch of new wine on hand, to clear out the front rooms of their homes, install homemade tables and chairs, hang some heirloom decorations, hire a few of the local boys who could play the squeeze-box and violin and perhaps stammer out a few lyrics, and go into the pub business.

Chaos-on-the-Danube ensued, with everybody and his brother selling wine whenever he felt like it. A few obtained permanent licenses. For the rest the government legalized the informal practice—known as Heurigen—by permitting each entrepreneur to operate for three weeks at a time once or twice a year.

THE DOZENS of taverns in old stone buildings are all alike, and all different. Many, like Karl Trumler's, are set in gardens. Here there is a wine press in the back room, and strolling musicians pour forth their melodies.

At Poldi Kurtz the carved fronts of wine barrels are wall plaques. Best of all, there is a three-piece ensemble of accordion, piano and violin that drips a brand of Vienna schmaltz rarely heard elsewhere.

Elsewhere Karl Harlass' famous "Third Man" zither or a gypsy zimbalo may provide the music, and a voiceless accordion player—likely the local choirmaster — may bark out the lyrics a la Rex Harrison.

But the effect is always the same — timeless, sentimental, pure Viennese, and what the heck, let's have another glass of wine even if we do hate ourselves in the morning.

WE DROVE eastward the next morning through the rolling farmlands of eastern Austria, past the Russian cemetery where red stars instead of crosses decorate the graves.

Sport-gliders swooped silently like gulls above the ruins of a hilltop castle. We passed through towns entered via massive medieval gates, some still equipped with portcullises. In the Alpine fashion, house fronts are painted with picture stories.

In a village we passed a solemn funeral procession led, traditionally, by the local firemen wearing their war decorations.

We passed through Bad-Deutsch-Altenburg, once Carnuntum. The ruins of an 8,000-seat Roman amphitheater still stand. This was the easternmost of Roman European settlements. They went no farther because beyond, in the Carpathian Mountains, dwelt Goths and Vandals.

They still do. Just out of sight lies the Danube, bordered on the Czech side with barbed wire instead of trees. Ahead of us, the lovely Castle of Bratislava in Pressburg, almost within reach, the Iron Curtain falls across the road and brings an effective end to a Westerner's casual tour.

Beyond are watchtowers, mine fields and other impedimenta of tyranny, effectively preventing tourism from the other direction.

CATERING to the traveler's wishes to get off the beaten path, airline and steamship companies are putting many more inviting spots—once all but unknown to globe-trotters — on their itineraries.

This is a definite indication that regular travelers, having visited such places as Europe, the Near East, Asia — and such way spots as Mexico and Hawaii—are constantly inquiring about how to get to stranger lands, see strange people and study their way of life.

All of this, of course, has developed because Americans have more money and more leisure time for travel, and because the big jets have shrunk the globe, making it possible for them to journey great distances in a short period of time.

FOR INSTANCE, Alitalia Airlines has arranged a "Shangri-La Discovery" jaunt of 41 days which takes travelers via DC8 jet from New York to Rome and Nairobi, Kenya, to see the sights in east Africa before boarding ship for a short voyage to Port Victoria, Mahe, Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean—reputed to be among the least visited yet among the most beautiful and exotic islands on earth.

Ethiopia, another interesting African area, also is being opened for tourists with the recent inauguration of the new Bole International Airport at Addis Ababa. This heretofore almost inaccessible (for two, three and four-week travelers) is now only a few hours from such European cities as Frankfort and Madrid via Ethiopian Airlines.

In the Near East, historic Jordan's only seaport, the modern Port of Aqaba on the Red Sea is being "discovered" by tourists. The port has just been extensively improved and a new tourist hotel is part of the city's development as a model city.

Pan American World Airways has opened more interesting South American spots. Pan Am's Clipper flights to Brasilia, the new capital of Brazil, now continue 2,000 miles across jungle and rivers to the port of Belem where adventurous globe-trotters may continue on safaris through the virgin jungle of the Amazon River basin in the heart of Brazil.

Pan Am also inaugurates new weekly flights between New York and Montevideo, Uruguay, this week—a 14-hour junket including stops at Caracas and Rio de Janeiro.

THE POSSIBILITIES go on and on. Scandinavian Airlines System and THAI Coronado 990 jets now link such centuries-old Malayan cities as Kuala Lampur and Malacca, and the strange world that is the island of Penang, with major cities of Europe and the Far East.

The South Pacific, fast becoming the hottest spot in travel, is expected to become even more popular with more sea and air transportation available. Matson's cruise ships, the SS Mariposa and SS Monterey, are calling every three weeks at Pago Pago, Samoa, and a $4½ million landing field has just been completed at Tutuila, largest of the seven American Samoan islands. The Tutuila islanders now are attempting to raise $1 for a modern hotel.

You can make book that 1963 travel possibilities will be the most inviting in history.

NEW SIGHT-SEEING tours from spots already on the travel map will make easier-to-reach destinations more inviting. One example is a side trip—until recently unheard of—through the famous Alaska-Juneau gold mine for visitors to our 49th state. This is advertised as a never-to-be-forgotten junket, with visitors traveling all the way through towering Mt. Roberts and coming out on the other side for one of Alaska's most spectacular views.

RAY SILVIUS, former aviation editor of The Arizona Republic in Phoenix, has been appointed director of public relations for Western Air Lines with headquarters in Los Angeles. In making the appointment, Arthur F. Kelly, vice president-sales, said Silvius will be responsible for public relations activities throughout the company's system, including press relations, employe communications and shareholder publications.

Miracle Plant of the Aztecs

By E. J. Leslie

ANYONE harassed by budget problems may consider spreading his bedroll on the soft desert sand beside a maguey (Agave Americana, Mexican aloe, century plant) and forget about the vanishing American dollar. If a man will provide the elbow grease, the maguey will supply all his basic needs except meat, and for that he can slingshot a rabbit.

Food, drink, soap, medicine and dressings, paper, pins, clothing, needles and thread, cordage, woven sandals, roofing, baskets, brushes, mats and sleeping pads, hammocks, saddle blankets, waterproof fiber dishes, cattle fodder in times of drought and an impervious corral are all available in the miraculous maguey (Amaryllidaceae).

Long before the Spanish conquistadores stumbled on the rich Aztec empire and blood-bathed it in their lust for gold and glory, slave girls were cleaning house and shampooing Aztec ladies with soap (amole) produced from the roots of the maguey which grew profusely on the plateaux of Mexico and is now common in the American Southwest.

AMOLE WAS USED for snake bite, vermin extermination, body rashes, religious rites, washing the dog and catching fish. Soaproot rubbed on rocks in fast water foamed and choked the fish which rose to the surface of the river.

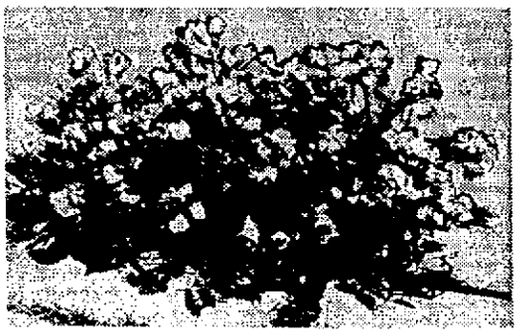

Possibly an Aztec youth picture-wrote his mash notes on paper made from the macerated leaves of maguey, rolling them on a stick and tying them with a cochineal-dyed ribbon before entrusting them for delivery to a servant in a tunic of nequen, a coarse, maguey-fiber cloth. Nequen tunics were also worn as a gesture of humility by young princes attending priest's lectures.

Legends, records and historical data were contained in the volumes that fed the bonfires of the conquerors. Rolls, reams and blank volumes of paper (fan-folded like some modern postcards) with thin, decorated wood covers, were bartered in the market places, and used as tax tribute.

AZTEC COOKS served baked maguey roots with their turkey dinners, agave buds baked to a candied-yam consistency, and cornmeal muffins, cakes, wafers and chocolate sweetened with agavose, a rare sugar obtained by evaporation of the maguey sap. After dinner, the older men lingered over their octli (pulque) as they bragged about their conquests and concubines.

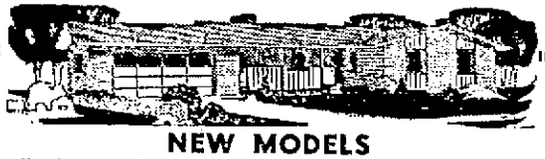

When the maguey is disbudded, it dies slowly but the sap continues to flow into the scooped-out cavity in the center of the broad, overlapping, gray-green leaves. One plant could supply 2,000 pounds of sap which was sucked out with slender gourds and stored in skin bags. When allowed to ferment for 10 days, it produced the madre pulque, a thick, ropy, sour-milky substance which, when added to the sweet sap (agua-miel), stepped up fermentation to two days instead of ten. The pulque industry in Mexico is a major source of governmental revenue.

The Indians baked the roots and buds in primitive stone ovens in the ground wherever they found an agave grove. Since, by disbudding, the plant seldom came to bloom, it is said to flower every 100 years (century plant), though it could bloom in eight if undisturbed. A panicle of tubular, yellow flowers rises on a 40-foot scape basally up to one foot thick, straight and rigid, from a rosette of fleshy, spine-tipped, lanceolate spine-tipped, lanceolate leaves leaves which are armed with marginal prickles.

Sweet Peas: No Stakes

Bijou is a new, bush-type sweet pea that grows only 12 inches tall and is suited for window boxes, beds and borders. No staking is required to hold up the plants. Stems long enough for cutting are topped with sprays of 3 or 4 large, ruffled and fragrant flowers. Colors include white, salmon, pink, rose, scarlet, mauve and blue. Separate colors of the Bijou, a Burpee development, won 15 awards from the Scottish National Sweet Pea Society and the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain.

Let Tulips Say When It's Spring

By Joe Littlefield

TIME WAS when a single tulip bulb was worth more than $50 and one specific variety was bartered for merchandise worth in excess of $1,200. That was during Holland's tulip craze from 1634 to 1637.

Today, any gardener can have a dozen fine tulip bulbs for approximately $1.50.

You're missing a good garden bet if you don't plant tulips for lots of spring color. Plant them six to eight inches deep, in groups. There are several types, and they don't all bloom at one time. Some bloom earlier, others several weeks later, and others still later on. Check with your local nurseryman to be sure you keep the different groups separated. Work some bone meal into the soil at planting time.

AS SOON AS bulb growth pops through the soil, water plants well and don't let them get too dry.

Finish planting daffodils, Dutch hyacinths, Dutch iris, and lilies, as well as any other bulbs available, because most of them are long term investments in yearly returns of spring flowers.

Bulb hobbyists fertilize bulbs with a balanced plant food that contains less nitrogen than phosphorus, during their peak of bloom. Bulbs store the food for next year's growth and lovely flowers.

You'll help iris furnish better blossoms and richer colors by feeding them twice throughout the winter, with a balanced plant food containing less nitrogen than phosphoric acid.

IRIS that should have been divided a year or two ago, whose rhizomes (thick root stocks) have almost pushed themselves up out of the ground should be mulched with manure now. Be sure the soil is moist first. Half fill a one-pound coffee can with bone meal and scatter over a 50-square-foot iris bed, lightly scratch the fertilizer into the soil, and spread one-half inch of cured steer manure over the area. Soak well. Keep moist several days, then water as needed.

Use a balanced fertilizer for the plants in February. You'll be pleased with the results. Be sure to dig up these iris in July, separate and throw away the old knobby plants, reset the young ones.

One of the pests are aphids that get into the fold area of leaves near the rhizomes where insecticide sprays are ineffective. You'll get more effective control by adding some oil emulsion to the spray to act as a carrier with the insecticide. Put it in a watering can filled with warm water, then pour over the iris plants and also the premoistened soil around the plants. I've done this and found it gives good control. Even better if the insecticide spray has one of the chemicals that has a strong fuming odor that seems to last overnight.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

(See Page 26.)

Most of the work was done by Indians, who carried the stones from the canyon of Mission Vieja, six miles away. Carretas brought the boulders, large stones were dragged by chains, and smaller ones were carried by the neophytes. Even women and children carried stones in nets on their backs. For endless days they formed two lines to the rock-filled creek beds, going empty-handed, and coming back laden.

When the church was finished, a big celebration took place, a two-day fiesta, the largest in the early days of California. Dignitaries came, dressed in black and gold. Soldiers wore bright red uniforms. Indians wore tribal costumes, red bands around their heads.

This most elaborate and beautiful of all the mission churches, completed in 1806 after nine years of labor, stood only six years. On Sunday morning, Dec. 12, 1812, during a special mass, a heavy rumbling and rolling of the land preceded a splitting of the domes, then a great crash. The heavy tower shattered and stones and mortar fell on the kneeling congregation, crushing 40 worshipers.

IT WAS UNTHINKABLE to raise the elaborate structure again. The tired padres moved back to Father Serra's Church.

In 1813, the four bells which had hung in the stone church, were moved to the companario. They are dated 1796 and 1804 and inscribed with descriptive legends such as "Hail Mary, most pure, Ruelas made me and I am called St. John, 1796."

At San Juan Capistrano Mission, you visit Father Serra's Church and the remains of the old stone church; you marvel at brocaded vestments that came from the original church; you stop at the Indian cemetery; you walk through the rooms where the Indians lived and worked, you see ruins of tallow vats, a smelter, an olive and grain crusher, all used in the early mission days. You note erosion of time and weather on the old columns and holes in the pavement caused by the dripping of rain for close to two centuries.

YOU LOOK at the eaves, where the swallows made their mud nests. Mission padres say as long as the memory of man, they have returned on each St. Joseph's Day, March 19, and they disappear to the southward in September. No one knows where they go, but they do a good job of housekeeping and raising families while they are at Capistrano.

On your way out, you buy more feed for the pigeons. You make sure that the blue ones get some, too, because they must feel like outsiders in that cloud of white.

You pass through the outward gate, and Christmas or any time, you look back for the old Spanish farewell: "Vaya con Dios". (Go with God.)

Dorothy Digs

I wonder if there is anyone who doesn't know that roses SHOULD NOT BE PRUNED IN DECEMBER.

Nearly every year I give this warning but it seems to be one of the erroneous practices that people cling to.

Rose growers all over the country definitely agree that roses should not be pruned until the first touch of spring starts the sap flowing in the roses, or until the swelling of the buds becomes visible. By that time you have a greater selection of the best buds to retain in order to promote new growth, and by that time there is little danger of your pruning operation being followed by a heavy frost.

In various sections of the country, a different method of pruning is followed; also, different classes of roses must be considered individually when pruned; therefore, if you intend to prune your roses yourself, my advice is to take advantage of all the pruning exhibitions given in your locality.

Safety factor of a seat belt is lost unless belt is fastened. New device makes sure it's secured.

IT'S NEW

Seat Belt Reminder

HAVE YOU remembered to fasten your seat belt? A Long Beach firm is manufacturing an ingenious device which makes it impossible to start your car until your seat belt has been fastened securely.

The device, covered by U. S. patent pending, and When the seat belt is tightened, the pressure trips a called the Stay-Safe Reminder, is remarkably simple: safety mechanism inside the Reminder which, in turn, "unlocks" the car's starter solenoid.

Unless the seat belt is snugly fastened, as it should be for maximum safety, the car cannot be started, say the manufacturers, the Caravan Mfg. Co., Inc., 1368 Oregon Ave., Long Beach 13.

However, after the auto is started, the Reminder will not interfere with the operation of the car, engine or accessories. Attractively chrome plated, the Stay-Safe Reminder ($4.95) is a smart addition to a seat belt and can be installed by a service station attendant in 10 minutes.

So You Want to Adopt a Baby!

Steps in adopting a child:

FIRST OF ALL, call one of the seven agencies in Los Angeles County or four in Orange County. The phone book or your church can provide you with a phone number, but to start you off, the Los Angeles County office in Long Beach can be reached by telephone at HE 7-0851. The Children's Home Society number in Long Beach is HE 5-2463, and in Orange County, KI 2-3997.

You'll be invited to attend a briefing session along with other interested couples, and the adoption procedure will be outlined. If you're still interested, you make formal application. The agencies have standard fees, but they're usually flexible and can be adjusted to your ability to pay. The main thing, you'll be told, is to find a good home for the children they have.

Your doctor will be asked to submit a report on your health. Your friends will be asked for the customary character reference. You will be asked to show that you have a steady income.

Your physical attributes and education background will be noted, because the agency will try to find for you a child whose natural parents come as close to you in those factors as possible.

AFTER you've been approved as adoptive parents, there will be a waiting period while the agency tries to find a child its experience indicates will be the right one for you.

While you're waiting, you'll probably be trying to assure yourself that when the baby finally arrives you'll love it just as if it were truly yours.

And when the child finally does arrive, daddy will be proud and mommy will be nervous.

Just like parents everywhere.

AL HENDLIN
Pampered Prime Rib

MRS. MARY PREEN definitely knows what a piece of pampered prime rib should taste like.

And, Mrs. Preen — who lives in Long Beach and who happens to be actor John Wayne's mother — knows a place where a 10-ounce slice of delectable prime rib is served on Sundays and Mondays for $2.35.

As a result she and her husband, Sydney, visit Al Hendlin's beautiful Coral Room, 4130 Paramount Blvd., at least every other week and sometimes as often as twice a week. The prime rib, served Sundays from 3:30 p.m. on, and also Monday nights, is offered chuck-wagon style. On their first trip to the buffet, the guests load their plates with 10 fresh salads. On their next trip they receive a fresh plate, the prime rib, and their choice of au gratin or mashed potatoes, or rice, and bread and butter.

When she and her husband visit the Coral Room in mid-week, Mrs. Preen tries some of the other specialities which chef George Wise prepares with tender care. These include filet mignon (3.50), wrapped in bacon and broiled; fancy disjointed southern fried chicken $2.50); thick, hickory-cured ham steak ($2.75); splendid barbecued spare ribs with pineapple ($2.75), and such sea food treats as Nantucket Bay scallops and broiled fresh halibut steak, both $2.25. All include chilled appetizers (kosher pickles, carrot slivers, celery and olives), huge, fine salad; baked potato, bread and beverage.

Hendlin recently redecorated his banquet room in smart white, golds and yellows, added handsome chandeliers, a mural and a teakwood floor. Seating 65, it is available for banquets and parties.

UPGRADE PETTY OFFICER

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Name Jackie Cooper Lieutenant Commander

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Cooper has traded his television make-believe Navy officer's stripes for a real life commission as a reserve lieutenant commander.

The one-time child star who grew up to be a television producer, director and actor held that rank when he played a Navy doctor in the "Hennesey" series.

During World War II, Jackie was in a Navy band that toured Pacific Ocean island bases entertaining servicemen. He was discharged from the Navy as a second class petty officer.

While filming "Hennesey," Cooper's interest in the Navy took him to military bases and schools drumming up interest for the service. The Navy recently honored him with its Distinguished Public Service Award.

* * * *

COOPER, now a producer and actor at Four Star Television, said he kept working on Navy programs after "Hennesey" went out of production.

"When we started on that show we asked the Navy for favors and they would ask me to do things," he said. "So we would shoot promotion films for recruiting drives and we also made radio tapes.

"I made all the things I could afford to and during the summer I'd go to Navy bases, not so much for entertaining but for talking."

Cooper also worked with the Navy League, a civilian organization interested in naval activities.

"The Navy called and asked me if I would produce, direct and appear in a show about modern sea power for the Navy League convention in Chicago," Cooper said. "My associate producer, two Navy captains and I wrote this presentation. It was a 90-minute show."

* * * *

NAVY OFFICERS became interested in Cooper's work and asked him to consider telling the fleet's story to high school and university students.

"When they asked me to start speaking to young people I said it would make more sense to do it in uniform," Jackie explained.

Cooper was then commissioned a lieutenant commander in the reserve. He'll have two weeks of active duty time to serve each year plus speaking engagements.

"My commission is what they call a restricted line officer category, a public information officer," Jackie said. "I'm in advertising and sales for the Navy.

"My going to sea for two weeks each year won't do the Navy any good. But I could do some good as a public information officer. For instance, I'm going to England soon on television business. I can do something for the Navy over there."

* * * *

COOPER'S desire to help the Navy increased when he came in contact with national defense planners in Washington, D.C.

"During 'Hennesey' I used to visit the Pentagon once or twice a year and I'd see dedicated people working to protect their country," he said. "The spirit of these guys rubs off. They have trouble getting money to tell their story. It's easy for someone like me to help them."

Cooper considers his Navy service as more important than working for a political party, something many Hollywood stars do.

"I take greater satisfaction doing something for the Navy than I would stumping for a politician," he said. "I don't agree with actors participating in political campaigns. A guy shouldn't win votes because he has a greater influence with movie stars than his opponent.

"Over 90 per cent of the actors represent a big company or sponsor. An actor is indirectly affecting that sponsor's sales and, therefore, employment. If a sponsor is a Democrat and the actor is stumping for a Republican, that puts a Republican reflection on the sponsor. And if most of the sponsor's buyers are Democrats that affects sales."

Moore to Coast

Garry Moore is going to work his two CBS network shows from the West Coast for a period beginning the last week of February.

"I've Got A Secret" and "The Garry Moore Show" will come from Lake Tahoe, Calif., on Feb. 25 and 26, respectively.

The shows will come from Hollywood on March 4, 5, 11 and 12.

Dickens 'Christmas Carol' Animated With Music

(Editor's Note: Television's first animated cartoon version of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" airs' 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on channel 4 in COLOR. The voice of Jim Backus, in the video presence of Mr. Magoo, will be that of Christmas-hater Scrooge. Augmenting the production, which faithfully follows Dickens' version, will be original music penned by Jule Styne.)

JULE STYNE
Music for Scrooge

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Whitman heard America singing, he said. But that was in the last century.

Nowadays, and in another context, if you hear an American singing—or humming, or whistling—it's most likely to be a popular song of the day. And there's, a very good chance that the melody will be one of the more than 500 written during the last two decades by a dapper little gent named Jule Styne.

Many of his songs are standards, many have topped the hit parade, and his scores for motion pictures, Broadway musicals and the ballet have been freighted with honors.

His pop tunes started with "I Don't Want to Walk Without You, Baby," and ranged through "I've Heard That Song Before," "I'll Walk Alone," "Three Coins in the Fountain," "Five Minutes More," "Let It Snow," and on and on and on through such as "Bye Bye Baby," "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend," "Captain Hook's Waltz," and into "Just In Time," "The Party's Over," and "Everything's Coming Up Roses."

* * * *

THE MAN hopped into show business from a box seat at the age of three. His parents had taken him to a London music hall. On-stage the great Sir Harry Lauder was singing "I Love a Lassie." At Jule's tender age, it seemed reasonable to join him. So he leaped to the stage and did. Thereafter, he did his Scottish-burr imitations of Sir Harry on the sidewalks of his neighborhood.

JIM BACKUS
Voice of Scrooge

When he was seven — the year was 1912 — he moved with his family from London to Chicago. In the latter city —although the boy was a piano prodigy who appeared with symphony orchestras— he fell in with people who were playing something called jazz. He learned to play popular music, and that was the start of a lifetime career.

* * * *

ON TUESDAY night for an hour on NBC-TV, he's hopping into something a little new for him—that is, writing music for an animated movie. He's joined forces with the redoubtable, myopic Mr. Magoo and—who else at this time of year?—Charles Dickens. The product is an animated cartoon, "Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol."

In view of Styne's impressive record of scores for Broadway and Hollywood musicals, it is remarkable to hear him say of the Magoo version of the Christmas classic:

"It's quite unusual. It's authentic Dickens, and it's entertainment. It may be about the best thing I've ever done.

"You are taking, here, a very touching subject. The animation is more touching than if real people did it. It is so affectionate and meaningful and, believe me, the way these cartoon people do it, it's well done. It's in the best taste, as though they were doing a two-million-dollar movie.

"It's really a confection. Adults and children will see different things in it. We had fun doing it—my musical part of it took me four or five months—and there's really a fun side to Dickens, rather than scaring the kids to death. I've been a Dickens fan all my life. This is a further extension of what music might do for Dickens.

* * * *

"IT'S ADULT in the same manner as when I wrote the score of the Broadway musical of 'Peter Pan'—that was the adult Barrie rather than a child's Barrie.

CONCERNING THE
Parkcrest Church of Christ
(LAKEWOOD'S CHRISTIAN CHURCH)
Christian Churches and Other Churches of Christ

THE OBJECT OF OUR EXISTENCE IS:
1. TO RESTORE primitive Christianity, and the consequent union of all followers of Christ in one body.
2. TO EXALT Christ above party and His Word above human creeds.
3. TO BUILD a church of Christ without denominational name, man-written creed or other barrier to Christian unity, whose terms of fellowship shall be as broad as the conditions of salvation and identical with them.
4. TO LEAD sinners to Christ in the clear light of the New Testament teaching.

THEREFORE WE TEACH AND PLEAD FOR:
1. THE BIBLE as the only rule of faith and practice (II Timothy 3:16, 17).
2. CHRISTIAN as the name of Christ's followers (Acts 11:26; 26:28).
3. CHURCH UNITY (John 17:20, 21; I Corinthians 1:10).
4. BAPTISM of BELIEVERS (Mark 16:15, 16; Acts 2:38, 41; 16:32-34).
5. IMMERSION AS BAPTISM (Mark 1:5-10; John 3:23; Acts 8:26-40; Romans 6:1-6).
6. LIVING THE CHRISTIAN LIFE, working as if all depended on us, trusting as if all depends on Christ. (Hebrews 12:1, 2).

YOU CAN LEARN HOW THESE TRUTHS WILL:
1. GIVE YOU PEACE of mind in spite of our troubled times.
2. GIVE YOU SECURITY in the face of possible war.
3. GIVE OUR COUNTRY strength to win over communism or any other "ism".

Pan and Fan Mail

(Editor's Note: Following are excerpts from letters in connection with NBC-TV's Monday night series, "It's A Man's World," which is slated for cancellation after Jan. 28.)

It is the only television program that I make sure I watch.

Extra work, dishes and telephone calls have to wait until 8:30 on Monday nights.

I think the cast and the program are just great.

Please! Don't take "It's A Man's World" off the air.

Mrs. William Thomas Smith, Long Beach

Our whole family loves it and we look forward to it every week. It is so interesting and refreshing, so down to earth.

When we finally get a program of this type on the air, don't take it away.

The Gaiten Bonde family, Los Alamitos

Which way do you go to surrender?

First "Hennesey" and now "It's A Man's World."

Mrs. James C. Mitchell, Long Beach

Why do the good programs on television so often lose out to old shallow, synthetic shows?

Is it because of a sponsor's stupidity or does the average viewer only want sickening frosting and no cake?

It breaks me up to learn that "It's A Man's World" will be ending soon.

Margaret Soder, Long Beach

If the sponsors would stick with it for the rest of the season, "It's A Man's World" would be one of the top-rated shows by next year.

Donna Peters, Long Beach

That show is the best one on TV.

Mrs. D. E. Burns, Long Beach

I have just read that the outstanding television program "It's A Man's World" is going off the air in January.

I ask you, how can NBC-TV commit such a crime?

Shirley Drake, Fullerton

Where could I reach Gene Kelly (actor and dancer) by mail?

Mrs. Paula Dietrick, Long Beach

Care of ABC-TV, Prospect and Talmadge, Hollywood 27, Calif.

When are you going to stop running letters about "Soupy Sales"?

Martin J. Grabonsky, Long Beach

When Soupy stops writing them.

Recently you had a letter about a mustache in a shaving commercial.

My wife and I have talked about the half-mustache left in the shaving ad and we thought maybe they were saving it for the summer reruns.

Weldon B. Huffman, Long Beach

TV Emcee Linkletter 'Kangaroo Land' Investor

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It costs him $100,000 a year, but Art Linkletter has faith in his romance with the continent of Australia.

Since 1957 the genial television emcee has been investing in Australian agriculture, taking his losses like a man and going back for more.

ART LINKLETTER

He recently returned from his annual trek to Kangaroo Land (it's springtime there now) to check on his 22,000 acres of land, located in the southwest area of the country. The ranch is roamed by 16,000 sheep and 500 head of cattle.

"There will always be a market for food and clothes," Art said, "and I'm raising beef and wool.

"But the real romance of Australia is that it is one of the remote primitive areas of the world that can become one of the great breadbaskets of all time.

"Right now the land is so bleak and barren it would repulse a goat. But by adding minerals—zinc, copper and sulfate—it blossoms, like bringing water to the desert. I've proved in the past five years it can be fertile."

Linkletter, who hosts CBS-TV's "House Party" every day, blew a half-million bucks proving his point.

"I TRIED TO DO THINGS too fast," he grinned. "Some of my partners backed out after the first year, but I changed management and went at it again.

"For a city boy like me there is no thrill like standing on my own property and watching it stretch out to the horizons. There's even a Linkletter School on my land with 12 students in it."

Because his "People Are Funny" and "Linkletter and the Kids" programs are popular Australian video shows, the American capitalist is a big favorite down under. When he travels around Australia he is a welcome guest of the government.

"AUSTRALIA IS A swinging continent," he went on.

"I've heard some important American businessmen say that if they were starting over again today they'd go there to build their fortunes.

"The opportunities in Australia are like they were in the American West 100 years ago. There is plenty of elbow room for a man to grow and develop a future."

Does Linkletter propose to continue pouring $100,000 a year into the sprawling young country?

"I should say not," he replied. "If my investments work out according to plan they should begin to pay off at $100,000 a year for the next 50 years. And I expect to be around to collect."

MAKING LIKE they're Santa's reindeers, Mitch Miller's "Sing Along" dancers do a little sleigh-bell hoofing when the bearded maestro repeats his yule program at 8:30 p. m. Friday, channel 4. Viewers will be invited to join the singing gang in "The First Noel," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night." The maestro, in case you adults don't recognize him, will be wearing white whiskers over his black beard.

Newhart Goes Back to College

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Newhart, who won an Emmy and lost his show simultaneously last season, has gone back to college this fall and made a fortune.

In the past few months the comedian appeared before uncounted thousands of collegians at 20 universities across the country.

College kids forgot about pep rallies and panty raids long enough to dig Newhart's incisive comments on the current scene, convincing Bob that they are truly hip audiences.

During his year as a weekly video funnyman Newhart discovered the bulk of his viewers were between the ages of 18 and 42. It figured, then, that he would be appreciated on campus.

BOB NEWHART

"College students come to a performance to have a good time," Newhart said on his return from the tour. "They're not cynical and jaded, and they're brighter than the average audience.

"You're dead if you try to give them broad comedy because they want intellectual stimulation and a challenge. Those kids are on the ball—they have to be, just to meet the entrance requirements."

Bob's style remains the same for students as it was on video, but he does add special material with appeal for young people.

"I do a bit about old grads holding a reunion and another on hanging the football coach in effigy. Their favorite is the one about a professor's travelogue," he said.

"I GAUGE THE AUDIENCE by its response to my first routine. If the lines go over their heads I play it a little broader, but if it plays well then I use more understatement."

Newhart averaged 4,000 students a night. In two nights at Purdue he collected 18,000 paying customers. The crowds provide him with a bigger income than he was drawing on television.

"Playing colleges is much better than the nightclub circuit," he said. "There's more money in it and you don't have to put up with distractions and drunks."

There is a possibility that he will crank up another weekly TV show of his own for the 1963-64 season.

"We're still talking about a deal," he admitted. "It might be a situation comedy series or something along the lines I did last year.

"Despite the fact that it went off the air I was proud of my program. Maybe we got too many awards."

Cooper Documentary

"Gary Cooper — Tall American" is the title of a one-hour career profile of the late movie star that will be aired on the NBC network at 7:30 p.m. next March 26. It will be the product of the network's own Project Twenty staff.

Sweet Singer

One of the pleasant little developments of the season has been the emergence of rubber faced comic Frank Fontaine as the possessor of a sweet singing voice especially appropriate to ballads, as demonstrated in his weekly appearances on Jackie Gleason's CBS hour.

Naturally, a recording album deal is in the works.

Frank, by the way, has nine sons and two daughters at home in Boston.

Another Girl Bites Video Dust

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The Wild West has claimed still another feminine victim, Terry Moore.

It has been announced that per Miss Moore will be written out of the television series "Empire," as will another co-star, Anne Seymour.

Television ratings, it appears, have slaughtered more gals in the West than marauding Indians ever did.

TERRY MOORE

"There is simply no place for a girl in a western series," said Terry matter-of-factly. "Neither is there room for actresses in most action-adventure shows. The only gal I can think of who survived in the West was calamity Jane.

"When I accepted my role in 'Empire' I had hopes that I could break the jinx. It sounded like a take-off on 'Bonanza,' with two men and two women instead of four men. But I was wrong."

NBC-TV will replace Terry and Miss Seymour with a pair of new characters—both male, naturally.

"I DON'T KNOW WHY, but once an actress leaves the home, or any indoor set on television, she has nothing to do. Maybe it goes back to the old belief that a woman's place is in the home," she said.

"All the script writers are men, and they cannot write good parts for women. From the masculine point of view it is unfeminine for a woman to take an active part in sports or physical labor, such as women did in the real West 75 years ago.

"The funny part of it is that men like outdoor girls who will go bowling or skiing with them."

Terry noted that even indoor dramatics have been hard on television actresses in recent months. Loretta Young's new show was canceled and "Saints and Sinners," co-starring Barbara Rush, has been axed.

SHE ADDED that Jane Wyman, June Allyson, Annie Farge, Barbara Stanwyck and Ann Sothern had suffered video's indifference to the fair sex.

"They even discriminate against little girls," Terry said. "If you'll notice, all children parts in series are played by boys.

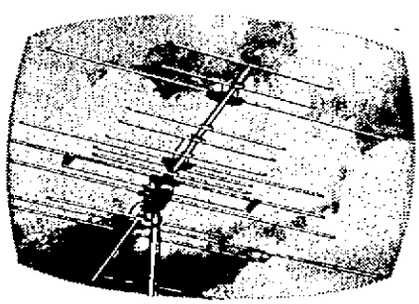

"Look at 'The Rifleman,' 'The Andy Griffith Show,' 'Leave It To Beaver,' 'Lassie' and dozens of others. It's never girl children, just boys.

FCC Chief Receives TV Group Award

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal Communications Commission Chairman Newton N. Minow will be presented the National Assn. for Better Radio and Television's Lee De Forest Award at a special luncheon next Wednesday.

The organization's president, Mrs. Clara Logan, announced the award and said Minow was chosen to receive the fourth award since 1953 because he "has transformed the Federal Communications Commission into a vigorous agency which is bringing into focus the responsibilities of the broadcasting industry in its service to the public."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The winning fighter, being interviewed by Don Dunphy, thought he'd do the announcer a favor. Said the fighter:

"I'm going out tomorrow, Don, and buy some Gem blades."

Said the announcer:

"Gillette will be happy to hear that."

DON DUNPHY

Dunphy's humorous retort made a joke out of what could have been an embarrasing close shave.

For Gillette is Dunphy's sponsor and has been since June 18, 1941, the day he started radio broadcasting the fights. The sponsor remained the same when Dunphy switched to television in 1960.

"They say that television has hurt boxing," said Dunphy, "and I don't want to argue the point.

"But if television stopped covering boxing now, boxing would fold."

If boxing did fold, it would be a terrible loss, particularly for the minority races, according to Dunphy.

"Boxing is the last outpost of the underprivileged," he said.

In addition to being financially rewarding, it keeps a lot of youngsters off the street, according to Dunphy. It develops sportsmanship.

* * * *

WHAT ABOUT CRITICS who want it outlawed as a "murderous" activity?

"Listen," said Dunphy, "supposing you were a sports czar in a country where you didn't want people to be hurt.

"Now if you were going to eliminate one sport would it be the one where 26 persons were killed in a four-months' activity, or 35 were killed in a year-round sport or 11 were killed in a year?"

Breaking down the fatality statistics, Dunphy said that the 26 deaths occured in baseball, 35 in auto racing and 11 in boxing.

I noted that baseball and auto racing had more people participating.

"The degree of participation," replied Dunphy, "doesn't make it any easier on the surviving loved ones of those killed."

Holding little brief with those shouting "Outlaw boxing," Dunphy said:

"They want to protect the poor kid who can't get anywhere any other way.

* * * *

"ROCKY GRAZIANO could tell you that he might have ended up in the electric chair if it wasn't for boxing.

"I can name you 50 former fighters right now who have all their mental and physical abilities intact. I've met some punch-drunk people, but they never did any boxing."

Dunphy added that boxing is "much cleaner" than it ever had been before.

"I know of no association now with the underworld," he said. "But some of the things in the good old days would make your hair stand up."

When he made the transition from radio to television, Dunphy eliminated the blow-by-blow description and became more explanatory.

* * * *

HIS "BLOW-BY-BLOW description" terminology reminded him of a radio announcer who once literally created a hockey broadcast.

The match was scheduled to go on the air at 7 p.m. For some reason, it had to be delayed about 35 minutes.

The delay didn't bother the radio announcer. A sponsor had paid for radio time starting at 7 p.m. and it was produce or forfeit the loot.

So the radio announcer started giving a "blow-by-blow" description of the mythical hockey match at 7 p.m. sharp. At that time, there wasn't a member of either team on the ice.

Everything went along smoothly until 7:35 p.m. when the band, preceding the start of the real match, played "The Star Spangled Banner."

It didn't bother the radio announcer.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he told his radio audience, "our national anthem. The district attorney has just arrived."

Television, a seeing-is-believing medium, eliminated that type of fakery.

It's a medium which Dunphy's son, Don Jr., 19, a Notre Dame student, wants to enter as a sports announcer.

Dunphy is trying to dissuade his son from attempting to follow his footsteps.

"I'm trying to encourage him to become a television producer or to engage in some other facet of the industry," he said.

"The days of the non-athletic sports announcer are over."

KATHARINE HEPBURN is slated to attend premiere of "The Long Day's Journey Into Night," which will be covered by channel 11 at 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Need More Education TV, Report States

WASHINGTON (U P I) — The current number of channels allocated for educational television falls far below the nation's needs, according to results of a survey issued today.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the survey indicated that more than a thousand channels would be needed in the next decade.

At present 309 are allocated for educational television while 275 actually have been reserved. Only 62 were in use at the time the survey was made.

The survey was prepared for the department by the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters.

The group said more than 95 per cent of public schools reported "serious curriculum deficiencies or teaching needs." Most said these could be met, or greatly helped, by broadcast television.

PERSONALITY PARADE

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Sorry, the volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that Princess Margaret's husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, used to be coxswain on the Cambridge crew?—R. J. Fuller, White River Junction, N. H.

A. True.

Q. I would like to find out what's happened to Pia Lindstrom, daughter of Ingrid Bergman.—A. Edgar, Pocatello, Idaho.

A. Pia, 24, has moved from Spoleto, Italy, to an apartment in Paris to be near her mother. Miss Lindstrom went to Italy following her divorce from textile heir Fuller Callaway.

Q. The present governor of California, Pat Brown—where did he get the name "Pat"?—George Thurtle, Oakland, Calif.

A. Brown was a student orator at Fremont Grammar School in Sacramento when a boy. In his graduation speech he quoted the immortal words of Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death." Schoolmates immediately dubbed him "Patrick Henry Brown," later shortened it to "Pat."

Q. Is it right that Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain is not permitted to accept honorary college degrees? If so, why?—Peter Martenson, Duluth, Minn.

A. It's true. As head of the British Commonwealth, the Queen is constitutionally not permitted to be placed in any subordinate role. Receiving a college degree would place her in that position.

Q. I understand that Pablo Picasso, the great artist, has a medical checkup from his doctor every month. Why is this?—Nora Fenston, Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Picasso, 81, takes good care of himself, goes for a weekly physical examination rather than a monthly checkup.

Q. Who is the author of the following quotation: "A woman forgives only when she is wrong"?—Kenneth Glover, Denver, Colo.

A. Arsène Houssaye, French writer (1815-1896).

Q. How old is Chiang Kai-shek, and how much money have we given him since 1949?—P. Keller, Texarkana, Texas.

A. Chiang is 75. Since 1949 we've sent him about $3,000,000,000 in foreign aid.

Q. Henry Fonda's daughter Jane has been going with a Greek director, Andreas Voutsinas. I read in PARADE that they were supposed to do a Broadway play together. What happened to it?—Frank Levis, Scranton, Pa.

A. The play, The Fun Couple, opened on Broadway this season, closed after three performances.

Q. When Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt passed away last month, flags were ordered flown at half-mast. Isn't this done every time a First Lady dies?—B. L., Memphis, Tenn.

A. No, it is not. Mrs. Roosevelt was the first President's wife so honored.

Q. What is Rudy Vallee's real name, and is he as "scotch" as the rumors have it?—Denise V., Waterford, Me.

A. Vallee's real name is Hubert Prior Vallee. He adopted the "Rudy" from his boyhood idol, saxophonist Rudy Wiedoft. Vallee is not a spendthrift.

Q. How old is Paul Robeson, and what is he doing?—Oliver York, Troy, N.Y.

A. Robeson is 64, for the past 18 months has been singing in Australia, New Zealand and Europe.

Q. I read that Marlon Brando's present wife starred in the 1935 version of Mutiny on the Bounty. Is it true? How old was she at the time? What role did she play?—L. Hanson, Fairfield, Me.

A. Movita Castenada Brando was 16 at the time. She played the Tahitian girl friend of Fletcher Christian, leader of the mutiny. Clark Gable played the Christian role in the 1935 version.

Q. I've been told that actress Brigitte Bardot suffers from a bad case of acne and must use very thick make-up to hide her skin blemishes. Please verify or deny.—Victor Leshner, Baltimore, Md.

A. Verified. She has a bad skin condition.

Q. Where did Johnny Unitas, the great professional quarterback, play as a college student?—J. P., Winston-Salem, N. C.

A. University of Louisville, Ky.

Q. I understand that a "whiz kid" named Alain Enthoven is really running the Pentagon these days. Who is he?—O. Hans, Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Alain C. Enthoven, 32, Seattle-born economist, is Deputy Assistant Director of Defense in the comptroller branch. Stanford graduate, Rhodes scholar, a doctor of philosophy from M.I.T.—Enthoven is an appointee of Defense Secretary McNamara. He is working on integrating three major elements in the defense program: needs, costs and effects.

Q. Does Ann Sothern suffer from glandular trouble? Is that why she can't reduce? —D. F., Des Moines, Iowa.

A. Miss Sothern has had a weight problem for years, but reportedly it has more to do with her appetite than her glands.

The magical world of make-up

by NANCY HAGEN

HOLLYWOOD.

HAVE YOU EVER WONDERED how come many of the middle-aged actresses you see in the movies and on your TV screen look so youthful?

The one-word answer: Make-up.

In this day of chemical and cosmetic wonder, the tricks of the make-up magician are indeed fabulous. He can take a baggy-eyed woman with sagging flesh, her face deeply rutted and heavily jowled, and in less than an hour transform her into a bright, silken-faced Cinderella.

One magician who's been performing thusly for almost 30 years now is Bill Tuttle, 50, make-up chief at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Tuttle has made up most of the top-flight stars in the film game—everyone from Hedy Lamarr to Elizabeth Taylor—and in the process has developed all sorts of aids to compensate for the ravages of time.

His most valuable device—especially for middle-aged stars—is the lift.

A lift consists of a thin strip of gauze with pinked edges, one end of which is reinforced by double adhesive. Attached to the adhesive is a piece of string or a piece of string and a rubber band. The materials for one lift cost about nine cents.

THE LIFTS ARE USED to pull back and make taut the loose, crepe-like skin around the eyes, forehead, chin and, of course, the neck. They are tied behind the head, and a wig is employed for camouflage.

According to Tuttle, any woman can take 10 years off her age by using these ingenious devices.

Several big-name actresses were asked by PARADE to demonstrate the magic Tuttle works on them, but they refused. Said one in dismay: "Are you crazy or something? Not even my husband knows that I occasionally use lifts!"

The woman in the photos at the right is feature actress Lucille Dare, 49. Lucille reported to MGM one morning at 9:30 A.M., ready for "the works." One hour after Tuttle started on her with his bag of magic, she emerged a youthful 35 and, glancing at herself in the mirror, said she even felt like one.

The photos on the right reveal the step-by-step process used in accomplishing this transformation. Tuttle offers one final bit of wisdom: "The basic process of applying make-up is neither new nor secret. The trick is not so much in the amount of make-up used but rather the manner in which it is applied. Remember that subtlety is the key. A successful make-up for any woman is one in which the desired illusion is effected without visibly divulging the methods employed."

1 MGM make-up expert, Bill Tuttle, with our model Lucille Dare, who has just had make-up and surface oil removed from face and neck.

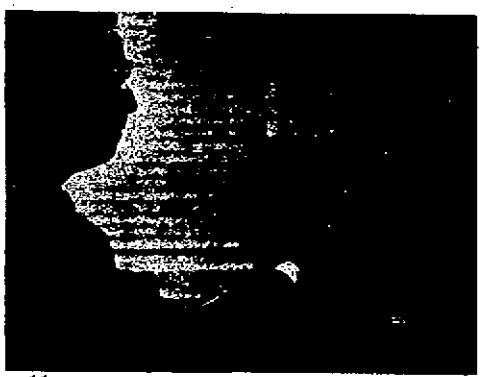

2 Close-up of a lift, showing size and shape. Lift is held against piece of leather for contrast.

6 These lifts are tied together under hairline at base of neck. (Lifts are removed at end of day with acetone or any make-up remover.)

7 After over-all (face, lips and neck) application of a good foundation with a damp sponge, a high-light tone (2 or 3 shades lighter than foundation) is applied to deep wrinkles between nose, mouth and chin, and under eyes.

11 Eye shadow is brushed on subtly with soft brush and blended upward and outward between top of eye socket and outer half of eyebrow.

3 The first lift is placed in front of ear, running down cheek. It's secured by spirit gum brushed on the cheek under and over the gauze.

4 When second lift has been secured on opposite cheek, it's joined to the first by tying string on one to rubber band on other, over crown of head.

5 Another set of lifts is secured on neck below ears.

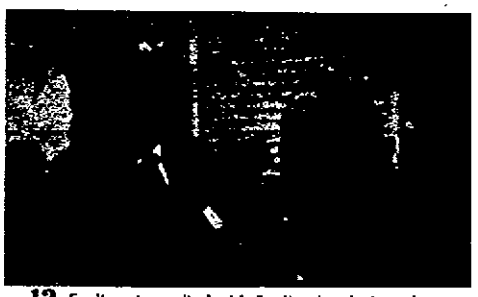

8 Next, a shadow tone (2 or 3 shades darker than foundation) is brushed on tip of nose and down middle of chin, and edges then blended over with foundation. Next, the face and neck receive a generous application of loose face powder which is "beat" into skin with puff to "set" make-up.

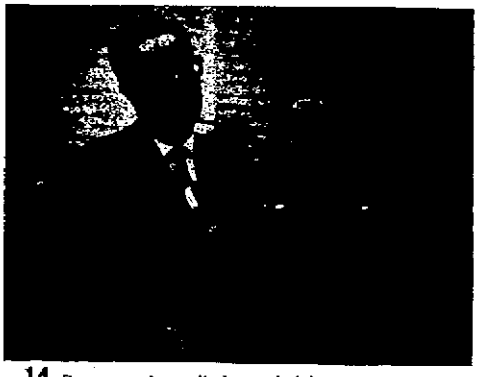

9 Excess powder is brushed away with powder brush; then dampened sponge is rubbed gently over entire area to restore skin texture.

10 The hair across front hairline, from ear to ear, is pinned securely into large pincurls to prepare for wig and also to secure taut skinline before application of eye make-up. (Hairdresser is Mary Keats of MGM.)

13 Eyeliner is applied with fineline brush, just above lash, on upper lid only. Eyebrow pencil is then used to widen and soften this line and extend slightly corners of eyes. The pencil is also used to make soft line beneath lower lid. (Both upper and lower lines are drawn from inner corner toward outer corner and upward.)

14 Dry rouge is applied very lightly with full brush and blended with soft upward strokes from cheekbones toward outer eye corners.

15 False eyelashes are applied (just below eyeliner and above own lashes) with liquid rubber adhesive. Lashes should be trimmed for natural look, snipping them short near the nose and leaving them longer at outer corners. Mascara is then applied to upper and lower lashes, with heavier application at outer corners.

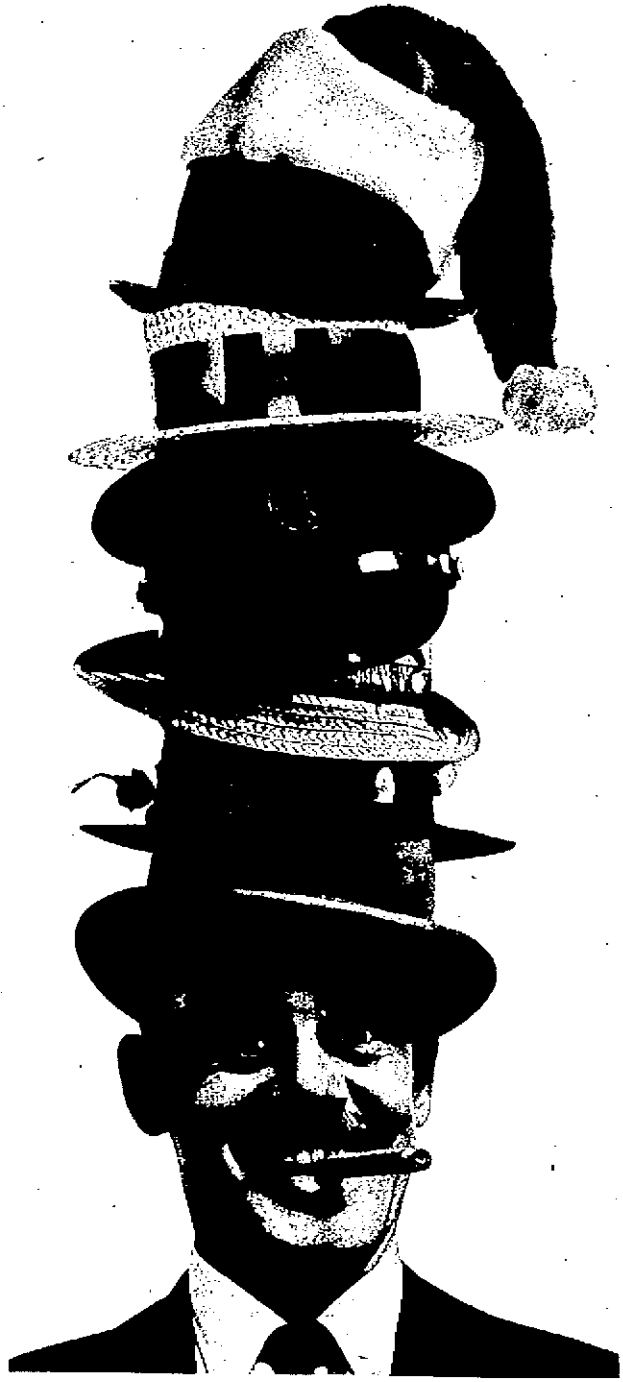

18 Make-up now complete, a wig band (wide strip of gauze) is wound around head, and back and forth over crown, covering all hair, secured at each turn of gauze by hairpins through gauze and into hair.

20 Combed hair conceals all hairpins and lifts on face and neck. Finished product is shown above.

John McCone

Secrecy is his business

by JACK ANDERSON

An interesting study, by Karsh, of the man who heads the Central Intelligence Agency.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

He shuns the press, makes no public speeches, grants no interviews. Even on his rare appearances before congressional committees, he speaks softly and scarcely moves his lips. During his first year as boss, he has drawn the cloak of invisibility ever tighter around the CIA. He would like it to vanish from the limelight altogether.

McCone's insistence on secrecy makes it increasingly difficult to evaluate the work of the CIA, its successes and failures. But this can be said: he has shaken the CIA to its roots and made it a tauter, more efficient cold-war instrument.

His predecessor, Allen Dulles, ran the CIA like a great secret fraternity, of which he was the amiable, tweedy professor, forever lighting, tamping and puffing on his pipe. He was absorbed in the cloak-and-dagger activities of the agency; nothing delighted him more than weaving the threads of international intrigue. But his last grand design—for the Bay of Pigs invasion—didn't turn out according to pattern, and he was gently eased out. As he closed his brief case and crammed on his battered hat, a subordinate whispered softly: "Good-bye, Mr. Chips."

To replace Dulles, President Kennedy called McCone off a California golf course where he had been playing with former Vice-President Richard Nixon. McCone pondered the offer for a week before accepting the post which Sen. Richard Russell, the Senate Armed Services chairman, described as "second in importance only to the office of the President."

As President Kennedy swore McCone in, he said: "You are now on the bull's-eye, and I welcome you to that spot."

A week later, McCone suffered a deep personal tragedy. His wife, Rosemary, died, ending an idyllic 23-year marriage. He salved his grief by submerging himself in his new work.

Taps Public Sources

He performed major surgery on the CIA, cut out whole sections, tied up loose arteries through which valuable information was trickling away. He soon recognized that 80 per cent of intelligence comes not from undercover agents but from public sources. He strengthened the technical teams that process routine information.

Now, behind CIA's barred doors, a doctor can diagnose the illness of a Kremlin official 6,000 miles away; an engineer can figure the performance of a Soviet missile from a news picture mapped during a parade; a scientist can tell almost all there is to know about a Russian H-bomb from a sample of the fallout.

McCone also brought in able assistants. For his deputy, he asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the best man they had, not some chairborne brass hat they wanted to palm off. He was rewarded with Lt. Gen. Marshall Carter, a quietly competent Army officer. For his straw boss, McCone picked blond, brainy Lyman Kirkpatrick, Jr., a polio victim, who works harder from his wheelchair than most men do on their feet.

Away from the office, McCone found comfort in the companionship of a family friend, Mrs. Paul Pigott, whose husband had died only a few weeks after Rosemary McCone. The two women had been as close as sisters and together had chosen the furniture for the McCone home. Nine months after the tragedies in both their lives, John McCone and Theiline McGee Pigott were married. As they set off for a European honeymoon on September 1, crisis was brewing in the Caribbean.

The CIA files were bulging with reports of a Soviet arms build-up in Cuba. Most of the information came from Cuban refugees who were being interviewed at the rate of 250 per day. Unfortunately, the CIA had few reliable contacts in the Cuban underground who could verify the information. It sent a U-2 plane over the island twice a month, but it brought back photographs only of antiaircraft rockets.

The reports were analyzed by the U.S. Intelligence Board, on which sit representatives of the Armed Forces, Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Agency, Federal Bureau of Investigation and CIA. As the President's No. 1 intelligence officer, McCone normally presides.

In Cuba—A Wrong Judgment

The Board sets national intelligence estimates, which form the basis for all our cold-war planning. In the case of Cuba, the board concluded that the Soviet build-up was strictly "defensive." Never before had Russia permitted long-range missiles outside its borders, and it seemed inconceivable that she would plant them in Cuba, on America's doorstep. So the Board advised the President that Premier Khrushchev was interested in Cuba as a political, not a military, base.

But the sudden appearance in Cuba of SA-11 antiaircraft missiles designed to shoot down high-soaring U-2's troubled McCone.

From his honeymoon, he began to pepper the CIA with coded cables. He questioned why the Russians would install rockets to knock down reconnaissance planes unless they had something to hide, and ordered the air watch on Cuba increased.

When McCone returned from his honeymoon he endured yet another personal tragedy. His stepson, Paul "Pat" Pigott, Jr., was killed in the crash of his racing car. McCone had gone to Seattle for the funeral when, on October 15, he was dramatically summoned back to Washington. The first photographs of Russian offensive missiles in Cuba had been developed. From that moment until the Cuban crisis broke, John McCone was at his desk almost day and night.

McCone worked his way up in the steel industry from riveter to tycoon. During World War II, he and his partners turned a swamp into a shipyard, and in 4 years turned out 467 cargo carriers and tankers. One of his partners, Stephen Bechtel, called him "the greatest organizer in the United States."

A Republican, he has served under both Democratic and Republican administrations. He was President Truman's Air Force undersecretary, President Eisenhower's Atomic Energy chairman. Now President Kennedy values his judgment and organizational ability higher than ever.

But it is true that McCone has been—and remains—vigorously anti-Communist. He is more convinced than ever that Nikita Khrushchev always has a trick up his sleeve.

LONG OR SHORT? The battle of the hemline

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

THE LOOK OF ELEGANCE has finally hit home, but not peacefully. Should you wear your at-home skirts ankle length or short? This is the new question for hostesses to ponder this winter.

Fashion dictates the new long look for informal evenings at home, but a large segment of women are going to stand hard and fast by their existing hemlines.

To solve the problem diplomatically, here are the long and short versions of the informal-at-home evening wear. Women who want to feel deliciously feminine are taking up the banner for length. The ladies who like to feel unfettered are wearing their skirts short—just below the kneecap. To bolster their stand, they claim they can wear the same skirt out of the house as well as at home.

We present the twin costumes with attractive pullovers in contrasting fabrics. Which do you prefer, the long or the short skirt?

Different and delicious for Christmas Day – egg nog you eat with a spoon, plus dainty fruit cakelets

New double-rich Christmas dessert

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

To make egg nog cup, combine gelatine and sugar in top of double boiler. Stir in 1 cup of cold egg nog. Then stir this mixture over boiling water until gelatine and sugar are dissolved. Remove from heat and add remaining egg nog. Add rum flavoring. Chill until slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Whip gelatine mixture until it is light and fluffy; then fold in whipped cream. Spoon into individual punch cups; chill until firm. Store in refrigerator until ready to serve. Garnish with additional whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 12 servings (½ cup each).

1 quart bottled nonalcoholic egg nog • 4 teaspoons rum flavoring
1 cup heavy cream, whipped • nutmeg

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sam Levenson, New York-born former school teacher and violinist, now star of TV and supper clubs, is a crack monologist who specializes in family humor. His act is based mostly on the comparison between today's privileged youth and memories of his own. "We didn't know we were underprivileged in my family," he says, "because our parents never told us. I was one of eight kids; the first one up in the morning was the best-dressed." Levenson lives in Brooklyn, N.Y., where he has become something of a folk hero.

my favorite jokes

by SAM LEVENSON

If the authorities on child care told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but about the joys of raising kids—there would be no more kids.

A father I know, one of those do-it-yourself fellows, had just finished applying the last touches to his brand new patio when his little boy walked into the nice, fresh cement dragging his kiddy-car behind him. The loving daddy landed a clout on the kid's head. The clout made such noise it attracted the attention of the neighbors.

"Hey, I thought you liked kids," one neighbor protested.

"I do," said the father. "I like them in the abstract, but not in the concrete."

One grandma told me that her darling grandson, age 4, came to spend the day with her recently. Towards evening grandma called her daughter and said, "When do you want me to bring Bobby home?" Without a second's hesitation the mother answered: "When he's 21."

The young father of eight assorted kids answered the doorbell. He found himself facing a man carrying a small black bag. "Dear Lord," he muttered. "I hope you're the piano tuner."

One smart couple I know have worked out an agreement which guarantees a long and happy marriage. "It's this way," the wife explains. "We swore on a Bible that whichever one of us asks for a divorce will have to take the seven children."

I think that marriages would last longer if prospective couples were told in advance that children are frequently as wacky as they are wonderful, and that wives and husbands run at about the same percentages. As one insurance company questionnaire puts it: "Have you ever been judged insane by anyone outside your immediate family?"

The modern woman feels that without romance her marriage has been a failure. Not so my mom. She used to look at her eight kids and say: "It's a lucky thing papa ain't romantic yet."

On the subject of raising kids my father anticipated President Kennedy by about 40 years when he said, "Ask not what I can do for my children, but what can they do for me."

I'm glad I'm not a mother. Thank heaven I've got the greatest excuse in the world for leaving the scene of the crime every morning. A man's got to go to work. What an out! Most mothers would trade places with their husbands at half the salary. "I'll go to work. You stay home!"

As an emancipated husband, let me be the first to admit that there is no harder work in all the world than staying home all day with the children. As one mother put it at the end of a long diaper-washing day, "I can't figure out why the nations of the world would want to live together like one big family."

BO BROWN

MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
Italy's newest export

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

THE MOST SOUGHT-AFTER international leading man in motion pictures at the moment is a tall, thin, handsome Italian blessed with soulful, sophisticated brown bedroom eyes. He is named Marcello Mastroianni.

These are four of his most recent and successful films which have played or are still on release in this country.

For the 38-year-old Italian actor they've aroused a dedicated following, particularly among women movie-goers who describe him as "a Roman dreamboat . . . the sexiest male since Rudolph Valentino."

In Hollywood a few weeks ago, where he was offered long-term contracts by five major studios, all of which he refused, Mastroianni turned out to be one of the most frank, honest, outspoken actors this town has ever welcomed. Usually foreign stars arriving here become as phony as three-dollar bills, posturing, posing and pretending.

Not so Marcello. Speaking to him in Italian, because his English is scanty, I asked Mastroianni if he agreed that his appeal was primarily physical and limited to women.

Why He Appeals to Women

"Who is so wise," he answered, "that he knows what appeals to women? I think the audience likes me because I represent to them the average, weak, immature, mixed-up, wary man—a man puzzled by life, who finds himself swept along by the broom of circumstance. They are trying to make me out a great lover. Maybe that's my screen image. But I am no great lover. Ask my wife. I'm too thin. Look at my arms, my legs—no muscles.

"At best," he continued, "I am what you would call 'simpatico,' which is not too translatable into English. But I am also lazy, something of a hypocrite, frequently dull, occasionally enthusiastic. I have learned to take life as it comes, and frankly I regard my screen success as a happy accident.

"I am not going to sit here and tell you, 'I was always burning with the desire to become a motion picture star—I knew if I worked hard enough I would make it.' Nonsense. I come from poor peasant stock in Fontana Liri, a small town near Rome. My father was a carpenter. We were very poor. As a boy I wanted to be a construction engineer, build houses. I still want to do that, but let's face it. I am now irrevocably lost. I don't have the will power to chuck $60,000 a picture and suddenly start drawing plans and laying bricks.

"I am an actor, which seems to me an unmasculine profession. All actors are insincere. We don't like our original identities, so we take on others. After a while we don't know who or what we are. I started out knowing who I was. I wanted to be Mastroianni, the construction man, but while I was studying surveying I drifted into amateur theatricals. Then when I couldn't find work as a builder, I turned to the other thing I knew, which was acting, and as an actor I found work on the stage. And then after the war, I began to make movies. Now I alternate between the two, but mostly I do movies.

Mastroianni as he appears in Divorce—Italian Style.

"Because of this, journalists ask my opinion about many subjects as if it is worth something. I know it is not. I am no authority. I know practically nothing about literature, art, music, but they ask me. And mostly they ask about women. 'What do you think of American women?' I hardly know any American women. To me they seem too practical. Beautiful, well-cared-for bodies without souls. As soon as we are introduced, they say 'Ah, you are an Italian.' A big joke! Then they add: 'We can believe nothing you say. You are all such outrageous flatterers.'

No Imagination

"American women don't seem to understand that to an Italian a woman represents dreams, fantasy, life in limitless horizons. So many women are singularly without imagination. To tell you the truth, here in America I love more to look at the houses, the buildings, the streets, than the women.

"What kind of a great lover would you call that?" the actor demanded. "As a movie star I guess I am a big disappointment to you. Probably what you call a jerk."

I assured Signor Mastroianni that he was quite the opposite, in fact the rarest movie star I had ever interviewed, one who was brutally, completely and refreshingly honest.

In Hollywood they don't make that kind, and never have.

Oh, yes—Mastroianni is married. His wife, Flora Carabella, is a former actress. They have a 10-year-old daughter, Barbara.

"The two women in my family," he says, "are good souls. They tolerate me." ■

TEENAGE TAKEOVER. By 1965 half the people in the U.S. will be under 25 years of age, constituting the fastest-growing segment in the consumer market.

MARCH OF DIMES. Upcoming in January is a March of Dimes TV spectacular starring Bing Crosby, Dean Martin, Ed Wynn, many of the nation's show biz greats. The National Foundation is now in its 25th year, and since infantile paralysis is on the wane, the Foundation, through the March of Dimes, is currently dedicated to establishing a nationwide network of medical care centers for victims of birth defects and arthritis as well as polio.

SOFT-WATER MYSTERY. Persons living in British cities with soft water die of heart disease at a rate more than one-third higher than those who live in hard-water communities. Why? Dr. Jeremy Morris of London, who made the survey, can offer no reason for the fact. "To tell the truth," he says, "we haven't the foggiest."

FACT OF LIFE. In 1915 one in every 10 babies died before its first birthday. Today it's about 1 in 40 in the U.S. Approximately 30% more male babies than female babies die in the first year. Utah has the lowest infant death rate -- only 20 deaths per 1,000. Highest death rate is in the southern states.

AIR UNION. It's just a question of time before Air France, Lufthansa, Alitalia, Sabena and other European airlines form an Air Union as a logical extension of the Common Market. They will probably do it before 1963 is out. Here's the way it will work: Each carrier will maintain its separate identity, but all will combine their financial accounts and operate on a quota system, using the same operations facilities to cut costs and compete against American and British companies. The merger into Air Union may cause Pan Am and TWA to pool resources on the international routes.

DON'T MARRY YOUNG. Teenagers who get married are asking for trouble. Within five years of the marriage ceremony, according to sociologists, such youngsters usually wind up in marital trouble. Nicholas Suntzeff, executive director of the Family Service Agency of Marin County, a suburb of San Francisco with one of the highest per capita incomes in California, points out that within five years most teenage couples have undertaken extramarital romances. By the time they're in their early 20s, they rebel against the responsibility that comes with early parenthood. Young wives usually say: "I really didn't know anything about boys. My husband was the first boy I dated." The husbands usually say: "She rushed me into marriage. I didn't have a chance to look around." Best advice to teenagers contemplating marriage: "Take your time in choosing a mate. Date as much as you want to, as much as you need to. There is always time for marriage."

U.S. LENSPOWER. Aerial reconnaissance has become a fine art. Our photo planes are now equipped with such powerful lenses that a photograph of you can be taken from an altitude of 80,000 feet which will reveal how tall you are, the size of your house, the condition of your front lawn. It takes trained photo interpreters, however -- military intelligence specialists -- to tell what is what and analyze the details, as they did so well in the Cuban affair.

Desi has a smile for new president of Desilu Productions.

LUCY TAKES OVER. Inside story on Desi Arnaz' resignation as president of Desilu Productions: For years Desi has been going around Hollywood complaining, "The television rat race is for the birds. Someday I'm gonna walk away from it." One day last month when Desilu Productions was in excellent financial shape, profits up and future rosy, the volatile Cuban-born ex-husband of Lucille Ball did exactly that. He offered Lucy his 300,350 shares of Desilu stock for $2,500,000, bringing her total holdings to 52%, and she readily accepted. A self-made millionaire at 46, Desi makes no secret of the fact that in recent years he has become addicted to horses and golf. He plans to spend most of his time between his $500,000 Corona breeding farm and his $500,000 Indian Wells Hotel near Palm Springs. By concentrating on tees and turf and similar pleasurable pursuits, Desi hopes to live to a ripe old age. "Packaging television shows," he declares, "is the quickest route to the mortuary yet undertaken by man."

KEPT MILK. Milk which will keep for six weeks without refrigeration is now being secretly tested in Switzerland. The basis of the process is rapid heating and cooling and a bacteria-free container. Biggest problem has been the bacteria-free container which last week was solved by AB Tetra-Pak of Lund, Sweden. The manufacturers have developed a special paper carton which assures a bacteria-free milk. It's hoped that eventually this will lead to once-per-week milk deliveries.

ACTORS HOLD PAY LINE. For the first time in 29 years the nation's film actors have agreed to by-pass any wage hike or improvement in working conditions. Reason: The actors want to combat runaway productions, get more producers to turn out more films in Hollywood than in Europe. Most producers admit that production costs are staggering because they haven't got the guts to try new actors instead of the proven few like Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando and Cary Grant, whose take on a film frequently exceeds $1,000,000.

WORKING GALS and HEART ATTACKS. Women suffer fewer heart attacks than men. Why? Many doctors agree women are simply stronger, that their hormones protect them against the possible ravages of excess cholesterol. Now comes a study which points out that women would probably be stricken by heart disease as often as men if they were subjected to the same competitive pressures. Of 345 female heart attacks studied by Drs. Norman Blackman and Yosuf Kologlu, 55% occurred in women engaged in commerce or industry. But only 9% occurred between the ages of 40 to 49, while 39% occurred between the ages of 50 to 70, proving that in the majority of cases female hormone production had diminished or ceased entirely at the time of the attack.

Ex-Radio Priest Breaks Silence

By HAROLD SCHACHERN
Copyright by Detroit Daily News

DETROIT (AP) — The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, one of the most controversial American figures in the 20th Century, broke a 20-year public silence Saturday.

And the once-famed radio priest insisted in an exclusive interview he was right in his caustic denunciations of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in the days during the rise of Hitler and the world's move toward World War II in the 1930s.

He said:

"I still think I was right, for instance, in breaking with Mr. Roosevelt for recognizing Russia. I still think I was right when I opposed him for giving the Russians $11 million to set them up in business. And I still think I was right in opposing our entry into the war on the side of Russia."

NO COLLISION IN TWO WEEKS

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

Two strips of white paint, each two feet wide, have put an abrupt halt to Death Alley's tragic traffic toll, Lt. Orville James of the Long Beach Police Department reported Saturday. The cost was about $500.

Since the strips of reflecting paint were placed on the inner edges of Long Beach Freeway between Artesia Street and Pacific Coast Highway, there has not been a single collision.

The strips were painted two weeks ago.

Prior to their installation, 20 people had been killed and nearly 100 seriously injured since Jan. 1 of this year.

The city's section of the freeway, from Pacific Coast Highway south to the ocean, is to get similar strips immediately, Lt. James reported.

The freeway north of PCH is the responsibility of the State Division of Highways, which applied the reflecting paint.

It was a study of the Long Beach Freeway's traffic toll made by Lt. James and his staff that resulted in an expose by The Independent, Press-Telegram, in November, of the situation.

At that time, Lt. James said the freeway—christened "Death Alley"—was poorly lighted, poorly policed and lacked safeguards for motorists.

He noted particularly that night drivers had difficulty following the curving lines of the road.

Lt. James said:

"We cannot expect to end traffic accidents and fatalities with a strip of paint, because of the human factors involved. But we have provided motorists with some sort of protection, and the results show it works."

Lt. James said the assignment of additional officers to patrol "Death Alley" must also be considered a factor in halting the death toll.

"For two weeks we issued a great many citations to speeders, reckless drivers and drinking drivers. The result of that campaign is reflected in the fact that our officers are issuing far fewer citations now."

Another project to increase safeguards on the freeway is now in the planning stage. Reflecting barricades will be placed on the divider strip, to prevent out-of-control cars from crossing to the wrong lanes.

Plans for this are being drawn by the state, and the city has announced it will carry the same safeguards through its section of the highway.

FLIER'S WIFE UNEASY

'Silly Feeling' Traps Bandit

By GEORGE ROBESON

When Abe Paster landed his plane at McCarran Field in Las Vegas, the lights went out at the gas pumps and in the Alamo Airways office. It was the first unusual thing that had happened to him all night, as far as he knew.

But unusual things had been happening for several hours.

His passenger was a 27-year-old man who had wired himself as a "human bomb" a few hours before to rob a Long Beach bank. Paster's wife, at their home at 3302 Huntley Dr., Rossmoor, was in telephone contact with the FBI in Los Angeles.

And a dozen FBI agents were waiting for Paster's passenger in the darkened airline office.

The passenger was Allen Ray Lisenbury of Shasta County, Calif., and the briefcase he carried on the two-hour flight from Fullerton Airport contained six sticks of dynamite which he could detonate either of two ways. It also contained $29,547 of the $29,980 Lisenbury had taken in his robbery of the Security First National Bank of Long Beach Friday afternoon.

He had held bank manager Roy Showalter, 44, and bank operations officer M. B. Park, 55, at gunpoint for an hour and 15 minutes before leaving with the money.

The bankers gave him the money — $20,000 in cash and a cashier's check for $9,980 — when Lisenbury convinced them he had a briefcase full of dynamite and a bottle of nitroglycerin with which he would blow up the building if defied.

• • • •

AT 7:15 P.M., Lisenbury arrived at the Paster home. He wanted Paster, who owns the Sunset Beach Charter Service, to fly him to Las Vegas.

"I don't know what it was," said Paster's wife, Betty, 34. "Just a hunch, I guess, but I kept asking him questions. He didn't seem to be right."

For one thing, the man would not remove his black gloves. Mrs. Paster could not know that the glove on Lisenbury's left hand contained a battery and wires to detonate the dynamite in his briefcase.

• • • •

"MY TWO-year-old girl started to play with his briefcase, and he became very frightened," Mrs. Paster said.

"I really pumped him. His answers didn't always agree. I began to feel suspicious, even thought I told myself I had no reason to. I get these hunches now and then."

Mrs. Paster did not know of the bank robbery in Long Beach. But another hunch told her to call the FBI

Laughton, Dramatic Star, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Charles Laughton, whose gluttonous performance as Henry VIII and exquisite sadism as Captain Bligh became screen classics, died of cancer Saturday. He was 63.

Laughton waged a long but hopeless fight against cancer. He had been growing steadily worse during the past few weeks.

Laughton knew for some time he was afflicted by the disease that first was detected by doctors last January. He underwent surgery last summer when the malignancy reached his spine.

After the spinal operation the actor was subjected to cobalt treatment, but recently chemical therapy was used.

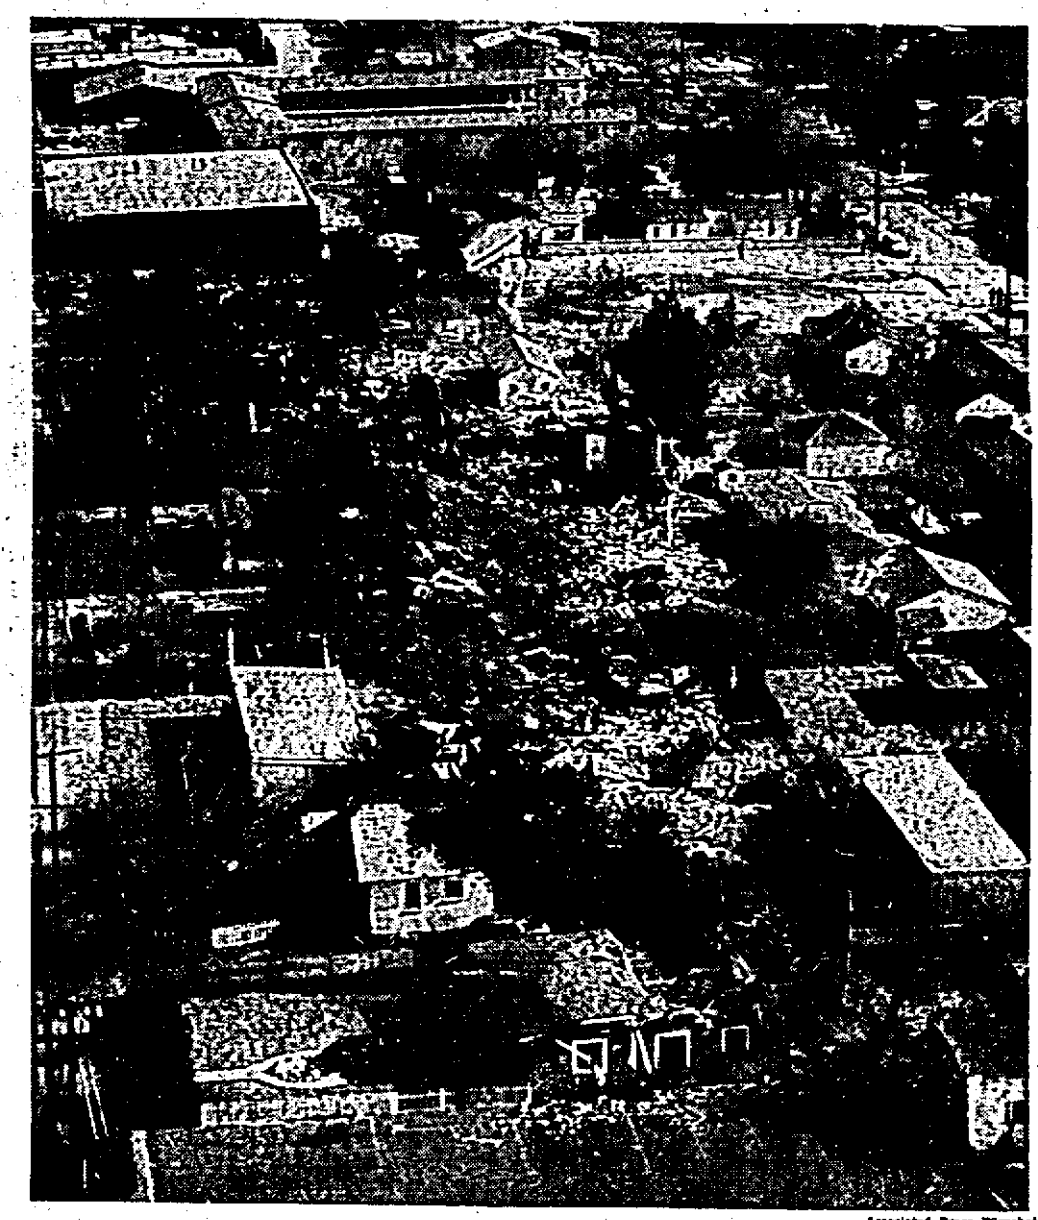

• • • •

LAUGHTON, a master thespian in the British tradition equally at home in comic and tragic roles, had been troubled by a back ailment for several years. The ailment was treated previously in early June during a five-day stay at New York's Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases.

At the time, Laughton's manager, Bob Hulton, said the rotund actor's back had been bothering him for some 20 years. He had twisted his spine in an accident some three weeks before he entered the hospital.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Civil Aeronautics Board investigators dug through charred wreckage Saturday, trying to learn why a four-propeller cargo airliner crashed in flames in a San Fernando Valley residential-industrial area Friday night. Nine persons died.

More plane and home wreckage pictures are on Page A-21.

The Flying Tiger Line Super Constellation, arriving after a regular daily flight from Boston and Chicago, tore down crackling power lines and smashed or burned nine houses and two industrial plants. Two houses were destroyed.

The liner, flying eastward, crashed at 10:10 p.m. about a mile short of its goal—Lockheed Air terminal. Its gas tanks

Cuba Purge of Consuls Under Way

MADRID (AP)—Cuban sources here said Saturday a sweeping shakeup is under way in Fidel Castro's diplomatic and consular service in Europe, with many consular and other envoys either quitting or being removed.

Behind these moves, these sources said, is a desire of some anti-Communist Cuban officials to get out, and a general move from Havana to weed out all representatives of doubtful loyalty to Castro.

Five Cuban consuls and vice consuls in Madrid, Vigo, Sevilla, and Barcelona are reported to have resigned or been ousted. All five were described by anti-Castro Cubans here as basically anti-Communist.

Cuban sources here said the former Cuban ambassador to Austria, Fernando Gainza Gonzalez, had arrived in Spain by automobile after abandoning his Vienna post. He was expected to seek political asylum, they asserted.

• • • •

SPANISH government officials would not comment on these developments and the Cubans themselves could not be located for comment.

Among consular officials ousted in Spain is 72-year-old Luis Sotto, Cuban consul in Madrid. He is a career veteran of 43 years in the Cuban consular service. In affirming that he had received a message of dismissal, he said he intends to remain in this country.

Others named by Cuban sources as quitting their posts or being removed were Vice Consul Oscar Lorenzo Jorganes in Madrid, Consul Virgillo Remos Carballai in Vigo, Consul Josafina Quinones in Sevilla, and Consul Luis Bas Molina in Barcelona.

A 20-year-old member of the Cuban Embassy staff named Del Rio is said to have taken over the Madrid consulate, while two Embassy staff members left here for Vigo to take over the consulate there, Cuban sources said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The SS African Pilot has been placed on stand-by ready to sail Monday night for Miami to take on medicines and other supplies demanded by Cuban Premier Castro in exchange for Cuban invasion prisoners, the Baltimore Sun reported Saturday night.

Dentists Get New Charter

By BEN ZINSER
Medical—Science Editor

The Harbor Dental Society pulled out of the Los Angeles County Dental Society Saturday, a move that will ultimately improve the dental health of the community.

More than $12,000 which formerly went to the county organization annually, now will be retained by the harbor society, to be used for more extensive school dental health programs.

The harbor society, 420 dentists in 26 communities, was granted a component charter Saturday by a unanimous vote of the executive council of the Southern California State Dental Association. It becomes effective Jan. 1, 1963.

• • • •

COMPONENT status, which means the local society now rates official recognition by the California Dental Association and the American Dental Association, climaxes three years of work by local dental officials.

The move was initiated by Dr. H. Chester Moore of Long Beach when he was president of the Los Angeles County Dental Society in 1959.

It wasn't until last April, however, that state by-laws were amended at a state convention to permit county society districts to apply for a component charter.

Dr. W. Howard Davis, Bellflower, president of the harbor society, said that withdrawal from the county society will enable the harbor organization to earmark an additional $12,000 or

3 Tots Die in Fire on Air Force Base

MINOT, N. D. (AP)—Three children died in a fire which swept their family apartment on the Minot Air Force Base Saturday night.

They were David, 4, Richard, 2, and Cathy, 1, the children of Tech Sgt. and Mrs. Charles H. Guthary.

Greek Ship Sinks; Crew Safe

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands, Sunday (AP)—The Greek steamship Aristoteles radioed today she was sinking in the North Atlantic and her crew had abandoned ship.

Distress messages picked up here by Dirkzwager's Shipping Agency said 27 members of the Aristoteles' crew were taken aboard another Greek steamship, the 8,583-ton Hydroussa.

2 Peace Corps Members Safe

LABUAN, North Borneo (AP)—Two American Peace Corps members were reported safe Saturday after being trapped for four days in rebel-infested territory in Sarawak.

Reports reaching here said Fritz Klatenhoff, 19, of Washington, D.C., was freed by British Marine Commandos Wednesday after being a prisoner of the rebel Northern Borneo National Army at Limbang in Northeast Sarawak.

The second Peace Corps member was Andy E. Powers of Fresno, Calif. He was stationed at Lawas, which was surrounded, but never taken by the rebels.

INEFFECTIVE AGAINST MISSILES

Air Defense Ready to Repulse Bombers

By LEE CRAIG
Military—Space Editor

COLORADO SPRINGS — North America's vast, incredibly complex air defense system, extending from the polar ice cap to the Mexican border and from east to west far beyond the edges of the continent, today stands ready to do the job for which it was designed.

Created to defend this country and Canada from nuclear attack by manned bombers, the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) is capable of holding losses from such an attack to a minimum so that our striking force remains able to counter with massive retaliatory blows.

America's sky shield, however, is almost useless as an active defense against the main Soviet threat: intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Along the Arctic Circle, from Alaska to Greenland and in the United Kingdom, gigantic radars of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System — BMEWS — probe beams 3,000 miles into space searching for signs of missile firings.

These monstrous radars — each larger than a football field — would provide NORAD with, at best, 15 minutes warning of a Russian ICBM attack from northern launch sites . . . enough time for our worldwide forces to strike back devastatingly.

But if the Red attack should come from the south with extended range ICBMs,

L.A.C. Says:

G.O.P. Hassle

The Republican Party leaders in California are doing a lot of campaigning to see who is to lead the party for the next two years. The hassle is over who will be the head of the state central committee now held by Chairman Caspar "Cap" Weinberger. We hear stories how Shell-Knight-Powers are moving to take over this leadership. The result of these movements may decide if Republicans will continue as a strong force or again be dissipated by dissensions and bitterness. It would be a tragic loss to the state if this is to continue.

Animosities continue over the parts played in the recent campaign by Shell, Knight and Powers. Shell was reticent in his support of Nixon. Knight refused to support him and Powers endorsed Brown. This was another split in the party that caused its defeat. With only a 3 per cent margin enjoyed by Brown, it is very probable the party would have been victorious had these former party leaders given it their full support. The question now is, Will they combine their efforts for the coming campaigns, or continue to sulk and discourage a united party?

The Republican organization in the state did a remarkable job. Its precinct work and local organizations generally were made up of dedicated workers. As their campaign was reaching its heights of achievement, the Cuban crisis changed the whole picture. But it is doubtful any other leadership could have materially improved the organization work that was done.

It seems to this writer that the outstanding vote-getter for any state office was George Christopher. As candidate for Lieutenant Governor he came within about two percentage points of defeating the incumbent. His campaign was largely eclipsed by the savagery of the Nixon-Brown and Rafferty-Richardson campaigns. The large vote he received was a tribute to his long record as Mayor of San Francisco and in the Republican Party. The only state Republican candidate with a larger vote was the incumbent Secretary of State Jordan, who has announced his retirement.

If an individual is to lead the Republican Party in California, Christopher certainly stands out as a logical candidate. In Long Beach he carried the city by a margin of 8,000 votes over his incumbent opponent. It is an example of how his prestige has held up during the turmoil within the party the past five years.

The time is about here for the party to organize for 1964. It is time for every Republican to avoid the inter-party wrangles that came near to destroying it. It was not destroyed. It recovered to prove itself a vital fighting force that came close to victory. But it was not helped by those who placed personal grievances or pride and ambition before their loyalty to the party and its candidates elected in the primaries.

It is encouraging to find so many of the precinct workers who continue to show their dedication to the party and the principles for which it stands. These people are not concerned over personalities or leadership as long as it is dynamic and dedicated to the party principles and victory. This is essential to the preservation of the two-party system and the American way. It calls for leadership from men and women who have demonstrated their dedication and loyalty to these principles. Those of the party who consider themselves conservatives or liberals, should realize that they are not far apart in fundamental philosophy. But they permit their common opponents to accentuate their differences to the point of dividing their real strength. There should be a mutual understanding that from now on they will fight against Democratic candidates and not each other. The trend toward socialism will be slowed only if Republicans accept this responsibility of unity and discard dissensions.—L.A.C.

* * * *

AS PASTER and his passenger drove toward Fullerton, the vast machinery of the FBI swung into action. Mrs. Paster told agents what time the pair would arrive at Fullerton Airport, and what the flight plan probably would be. She warned them not to contact her husband by radio in mid-flight, for Lisenbury would be able to hear it on the airplane's loudspeaker. She listed the radio contacts her husband would make en route, and what alternate fields he might chose if his passenger suddenly decided the plane should be turned back.

Meanwhile, a dozen Las Vegas agents rushed to McCarran Field to make arrangements with airport employes. (Los Angeles agents had missed Paster and Lisenbury at the Fullerton Airport by 10 minutes.)

* * * *

LISENBURY chatted pleasantly during the flight. He said he wanted to learn to fly. The two men drank coffee and at sandwiches.

As Paster brought the plane to a halt on the landing strip at McCarran, a gas boy came out of the Alamo Airways office. The lights at the gas pumps and in the office went out.

"Looks like we blew a fuse again," the gas attendant said to Paster. Then, to Lisenbury. "Follow me, sir. I'll show you were you can get a cab." And this seemed odd to Paster.

* * * *

LISENBURY, still carrying the briefcase full of ynamite, was led into the darkened office where he was immediately overwhelmed by the federal agents.

Paster learned the whole story a few minutes later when the lights went back on and he entered the office. He called his wife immediately.

"How in the world did you know who he was, honey?" he asked.

"I didn't," said Mrs. Paster. "It was just one of my silly feelings."

"I've gotta hand it to her and her silly feelings," Paster said Saturday.

BETTY PASTER of Rossmoor, whose intuition led to the capture of "human bomb" bank bandit Allen Lisenbury, points to Independent story on holdup. Her husband, Abe, 42, flew Lisenbury to Las Vegas Saturday night after Lisenbury went to Paster home at 3302 Huntley Drive, Rossmoor, and asked for Paster's charter service. Looking on are Lee, 11, Joy, 2, and Bev, 7.

CROWDS SEE NAPLES PARADE

By RALPH HINMAN JR.

It was a real swingin' parade through the Naples waterways Saturday night!

Brightly lighted boats, barges — and Grinch, a "captured marine monster" — moved along canals and bay to the audible delight of many thousands of spectators.

Music echoing between the water and gaily-lit houses included traditional Christmas carols—plus South Seas hula bongos.

Even the weather handsomely cooperated.

A predicted rain shower failed to fall, temperatures stayed in the high 50s and visibility, undimmed by more than a trace of fog, was excellent.

Onlookers began assembling along the parade route well before sundown, hours before the 6:30 starting time. Then, after the 38 parade units moved into position, the crowds loudly applauded their favorites.

Cries of "Merry Christmas!" rang between boats and shore and back again.

Two crowd favorites were a sea monster, "Grinch that stole Christmas" before being "captured by the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club," and four "Christmas toys" assembled by "just a gang of kids."

The monster, complete with flippers, deep groan, steamy breath and an ugly human face attracted much attention: "What is it?"

Pulled behind an old-style "toy fire engine" were a pair of building blocks and a jack-in-the-box, the Yule toys.

Other displays included: tortoise-and-hare; Long Beach Camp Fire girls singing carols from a barge; missile-pulling sleigh; Marine color guard; and, naturally, Santa Claus, plus many others.

The show, sponsored by Naples Improvement Association, will be repeated tonight after a 6:15 starting time.

Route to be followed remains unchanged: starting near 2nd Street and Bay Shore, following Bay Shore to Appian Way Bridge, east to Marine Stadium, under J. H. Davies Bridge, past Basin 4 and Long Beach Yacht Club, to Vista del Golfe, entering and leaving canals at the Colonnade. Then, moves around floating Christmas trees near 2nd Street Bridge, down Bay Shore to Peninsula, into Alamitos Bay Marina Basin 1 to disband.

Romney Shuns Own Compact for His Rivals'

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Gov.-elect George Romney will have a new, low-priced auto as his official car when he takes office next year, but it won't be a Rambler.

Romney, whose leadership revived the American Motors Corp. and made it a money-maker through volume sale of the Rambler, has told state police he wants a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth for everyday use. All three models are produced in Michigan, while the Rambler is made in Wisconsin.

Romney will retain for standby use on special occasions the luxurious Chrysler Crown Imperial limousine which outgoing Gov. John B. Swainson and former Gov. G. Mennen Williams used as the official car for the past four years.

Ask PUC Regulation of California Airlines

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A legislative committee has recommended that commercial aircraft operating solely within California be regulated by the State Public Utilities Commission.

The assembly interim committee on public utilities and corporations announced the recommendation was included in a report to be submitted next month to the 1963 legislature. Legislation designed to implement the committee's recommendations also will be introduced, the group said.

Spain Warns of Threat by Communists

MADRID (AP) — Spain's government feels it is the main target of a new communist campaign from abroad. For the first time it is telling its own people about the threat.

Swedish newspapers are encouraged to publish details of the anti-Franco activities abroad. Such a thing was unheard of in previous years.

Franco officials, including two cabinet ministers who called news conferences to discuss the situation, say international Communism openly guided a recent series of attacks on Spain and its 70-year-old leader, Gen. Francisco Franco. Both described recent activity as part of a Communist plot to subvert in turn Portugal, Spain, Greece and West Germany.

Plan Underground Fuel Pipes at Idlewild

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Port of New York Authority has disclosed plans for a $20 million, 50-mile network of underground pipes at Idlewild Airport which will virtually eliminate the need for fuel trucks.

Plans call for the pipe network, which will be able to distribute 5 million gallons of aircraft fuel daily, to be completed by 1964.

EXTEND PROGRAM TO CALIFORNIA

Food Stamp Plan to Aid Needy Said Proving Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After experimenting in test areas for 16 months, the Kennedy Administration appears ready to embrace the Food Stamp Plan as a permanent project to improve the health of the nation's poor, . . . Howard P. Davis, director of food distribution for the Agriculture Department, estimated about 4 million people would be eligible if the program were nationwide.

President Kennedy set up the plan shortly after taking office two years ago. Its purpose is to cut farm surpluses and help raise the nutritional level of men, women and children who are destitute and hungry or whose income is so meager that their diets are sub-standard.

It provides families with coupons—the food stamps—which may be exchanged for groceries at a neighborhood store.

THE PILOT food stamp operation began in May, 1961. It was tried in selected counties of Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. About 150,000 persons received the stamps during this test stage.

The Agriculture Department now is extending it to test counties in Alabama, California, Kansas, Louisiana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Washington, Wisconsin, Arkansas, North Carolina, Oregon, Virginia, Missouri, Indiana and Tennessee.

Those close to the study say the pilot operation already has proved the idea will work. Additional research is needed only for refinement of administrative machinery. Then the prospects are it will stop being an experiment and become an institution.

EMBASSY AIDE STILL ON JOB

(Combined Wire Services)

ATLANTA—A U.S. Embassy official in Moscow telephoned his mother in Atlanta to assure her Saturday that he was all right after the Russians accused him of espionage. He was one of three Americans most recently accused of spying.

Mrs. Hal M. Davison, mother of Air Force Capt. Alexis H. Davison, said her son reported that he would continue in his Moscow assignment until his duty tour ends May 1.

"He said the whole thing was tremendously exaggerated," said Mrs. Davison, referring to reports of the spy charges.

• • • •

"OF COURSE I did not ask him whether the accusations were true or unfounded," said Mrs. Davison who ridiculed the charges as typical of the Russians.

"The Soviets are always doing that," said Mrs. Davison, who is Russian-born.

The allegations published in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda brought to seven the number of persons accused here of spy activities for the West within six weeks. They include five U.S. diplomats, a British businessman and a Russian scientist.

Two other American diplomats were expelled on spy charges earlier in the year.

DAVISON Montgomery

GERMAN JACOB

Pravda, promising more disclosures, named these other Embassy officials in a cloak-and-dagger description of the alleged network:

—Hugh Montogomery, 39, of Springfield, Mass., attache and security officer.

—Robert K. German, 35, of Dallas, Tex., second secretary.

Neither the Embassy nor the three men would comment on the charges. No expulsion orders have been received from the Foreign Ministry.

The Embassy declined comment, but Carlson said in Copenhagen he was not ordered to leave by Russia or the Embassy. It was believed, however, there were fears for his security and that embarrassment over the charges no longer permitted him to carry out his duties.

• • • •

THE EMBASSY has denied spy charges against Richard C. Jacob, 30, of Egg Harbor, N.J., secretary-archivist who was expelled in early November.

Russia has jailed British businessman Greville Wynne, arrested in Budapest, who claims he has confessed. Also under detention and presumably awaiting trial with Wynne is Oleg V. Penkovsky, employe of the Soviet State Committee for Coordination of Scientific Work.

With this cast of characters, Pravda gave the following description of how the so-called spy ring worked:

Penkovsky, the key contact man, would draw a circle with a piece of coal on a gray lamppost at a bus stop in front of Davison's downtown Moscow apartment whenever he had information to pass. The apartment is near the Embassy.

Davison knew when to look for the signal because on the previous day Penkovsky telephoned twice in succession each to Davison and Montgomery with the Russian hanging up when they answered.

Davison would loiter around the post or pretend to line up for a bus. When he spotted the coal mark at knee-high level he would hop into his car and dash for the Embassy. Once in his rush to get to the Embassy he made an illegal U-turn, Pravda said.

• • • •

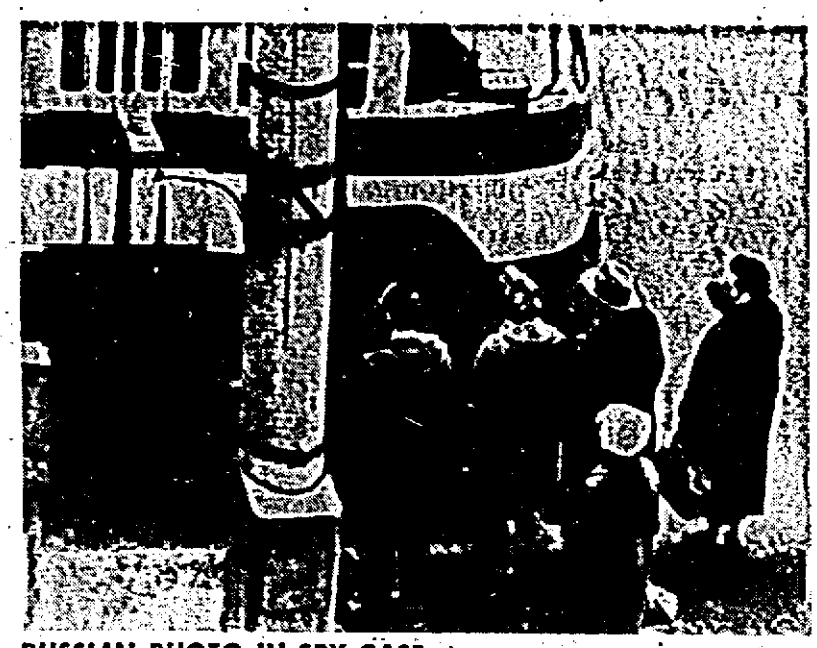

THEN JACOB and German would drive to a downtown bookstore. German would browse around and read while he held books "with trembling hands," the Communist newspaper said. Jacob would walk over to 5/6 Pushkin Street where he would find a matchbook of secrets wired to a radiator under a stairway.

Pravda published a photograph of a man purported to be Davison standing by the lamppost, with a mug shot of Davison set into the picture. A second photograph showed a bespectacled man in a raincoat — Jacob — bending under the stairway.

If anything went wrong with the routine, Penkovsky, who went by the code name of Alex, would telephone Davison and Montgomery, breathe heavily three times into the mouthpiece and then hang up, Pravda said. This was the signal to check the lamppost for a cross instead of a circle, indicating something amiss.

When the Americans allegedly were successful and collected information from the cache they left a "dark spot" on the door of a Moscow fish shop.

The Russians said Jacob was caught red handed in a pickup, held for questioning and expelled over Embassy protests.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Religious scenes, lighting displays, pageants, parades and elaborate decorations in various sections of the Southland mark the Christmas season.

In Long Beach the two principal points of interest are the Daisy Avenue decorations and the Naples Water Pageant which was held last night and will be held again today at 6:30 p.m. Costumed carolers ride barges, and decorated boats wind through the canals and in the bay, where 24 floating "Christmas trees," are lighted nightly through the holiday season.

Displays and carolers are on hand each night on the 1400-1600 block of Gulf Avenue, Wilmington's Candlestick Lane.

• • • •

IN SAN PEDRO, Western Avenue, south of Ninth Street, presents a number of colorful yule displays. Voladar Place to First Street, west of Western Avenue, also has elaborate Christmas decorations.

Torrance areas of special note are "Candy Stick Row," Toucan Street, north on Hawthorne Boulevard — two blocks past Del Amo Boulevard, and "Madonna Row" at the El Camino College campus on Crenshaw Boulevard.

The first and most famous of Southern California's Christmas lighting effects is on Altadena's Mile of Christmas Trees. Giant deodars along Santa Rosa Avenue, leading down from Mt. Lowe, are strung with colored lights—about 10,000 on 100 trees. The display will be lighted from Dec. 24 to Jan. 1.

The town of Joshua Tree, in the desert, recreates shops and homes of Bethlehem Dec. 18-24 and a tableau is presented nightly.

• • • •

IN ONTARIO, Euclid Avenue is transformed into a focal point of religious emphasis until Jan. 2. Choirs from local churches present nightly programs and the parkway is lined with elaborate life-like Christmas scenes.

In Glendale, thousands of elaborate colored lights roof Brand Boulevard, making it a "tunnel of lights" through December.

Christmas decorations at individuals homes and in civic exhibitions may also be found at these locations:

Anaheim — Park Avenue and North Street and both Kenway and Parkway Streets, off Citron Street.

Fullerton—the Sunny Hills area, the rolling hills north of the city.

Garden Grove — Royal Palm Boulevard, west from Brookhurst Street and Town and Country Drive in the same area. Some displays of note will be seen in Nichols Manor, Garden Grove Boulevard and Gilbert Street, and a mechanical display is at Orangewood Avenue and Gilbert Street.

Huntington Beach — The parkway in front of the oceanfront Pav-A-Lon is decorated and houses on Main Street, south of 17th Street, have been dressed up for the season.

• • • •

NEWPORT BEACH—The City Employes Association will launch its floating yule tree in the bay Monday. It will be lighted nightly through the holiday season from 6 to 10 p.m. "Seahorse" decorations line the old Pacific Electric parkway and a giant tree is decorated in the plaza. In Corona del Mar, well-lighted miniatures are on exhibit on the 500 block on Poppy Avenue.

Downey — Outstanding decorations in private homes in the northwestern part of the city, north of Firestone Boulevard and west of Lakewood Boulevard. Junior Chamber of Commerce operates tours 5 to 10 p.m. Dec. 21 through 23, starting from Stonewood Shopping Center Mall, Lakewood and Firestone Boulevard. Charge for tour tickets.

Norwalk—Freddie Cook plays St. Nick in front of his decorated home at 11931 E. Allard St., and passes out candy gifts to youngsters from 7 to 10 p.m.

Deal With Europe, U.S. Firms Urged

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — American trade officials here feel too many U. S. firms are saying "no thank you" when invited to try their luck in the burgeoning European Common Market.

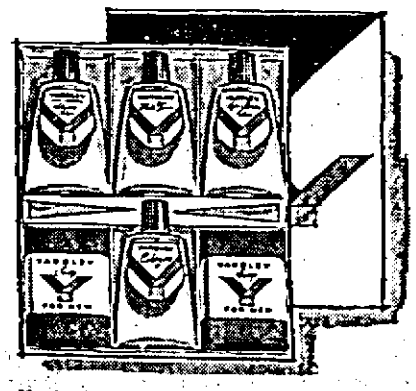

"A lot of American producers just don't seem to understand what this market of 170 million people can mean for them, now and in the future," says Edmund F. Becker, director of the new U. S. trade Center in Frankfurt. "We have a dickens of a time persuading some companies to exhibit here."

Becker, whose aim is to help the United States offset its gold outflow by increased sales abroad, presents several reasons for doing business here.

The gross national product in Europe is growing faster than in the United States. The amount of disposable income, while still less than in the United States, is growing faster and the area has a buying population potentially bigger than that of the United States.

Estranged Dad Threatens Wife, Children, Arrested

ONTARIO (UPI) — Virgil Nichols, 37, of Ontario Saturday was booked for assault with a deadly weapon after holding his four children and a man captive several hours.

Police said Nichols barged into the home of his estranged wife, Marjorie, 32, pulled a gun and threatened his family and a man who was visiting his wife, Clarence Worthington.

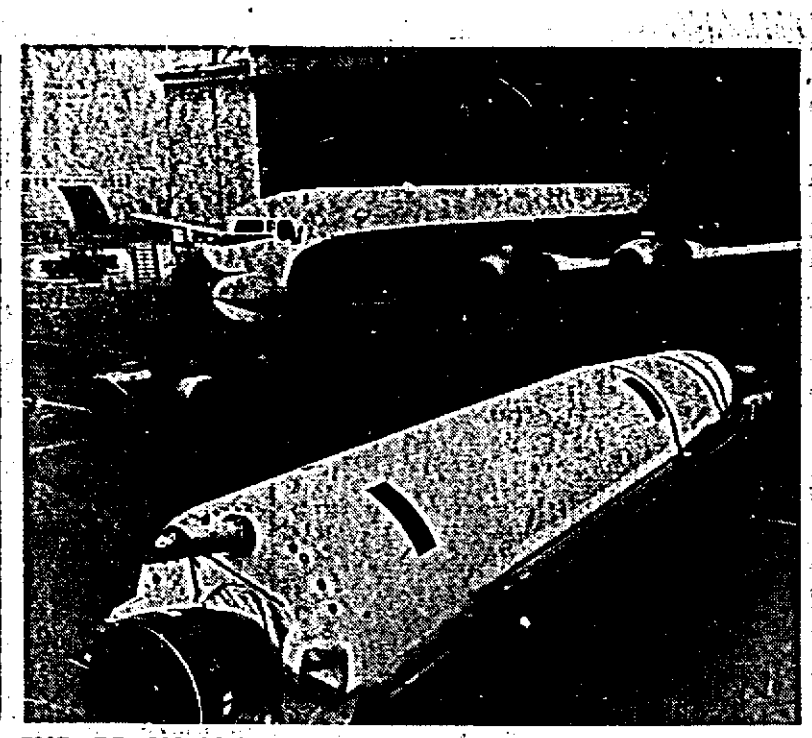

Sixteen police and sheriff's deputies converged on the home.

Nichols' 15-year-old daughter, Sheryl, dressed her two small brothers and a sister and ushered them out the back door unknown to her father. His wife ran to neighbors to call police immediately after Nichols threatened her with a pistol.

After the children were safely out of the house, police used tear gas to force Nichols outside where he was captured without further incident.

U.S. Airmen Adopt 15 Scots Children

PRESTWICK, Scotland (UPI)—The Air Police section of a U. S. Air Force squadron here said Saturday it had become so fond of 15 children from a Scottish welfare home to whom it gave a Christmas treat Saturday it had decided to adopt them on a year-around basis.

END OF AN ERA

Last aircraft rolls out of Douglas Aircraft Company's facility at Santa Monica where thousands of famed DC series of passenger transports and various military aircraft were produced. Transport, originally a DC6B built at the Douglas plant several years ago, was returned for conversion to a cargo carrier. Thor rocket, workhorse satellite launcher produced by Douglas for Air Force and NASA, is being towed into building area vacated by departing aircraft.

Santa Anan's Party Shoots Rough Rapids

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ, Mexico (UPI) — A government helicopter following the progress of a group of American adventurers through rugged Sumidero Canyon reported Saturday they have crossed the first stretch of rough rapids and are navigating down the Grijalva River.

The helicopter makes a daily check on the rapid-shooters and reports to the Tuxtla Gutierrez mayor's office. Progress is being charted on a map hanging in the city hall.

The group, headed by Richard Preston, of Santa Ana, Calif., left Tuxtla Tuesday. There are 30 large cataracts and rapids along the route, seven of them considered "extremely dangerous."

A Mexican army expedition into this most rugged terrain in Chiapas state ended in disaster in 1959 when a raft capsized and three soldiers were drowned.

Indian-Chinese War Cancels Tiger Hunt

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee museum had to give up its plan for a February tiger hunt in India, it was announced Saturday, because of the Indian-Chinese war.

A museum official said he hoped the expedition could be rescheduled for 1964.

Santa Monica Plant Shifts Plane Work to L.B. Douglas

The final link in the Douglas Aircraft Company's integrated aircraft division at Long Beach will be forged this week with the transfer here of the last remaining production work on airplanes at the Santa Monica plant.

The last aircraft to roll out of the Santa Monica facility was a DC6B passenger transport which had been returned to the plant where it was built for conversion into a cargo carrier, like some 70 of its sister DC6 and DC7 piston-powered craft.

Marking the occasion by taking off from Santa Monica's Clover Field, the newly converted cargo craft passed a Douglas Thor rocket on its way into the building area vacated by the aircraft.

FROM NOW on, all cargo-conversion work will be done at the aircraft division here, home of the Douglas DC8 Jetliner and DC8F Jet Trader, cargo-passenger convertible carrier.

At the sprawling plant in Santa Monica, oldest of Douglas' four major facilities and the headquarters location, some tears may have been shed over this passing of an era. But the bulk of the workers hardly noticed it. They were too busy making missiles and space vehicles.

In production at the Santa Monica missile and space systems division are the famous Thor and Thor Delta rockets, the air-to-air Genie nuclear missile and the Saturn S-IV space vehicle. Under development are the S-IVB advanced Saturn upper stage and the Nike Zeus anti-ICBM missile.

CLOVER FIELD, however, will miss the big DCs thundering off the runway. For almost 40 years, a Douglas airplane of one sort or another has made its maiden flight from Clover Field.

From here thousands of DC3's, most of them still flying somewhere in the world, first took to the air. In 1924 a group of frail Douglas biplanes soared off this field, flew around the world and landed here again. In 1941 the huge B19 lumbered from this runway while thousands held their breaths.

From this field over 10,000 Douglas-built airplanes have made their maiden flights.

* * * *

AT THE aircraft division, cargo-conversion is expected to continue for several years. Worldwide, there are about 600 DC6 and DC7 series passenger transports eligible for conversion.

Since the program was inaugurated in 1958, 15 airlines have contracted for modification of their DC6Bs, DC7s, DC7Bs and DC7Cs.

H. W. Melon, chief project engineer and deputy program manager for the modification work, says the new freighters will be useful as cargo airplanes for at least 15 years.

"They are invaluable as interim airplanes in the growth of air cargo," he said, "but even when the DC8F Jet Traders are available in large numbers, they will be ideal for dispersing cargo from the larger jets."

$4.7 Billion Urged to Bolster Science

WASHINGTON (AP)—A White House advisory committee recommended Saturday that government and private interests provide $4.7 billion in the next seven years to train more graduate scientists and engineers.

President Kennedy accepted the panel's central conclusion that something special must be done if the supply of highly-trained engineers, mathematicians and physical scientists is to keep pace with demand.

In a 45-page report, Kennedy's science advisory committee suggested the federal share of the program's cost might approximate 60 per cent, or about $2.8 billion.

However, the group said a substantial portion of this amount would come from existing federal programs. It did not give a precise estimate of the additional cost involved.

The committee proposed that the nation's colleges turn out 7,500 PhD.s a year by 1970, compared to 3,400 in 1962. It said the number of students receiving masters' degrees in the science and engineering fields should be boosted to 30,000 a year from the present 13,000.

TWO CONFESSIONS TO MURDER

Air Force Justice on Trial in Idaho

By JAMES PHELAN

MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE, Idaho — The sign at the entrance to this giant Strategic Air Command installation reads "Peace Is Our Profession." But there is no peace here today, even in this Yuletime season of peace as this base and the countryside about boils with controversy over the strange case of double murder.

Most murders are solved by someone confessing the crime. The problem here at Mountain Home, 50 miles southeast of Boise, is that two men confessed the same crime.

To tangle the problem further, both men have repudiated their confessions.

* * * *

HOW THOSE confessions were obtained—and why they were repudiated— has stirred tempers, brought serious charges of violations of civil rights, and set in motion a series of investigations that are causing concern in the far-off Pentagon.

Under scrutiny is the conduct of the hush hush agency known as OSI — Office of Special Investigation—a sort of FBI for the Air Force. But the OSI is an independent agency not responsible to the usual chain of command at this and other Air Force bases.

* * * *

ANDERSON has been accused by civil authorities—and released by them—in the brutal murder last April 9 of Nancy Joy Johnson, 23-year-old wife of an Air Force man, and their two-year-old son, Daniel. Mrs. Johnson was found hacked to death in her home, with the dead body of her son nearby, his throat cut.

Anderson was turned over to Elmore County officials here last April after a lengthy interrogation by OSI agents produced a confession that Anderson later repudiated. His attorney charges the confession was obtained by "virtual brainwashing" and that much of the confession was dictated by OSI agents and not by Anderson.

A month ago Anderson suddenly was freed by civil authority when a second man, a civilian named Theodore Thomas Dickie, confessed to the two Johnson killings. Anderson was promptly arrested by Air Force officials and held for investigation of whether court-martial proceedings should be initiated against him in the dual murders.

* * * *

THE CONTINUATION of Anderson in military jeopardy for a crime which civil authority had freed him is at the heart of the turmoil that roils this Idaho countryside. Friday, Congressman Ralph Harding told this reporter that the U.S. Justice Department is investigating the entire affair. "There is no doubt," said the congressman, "that the image of the Air Force has been damaged."

This week a military hearing began here to determine whether the Air Force will proceed with a military trial of Airman Anderson.

The hearing is taking place in an incongruous setting, the Christmas-decorated ballroom of the Air Force Station community center. Beneath the gay crepe paper and the shiny yule ornaments a grim struggle for a man's life grinds on through thousands of words of testimony.

* * * *

AMONG THE dozens who testified, and underwent sharp cross-examination by Anderson's civilian lawyer, Robert McLaughlin, have been a parade of plain-clothes agents of the OSI.

This week brought testimony that OSI agents broke Anderson's initial claim of innocence by grilling him more than 40 hours. It brought further testimony that other OSI agents broke Dickie's confession to the same crime—and obtained his repudiation of that confession—by grilling Dickie more than seven hours.

"This just doesn't look like an impartial investigation to me," declared attorney McLaughlin. Under his repeated hammering, however, OSI agents insisted they are seeking "only the truth" and are not attempting to retrieve the Air Force's embarrassing position of holding a man for a crime that another has confessed.

Saturday McLaughlin obtained admission from OSI agent John W. Peters that independent evidence backs Dickie's confession on 10 points. These points include:

1. The murder weapon, a hunting knife, has been identified as the property of Dickie.

2. A series of items stolen from the Johnson home the night of the murder—including two purses—were found where Dickie said he had thrown them after leaving the murder scene.

3. Minute details about items in the Johnson home—such as the location of a shotgun shell—were verified by police officers examining the murder scene.

4. A piece of the murder knife which Dickie said broke off when he stabbed Mrs. Johnson—was found in her body in the autopsy. It fitted Dickie's knife exactly.

Against this and other details upholding the original Dickie confession, OSI agent Peters could list only four points of what he claimed was "corroboration" of Airman Anderson's confession.

* * * *

DICKIE later repeated the confession of slaying the Johnson mother and son to OSI agents. Despite this confession they returned later and continued to interrogate Dickie until he orally repudiated the confession. Dickie, who has signed three separate confessions to the Johnson murders, refused to sign a statement repudiating his admission of guilt.

The hearing here will continue through the weekend with a full session scheduled today. It is being conducted by Maj. James D. Goddard, staff judge advocate, from Biggs Air Force Base, El Paso Tex. When the hearing is completed Maj. Goddard will pass a record to his superiors. In a month or so the commander of the 15th Air Force, at March Air Force Base, Calif., will rule whether a military trial will be ordered for Anderson.

Meanwhile, civil proceedings in Boise against Dickie for the same crime are expected to proceed.

Over this state, in this Yuletide season, hangs a specter of a legal monstrosity.

What will happen if Airman Anderson is sent to military trial—and then Dickie is convicted of the crime by a civilian court?

Or vice versa?

LIBERALS WARN STATE REPUBLICAN LEADERS

GOP Must Be Big Enough to Hold Everybody

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

FRESNO—If the Republican Party "is not big enough for everybody, it's too damned small to get anybody elected," National GOP Committeeman Joseph Martin Jr., of San Francisco, told the party's State Central Committee executive committee Saturday.

Martin, after a theme set by state GOP Chairman Caspar W. Weinberger, joined other party leaders here in concerted attention toward washing labels out of the party. They used the most powerful detergent—power—which they hope will make the party not just surface clean, but clean clear through.

• • • •

WEINBERGER, a moderate and a Nixon supporter, appointed about half of the executive committee's 61 members; the rest are automatic appointments fixed in committee by-laws. While deploring labels, he answered a reporter's query about how present party leadership would meet any challenge by "unhappy elements" by saying such elements, in his view, are very small and "we are fully prepared to meet such an effort."

The reference was to conservative Joe Shell who lost to Richard Nixon in the gubernatorial primary. A Friday night planning session to reorganize the GOP along "conservative, constitutional lines" turned out to be a fizzle both in numbers and enthusiasm. The meeting, to which county central committee chairmen were invited, was called by Modoc County Chairman Carmen P. Fleming.

• • • •

WEINBERGER also cautioned against the "waste of time" of selecting a state titular head of the GOP. He said he presumed the titular head would be the Republican nominee for governor in 1966. This too was judged to be a conciliatory gesture by the state chairman; he had been quoted as saying Nov. 14 in San Francisco, along with Martin and State Senate minority leader John F. McCarthy that U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel is the unquestioned titular head of the party here.

The power of Weinberger's unity team was evident also in a revelation by California Republican Assembly President Fred Hall of Long Beach. Hall, a former Kansas governor, said considerable attention is being given the nomination for Los Angeles County CRA president of Los Angeles Attorney George Ricci.

RICCI, defeated early this month for the county Young Republican presidency by an ultraconservative bloc of YRs, would thus be installed in a position of relatively greater importance than the YR office and, Hall said, might transfer dissatisfied YRs into a block of moderate voting strength in the county CRA.

Weinberger, blue-printing recommendations he hopes the executive group will make to the full state committee next month, emphasized the strong foundation of California Republicanism in its three million registered voters and the "major indication," in Kuchel's example, that this state "is perfectly willing to vote for Republicans."

• • • •

AMONG HIS recommendations: Avoid the trap of "divisive, lazy, shorthand labels" for people; concentrate on basic major party differences, with the GOP, as the party dedicated to human freedom and Democrats as dedicated to big government and the narrowing of human, individual freedom.

He stressed the need for year-around precinct orgaization, close liaison with congressional and state elected delegations and among volunteer groups such as the Federation of Republican Women, CRA and CYR. He said registration drives to narrow the 1.3-million advantage of Democrats should be enough in itself to keep precinct workers and mainly-social clubs active between elections.

• • • •

GLADYS O'DONNELL, of Long Beach, state vice chairman, was commended to the group by Weinberger for her speakers' bureau activities. He noted the need for supporting a GOP research center in Sacramento to serve legislators and all party workers to "use the reservoir of party assets in a mighty army."

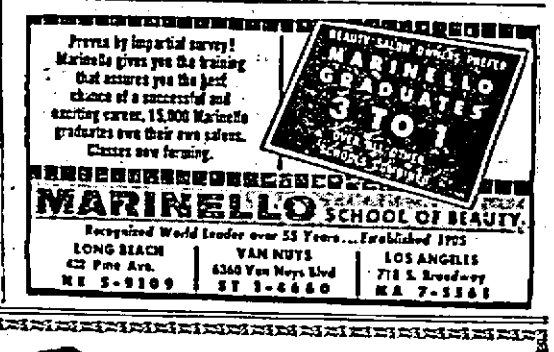

Speakers also stressed an all-out effort to win the Jan. 22 special election in the First Congressional District, won by deceased Democrat Clem Miller Nov. 6. Miller's GOP opponent, Don Clausen, will oppose Miller's former aide, William Grader in the special contest.

Unity and a stop to intra-party bickering over labels was clearly the chief concern of the leadership here, but the ghost of division persisted.

• • • •

CHAIRMAN Weinberger was quoted in a Fresno paper with comments on Joe Shell's stated threats to overthrow his leadership in favor of a more conservative brand. Said Weinberger: "I don't want to see the party driven into such a narrow corner as advocated by Shell. That's the way to end the Republican Party in California."

Modoc County's Carmen Fleming was quoted in the same story: "The Republican Party is bound to drift into oblivion if we do not adopt sound, conservative, American policies."

Frank Vessels Is Man of Year

After 17 years of operating the Los Alamitos Race Course, Frank Vessels Sr. keeps learning new ways to win.

Last month he joined an illustrious group of Western horse breeders and riding champions when he won the honor of appearing as a "model" for a national advertising program featuring a bourbon whisky.

Last week he joined another illustrious group of Orange County citizens when he was chosen by the Orange County Press Club for its man of the year award.

FRANK VESSELS SR.
Keeps Learning

Vessels took his place in the whisky ad because he is the outstanding breeder of quarterhorses in the country and operates the most successful race track for them.

He won the man of the year award for his philanthropic and civic work, which has benefitted innumerable individuals and organizations throughout the county.

• • • •

FOR THE RANGY former oil well roustabout, the award represents a "coming home." He first came to Orange County after World War I and worked in the oil field at Huntington Beach.

After putting together two successful construction businesses, Vessels found he had never lost the love of horses picked up in his birthplace of Ft. Knox, Ky., so he built the Los Alamitos Race Course in 1945.

The first track was a scrubby, halfmile affair hewn out of part of his 457-acre ranch.

However, in the last 17 years it has taken on with such a bang that one of the richest horse races held anywhere — the $207,750 Los Alamitos Futurity—is a highlight of the racing year.

GOING TO FLORIDA

JFK Will Lead Holiday Exodus

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington promises to be a sort of lonely town at Christmastime, with the presidential family leading the holiday exodus.

Most of the members of his cabinet, along with their families, plan to be away, three of them on skiing jaunts in Colorado and Vermont.

The some 250,000 federal workers in the Washington area will have a four-day Christmas weekend, by executive order of the President. With Monday, Dec. 24, declared a holiday for most of the workers, thousands of them, too, will be heading over the Potomac and through the woods to hometowns.

The presidential family plans Christmas at Palm Beach, Fla., with the President joining Mrs. Kennedy and the two children, Caroline and John Jr., there next week.

• • • •

VICE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson are counting on an old-fashioned Christmas at their ranch home near Stonewall, Tex. Mrs. Johnson expects to leave Dec. 19 for Texas, taking daughter Lucy, 15. Another, Lynda, 17, a freshman at the University of Texas, will join them at the ranch. The vice presidents plans to arrive later.

Skiing vacations are planned by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and Postmaster General J. Edward Day. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman hopes to enjoy a similar holiday.

The attorney general, his wife and seven children expect to spend Christmas at their home in nearby Mclean, Va. Then it's off to Aspen, Colo., for skiing.

McNamara and his family are going to Aspen, too, for Christmas.

• • • •

DAY AND HIS WIFE are taking their three teenage children to Stowe, Vt., the day after Christmas. They have a home here.

The Freemans are staying here for Christmas so Connie, 17, and Michael, 14, can sing in the choir at St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Silver Spring but skiing may come later.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Douglas Dillon will be heading for their Florida home at Hobo Sound Dec. 20, to remain until Jan. 7.

Staying here will be Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Stuart Udall and their six children, joined by some relatives from Arizona.

• • • •

SECRETARY OF STATE and Mrs. Dean Rusk will have their three children home for the hobildays. And though the youngest, Peggy, is 13 years old, they still will follow family tradition by leaving out a piece of cake and a raw carrot for Santa Claus and his reindeer on Christmas Eve.

Secretary of Labor and Mrs. W. Willard Wirtz and their two children will go to De Kalb, Ill., to spend the holidays with the secretary's father.

For Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Luther H. Hodges, it will be a family reunion at their home in Chapel Hill, N. C.

But while people are going, people will be coming, too.

For one thing, the new Congress convenes Jan. 9, and there are a lot of new congressmen who'll be here looking for a house for their families.

And there always are the tourists.

BOSS LEAVES HER $1 MILLION

Secretary to ALCOA's Davis Willed Fortune

By JAMES K. CAZALAS

MIAMI (UPI) — The dream of every secretary came true for Miss Evelyn Mitchell—she inherited $1 million from her boss.

But Miss Mitchell, secretary to one of America's richest men for 12 years, says the inheritance won't change her way of life.

• • • •

DAVIS, a diminutive, silver-haired magnate with holdings ranging from land to aluminum, once called Miss Mitchell "my right hand." Gradually after he hired her in Washington in 1950, the publicity-shy chairman of the Aluminum Company of America gave her more and more responsibility.

Within a few years after arriving here in 1950, Miss Mitchell, the pretty stenographer from Newport News, Va., was arranging schedules and running an estate for one of the busiest men in American business.

When Davis suffered a stroke in 1952, the statuesque Miss Mitchell went to his side and stayed there for 10 years, becoming more of a comrade than a coworker.

• • • •

WHEN THE end came, only a chosen few stood at the deathbed of one of the least-know millionaires in America. One of them was Miss Mitchell.

"He was a great man, a hard worker," Miss Mitchell said of Davis.

"When we got here in 1950, I tried working in the downtown office, but before long I was at Journey's End (Davis' estate) more and more." She said.

EVELYN MITCHELL
Lifetime Income

"I became sort of an assistant. When the cook was off, I cooked. When the butler was gone, I butled."

• • • •

TODAY, Miss Mitchell is still living at the sumptuous estate, quietly running matters "which still go on."

"There's still lots to do an I am content," she said.

Asked if she has any plans, Miss Mitchell smiled and said: "No. There is too much to do."

"Besides, I haven't received any money yet. Maybe when I do, I'll go to Europe. I've always wanted to go there." She said her duties have increased since Davis' death.

• • • •

"BESIDES regular duties, I get about 100 letters a day now," she said.

She said she hadn't thought about marriage proposals in the offing.

"I have to kid and say no one ever asked me," she said with a twinkle, "but then again, I don't expect I'll have to beat swains off with a bat."

Young Americans Bring New Hope to Slums of Venezuela

By JOHN GOLDMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—In a dingy slum of Caracas, where cab drivers refuse to go because Communist bands burn cars, two young American girls are satisfied over the success of their cooking school. Even the local Communist leader wants to be listed as a sponsor.

At Sierra Maestra, in the heart of Venezuela's pro-Castro country, a young Californian looks up from the wheelbarrow he is repairing and grins at the new brick and steel community center being built.

More than 700 miles to the east, water rushes through a 2,000-foot pipeline for the first time to the village of San Felix and another American smiles.

• • • •

THESE PROJECTS are among 17 operated in Venezuela by a group called Accion, all because a 28-year-old former Wimbledon tennis player dreamed one day at his kitchen table.

Joseph H. Blatchford, the tennis player, dreamed of a private Peace Corps in December, 1960 and Jerry Brady, 26, and Gary Glenn, 25, fellow law students at the University of California, agreed.

The three students managed to raise $90,000 from businesses, foundations and charities in North and South America and about a year later Accion was born.

• • • •

ACCION volunteers today live in the slums of politically explosive Venezuela. They help build schools, community centers, water systems and small industries. Thirty-five Americans are serving in the South American country. Ten are women. The volunteers serve for 18 months and receive $150 a month. They get travel expenses.

The private Peace Corps hopes to have 60 Americans in Venezuela by next summer. The U.S. Peace Corps has 67 volunteers in the country and 28 training to go there.

Blatchford heads Accion's operations in South America. Brady is in charge of the New York office and Glenn handles recruiting in New England. Accion hopes to recruit volunteers in Canada as the next step to expanding the corps.

• • • •

SUZY NAVARRETE, 29, of Los Angeles, and Winifred Marich, 24, of San Pedro, Calif., discovered a hodgepodge of wood and cardboard when they moved into a slum on the outskirts of Caracas last January. The slum is a Communist stronghold.

"We looked for some community organization to work through, but none existed," the girl wrote. "Nor was there any community awareness or consciousness."

The volunteers gained the help of some natives, rented a building for $50 a month and started a community center. Soon there were classes in cooking, sewing, English and literacy.

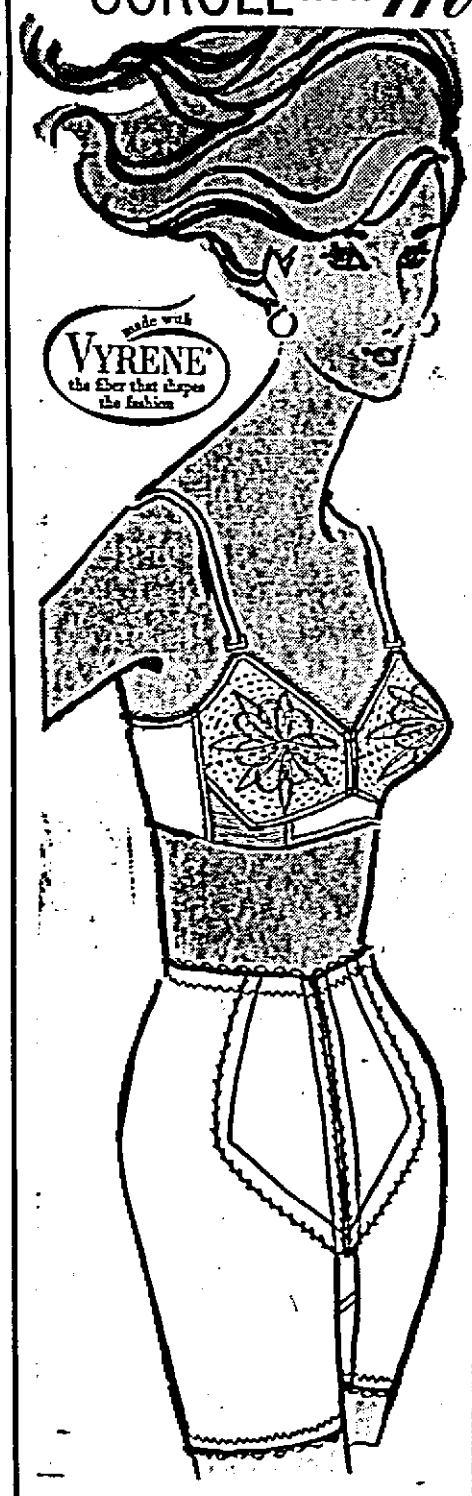

Holdup Men Rob Doctor's Patients

Police said the bandits took $300 from Dr. Willard and about $200 from the patients.

Cuba Sets Rules for Yuletide

HAVANA (UPI)—The government Saturday halted the sales of roasting pigs in Havana and its environs, reversing an earlier government pledge to provide the traditional Cuban Christmas delicacy.

Residents of the capital will be able to eat "lichon," or roast pig, however, at government-sponsored banquets for $7.00 per plate.

The Internal Commerce Ministry warned grocerymen to sell Christmas fare, duck, turkies and pork, only to known neighborhood customers with ration books.

• • • •

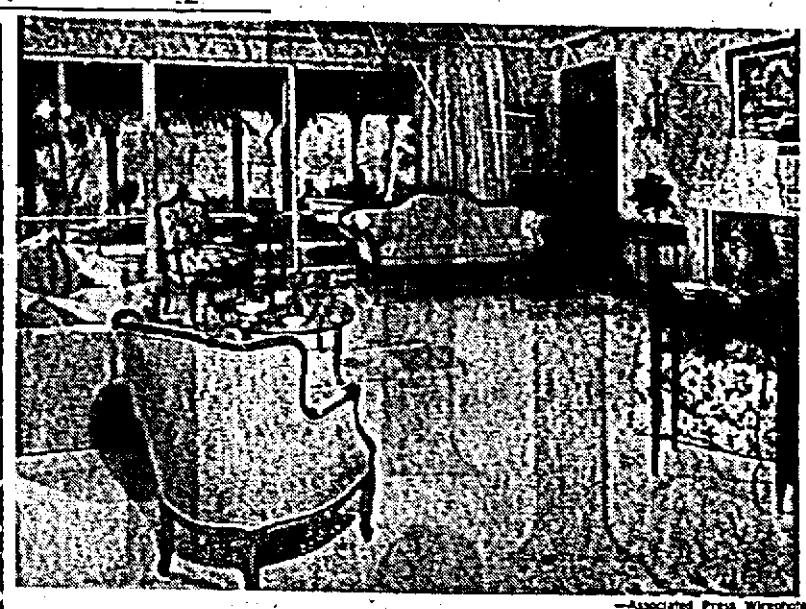

THE MINISTRY said turkey will be sold to grocerymen for 75 cents a pound for resale at 80 cents a pound. $95.00 per 100 pounds, for resale at $1.00 per pound.

Postponement of rationing on diapers, teething rings, and other baby articles was announced by the ministry pending an ironing out of details. The rationing was to have gone into effect Monday. It had been announced by the directorate of the neighborhood revolutionary vigilance committees.

The government announced political prisoners and prisoners taken in the Pigs Bay invasion will be allowed to accept Christmas packages Dec. 20 and 21, and visits from relatives later.

• • • •

THE ANNOUNCEMENT would seem to squelch any conjecture that the invaders will be released before Christmas

PRESIDENT KENNEDY will occupy these living quarters in the Nassau home of Canadian industrialist Edward P. Taylor when the chief executive meets with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan this week.

PRESIDENT, PRIME MINISTER MEETING

Kennedy, Macmillan Stay in Swank Private Homes

By JOE McGowan Jr.

NASSAU, Bahamas, (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan will live in two luxurious private homes when they come to the Bahamas for their conference on world problems Wednesday and Thursday.

The houses are on Lyford Cay, a multimillion-dollar private membership club and residential resort at the northwestern tip of New Providence Island (Nassau).

Macmillan will use the home of Mrs. Robert Holt, widow of a Canadian banker. Her mansion, Mali H'ai, follows Bahamian architectural patterns and is expensively furnished, yet has a pleasant, casual atmosphere. Wide jalousie and picture windows admit sunshine and ocean breeze.

KENNEDY will stay next door in the more formal, $1-million mansion of Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor, who bought 4,000 acres of pasture and swampland in 1946 and several years later began development of exclusive Lyford Cay.

Some of the summit discussions may take place at either the Taylor or Holt beachhouses. They are 100 yards apart on a secluded beach washed by a gentle surf.

The plush development, largely a winter resort for wealthy Americans and Canadians, contrasts with the old - world atmosphere elsewhere on New Providence Island.

FIFTEEN miles to the east lies Nassau, capital and with 50,000 people the largest city in the British Colony.

Built along a hill overlooking the harbor, the city has narrow winding streets. Some barely permit passage of an automobile between the low stone walls that surround most the homes.

Kennedy Parley to Help Briton

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, L.A.T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is journeying to Nassau in the Bahama Islands this week on a trip which is designed to do more good for Britain's prime minister, Harold Macmillan, than for Kennedy. An American Democrat is giving a lift to a British Conservative.

This paradoxical situation comes about through the somewhat confused state of the world. The Kennedy-Macmillan meeting on Wednesday owes at least some of its genesis to the recent Cuban crisis. At that time, the United States moved unilaterally. It did not consult its allies who were left just as much in the dark as to American intentions as was the general public.

• • • •

WHILE OUR allies were sympathetic to the reasons for American secrecy and "lone wolf" action, the fact that they were not consulted did not sit too well with them and raised some political problems for the heads of our allies states. It was murmured that the United States and Russia had brought the world to the very brink of nuclear war without so much as a "by your leave" to our allies. The Macmillan-Kennedy talks are planned to indicate Macmillan is still very much on President Kennedy's calling list.

Its political purpose is to give a hand to the British prime minister. He is in some political trouble at home. Polls and other indices have shown that he personally and his government have skidded sharply in popularity. Recent by-elections in Great Britain have resulted in substantial losses in the Conservative vote, large gains for the Labor and Liberal parties.

• • • •

WHILE IT MIGHT be deduced that Kennedy, a Democrat, supports the British Labor Party rather than the Conservative, such is not the case. The U.S. for instance would like to see Great Britain in the European Common Market. Macmillan has the same desire. The Labor Party is split on the issue. Under a Labor regime, Britain's entry into the Common Market would be extremely doubtful and for that reason Kennedy would just as soon see Macmillan and his Conservatives stick around until the Common Market is joined.

Not entirely dissociated from the political field is the question of the Skybolt missile which will be discussed between Kennedy and Macmillan. Failure of Macmillan to obtain the Skybolt would leave him open to charges that he had left Great Britain denuded of atomic weapons and that his policy was making Great Britain completely dependent militarily upon the United States. Such charges could do him considerable harm at a time when he needs bolstering.

De Gaulle, Macmillan Talk Over West Europe Future

PARIS (AP) — President De Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan began Saturday a phase of diplomatic consultation with historic implications for the future of the Western alliance.

In the quiet of the fortified 15th-Century Chateau of Rambouillet, the French and British leaders dwelt on the philosophical aspects of East-West relations, Europe's place in the unfolding power struggle and the roles France and Britain can play in it.

Yet the basic purpose of Macmillan's informal weekend with De Gaulle was to find out, if he could, just what the prospects are of Britain's entering the French-led Common Market. In the answer to this riddle lies the fate of his government and the future of his island country.

Gaitskell in Hospital

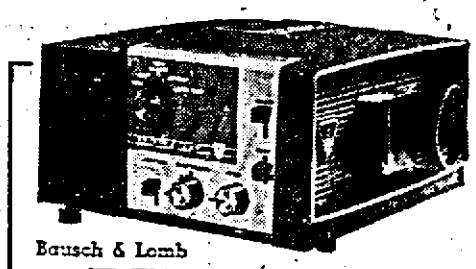

LONDON (AP)—Hugh Gaitskell, leader of Britain's opposition Labor Party, entered a London hospital Saturday, suffering from influenza. A party spokesman said "there is nothing seriously wrong" with Gaitskell "but he wants to get quite fit before his visit to Russia."

JFK Makes Cuba Policy Crystal-Clear to Khrushchev

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy made it crystal-clear last week that the United States is not backing down one whit from its tough Cuban policy.

He put it this way in a nationally televised press conference:

—We will not pledge against invading Cuba until Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev lives up to his bargain for on-site weapons inspection.

—We will not tolerate reintroduction of offensive Soviet rockets in Cuba nor the continued presence of thousands of highly trained Russian troops.

—We will continue our own daily aerial inspection until Fidel Castro's Communist government is rendered powerless to wage offensive war.

—We will continue negotiating for on-site inspection by qualified officials but will accept nothing short of Russian acquiescence.

—We soon will impose further crippling shipping restrictions on Castro's foreign trade, whether or not Khrushchev or our Allies like it.

The President restated the U. S. position in the wake of a Khrushchev speech in which the Russian leader warned him to keep his "no invasion pledge" or Russia "would take appropriate action."

Truth is, Kennedy didn't give a flat pledge. He stipulated there must be mandatory on-site inspection and other safeguards which Khrushchev has ignored on the pretext Castro won't stand for them. Under this situation, Kennedy is perforce released from his pledge.

• • • •

KHRUSHCHEV, addressing the Supreme Soviet (parliament), attempted to explain publicly for the first time why he sent nuclear rockets to Cuba. It was, he said, to save Castro from U. S. aggression, not to establish a Communist bridgehead in Latin America. And he claimed full credit for averting a nuclear war by withdrawing his missiles, without once mentioning Kennedy's war-or-else ultimatum which forced him to ship the rockets home.

Khrushchev ridiculed suggestions that the Kremlin had chosen Cuba for a jump-off war against the United States. "A malicious fabrication," he said. "Had we wanted to start war we would not have dismantled the bases." But Kennedy had warned Khrushchev that the firing of a single missile from Cuba would bring U. S. nuclear destruction to Russia.

It was the first time the Russians had been forced to look down the fearsome nuclear barrel which it had pointed at the United States once too often.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, attending a NATO strategy meeting in Paris, said the United States will undertake no new negotiations with Moscow on Berlin or other cold war crises until the Cuban problem is solved satisfactorily. At the same time he reaffirmed the West's determination to defend isolated West Berlin.

• • • •

KHRUSHCHEV, in the most direct Russian attack yet on Red China which holds that world communism can triumph over capitalism only by war, warned his Peking associates that the world can survive only through co-existence.

He rejected Chinese charges that he had bowed to a U. S. "paper tiger" in Cuba and cautioned Peking to remember that the paper tiger "has nuclear teeth." Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko joined in the denunciation and called for Russo-American cooperation like that of World War II.

Rusk, looking beyond Cuba, said the ideological ferment in the Communist camp and other developments had created "a more fluid situation" which might offer opportunities to solve other major cold war issues. But he warned that there also might be greater dangers, as illustrated by Red China's border war with neutral India.

• • • •

AT HIS PRESS conference the President renewed a U. S. proposal that some form of instant communication be set up between the White House and the Kremlin to prevent war by miscalculation.

The President moved to put the quietus on the "Affair Stevenson." Controversy swirled about U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson after a Saturday Evening Post article portrayed him as "soft" and "wanting a Munich" in the Cuban crisis. The article was written by two close presidential friends, Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett who quoted "anonymous officials" in Kennedy's National Security Council executive committee. Stevenson personally denied it.

ADLAI STEVENSON

The President told his press conference he was satisfied that no member of his super-secret council spread such a story. Then, in ringing tones, he again praised Stevenson's U.N. stewardship and added: "I am surprised that anyone would possibly think it would be in the interest of the country, the administration, or the White House that any lessening of his influence would be provided."

• • • •

KENNEDY said in effect that he considers the matter dead — "something for the historians" — and he again emphatically denied he had given his friends access to security council goings on. He said they alone must stand responsible for what they write; that he had no intensions of trying to bridle the press. The President took his action in the Cuban crisis on his own responsibility on the basis of the pooled judgment of the executive committee which heard scores of cause-and-result ideas from Stevenson and many other top advisers.

In other news spheres, Kennedy spelled out his pump-priming tax-cut plans for 1963 in a speech before the Economic Club in New York Friday night.

Earlier he had mapped strategy for forcing Congress to cut taxes despite slow-down warnings from powerful Democrats alarmed by the spectre of huge budget deficits. Tax reforms to recover some of the loss may be part of the program Congress will insist upon. The President's new budget goes to Congress in January. It is expected to jump spending to nearly $100 billion and reflect Congress' refusal to enact cheaper farm legislation. A big deficit is certain.

• • • •

MONDAY night Kennedy will review his first two years in office in a one-hour, pre-taped television program.

In the space realm, America's Mariner-2 space ship made a historic rendezvous with Venus, 35 million miles away, took an electronic look and sent back to earth signals that may determine whether life can exist beneath the planet's shroud of clouds.

Days or weeks may elapse before a substantial part of the findings are made public.

• • • •

JAMES E. WEBB, national space administrator, said the feat may add more to man's knowledge of Venus "than has been gained in all the thousands of years of recorded history."

He said it was "an outstanding first for our country and the free world and the most sigificant and spectacular of our scientific efforts to date."

He said all information gained would be shared "with all men and all nations to ensure maximum progress in science."

The rendezvous climaxed a 109-day, 182-million-mile flight from Cape Canaveral, with Mariner-2 passing within 21,000 miles of Venus, then going into orbit around the sun.

Meantime, the United States orbited a new radio-television "Relay" satellite to link America, Europe and South America. It replaced the now-dead Telstar but there was doubt about its success.

One of the most destructive cold waves in history eased its grip, with 200 dead across the nation. Normally balmy Florida faced tremendous losses in its citrus, vegetable and tourist industries. The lowest Florida temperatures since 1899 were recorded.

that 15-minute warning time would be reduced to zero.

• • • •

"WE WOUULDNT know it until impact," a top NORAD officer admitted.

The air defense system also gives no protection against missiles which could be launched from Russian submarines off either coast. With their 900-mile range, these missiles could deliver heavy blows against coastal cities and defense installations.

Khrushchev has boasted of a "global weapon," against which our defenses would be powerless.

NORAD officials, while skeptical that it now exists, recognize that the next great offensive threat will come from space, in the form of satellites serving as platforms for thermonuclear bombs.

• • • •

A RUSSIAN attack within the next eight to ten years, however, would begin with ICBMs followed by submarine-launched ballistic missiles and, finally, manned bombers, according to Gen. John K. Gerhart, commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command.

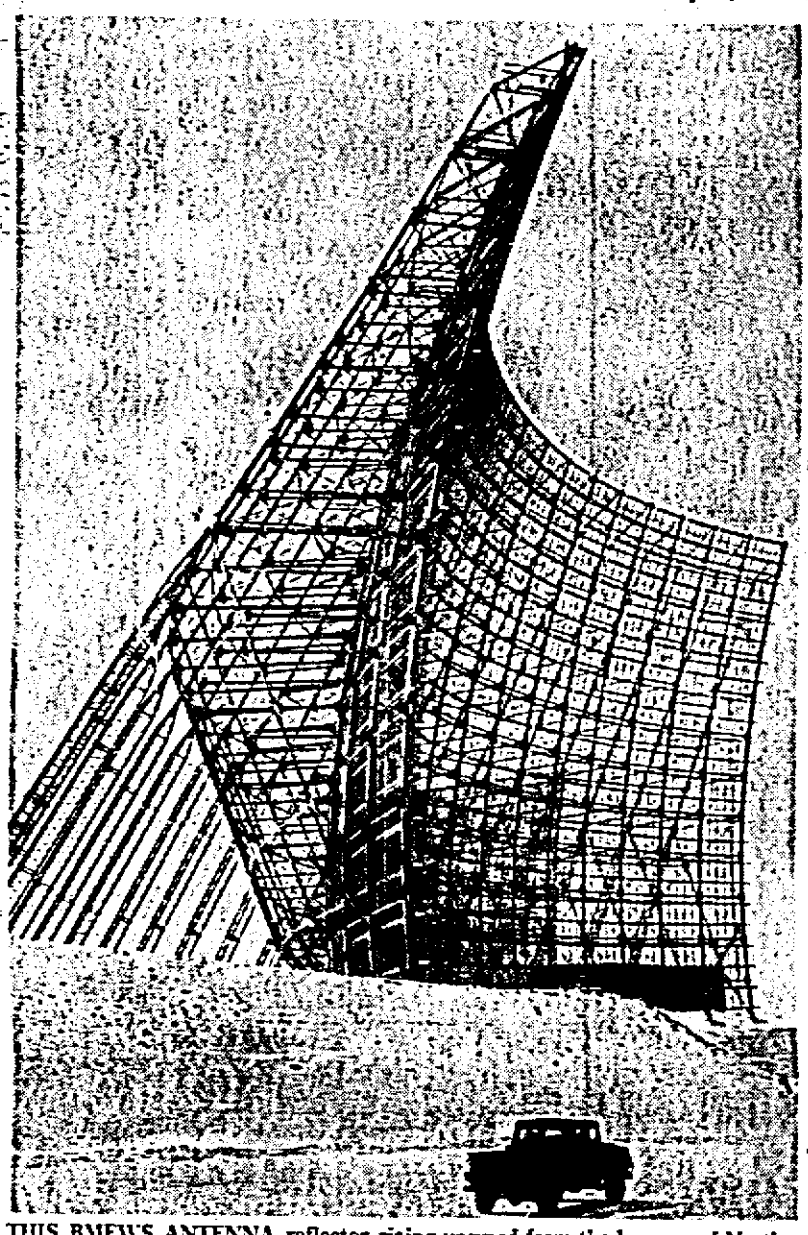

Yet he and other NORAD officers think it's highly unlikely that the Soviets would launch such an attack.

America's ace in the role is its vast strike-back power from missile bases ringing Russia, from Polaris-armed submarines and from the Strategic Air Command's armada of bombers.

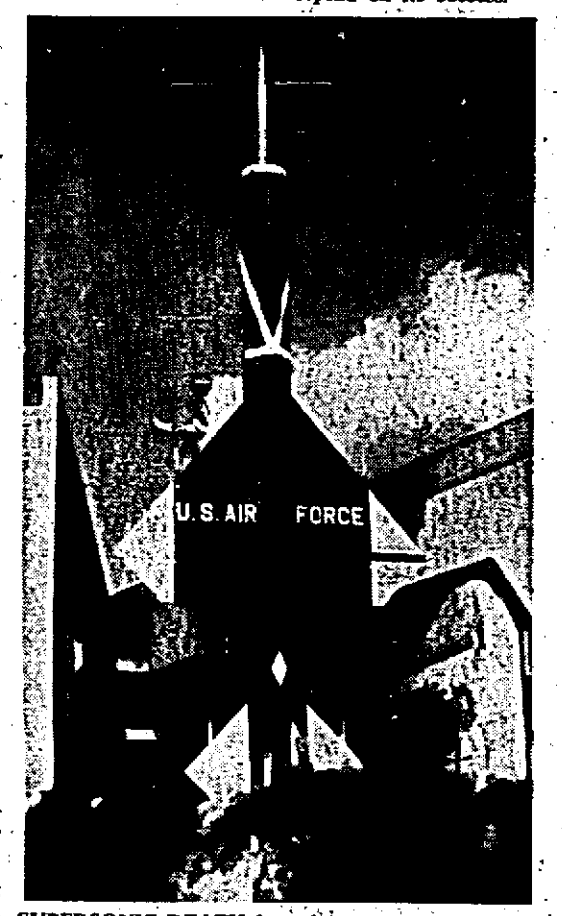

"If the Reds should attack, we'd obliterate Russia, and they know it," a NORAD officer said.

Those charged with our air defense are fully aware of its shortcomings. Research, under tight security wraps, is proceeding on a high priority basis to fill these gaps in our protective screen.

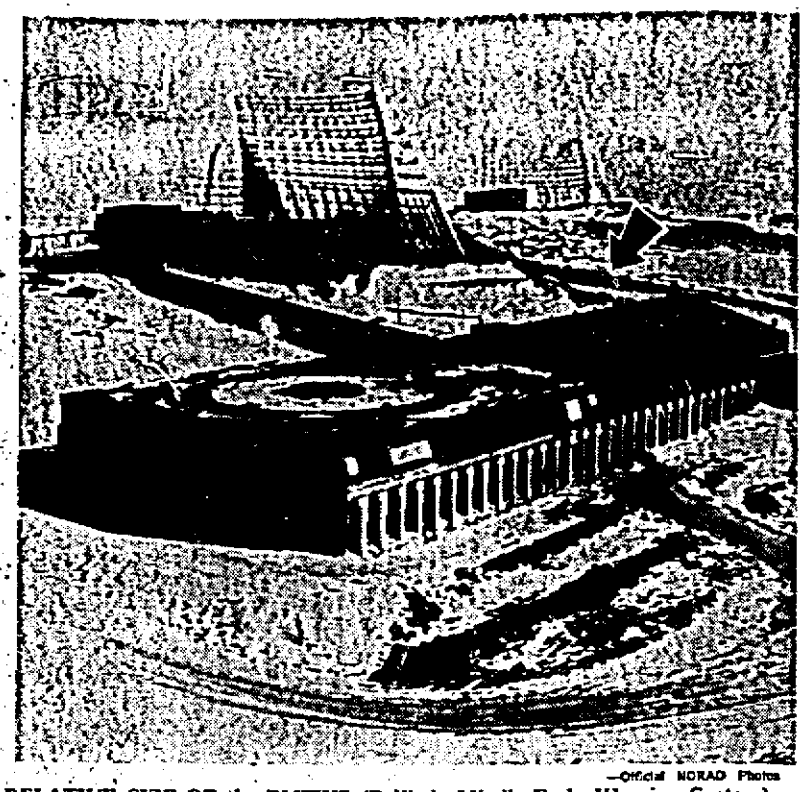

National survival may depend on its success.

THIS BMEWS ANTENNA reflector rising upward from the barrens of North America is 165 feet high and 400 feet long. A scanner building in front of each BMEWS reflector feeds it energy which it bounces into space to seek enemy ballistic missiles.

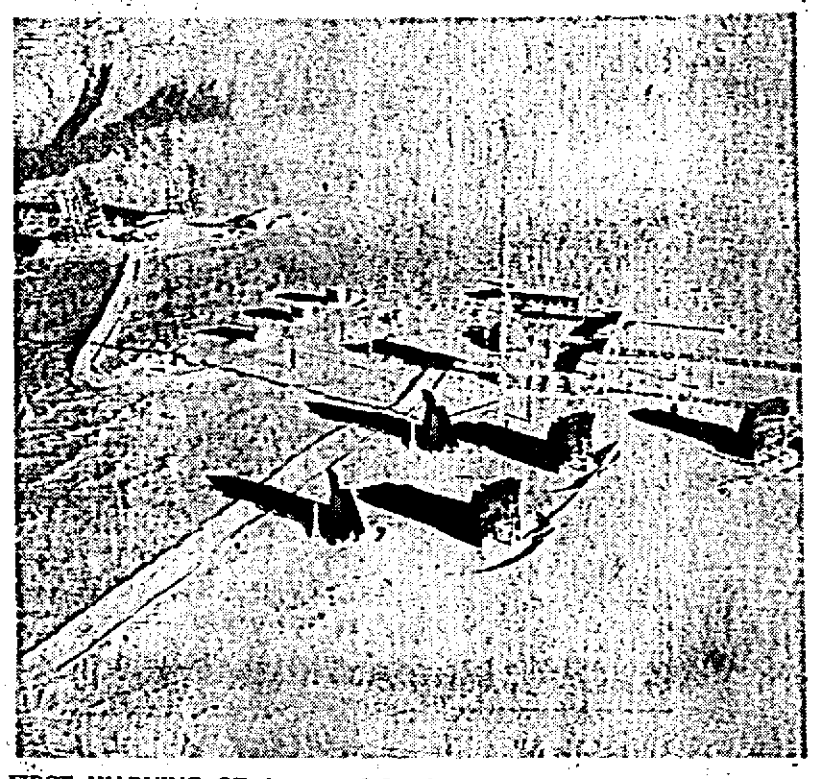

SUPERSONIC DEATH for a hostile bomber rides on the stubby wings of this BOMARC interceptor missile. Latest models of BOMARC can range 500 miles with nuclear warheads. Speed: Mach 4. Altitude: 100,000 feet plus.

—Official NORAD Photos

RELATIVE SIZE OF the BMEWS (Ballistic Missile Early Warning System) complex at Thule, Greenland, is indicated by automobile (arrow) on roadway in upper right center. BMEWS complexes along Arctic Circle from Alaska to Greenland and in the United Kingdom give 15-minute warning of ICBM attack.

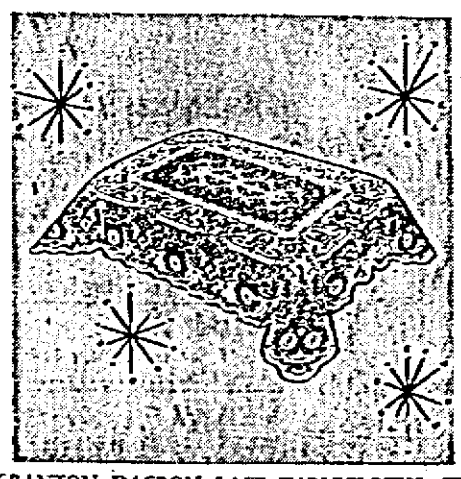

FIRST WARNING OF A manned bomber attack against North America might well be flashed from this Distant Early Warning (DEW) Line outpost on Baffin Island. DEW Line radar stations such as this stretch from the Aleutian Islands across northern Alaska and the Canadian Arctic through Greenland to Iceland.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP

Students Exchange Thoughts, Customs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Eighth graders in an American public school exchange letters with pupils in a Tokyo eighth grade.

Soon they are trading scrap books and examples of each other's culture. A little Haiku poetry goes West and descriptions of New York go East.

The New York children send their own tape-recorded messages about their studies, their hobbies and baseball. In exchange, the Tokyo children record their thoughts on their own country and its customs — and baseball.

It's all part of the people-to-people's international classroom exchange program in which 450,000 children around the world are engaged.

* * * *

THE PROGRAM matches American classrooms, schools or whole city scrool systems with their counterparts in other lands — linking young minds of York, Pa., and Arles, France; Toledo, Ohio, and Toledo, Spain; Montevideo, Minn., and Montevideo, Uraguay.

Already U.S. grammar and high school students in 71 classrooms, 920 schools and six city school systems have been matched with a foreign equivalent — and it's just the beginning, according to project director Dr. J. Cloyd Miller.

Miller hopes to have 900,000 students in the program by the end of 1963.

"International friendship appeals to youngsters," Miller said. "They are more open minded an dcurious—anxious to know more about everything. They are less handicapped than adults by prejudices and strong opinions."

Vodka for Ballet

TORONTO (AP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines, anticipating the demands of customers, advised officials of the Bolshoi Ballet they had stocked plenty of vodka for the flight home Saturday night after their final appearance here Thursday.

JUNK-WAGON HORSES HAVE YULE FIESTA

DETROIT (AP)—Santa Claus brought red apples and carrots and his guests munched them appreciatively, along with some hay he also brought along.

The guests were 11 horses that pull Detroit junk wagons. They showed up for the annual Christmas party of the Michigan Humane Society.

"Years ago," mused Clifton Johnson, society director, "there would have been 100 horses in a line four blocks long."

Baca Grant Ranch in Colorado Sold to Phoenix Land Concern for $3 Million

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Lawrence & Stegall ranches of Phoenix today announced the purchase of the 180,000-acre Luis Maria Baca grant ranch in central Colorado for more than $3 million.

The historic ranch is located in the San Luis Valley about 200 miles southwest of Denver.

Included in the purchase from the Newhall Land and Farming Co., Castaic, Calif., were 3,000 head of cattle.

The Baca grant ranch dates to 1823 when the king of Spain awarded a grant of 500,000 acres to Luis Maria Cabeza de Baca.

The San Luis Valley ranch now has 150 miles of irrigation ditches and 150 artesian wells. A number of mountain streams flow through the property. Within the ranch are 10,000 acres of irrigated farm land and 40,000 acres of sub-irrigated meadows.

The Phoenix firm, organized seven years ago by M. Taylor Lawrence and Arthur J. Stegall, now owns 420,000 acres of Arizona ranch land; another 141,739 acres in Colorado and leases some 403,000 acres in New Mexico.

RELINQUISHING ASSEMBLY POST

William Grant Named Chairman of Red Cross Campaign in L.B.

Assemblyman William S. (Bill) Grant, who relinquishes his Sacramento post in January will plunge immediately into Long Beach civic activity as chairman of the Red Cross campaign.

Grant, 66, headed the second most successful drive for funds for the Red Cross in Long Beach history when he led the campaign in 1945-1946. Under his chairmanship the goal was $278,500—the amount raised was $314,791. The largest amount raised in Long Beach was during the war years when the drive, headed by Lawrence Collins Sr., brought in $605,000.

The drive will get under way in March. The goal is for "about $400,000," said Phil Hattery, chapter chairman, who announced that Grant had agreed to take over the chairmanship for Lee N. Mulligan, who died recently.

• • • •

GRANT plans to spend a day or so in Sacramento in January, then return to Long Beach to become active in civic work.

"My wife, Ethel, and I had planned to go on a vacation immediately after January," said Grant, "but the tremendous need of the Red Cross must be recognized and we decided to put it off until after the campaign.

"This need for funds to carry on the program of the Red Cross must be brought to the attention of the public forcefully—some take it too lightly. The job must be well done. It takes enthusiasm and work. The organization has been set up and I will be glad to do my part in making the drive successful."

• • • •

THE RED CROSS is active in providing home services aid to veterans and men in the service and their dependents; nursing service; first aid and water safety programs; a blood program; disaster services and numerous other activities.

• • • •

"THE RECENT Cuban crisis, involving shifts of families, was a drain on the resources of the local Red Cross," said Grant. "This is a strategic area and experience has shown that in the event of emergency, natural disaster or otherwise, we must be prepared to meet the crisis."

Grant was first elected to the Assembly for six years in 1947, then after a term out of office was re-elected in 1954 as 39th District representative. He declined to run in the last election.

San Diego Freeway Link to Open

L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Another major link in the San Diego Freeway—this one a 5.7-mile stretch over the Santa Monica Mountains from Sunset Boulevard to the Ventura Freeway—will open to traffic Friday.

Dedication ceremonies will be held at 10 a.m. on the southbound lanes of the freeway just north of Mulholland Bridge.

Gov. Brown and Rex M. Whitton, federal highway administrator, will head a group of federal, state, county and city officials taking part in the dedication.

The new section was built as part of an 11.9-mile project which cost $20 million, the largest single freeway construction project ever undertaken in California.

Ninety-two per cent of the cost came from federal funds as a link of Interstate Route 405.

The new eight-lane section parallels Sepulveda Boulevard north from Sunset Boulevard to a point just south of Mulholland Drive. Here, Sepulveda winds westward through a tunnel and over the ridge. The new freeway curves only slightly as it shoots northward to the Ventura Freeway interchange.

The "big cut" through the mountains has a maximum grade of 5½ per cent. There is a 22-foot median strip with cable chain-link barrier, 10-foot shoulders on each side and an extra southbound lane uphill for trucks.

Sepulveda Boulevard itself, which has been carrying traffic on a winding four-lane highway since 1935, has been rebuilt and realigned to eliminate many sharp curves, according to Edward T. Telford, Metropolitan District engineer for the State Highway Department.

Guy F. Atkinson Co. was the contractor.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Syria Masses Near Israel

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—Syria has moved half of its army up to the tense border with Israel, and heavy military traffic can be seen across the border, informed sources reported Saturday.

The sources said Syria also had recruited all the country's surgeons but there was no indication whether Syria might be preparing an attack or merely strengthening its defenses.

Israeli leaders have said the Syrian government is stirring up border tensions to divert attention from internal political problems. The other half of the Syrian army was reported deployed throughout the country.

President to Review Own Work

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy, after nearly two years in office, prepared himself Saturday for a novel experiment in communication with the American people—a television review of his own stewardship.

The chief executive flew here from New York aboard an Air Force DC6B Saturday afternoon. He will devote himself the rest of the weekend to surveying his two-year record in preparation for putting it before the public by television Monday.

The one-hour review of his first two years in office will be video taped at the White House Sunday afternoon and put on the air Monday at 6:30 p.m. (EST) (3:30 p.m. PST) over facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co. The same show will be shown over the television network of the National Broadcasting Co. at 8:30 p.m. (EST) Monday.

Crashed Plane Sighted in Jungle

MANUS, Brazil (UPI)—A Brazilian airliner missing since Friday with 50 persons aboard was sighted in a clearing of the steaming Amazon rain-forest Saturday, the Brazilian air force announced. There were no signs of life.

The Panair do Brasil plane was located finally just 30 miles from this Rio Negro River port in northwestern Brazil. It was seen by an air force search plane, one of nine aircraft which resumed the search at dawn. All aboard were believed to be Brazilians.

Police Hunt Bombers of Church

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Police Commissioner Eugene Connor promised an all-out effort to apprehend those responsible for an explosion which heavily damaged a Negro church and two nearby houses.

Twelve children practicing a Christmas play in the church basement escaped injury but two babies in nearby houses received minor injuries from broken glass.

Scene of the Friday night explosion was the Bethel Baptist Church, which has been bombed twice before in recent years.

Mariner 2 to Eternal Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Its main job done but its big story still untold, the Mariner 2 satellite sped on Saturday into its eternal orbit around the sun after probing deeply into Venus' secrets.

Mariner 2 scanned cloud-shrouded Venus with sensitive instruments for 42 minutes Friday and sent back to earth a vast amount of data expected to tell men far more than they've ever known about earth's sister planet. It will be several weeks, however, before these data are evaluated and the results made known.

Relay Satellite Loses Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—A continued drop in power supply aboard Relay Sattelite forced Saturday an indefinite postponement of efforts to relay communications signals via the orbiting space vehicle.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the extensive series of experiments planned for Relay — including an international Christmas television show—can not be undertaken unless the situation changes markedly.

The NASA announcement said telemetry information from the satelite "has shown an abnormal drain upon the power supply which is the probable cause of the low voltage."

Troops, Technicians Still in Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four elite, fully-equipped combat units of the Russian army are among the thousands of Soviet troops and technicians still in Cuba, U.S. sources said Saturday.

These tank-supported formations, said to number between 1,500 and 2,000 men each, show no sign of departing despite Premier Nikita Khrushchev's Moscow statement this week that it was not in the interest of peace "to tarry with completion" of a Cuba crisis settlement.

Fr. Coughlin Stands by Criticism of FDR

71, said he had not granted an interview since his nationwide broadcast disappeared from the air in 1940, and his newspaper, Social Justice, was closed in 1941.

He conceded that the transition from a world figure to the quiet role of a parish priest had been a "trying one," and to say otherwise "would make me a liar."

He showed much of his old vigor as he made these points in the interview:

Despite his defense of his own actions, he now believes that Presidents should not be criticized.

Although convinced he was justified in denouncing not only Roosevelt but England and Russia as allies as well, he added: "It wasn't because I was for Germany, but here you had the extreme left and the extreme right of totalitarianism, both the same, and I felt we should let them fight it out among themselves."

Although once accused as an anti-Semite, he concluded "Bigotry is passe" and is today the private pursuit of professional hate peddlers.

He listed obedience to authority as the primary duty of men in all walks of life, a virtue he himself demonstrated in acceding to the wishes of his archbishop.

He advocated a revolutionary method of education which would turn classrooms into theaters fed elite instruction from Telstar.

Although Father Coughlin has continued as an active preacher in his own pulpit at the Shrine of the Little Flower in Suburban Royal Oak, his oratory has been but a pale echo of the flamboyant and often vitriolic radio addresses that won him an estimated 80,000,000 Sunday listeners on 47 stations.

His first broadcast brought eight letters, but soon they began to snowball when he introduced political topics into what originally had been instructional sermons.

"It got to the point," an old associate said, "that he needed something like $15,000 every Monday morning to pay his radio bills. Bishop Michael J. Gallagher had always gone along with his right to say what he pleased on political matters, but other bishops of the country were opposed.

FATHER COUGHLIN
'Empires Still Falling'

• • • •

"WHEN Edward Cardinal Mooney (then an archbishop) came here in 1937, everybody assumed this would be his major problem. But . . . he used that fine style of Italian diplomacy, learned in Rome, of cutting him off gradually. When Father Coughlin said on radio that no Catholic could join the CIO, the archbishop came out with a flat contradiction that was headlined in the daily press.

"The archbishop then came up with a section from canon law which provided for a board of censors, to which he was required to submit his radio talks . . .

"The archbishop then, very quietly, informed him that his newspaper, Social Justice, also was subject to censor.

9 Homes Wrecked by Plane

exploded, flames engulfing a house. One engine hit a truck. The fuselage ground ahead for about 500 feet, battering into a home where a couple —unhurt—watched television.

• • • •

Six Civil Aeronautics Board investigators, with more en route from other field offices, probed the scorched, wreckage-strewn scene Saturday, seeking the cause of the crash. Firemen pried into the ruins, looking for possibly more bodies.

The area of damaged homes, garages and trees measures approximately 1,200 by 85 feet. One fireman — among 19 companies that responded — suffered a badly cut wrist, and several residents were injured. But other families told of miraculous escapes.

The Flying Tiger Line offered food, clothing and shelter to half a dozen families reported by the Red Cross to have lost all or more of their possessions in the tragedy.

• • • •

THE DEAD were mangled and burned, making even their counting difficult. Coroner's aides awaited dental charts and other clues to identification.

Police Sgt. T. H. Gerber said, "We have four female bodies and five male bodies—parts of bodies. We're making nine death reports."

A Flying Tiger spokesman said four men aboard the plane were presumed dead although the coroner's office had identified only the body of flight engineer Jack W. Grey, 33, San Mateo.

• • • •

THE AIRLINE spokesman said the others were Capt. Karl C. Rader, 38, Burlingame, pilot, a veteran of 12 years with the company; co-pilot David L. Capro, 25, Compton, and John A. Olsen, of nearby Smland, a passenger. Olsen's wife Janet works in the accounting department of Flying Tiger's nearby Burbank office.

Flying Tiger said Mrs. Violet Blazek, 57, of Chicago also was tentatively identified as having been on the plane. Mrs. Blazek was the mother of Mrs. Jack Elliott of nearby Northridge, wife of a Flying Tiger employe, and had a pass to ride the plane here, a spokesman said.

It was the line's fourth crash this year. A transport carrying 107 persons vanished in the Pacific last spring. Another later crashed in the Atlantic, killing 29 of 75 aboard. A crash off Cold Bay, Alaska, killed one man.

• • • •

A WITNESS, Mike Powers, said he saw the big plane come in low out of the mist.

"It had its landing gear and flaps down," he said. "The landing lights were burning. The left wing dipped, and the plane smashed in, nose first."

Flames shot 100 feet into the air. Children screamed.

SHE'S NO MERE DOLLED-UP TUG

L.A. City Number 4 the Ultimate in Fireboats

LOS ANGELES FIRE DEPARTMENT'S "DREAM BOAT" THROWS HEFTY STREAMS OF WATER IN DEMONSTRATING ANTI-FIRE POWER. PUMPS CAN HURL 9,000 GALLONS PER MINUTE.

By DICK EMERY

SAN PEDRO—Take a tugboat and doll her up with pumps and nozzles and you've got a tug that can fight a fire—but still she's only a tug, not a real fireboat.

She can push in close and throw water, but she can't jump sideways to keep from getting scorched. She can't slam water from all and any angles without sapping engine power.

"What we dream up," Asst. Fire Chief Bethel F. Gifford used to say, "is a fireboat built to BE a fireboat right here in this port!"

That boat they dreamed of stayed in the dream stage 15 years and then came true. The dream boat, shining new, 76½ feet long, of 24-foot beam, now rests at the Los Angeles Fire Department dock at Fort MacArthur.

• • • •

THE THINGS about her that Chief Gifford used to dream of—they have been built into her. They are real, like her six (that's right: SIX!) power plants—two 400-hoursepower diesels to drive her at 13 mph, two more 400's for main pumps and two smaller diesels to pump water and stir up electric power.

Other features:

Twin controllable pitch propellers which give her instant reverse without reversing engines. Handy to have around in a nasty dock fire!

Maneuvering jets at waterline, by which she can whoosh herself sidewise to jab at a blaze and leap back!

Foam tanks to hold 555 gallons of oil-fire-quashing goo, a lifesaver in an oil port!

Because she is a fireboat and not just a fire-fighting tugboat, "L.A. City Number Four" already has become famous among harbor firemen the world around. Salty firemen are coming to see her from far ports—and they like her.

The firemen who man her are proud of her.

"She's a dream boat," they say.

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

A YOUNG Long Beach housewife, Dolores Kerr, is a political seeress of great merit, she's not bad as a weather prophet, and she has good hunches on football.

All of this makes her the winner of Beach Combing's "Predict the November Headlines" contest, results of which are announced today after painful processing of hundreds of entries.

Mrs. Kerr, mother of three and a resident of 1511 Vuelta Grande, was one of 15 contestants who made perfect scores on the seven political questions in the contest. Of this select group, she came closest on predicting November rainfall and she got the right winner in the USC-UCLA football game.

Dolores, who was excited as a kid when I told her about it, is our champ and gets a $25 savings bond.

SECOND prize, an overnight stay at Imperial 400, 848 E. Pacific Coast Highway, goes to Mrs. Jo Turner, 1128 E. Fourth St., who hit the football game score (14-3) right on the nose but missed one political question and was pretty far off on the rainfall.

Third, dinner for two at Hoefly's fine restaurant in Belmont Shore, goes to Mrs. Ramon A. Ellis, 3515 Lemon, also a perfect political prophet in this contest, but whose rainfall prediction wasn't as good as that of Mrs. Kerr.

Runners-up, who get $5 bills each, are T. G. MacDonald, 6900 W. Park Pl., Westminister; Val Matcheski, 652 Molino Ave.; Mrs. E. W. O'Donnell, 6158 Cerritos Ave.; John M. Heida, 17632 Ardmore, Bellflower; Ethel Scott, 344 Quincy Ave.

All of these people scored perfectly on politics. They picked the winners in the governorship, lieutenant governorship, 39th Assembly District, U.S. Senate, state superintendent of public instruction races, and predicted Prop. 1A, the education bond issue, would carry and that Prop. 24, the anti-subversive measure, would lose.

THAT'S mighty good picking. Here are the others who hit the political answers on the nose, but missed out on weather and football:

On the hottest race of the election—governorship — a majority of our hundreds of contestants picked Brown over Nixon. In fact, the outcome of our contest on that race was just about the way it went, percentage-wise, in the statewide election itself.

GETTING back to the champ, Dolores Kerr, she says that she is really no political expert and that her husband is the family smartie on such things. Both she and her husband are graduates of USC, and her pick was for the alma mater to beat UCLA may have had some sentimental motivation.

Mrs. Kerr's prediction of .37 of an inch for November rainfall was closest of all the political perfectionists. The actual rainfall was .04 of an inch. Nobody hit that one exactly, but Mrs. J. Schroyer of Paramount and P. O. Hoy of Long Beach get the prizes for being within a hundredth of an inch of the perfect answer.

Mrs. Jo Turner is a double winner in the contest, having already gotten her Notre Dame-USC tickets for her perfect guess on the USC-UCLA game.

THAT winds it up and thanks to the good readers who participated. It was a lot of fun and we'll be trying something like it again before long.

Polio Outbreak Called Unlikely

ORANGE—Possibility of a polio outbreak in Orange County appears "extremely remote" as result of the Sabin oral vaccine clinics set up by the Orange County Medical Association, it was predicted today.

At the two "Sabin on Sunday" clinics in October for Type 1 vaccine, 546,000 persons were immunized.

Ruling on Agreement Drafted

By GEORGE WEEKS

For the first time, state officials have set target dates for action on the city's proposals to tap the largest undeveloped oil pools in the United States.

The projected deadline is Jan. 31. Action could occur a week earlier.

Frank Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission, has told city officials he believes the remaining technical and legal analysis of the program will be completed in time for the commission meeting Jan. 24.

If not, Hortig added, "we would turn ourselves inside out" to be ready for a special meeting Jan. 31.

Fred Kreft, assistant executive officer, also told the Independent, Press-Telegram he believes this schedule can be met "short of some major complication not in sight now."

• • • •

ATTY. GEN. Stanley Mosk's office, it was learned, is drafting a 75-page opinion reviewing the unit agreement, unit operating agreement and the form of operating contract submitted by the city last September.

These documents form the framework for developing the huge oil deposits, an extension of the Wilmington Field, believed to underlie the ocean bottom and the adjacent uplands in southeast Long Beach. The city is taking the initiative in the program, and will award the operating contract. It controls almost 90 per cent of the area—the tidelands—under a grant from the state.

Unitized operation is proposed so that maximum safeguards may be put into effect, particularly against subsidence. Under these agreements owners of some 10,000 upland parcels will share in the estimated revenues of $3.5 billion or more.

• • • •

ONE POINT still not settled is whether and how the state will bring into the unit the State Park area at the extreme southeast tip of Long Beach. Under a court decision, the city trusteeship does not apply in this section.

Indications are that special legislation will be necessary to enable the state to depart from its established policy of leasing oil-bearing lands under its control, rather than development by an operating contract.

• • • •

THE STATE'S timetable was reported last week by City Atty. Gerald Desmond to the City Council, which had asked the Lands Commission to conclude its studies as speedily as possible.

PT. FERMIN SITE

Guardsmen Prepare to Man Nike Hercules

National Guardsmen this week got acquainted with the Nike-Hercules, big brother of the Nike-Ajax guided missile which they have manned at sites in the Los Angeles area.

Officers of Battery D, 4th Missile Battalion, 251st Artillery, inspected the Point Fermin site which they will take over next year.

The Long Beach unit, which previously had manned a Nike-Ajax site at Playa del Rey, will begin formal instruction on the new missile next week.

Selected personnel for the unit will undergo a six-week training program next year at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex., before the unit takes over complete operational control of the site here next summer. More than 100 officers and men from the Long Beach battery, under the command of Lt. Col. Neil E. Allgood, will man the site.

The Nike-Hercules has a range of more than 75 miles, three times that of the Nike-Ajax, and can reach an altitude of more than 28 miles.

L.A. Studies 'Double Taxation' of Maintaining Health Service

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Whether health services for the City of Los Angeles are to be taken over by the Los Angeles County Health Department may be decided Monday.

The question is of importance to Long Beach because it, too, maintains its own health department and thus has the same problem of "paying double taxes for health services."

Four cities—Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Vernon—maintain their own health departments. Through payment of county taxes, however, they also maintain the County Health Department — although they obtain no service from this department.

• • • •

UNDER STATE law, any city can get county health services merely by asking for it. The county is compelled to provide such service.

The four cities, however, have felt they get superior service from their own department. They have, at times, tried to get reimbursement from the county for the health services for which they pay, but don't receive.

Roger Arnebergh, Los Angeles city attorney, appeared before the State Assembly Interim Committee on Municipal and County Governments last Nov. 13 and asked for state legislation which would direct a county to reimburse cities which have their own health departments.

• • • •

A MOVE has been under way recently in Los Angeles, however, to transfer city health services to the county. Councilman Ernani Bernardi has advocated transfer of some, if not all, health services to county responsibility.

C. Erwin Piper, city administrative officer, submitted a report last week in which he said transfer of the services to the county could result in a reduction of 6.8 cents in the Los Angeles city tax rate.

The change would boost the county tax rate by 3.4 cents, he said.

• • • •

PIPER did not recommend the transfer, however. He said the main problem is ending "a tax inequity."

"The citizens of the city are required to support two health departments and receive services from only one," Piper said.

Long Beach officials have voiced the same complaint.

Los Angeles city and county officials agree that under the present operation, there is no problem of inefficiency, excessive costs, duplication or overlapping services.

Piper pointed out that the city could take one of two courses: close its own health department and let the county do the job, or get state legislation which will in some way relieve taxpayers of a city which provides its own health services.

Christmas Postage Stamps Available

Those colorful, and hard to get Christmas postage stamps are back in Long Beach today.

Postmaster David Selcer said he has received 2 million of the 4-cent stamps, which are now on sale.

"We received 1½ - million of the stamps and quickly sold out," he said. "We haven't had any for weeks, but now we're back in business."

City Counsel OKs Study for Renewal

Final legal steps for urban-renewal studies in the West Beach area are scheduled for this week as a result of an opinion filed Friday by City Atty. Gerald Desmond approving the financial arrangements.

Desmond told the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency that a proposed agreement for the use by the agency of funds alloted from the special projects account is proper.

City Council already has authorized the $34,500 allotment, but agency members sought the opinion to make sure that the money will be available when needed for payment to two firms of consultants.

• • • •

ALL THREE agreements—one between the agency and the city and one with each of the two consultants—will be submitted to the Council for formal ratification Tuesday. They were approved in principle Friday by the agency.

Candeub, Fleissig & Associates will make a technical survey of the area and prepare a proposed redevelopment plan for a fee of $26,000. The second contract, with Ashton & Associates, will cover economic and marketing factors. It will cost $8,500.

Military Retirees Conference Set

The Navy Department has invited Frederick A. Wyatt, a captain in the Naval Air Reserve at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station, to attend a conference Monday in Washington, D. C., on placement of military retirees.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the Air Force Association and the Department of Labor.

Oil Strike in Park Could Help Build Needed Projects

The oil that flowed last week from the first well drilled in Recreation Park may very well speed up solution to the city's long standing problems regarding civic improvements.

There are still some uncertainties involved:

—Is the whole 270-acre field productive?

—At what rate?

—How much total oil is there?

—How many years will the oil flow?

Answers to these and similar questions can be found within the next few months. And with these answers will come the necessary information to intelligently plan for future civic development.

This city—unlike many others—has been very fortunate in the past in having various upland oil fields provide funds for city public works. At present, for example, we are now paying off public improvements from upland oil funds to the tune of some $1.5 million each year.

These payments involve parks, playgrounds and public buildings of various sorts. Some were acquired as long ago as 1922, but most have been acquired since 1956.

All money from upland oil properties owned by the city—and this includes Recreation Park—goes into the city's Bond Redemption and Interest Fund for the exclusive use of long-range public improvements.

This might be a good time to point out the use of the word "upland" in the above paragraph.

There has long been a misconception held by many folks in California—not excluding some in Long Beach—that the city has hundreds of millions of dollars of oil money to use for general city purposes because of the large field under the harbor and the soon-to-be-developed offshore oil field in front of the city.

Absolutely none of the funds from any of the city-owned state tidelands under the harbor or in the new offshore field can be or ever has been used for city projects.

These funds are held in trust by the City of Long Beach for the benefit of the people of the State of California and can only be administered by the city for state purposes. This money, in fact, can only be spent with specific advance approval of the State Lands Commission and only on projects that will benefit the purposes of the tidelands grant—generally commerce, fisheries and navigation.

So just like other cities we must raise the money for public improvements from taxes or other city income. Where we are fortunate is having "other city income" from upland city-owned oil fields. Among the fields that are producing for the benefit of the city now are the Harbor Upland, Signal Hill, Airport and Community leases. Now we can add Recreation Park lease.

It looks as if the city's golfers have for years been playing over an oil "bank" that has been saving funds for such needed facilities as a new main library, city hall, music building and art center.

Let us hope the new field proves that productive.

Pat Casualty of Campaign Misery

L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Pat Nixon has shared many a tense situation with her husband—the danger of mob violence in Venezuela, his defeat by John F. Kennedy in 1960—and many have marveled at her courage and her calm.

Evidently the California gubernatorial campaign and defeat was one blow too many, too much of a load to bear. Her day last Nov. 6 may, in fact, have contributed to Richard Nixon's somewhat irrational statements to the press the day after the election.

For once, Pat Nixon was not at his side, and for good reason. Here is the story as it was told to this bureau—

Mrs. Nixon voted on Nov. 6, then went to the hairdresser. There, something triggered her into a fit of hysterics, the result of nervous tension and the physical exhaustion brought on by months of campaigning, plus the findings of a last-minute poll that showed her husband was doomed to defeat.

A doctor was summoned. She was given a sedative and taken home. She has made no public appearance since, nor did she accompany the former vice president when he first went to the Bahamas. She has joined him since.

Added to Mrs. Nixon's campaign miseries were three broken ribs, the result of a fall Sept. 29 or 30 in her San Francisco hotel room. Despite the injury, she kept up her full schedule of campaign activities.

• • • •

ABOUT $700,000 was raised here Nov. 29 at the big national cultural center $100-a-plate banquet, a show regarded as possibly the worst live television show ever put on tape. But while sponsors of the $30-million center go about the business of putting this show on the road for additional fund raising, the National Symphony Association and the Washington Opera Society are deep in the red and can see no way out. The symphony association needs $320,000 for its 1963-64 season, but everyone is taking the larger, longer view of culture here. When finally the big cultural center goes up in Foggy Bottom someone then may find himself saying, "Oop! No orchestra."

'There's Nothing in Here About Oil Spouts!'

DREW PEARSON

Administration Is Charged With Softness on Monopoly

WASHINGTON—In the obscure files of the Joint Economic Committee is a revealing story of how the Kennedy Administration ran out on its pledge to crack down on big business monopoly but did crack down on the small business price-fixing.

PEARSON

The story is revealed in a withering cross-examination of Judge Lee Loevinger, who operates directly under Robert F. Kennedy, as assistant attorney general in care of antitrust.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Chairman Wright Patman of Texas, both Democrats, gave the man who is supposed to enforce the antitrust laws one of the worst grillings the Democrats have given a member of the Kennedy administration. When it was all over, they were convinced that the Kennedy Administration was not doing as good a job at prosecuting monopoly as the Eisenhower administration, but they also suspected that this was on direct orders from the two Kennedys, not the fault of Judge Loevinger.

"Gasoline station operators who agree upon prices at which they will sell their products are speedily brought within the criminal reach of the law," Senator Proxmire charged, reading from a report by Prof. Richard J. Barber of Southern Methodist Law School. "But the major oil companies who are able to achieve price coordination because of the concentrated character of the industry, go free."

• • • •

JUDGE LOEVINGER protested this.

"If they mean that we haven't taken a list of the 50 or 100 largest corporations and gone out and started to break each of them up into smaller pieces, they are quite correct," he said. "We haven't. I don't believe we are authorized to do this under the present law.

"We have maintained as high a level of vigor and enforcement activity as any prior administration," continued Loevinger. "As a matter of fact, in 1961 we brought nearly twice as many cases under the Celler-Kefauver Act as any prior administration."

"Yes, but what is the significance of the cases you bring?" inquired Proxmire. "Venetian blinds, kosher food products in New York, service station prices in Washington — these are trivia.

"These are not the fundamental moving groups in our society, these are not the big steel, automobile, oil and other dominant industries where there seems to be a real power to hold up prices, and in the judgment of some, to retard growth and economic expansion."

Chairman Patman, the Texas trust-buster, then took over the criticism.

"In your previous report," he charged, "some industries appear to be habitually making identical bids. Have you compared the new report with the previous one to see whether these industries have changed their bidding practices since the President's executive order (on price-fixing) was announced?"

Loevinger—"Not yet, no, sir."

Patman—"Is there anything you can do about cases like General Electric, which has been convicted, and is paying terrific damages for admitted collusion, and yet they still go ahead and submit these identical bids? Is there anything being done about that, Judge Loevinger?"

Loevinger—"Well, I am sure the electrical companies would say that these were largely shelf items, which were bid out of catalogs on standard prices, and that this accounts for the identity rather than any collusion."

Patman—"Are you and the Justice Department convinced that identical bids submitted to the Agriculture Department for the school lunch program are not the result of collusion? Have you investigated this situation thoroughly, judge?"

Loevinger—"I suppose a candid answer is 'No,' we have not investigated the situation thoroughly. . ."

• • • •

AT THIS point, a Republican, Sen. Jacob Javits, N. Y., joined the Democratic criticism.

"I just don't think that that the Department of Justice, whether under this attorney general or any other attorney general, has been inventive enough," he said.

"You are not restraining competition today, you are allowing a monopoly because you are not allowing the small fellow to have some of the advantages of bigness which he might get by cooperation under complete supervision. I have the opinion that the antitrust division is living in the past, and you prove it to me. . ."

BILL SUMNER

Freeman Presses Hard for Supply Management Scheme

WASHINGTON—That master propagandist Orville Freeman, the Secretary of Agriculture, is upon the land once again to sell the Kennedy administration and promote its farm program, present and future. His approach is direct and simple, built upon the proposition that the opposition (the Eisenhower administration) did nothing for the farmer and that his own will eventually provide a rural heaven on earth.

SUMNER

This is what we are going to do for you, he says, and this is what they didn't do. It is the way politics always has been conducted, but the massive federal participation in what had been the basic county courthouse-Boston technique has reached its perfection since 1960.

The basic philosophy is that they will reward you if you are good (for them) and punish you if you are bad (against them).

Possibly that is over-simplified. But so is the Freeman style in the world of gut politics. In speeches Wednesday and Thursday—in Chicago, Las Vegas and Denver—he made it plain that the administration would reward those who cooperated, with federal grants and loans, and nice things like subsidies, and would punish those who did not by undercutting them at the market place.

• • • •

UNFORTUNATELY, the program has appeal both to the farmer, who will end up with less if he finds its unappealing, and to the city dweller, who has been baffled and enraged for some years by farm programs which have worked against the basic concept of supply and demand, and common sense.

The principle Freeman is trying to sell he calls "supply management," which may be easier to stomach than a term such as "managed economy."

It is his proposition that if the federal government is to guarantee the price a farmer shall get for a bushel of wheat it should then be able to control the amount of wheat the farmer can have subsidized. On the land thus made vacant the farmer can put in a skating rink or a bowling alley—with federal funds—and, as I read it, live on easy street. He would receive aid and comfort from a domestic peace corps.

• • • •

FREEMAN REJECTS the concept of laissez faire. He calls the course he says was advocated by the Committee for Economic Development "thoughtless, cruel and uncivilized." He says that this private group recommended "that farm income should be systematically lowered to drive people out of rural America." The CED, of course, did not recommend any such thing, but it is business (i.e. Republican) oriented and did suggest there were too many people in the business of farming, growing too much of everything, and that a return to the law of supply and demand might be the solution to the farm program.

Such a solution was acceptable to no one, the farmer being regarded as the backbone of America in some quarters and a bloc of votes in still others. Freeman, however, does provide the ultimate solution for an economy based on the federal handout, and he reminds us that we must reject the old cliches.

"An agricultural policy for today's world," he says, "must be based on the principle of supply management, whereby agriculture would be provided with a means of doing, through government, what most industry does for itself when it adjusts production to the amount it can sell for a profit."

Freeman says this is neither "un-American or even sinful." And with this assurance he promises that if his wheat program is not adopted "it will be disastrous for the great majority of farmers."

Then there is reassurance. When his supply management programs become truly effective, "government operations in handling commodities can diminish." This is when easy street will have been reached, but he does not say whether it is a Five or a Ten-Year Plan.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Survival of Two-Party Idea in State Depends on GOP

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The views of Thomas W. Riley, vice chairman of the Republican Central Committee in Contra Costa county, on the two-party system in California, expressed in a recently issued monograph, and his suggestion for correcting some of the difficulties of maintaining such a system, are worthy of consideration.

MacARTHUR

"Any resemblance between the two-party system in California with that of the two-party system elsewhere in the nation is purely accidental," Riley declares.

He states it is his opinion that if the two-party concept is to survive in California, that the Republican party must undertake a monumental task to overhaul its entire organizational system, and in so doing, must revise and review a body of political tradition which it has endeavored to live with for nearly half a century.

• • • •

RILEY points out that few realize that candidates are under no obligation to any set of party principles except that which they desire to submit to after they receive the party nomination.

The fact is, he declares, California does not have a two-party system in the classic sense. Rather, it is a personality party system. The direct primary, he implies, has lopped off party bosses in theory, but while the theory is laudable, it fails because it neglects to take into account the very process which enables the candidate to take his candidacy to the people. Thus, through financial considerations, funds come from the same kind of agents referred to as political machine bosses.

"It is a fact of life," he says, "that in politics, as in government, the power of the purse string is most profound!"

• • • •

SECOND, Riley calls platforms platitudes, and states the party conventions called for by California law have produced some of the most "remarkably innocuous documents of compromise and vagueness ever to be handed to a party organization as its foundation building blocks.

"The convention system in California politics must be resurrected," he declares. "Diffusion of the natural powers which will invariably fall into the hands of a few must be accomplished."

Third, he recommends the establishment of the convention system in California, pointing out that the convention serves with good use in almost every other endeavor of California's daily living. The direct primary, he states, has become a tradition, apparently meaningless. Neither party from 1958 through 1962, the years cross-filing have been abolished, neither party has received a clear-cut dictum from the people.

"For the Republican party," Riley says, "the problem can only be solved by truly bringing the people into active, participating contact with the party organization. They must be made to feel they are a part of the system. At some moment in the nominating and election process, the rank and file must be consulted."

• • • •

IT MAY be argued an entire new body of law must replace the present code regarding political organization, he states, with possible elimination of expensive primary election where convention action is not challenged.

These proposals are not new or novel, he says, but are time-proven and workable.

School Head's Election Defended

EDITOR:

Your recent editorial agrees with Governor Brown's wishes to make the superintendent of public instruction an appointive rather than an elective office. I do not!

You suggest that because there are many citizens who do not feel "equipped to judge," they should be released of the responsibility of voting and have one man who is a qualified expert appoint his choice. I do not!

There are many citizens who do not feel they are "equipped to judge" for many other elective offices on the ballot. (Let me remind you that there are many who are "equipped to judge.") Would you suggest that these offices, too, should be filled with appointee positions?

Governor Brown reappointed Thomas Braden as president of the State Board of Education for another four year term. I have heard some of Mr. Braden's choice remarks. Governor Brown believes Mr. Braden to be qualified for this position. I do not!

It is this right and responsibility, the opportunity to elect our leaders, that has made our country great.

There are those who might be ready for a dictatorship. I am not!

Judicial 'Lawmaking' Hit by Reader

EDITOR:

"The courtroom is not a legislative chamber."

That quotation is the last line of your editorial this morning commenting on the decision of Judge Leonard M. Friedman in the Lokey murder case. How true! And it should be blazoned in banner headlines across every newspaper in the land.

The tendency of courts to assume powers delegated to the Congress by the constitution seems to have developed during my lifetime, although there may have been instances of it before. Nowhere in any books of law that I have read do I recall any enactment giving a judge the power to set aside the verdict of a jury, but they do it.

Neither is the courtroom a branch of the president's office with the power to direct U. S. marshals to enforce its edicts. The complete separation of the legislative, judicial and executive branches of government must be maintained or we will rue the day we permit any one of them to dominate the other two.

Can't Follow Editorial's Logic

EDITOR:

It is impossible for me to comprehend the thought processes of your newspapers' editorial writer who recommends that the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction be filled by appointment, ostensibly to remove it from politics.

Rubbish! Is there every ANYONE appointed to an office without some consideration being given to the candidate's political leanings? Who would be our State Superintendent of Public Instruction today had it been governed by appointment? One guess is enough; Dr. Richardson would most certainly have received the nod, to compliment the Brown appointees on the State Board of Education.

• • • •

BUT REALLY, it is not difficult to see what is sought after; it is to remove more and more positions from the ballot and thus leave the citizenry with less and less opportunities to express a choice.

The political philosophy of recent years has been (and is) to govern by decree and executive order, with a "To hell with the Constitution and the Monroes Doctrine."

Wake up, fellow citizens! It is later than you think.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Lesh and Robert Strange-Davis

Santa Claus, although a European invention, has become an increasingly important worldwide personality. Here is how he is known in the languages of various countries around the globe.

French: Pere Noel
Dutch: Sinter Klaas
Hungarian: Mikulas
German: Nikolaus
Czech: Svaty Mikulas
Japanese: Sanuta Kurosu

Arabic: Baba Noel
Swedish: Jultomite
Norwegian: Julenisse
Danish: Julemanden
Greek: Ay Vasilis—"Holy Basil"
Chinese: Sun tan lao ren —"Holy birth old man".
Russian: D'yed moroz — "Grandfather Frost" — a reflection, perhaps, of Soviet unwillingness to accept any traditional implication.

Our words "Santa Claus" are derived from St. Nicholas, once the bishop of the now vanished city of Myron Likias, Asia Minor. St. Nicholas, incidentally, was the patron saint of Russia, and is still revered by religious elements of the population.

The word "Claus" is a corruption of the last syllable of Nicholas, which in Greek means "Victory of the People."

Thoughts

So it depends not upon man's will or exertion, but upon God's mercy.—Romans 9:16.

MIRROR OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

KING ARTHUR STEAKHOUSE FIVE YEARS OLD; ANNOUNCES OPENING OF THRONE BANQUET ROOM

Quality, Economy Stressed

In five years King Arthur Steak House has grown to become one of the Southland's outstanding restaurants.

Opened in 1957 at 5511 E. Spring St., just east of the intersection of Bellflower Boulevard and Spring Street, it began operations on a policy laid down by its three operating officers: good taste, good food and reasonable prices.

Growth of the Steak House was rapid. Now, with its Throne Room completed and ready for use, the restaurant can seat 250 people at a time, yet preserve the warmth and intimacy that has made it so famous.

* * * *

KING ARTHUR Steak House is operated by a trio of expert men in the field. They are John Apostle, president; John Paulos vice-president; and Anthony Apostle, secretary-treasurer.

This year the restaurant expects to serve 75,000 meals. About 80 per cent of them will be the twin specialties of the house: steaks and prime rib.

In expressing the policy of King Arthur, President Apostle says:

"It has been our contention that a restaurant can be first calibre in every degree, and yet meet the budgetary demands of its patrons."

* * * *

HE POINTS out that the English cut of prime rib is $2.95 on the King Arthur menu. For those who like, the "Diamond Jim Brady cut" is priced at $4.15.

Special cut top sirloins are $2.95. "Cattleman's Cut" steaks are $4.25. The fabulous New York steak is priced at $4.65.

King Arthur's menu, however, doesn't cease there. Lobster tail, fried chicken, veal cutlets, chopped beef sirloin, turkey, filet of sole, scallops, sandwiches are all available at low prices.

* * * *

CHILDREN'S special menus include roast beef, ground sirloin, roast turkey, fried shrimps and calves liver, and prices for children's dinners run from $1.55 to $1.75.

For Apostle, who entered the restaurant business as a dishwasher in Ely, Minn., as a youngster, the growth of King Arthur Steak House has been a rewarding experience.

"We have made thousands of personal friends since our doors opened, and we have learned from them that our insistance on quality and good taste has made this business venture a success."

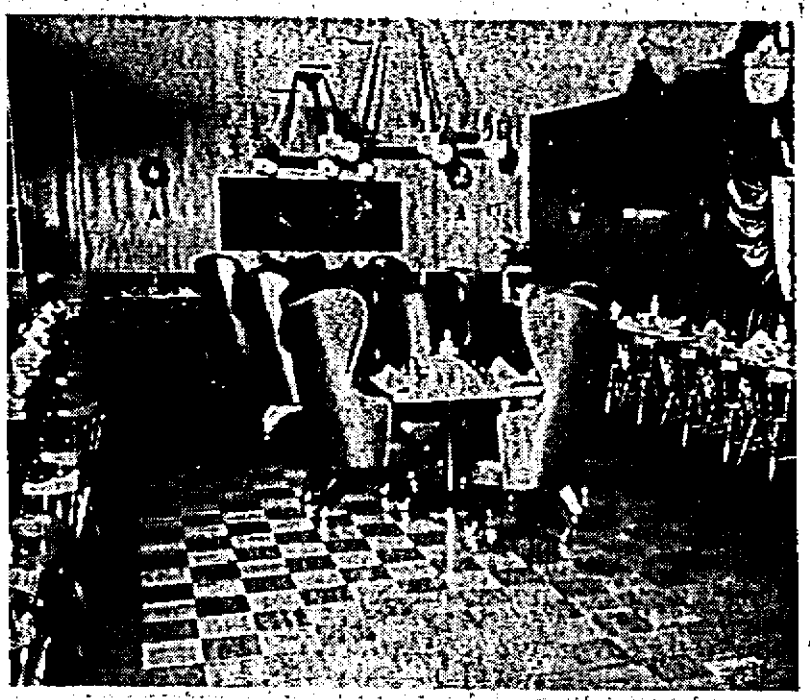

* * * *

THE "LITTLE things" are stressed heavily at King Arthur. For example, Apostle points out, the Steak House prepares its own bleu cheese dressing, from a recipe kept secret. Every item on the menu is prepared in the King Arthur kitchen.

The meat purveyors to King Arthur maintain a special storage section for the hanging and aging of King Arthur beef—food that is selected for the restaurant and distributed to no other eating house.

* * * *

FOUR MAJOR facilities are open to public use at King Arthur. The main dining room, seating 80 people, is separated from other facilities to insure privacy. The bar, with Bob Moreau at the organ, seats 55 people, with its adjoining fireplace nook. The Throne Room, now open for parties, banquets and special occasions, handles 100 people with ease and comfort.

KING-SIZED CHAIRS APPROPRIATE FOR THRONE ROOM

Facility Set for Holidays

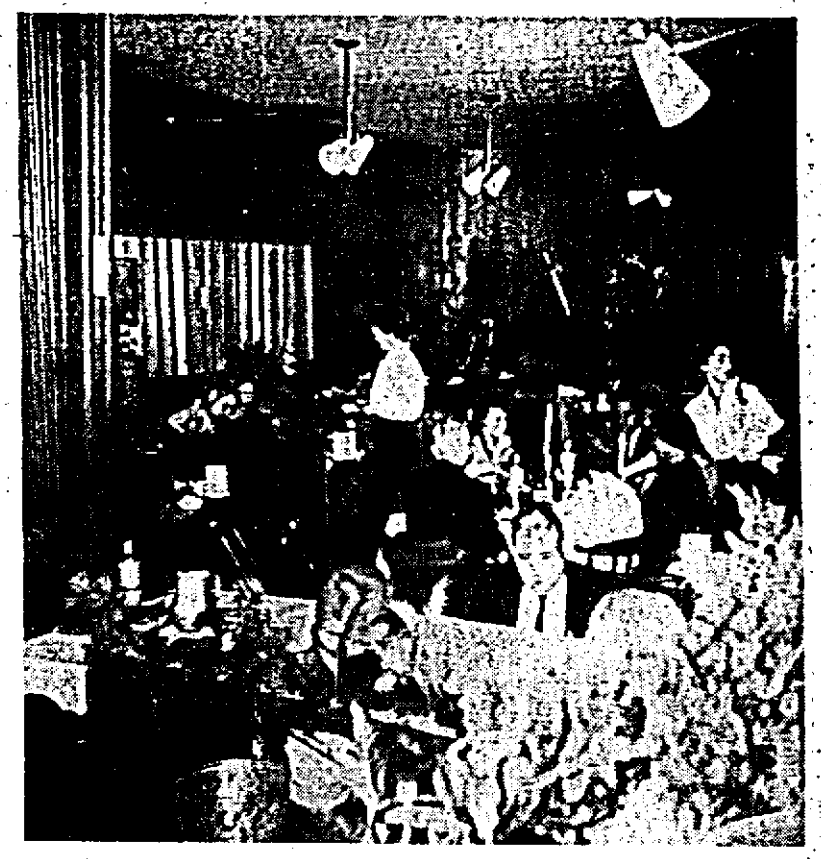

King Arthur Restaurant, at 5511 East Spring St., announces today the opening of the Throne Room.

This banquet-sized accomodation will handle private dinners and parties for up to 100 persons, adding to the Long Beach-Lakewood area a superb feature that carries on the decor and traditions of King Arthur.

Mr. John Apostle of the corporation operating the restaurant reports that he is accepting immediately reservations for holiday entertainments and functions.

A characteristic of the Throne Room is the use of King Chairs through the center of the hall. The Throne Room, however, is adaptable to all types of social occasions.

The King Arthur kitchen and other service and entertainment facilities will be available to patrons of the Throne Room.

Warmth, Intimacy Give Charm to Dining Room

BOB MOREAU

Organist Has Third 'Birthday'

Bob Moreau, talented organist and entertainer at King Arthur Steak House, marked his third anniversary there Nov. 27.

He is continuing a recording, singing and entertainment career that began in Escanaba, Michigan, in 1945. He zoomed to the national spotlight as an organist and vocalist with the Vel Tones.

Bob appears at King Arthur six nights a week (he rests Sundays) from 8:45 p.m. to 1:45 a.m.

Popular ballads, semi-classics and Hawaiian numbers are featured. His talents have attracted scores of guests from the professional world, who join patrons in music and song.

Two of his greatest hits are a recording of "Beyond the Reef" and his most requested number — "Hawaiian Wedding Song."

Plans for New Facility Told

The proprietors of King Arthur restaurant announce today plans for opening of a second dining and entertainment center to serve Southern California.

As yet unnamed, it will be located on Pacific Coast Highway between Colorado and Second Streets, on the east side. It will serve the Martha area.

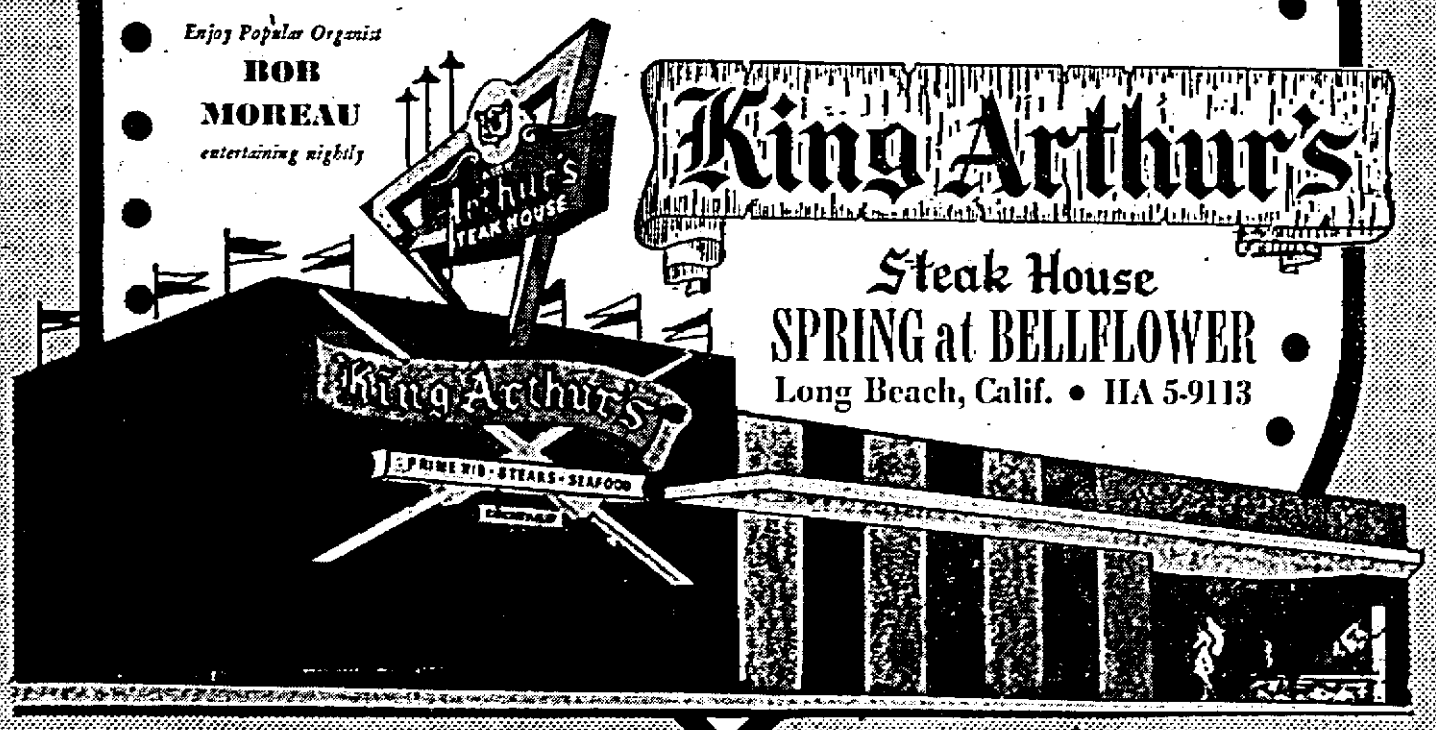

The restaurant and entertainment facilities, being owned by John Apostle, and associates are part of a $2 million motel accommodation being erected on the site. More than $400,000 will be spent to make the new restaurant one of the area's outstanding dining facilities.

"We intend to carry on the policies of King Arthur in our new restaurant," the partners state. "Our aim is to bring good food and good taste to people of moderate means."

THE
"ELEGANT WORLD of PRIME RIBS"

It's too bad Diamond Jim Brady didn't live to enjoy the King Arthur cut of succulent Prime Ribs of Beef that bears his name. Diamond Jim spent much of his life searching for the finest in food, but he couldn't have found a tastier, more generous slice of eating pleasure than the Diamond Jim Brady cut of Prime Ribs that we offer. Lucky you . . . you can enjoy it tonight . . . just by telling the waiter, "I'm in a rare (or medium, or well done) Diamond Jim mood!" You'll like what happens next!

Savannah Sails for Isles Tonight

Her labor disputes finally settled, the NS Savannah is scheduled to sail at midnight tonight from Los Angeles for Honolulu.

Nuclear engineers had resigned as a group after their wage scale was tied with that of deck officers by a federal labor mediator.

But "the engineers have withdrawn their letters of resignation and agreed to said the ship," William Buttram, West Coast business manager of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said Saturday.

Although cargo loading began Saturday at Matson Navigation Co.'s Wilmington Pier 195, where the Savannah has been berthed since Tuesday, a previously scheduled public tour will be held today.

JFK'S Ex-Skipper Gets Squadron

CAPT. JACK E. GIBSON

Capt. Gibson is returning to sea duty after spending eight months as technical adviser on a motion picture, "PT 109," which tells of the President's experiences commanding a patrol torpedo boat in South Pacific combat.

The 1937 U.S. Naval Academy graduate relieved Capt. C. O. Akers in ceremonies aboard the USS McKean, squadron flagship, at Pier 15.

When asked to comment on Kennedy's wartime role, Gibson quietly said, "No one even knew who he was, then."

Special Research Lab for Douglas

A special research laboratory will be incorporated into the Douglas Aircraft Co. Space Systems Center now under construction at Huntington Beach, it was announced Saturday.

Company president, Donald Douglas Jr., said the $2 million Advanced Research Laboratory will be erected on 10 acres of the 245-acre tract bought last summer for the center.

More than 100 specialists in aircraft, missile and space-systems development eventually will work in the facility.

L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The 34-voice Korean Orphans' Choir, which recently completed a 16,000-mile tour through 12 European countries, will join 23 local musical groups in the county's all-day Christmas program on Monday, Dec. 24.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn announced that young Korean singers would sing as part of the program in the Board of Supervisors' hearing room, Hall of Administration, 500 W. Temple St., Los Angeles.

The Christmas program, free to the public, runs from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Parking will be available in county parking lots on Temple Street between Hill and Grand, Hahn said.

$7.5-Million Flood Curbs Put In

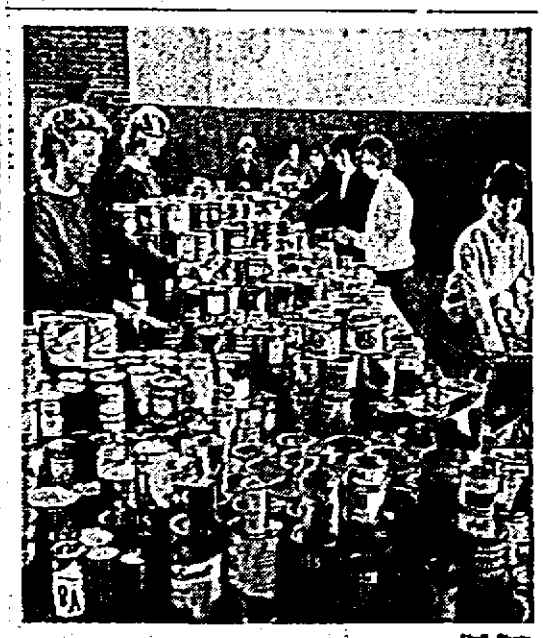

L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

More than $7.5 million in floor-control and storm-drain projects were completed in and around Long Beach in the past year, the County Flood Control District reported this week.

In Long Beach, two projects were completed totaling $6,564,140. Largest of the two was the $5,132,789 third unit of Los Cerritos storm drain, which serves East Long Beach, Lakewood and Bellflower.

The other local project was the $1,431,351 first unit of the Bixby Knolls and second unit of the pump district storm drains in West Long Beach, built under a single contract.

In nearby communities, $7.3 million in projects were completed in 1962.

Judges Ask Change to 8-Member Juries

L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Eight-member juries, instead of the traditional 12, should be used in all trials except those in which the death penalty could be imposed, according to judges of the Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Presiding Judge Thomas L. Griffith Jr. will so inform the Board of Supervisors next Tuesday.

Judge Griffith said jurists of the Los Angeles Judicial District have endorsed recommendations of the county's Special Study Commission on Judicial Procedures and, in fact, have gone one step further.

• • • •

THE COMMISSION recommended that the number of jurors be reduced from 12 to 8 in all civil cases and in criminal misdemeanor cases. The judges proposed the smaller jury for all civil cases and for all criminal cases except those involving capital offenses.

Such a procedure would reduce the county's cost of jury trials from its present estimated $2.5 million annually to about one-third that amount, Judge Griffith said. It also would cut court time needed to select a jury.

"The judges do not believe this plan will lessen the quality of justice administered," Judge Griffith said.

• • • •

IN THE absence of a demand by either party in a civil case for a 12-member jury, both Superior and Municipal Courts should use the eight-member jury, with the number of peremptory challenges proportionally reduced, the judges said.

Either party in a civil suit could demand a 12-member jury, but the party making the demand would be required to advance fees and transportation costs for the additional four jurors and such costs would not be recoverable from the opposing party.

• • • •

IN CIVIL cases, the present ratio would be retained in which three-fourths of the jury can return a verdict. This would mean six jurors out of eight or nine out of 12.

In criminal cases, a unanimous verdict would be required from either the eight or 12-member jury.

State legislation would be required before any such plan could be put into effect.

21 Bars Closed, 100 Arrested in Tijuana Cleanup

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI)—Several bars remained shuttered Saturday as this border town's police force swung into action in a new drive against vice.

More than 100 persons were arrested and 21 bars closed Friday on the direct orders of Ildefonso Velasquez, Tijuana's new mayor.

A police spokesman said 70 of those arrested were girls charged with prostitution.

The spokesman said further arrests and bar closures were anticipated.

Even Bircher Pair Ran Ahead of Nixon

WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon ran behind every incumbent Republican congressman in last November's balloting in California.

John Birch congressional candidates received support from at least 15 per cent of Democratic voters and may have secured up to 25 per cent of the opposition-party vote. They were less successful in this respect than other Republicans, however.

Republicans with moderate or liberal voting records did better outside their party than those with strongly conservative labels.

• • • •

THESE ARE some of the vote patterns discernible in Rep. Craig Hosmer's biennial exercise with the California tally sheets and a slide rule. The Long Beach GOP congressman has developed a rule of thumb by which he attempts to determine the success of Republican candidates at winning Democratic votes.

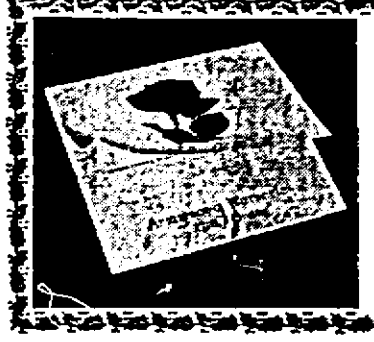

In California, Democrats outnumber Republicans in total registration three to two. Most Republican candidates estimate they need to win at least 20 per cent of the Democratic vote on election day to avoid losing.

BONANZA PEACH BUSH
GREATEST "LIVING" GIFT OF THEM ALL!!
Just imagine! You'll pick dozens of luscious, big, golden freestone peaches from something entirely new—a peach bush! It's Armstrong's new BONANZA, a fabulous, toy-like peach tree which thrives in a sunny garden space only 4 to 5 feet square. It flowers! — it fruits! And all the while, it makes a wonderful ornamental shrub.
BONANZA is the biggest "Christmas surprise" you can give anyone (even yourself) this year. And there is no charge for delivery of your gift anywhere in the U.S. BONANZA — an Armstrong exclusive. Plant Pat. App. For $7.95 each
3 for $19.95. Save $3.90
6 for $37.95. Save $9.75
A culmination of 25 years of pain-stacking work by the Armstrong research department, this is a true dwarf—not a regular peach on a dwarfing root-stock which stunts growth, but a real bush size plant which will stay small throughout its lifetime.
And just wait until they (or you) pick the first tree-ripened fruit of BONANZA. They'll marvel that a "vest pocket" tree like this could produce these big, golden, red-cheeked beauties —and the rich peach flavor will send them scurrying for a "second".
Its size and distinctive good looks make BONANZA a "natural" for use as an ornamental shrub—beautiful in the back yard or front, as a single specimen, as a hedge, a border for walks or drives—even as a container-grown specimen for porch or patio.
BONANZA will thrive wherever ordinary peaches grow and, usually, in the second season, there will be luscious fruits peeking from beneath the big, long, lustrous green leaves. Armstrong guarantees that BONANZA will grow wherever ordinary peach trees thrive or it will be replaced absolutely free.

Russ Dentistry Free but 50 Years Outdated

Most dental care in the Soviet Union is free, but progress in dentistry there is 50 years behind that of the United States, a Long Beach dentist reported today.

Dr. Earl A. Hershman, president-elect of the Harbor Dental Society, disclosed that Russian dentists use outdated equipment, pay little attention to the teaching of oral hygiene and, in many instances, are not very skillful.

Dr. Hershman, 4220 Virginia Road, recently returned from a trip to four Soviet cities. His tour included a half-day visit to the Moscow Institute of Stomatology (science of the mouth) and an interview with the school's prorector (dean).

"I didn't see a single air rotor (high-speed drill) in the school's clinic," Dr. Hershman said. "The Russian dentists were using pulley-type drills that turned at 2,000 to 4,000 revolutions per minute."

U.S. dentists, he explained, now use air rotors that turn at 150,000 to 200,000 r.p.m. or pulley drills that turn at 80,000 r.p.m.

Equipment was old and in disrepair, he continued. Surprisingly, the clinic was equipped with 50 American-made dental chairs, all about 30 years old. Forty-nine of the 50 dentists in the clinic were women.

"School was out when I visited the institute," Dr. Hershman said, "so the dentists I observed were graduates. I saw a great lack of skill and technique."

He said that 29,000 of the Soviet's 45,000 dentists have only three years of training, much of it from night school or by correspondence course.

These three-year dentists, he said, practice regular operative dentistry (fillings, crowns, bridgework), prosthetic dentistry and periodontia (treatment of gum and jawbone diseases). They do some extraction work.

The other 16,000 dentists are known as stomatologists. They have five years of medical training and a medical degree. These doctors have chosen dentistry as their medical specialty. They do oral surgery chiefly.

"This is the only branch of dentistry in which the Russians excel," Dr. Hershman said.

Crowns and bridges are made of stainless steel, but the Russians can have gold if they are willing to pay for it.

Dr. Hershman described filling techniques as "crude."

"No anesthesia is used except for major oral surgery," he said.

Fluoridation of public water supplies, to prevent tooth decay, is nonexistent, he reported. Instruction in oral hygiene—how to use a toothbrush—is not emphasized.

Dr. Hershman said he distributed a gross of American toothbrushes to the Soviet people.

"They were very happy to get them," he said.

Natural-bristle brushes in the Soviet are inferior, he said. Nylon-bristle brushes are not available.

Dentistry as a profession held a very low priority in the Soviet until 1940, Dr. Hershman said. Now the government is beginning to upgrade dentistry. Although 75 per cent of the country's dentists and doctors are women, enrollment in dental and medical schools now is 50-per-cent male.

Soviet dentists belong to a union, Dr. Hershman said. They start at the same salary as a skilled laborer. After five years they get a 20-per-cent raise in pay.

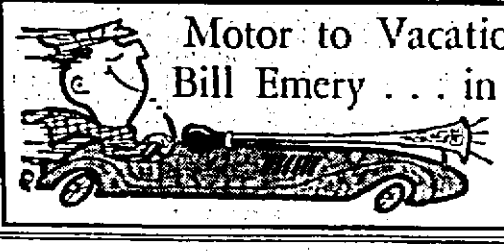

According to union rules, dentists work only 33 hours a week, but this is not enforced, Dr. Hershman disclosed. Many Soviet dentists work at two clinics in an effort to boost their incomes.

Gas Industry Awaits Move by El Paso Co.

By HARRY W. SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. got the unhappy choice last week of accepting a costly Federal Power Commission rate decision or challenging it in court.

Because vital issues are at stake, the gas industry, and particularly interstate pipelines, will be following the company's course closely.

The commission, on a 3 to 2 vote, stood by its landmark decision of Oct. 19 which denied El Paso a higher rate of return on its riskier exploration and production properties than on its pipeline investment, and ordered the first of a series of refunds which could total $68 million.

* * * *

THE FIRST installment — almost $25 million — must go immediately to utility customer's in El Paso's southern system, principally California. This involved one of four rate increases totaling $80 million dating back to April, 1955.

Other refunds must be made as the other rate cases are disposed of unless the commission reverses its stand on production properties. This is deemed unlikely in view of the majority's October statement.

At that time it said El Paso had failed to justify a higher rate of return or to prove that it was needed as an exploration and production incentive. In the meantime the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans, following an appeal from El Paso, had directed the commission to "fix a rate of return that will permit a fair return on Wellmouth investment and provide the incentive necessary to attract capital to the exploration and development activities, supported by findings on the amount 'actually necessary' for this purpose."

* * * *

BUT THE commission majority defied the court with the declaration that while consumers undoubtedly would benefit from El Paso's production operations, there was nothing in the record to prove it. "Moreover," it said, "the company has not proven that an added element of return is needed as an incentive for El Paso to continue its production activities."

The majority added that it was guided in its decision by El Paso's failure to make an adequate showing "on many of the complex factors required to convince us that an added return on pipeline production would be in the public interest."

El Paso had sought a 6½ per cent return on its pipeline properties and 9½ on its production properties. The commisison allowed only an overall 6 per cent in two rate cases and 6¼ in the other two.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Clear Congress Sailing for Tax Slash Doubted

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy reaffirmed this week that he would ask Congress for a quick income tax cut but there was evidence that clear sailing through Congress is very doubtful.

Taxes and weather were the most talked about influences on business — future and present.

Proponents of a tax cut retroactive to next Jan. 1 contended that it held the key to a better business in 1963. Others cautioned that precipitate action wouldn't be looked upon with favor and some said the economy was good enough to get along without tampering with taxes.

A cold wave, accompanied in some sections by heavy snows, had a two-fold effect on Christmas buying. In some areas it aroused lagging enthusiasm and in others bogged shoppers down. The storm threatened millions of dollars in damage to Florida crops.

And newspaper strikes, which blacked out the advertising columns in New York City and Cleveland, bit into holiday buying.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Kennedy told his news conference Wednesday that he would ask Congress for an early, substantial income tax reduction when it convenes in January.

"We intend to go ahead with our program," he said. "What I think should be of concern to us all is not the question of the immediate prospects for the next three or four months, but, really, the general trend of our industrial growth, our employment lag, over the last five or six years."

He added that "it will be up to the Ways and Means Committee and the Congress to make a judgment."

The Ways and Means Committee—which originates tax legislation—held the answer, and its chairman, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has definite ideas about tax reduction, and they don't coincide with those of the administration.

* * * *

MILLS HAS been represented as opposing a tax cut that would take effect in 1963, prefering a slower approach toward tax reform on a broad basis. However, he indicated that his committee will give priority to consideration of the President's program if Kennedy insists.

Another powerful member of Congress, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., predicted that Congress will reject the tax proposal if it isn't coupled with a reduction in spending.

Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., too, said that people are concerned that there may be a tax reduction without a cutback in expenditures.

Statements of cautious optimism about the outlook for next year came from several quarters. Ladd Plumley, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, predicted 1963 will be "a good but not a boom year." He added that a recession may have actually occurred last summer and the country may now be on the way to recovery.

* * * *

PLUMLEY SAID a tax cut "could go a long way toward restoring more satisfactory economic growth." Henry Ford II, in his tradditional year-end statement, said the country needs a sharp advance in investment spending and a broad tax cut "to give the economy enough momentum to carry it past rough spots without stalling."

In New York City, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. concluded that business is finishing 1962 "in a phase of hesitant expansion" and that "sentiment is better than it was last summer, although fingers have not yet been completely uncrossed against the possibility of a downturn in early 1963."

While attention was centered on the pace of Christmas buying, a heartening indicator was the Commerce Department's report that retail sales in November rang up increases of two per cent over October and five per cent over November 1961.

* * * *

GOING BACK a little further, the same agency reported that sales of merchant wholesalers set a monthly record of $13.5 billion in October.

A survey indicated that many big corporations are planning to increase their advertising outlays next year to promote new products and to go hand-in-hand with an expected increase in sales.

Automobile production this week spurted to another weekly record for this year. The output of an estimated 175,000 passenger cars was second only to the December 1955 pace. Last week poor weather held production to 169,159.

The automakers, who have been building their cars with steel pulled out of big stockpiles amassed early this year in anticipation of a strike that never came off, have begun buying as much of the metal as they use.

THEY ALSO are considering stepping up their orders in the next few months to again build stockpiles in anticipation of the steelworkers Union reopening its contract with major producers next spring.

Output last week was an estimated 1,858,000 tons, off one per cent from the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: Americans boosted their financial savings by $6.8 billion in the July-September quarter. . . . Consolidated Edison Co. has applied for government permission to build a $175 million atomic power plant in New York City. . . . A major oil and gas recovery has been reported by Gulf Oil Corp. 32 miles off the Louisiana coast . . . J. C. Penney Co., the department store chain, sold $1,153,711,175 worth of merchandise in the first nine months of this year.

Rain in North Moving South

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rain dampened much of Northern California Saturday and spread steadily southward. Snow fell at high mountain levels as far south at the Tahoe area.

By midday the rain had reached Monterey and Merced and the Weather Bureau said it probably would hit the Tehachapis by nightfall and Southern California Sunday.

Christmas Arrives in Harbor

—Staff Photos by Dick Tolbert

With part of her crew lining the forward flight deck, the 33,000-ton converted carrier Valley Forge emerged from the fog off Pier E Saturday morning after eight months' duty with the Seventh Fleet in the western Pacific.

It was one of 16 Navy ships with more than 6,000 men due in their home port this weekend. For thousands of Navy families here it is the nicest Christmas present of all.

Tyke with the too-big sailor hat is hoisted aloft by his mother to see if he can spot daddy.

Navy Airman Robert M. Ross, 21, of Whittier, got a pretty nice present, himself, when he debarked from carrier. Mrs. Ross watches expectantly while her husband looks for the first time at their son, Robert Albert, 6 weeks.

She breaks out in smile when airman turns toward her with obvious "Yeah, I think we'll keep him" approval.

U.S. Has A-Missiles to Wipe Out Soviet

PARIS (UPI)—The United States has enough atomic missiles today to be able to survive a surprise nuclear "Pearl Harbor" and then launch a counterattack that would erase existing Soviet society, informed American sources said here Saturday.

This assessment of the relative nuclear strength of the two countries was given to America's allies during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council session in Paris last week.

The source said Soviet and Western Allied ground forces on the Iron Curtain frontier in Europe are about equal, although the Soviets probably could build theirs up more quickly in an emergency.

* * * *

BUT THE WEST has a strong edge in the air and big superiority in nuclear power which it expects to retain indefinitely, the sources said.

This American assessment of Soviet strength toned down somewhat the pessimistic picture painted to the NATO Council Friday by U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Allied supreme commander Gen. Lauris Norstad.

The sources said McNamara and Norstad did not wish to convey the impression that the Allied forces would be overrun quickly but simply that they should be strengthened, if they were to carry out their mission properly in the future.

The sources explained that in the U. S. view the mission of these forces will extend increasingly into the conventional field. This theory is based on the idea that the vast nuclear strength of both the United States and the Soviets will make each increasingly wary of a nuclear showdown.

Fountain Valley School Site Sought

Superintendent O. A. Peters said it will serve a 300-house subdivision approved by City of Fountain Valley, and that other tracts will be built around it.

Youth Officers Convene in L.B.

Long Beach has been selected as the site for the 1964 convention of the California State Juvenile Officers Association, Captain Paul Landsdowne, head of the Long Beach Juvenile Bureau and first vice-president of the southern division of the association, announced Saturday.

Capt. Landsdowne, head of the site selection committee, said more than 400 officers are expected to attend the annual training conference March 17 through March 20.

Headquarters for the conference will be the Edgewater Inn Marina Hotel, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway, now under construction.

• • • •

WILLIAM J. MOONEY, Long Beach chief of police, and Pete Pitchess, Los Angeles County sheriff, will be co-hosts.

"National experts will discuss the latest techniques in combatting such statewide delinquency problems as narcotics, glue sniffing, auto thefts, burglaries and the ever-increasing problem of child neglect and mistreatment," Captain Landsdowne said.

California, the captain added, has long been recognized in forward planning for juvenile control, has emphasized the professional training of juvenile officers and pioneered in coordinating the efforts of juvenile officers, school authorities and private and public organizations in combatting juvenile delinquency.

MORALE AID

Urge E. Germans Fete Border Guards

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communists are seeking to boost the flagging morale of policemen forced to shoot down unarmed fleeing refugees. They urged East Berliners to invite their "loved" border guards to Christmas dinner.

According to Red propaganda campaign, the guards are worthy of love and respect from young and old for preventing Western militarists and imperialists from disrupting East Germany's "merry and prosperous" holiday season.

Extortionist Gets Term in State Prison

One of three men accused of a blackmail incident to a "shakedown" involving morals violations will be taken to Chino Prison Monday under a commitment order from Superior Court Judge Stephen Tamura.

Charles R. Ross, 46, drew a term of from one to 14 years following his conviction Friday in a court trial.

• • • •

ROSS WAS found guilty of extortion after Lawrence L. Downs testified that Ross had posed as a police officer and "fined" him $46 after threatening arrest on a trumped-up morals count.

Held in Los Angeles on a similar charge is Frank Louis Siegel of Buena Park, alleged ringleader of the trio who, officers said, used faked credentials to pose as police officers.

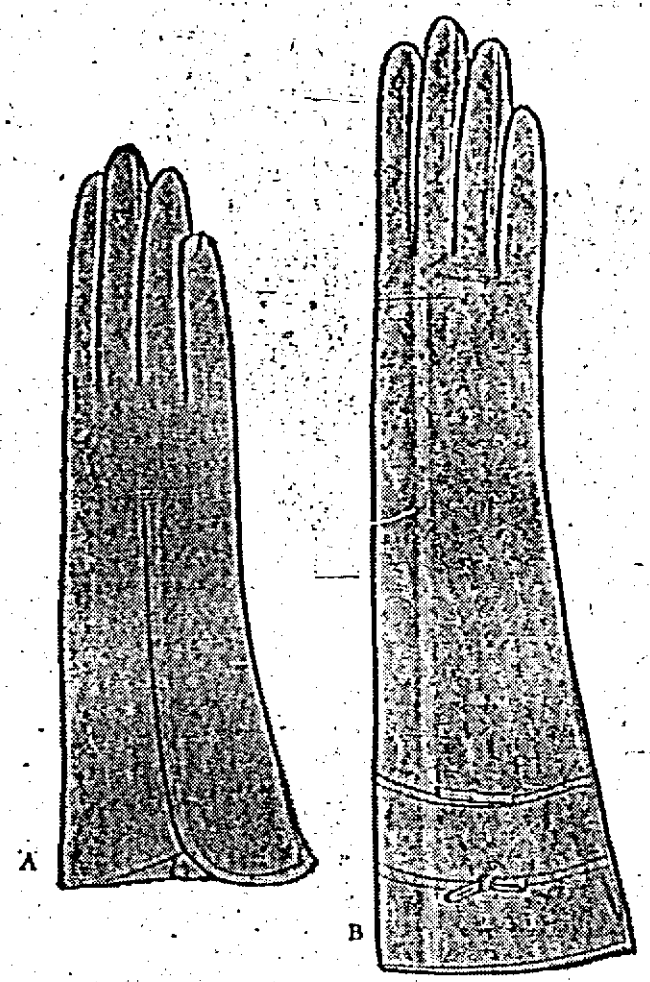

A man identified as James J. Finigan still is sought. He was named as third member of the extortion ring.

Volunteers Rally to Assist Y

Two oil companies and a labor union combined efforts Saturday to tear down a house and garage in 3½ hours to make way for two new YMCA handball courts.

Twenty - eight volunteer workers of the Laborers and Plasters Union, Local 507, wrecked the two buildings at the North Long Beach Branch of the Y, 6095 California Ave.

Shell Oil Co., and Richfield Oil Corp., furnished the trucks to haul away the debris.

• • • •

CHAIRMAN of the Y branch, R. E. (Pat) Corbett, said the donated labor and trucking saved funds the Y needs to buy the materials for construction of the handball courts.

A marked increase in the number of young men participating in the Y program at the North Long Beach Branch has overcrowded its facilities.

PALOS VERDES

BUILDERS SALE
SAVE $6500
You'll be $4,500 ahead of the crowd if you shop this address this weekend. Come to 3564 Starline Drive and look for the desperate expression on the face of the builder.

We'll then tell you the sad-for-us, but good-for-you facts. We custom-built a section of four-bedroom ocean view homes in Palos Verdes prime section, sold most, and now find we can't wait for the usual profit on the remaining few.

We took last weekend's price tag of $54,000 and changed it to $47,500. Since these homes are surrounded by $70,000 to $100,000 neighbors, you can appreciate the appreciation possibilities. Next weekend the big-time speculators move in and we really begin to hurt. This weekend we hope to reach a few sophisticated individual buyers and give them a chance.

It will be worth a sure $6,500 if you will simply come now over to Palos Verdes Drive East to Crest Road. Go west on Crest to Starline. Admire the view. Admire the architecture. Cheer us up.

Grand Opera Big Lover

NEW YORK — Richard Tucker remembers that when he and Maria Callas were embracing in their first operatic love scene, Maria whispered, "Richard . . ."

He answered her with his eyebrows—the boy alto from the Allen St. Synagogue who had sung his way up to become the Caruso of the 1960s.

"Yes, Maria?" the eyebrows inquired.

"Why do I feel so comfortable with you and not with the others?" Maria whispered on.

"Because, tonight Maria," he replied, "you are in the major leagues."

Tucker considers himself a major league lover in the opera world—Maria had been having stage love made to her by "inferior tenors"—Tucker was positively blunt with Renata Tebaldi the first time they ever rehearsed a love scene, because when they should have been clinching, she started to walk away.

"I stopped the rehearsal!" Tucker enthusiastically recalled.

"I said, 'I have to tell Miss Tebaldi that if she is going to be singing this love scene with me, she's got to be in my arms. She's not going to be on 40th St. while I'm on 39th'."

* * * *

TUCKER feels this onstage love-making must be worked at and cultivated, and he admits it's nice work . . .

"But I promise you I don't carry it beyond the opera house. Though I don't think there's a man alive who wouldn't think about it . . ."

Once during a love scene with a star, she whispered, "Move up a litle closer, you're sitting on the edge of the bed." A less friendly prima donna might have let him crash onto the floor.

"There was another leading prima donna I squeezed so hard she said, 'Richard, I can't breathe!'"

* * * *

DOUBTFUL that he'll ever again work with Callas, he said, "My teacher, Paul Althouse, said that you could usually tell a person's character by the voice—and it was true of Callas. They were both"—Tucked didn't pause a second—"miserable."

"My wife and I were instrumental in geting her married to her husband," he recalled. "She weighed 240 pounds then.

"We fed her—which she failed to reveal when she told her story for publication."

TUCKER HAD just been in to "talk to the boss," Rudolf Bing, about the '63-64 season. Bing had wanted him for 27 or 28 appearances. Tucker wanted half that.

"I've got 13 dates right here on this list," Tucker said, brandishing a paper. "They pay an average of $40,000 to $50,000 . . ."

"Don't talk to me about money!" Bing protested.

"I like to talk about money," Tucker said.

Lahr Plays 6 Roles in New Comedy

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all that zany company which lit up show world from the torrid '20's through the frantic '50's, — Bobby Clark, Willie Howard and others—a single star still romps in '62. Bert Lahr. Very chipper, full of talk.

Looking around him, the putty-faced veteran considers only one comic has emerged in recent years to carry on the old tradition of grand and glorious buffoonery, Jackie Gleason.

YOU'VE GOT to always be on the lookout for new challenges also, he insisted. His latest excursion into such fresh adventure is "The Beauty Part," a comedy by S. J. Perelman, an expert at plucking the cliches and foibles of contemporary life.

Lahr will be busy in six diverse roles. Among them, he will be a lady magazine publisher and an elderly oriental.

The workout, like others in which he has indulged during recent seasons, marks a sharp departure from the burlesque japery which shot him to fame in countless revues and musical comedy.

"AT THIS point in my career," says the 67-year-old star, "I want to develop all my alleged talents as much as possible.

CAPT. BLIGH SAILS AGAIN

H.M.S. Bounty Rides Waves After 173 Years With Cargo of Picture Studio Handouts

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

ABOARD H.M.S. BOUNTY (AP) — Orders crackled in the pre-dawn darkness like the lash of a cat 'o nine tails.

"Pilot's aboard, sir."

"Very well. Cast off bow line."

"Bow line away."

"Cast off stern line."

"Stern line away."

"Starboard easy . . . midships . . . steady as she goes . . ."

* * * *

THE SAILING ship slipped down the Delaware on the slack tide, bound south for strange waters and strange ports with a cargo of precious handouts to placate the natives and enrich the coffers of the owners. Chief placater and coffer enricher was an enormous cardboard cut-out of Marlon Brando stored in the main hatch just aft of the great cabin and hard by the frozen locker.

Thus, more than 173 years after the famous mutiny, the Bounty rode the waves again. This time she was in the service of the movie lords at Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, who built the replica at a cost of $750,000 as a set for a remake of the movie "Mutiny On The Bounty." Then she was launched on a two-year, 40,000-mile publicity tour.

* * * *

BLIGH and Fletcher Christian, the mutinous first mate, would have had much to admire in the handiwork of the shipbuilders of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, who recreated the Bounty with loving attention to detail. Particularly the saucy carving of the English woman in riding habit lifting her skirts above the billowing waves on the bowsprit.

But they would have flipped their periwigs over the soundproofing and air conditioning below decks, the stainless steel galley, the bearded guitar player bawling "All Night, Mary Ann" into a microphone in the crew's mess, the twin Diesel engines purring a path of progress through becalmed waters, the radar scanner flapping its ears among the top gallants, the Japanese transistor radio lashed to the mizzen mast so the helmsman could tug at the great wheel in tempo to Perry Como's crooning of "Moon River" and all the other manifest benefits of modern civilization.

There was, alas, precious little time for such ruminations.

* * * *

AS WE slipped under the Benjamin Franklin Bridge a pink finger of dawn was drawing the darkness from Philadelphia's receding skyline.

"Breakfast now being served in the great cabin," called out a salty, apple-cheeked lad who only a few moments before had been scampering through the rigging.

Having signed aboard the Bounty for a weekend as a supernumerary at the munificent sum of 25 cents a month, to get around a Canadian regulation that forbids passengers of certain-sized commercial ships, we went below to take up our duty as quondam historian and permanent chow hound of the cruise.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

UNAFRAID OF MUTINY, AP writer Hugh A. Mulligan takes the helm of the Bounty and heads down Chesapeake Bay with a cargo of publicity for the "Mutiny on the Bounty" film.

* * * *

"WE SHOULD be in the Chesapeake Canal in a couple of hours," muttered Capt. Ellsworth Coggins, debonairly placing a glass of frozen orange juice amid the charts and maps spread out on the navigation table. Framed in the porthole behind him, an atomic cruiser rode at anchor in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, its workmen no doubt matching the Bounty's deck crew gape for gape.

Coggins, a retired Canadian Naval Commander, has sailed the rebuilt Bounty across both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. His worst experience so far had nothing to do with a mutiny, which is highly unlikely among his well fed, well-paid crew of Nova Scotian sailors. Rather, it involved transporting a cargo of well-oiled Italian and French photographers across the English Channel.

"Despite their condition, most of the chaps insisted on climbing the rigging," Coggins recalled. "All concerned became dreadfully seasick. We had to swab the decks to make a proper appearance."

* * * *

BLIGH NEVER had to contend with sullen photographers but he did suffer from one annoyance that still plagues the modern Bounty: Thefts by the natives. In Tahiti two centuries ago, they stole the ship's anchor. Today the thousands of sightseers who flock aboard in every port will steal anything that isn't lashed to the masts.

"They've stolen so many belaying pins, we can hardly work the sails," moaned First Mate Ralph Hemphill.

Like everyone else on the Bounty, the matey has learned to live with the Bounty's infamous past, especially the various movie versions. Hardly a day in port goes by without some extrovert hopping up on the hatch cover, curling a lip menacingly and shouting at the top of his lungs: "Mister Christian, I'll see you hanged from the highest yard arm in the British Navy."

* * * *

THE FACT that the line, first uttered by Charles Laughton, does not occur in the current movie version did not dissuade Trevor Howard, the new Capt. Bligh, from using it when he came aboard the Bounty in London for his first visit since the filming.

Not a man in the Bounty's crew ventured so much as a groan.

'Male Animal' Limp, Spiritless

By ROBERT C. WYLDER

James Thurber and Elliot Nugent co-authored "The Male Animal," but no one should blame them for what took place in the Horseshoe Theater of Long Beach City College Business and Technological Division this weekend. Neither was around to protect himself.

The show is a mildly interesting comedy if left reasonably to itself, but when it is assaulted by too many actors with too little experience it emerges limp and spiritless. That's what happened this time. Director Herb Caesar was able to salvage only a portion of what might have been a delightful play.

"The Male Animal" is concerned, via the Sacco and Vanzetti case, with the question, among others, of academic freedom, and has just enough serious comment in it to serve as a solid background for its laughs. While Sacco and Vanzetti may be a dead issue now, the larger question of the freedom to teach isn't, so the show still has some pertinence. Its edge, however, was pretty well dulled in the local production — and the laughs were lost in the process.

Jim Contis portrayed the English professor who is forced by circumstances to assert himself. Mildred Contis played his wife; John Nasheim, the former football hero; Lester Britton the trustee. Others in the cast were Bea Bozeman, Elenor Hunden, Charles Fein, John Kuklinca, Monna High, Nancy Johnson and John Solbes. They all tried hard.

Everyone has a bad day now and then. This was it at BTD.

10,719 See Rich Romp by Jet Deck

By ERNIE MASON

Confident Jet Deck stepped easily and swiftly down a gold-paved 350-yard chute to victory Saturday in the $207,750 Los Alamitos Futurity — the richest race ever run in California before 10,719 fans.

The bay 2-year-old son of Moon Deck won as easily as expected by his supporters who bet him down to 2-5. He rewarded them $2.80, $2.60 and $2.20.

But he rewarded his owner, J. B. Chambers, far better. The winner's share was $93,263 and Chambers also received a $2,500 award as the nominator of the winner.

• • • •

THE $95,745 returned to the Denver owner was a handsome return on a $24,000 gamble. He made both Jet Deck and Jet Flash supplementary nominees, but Jet Flash failed to qualify.

Jet Deck stepped the distance in 17.7 seconds, which gave him a princely wage rate of $5,409.32 per second.

Second place, three-quarters of a length back, was Anacacbo Ranch's Lightning Belle, followed in order by Go Eagle Go, Miss Corsair, Moolah Bar, Bar Depth, Miss Bar Leo, Dogface, Romabar and Palleo's Jeep.

• • • •

LIGHTNING Belle earned $28,385 for second place, returning better than 14-1 on the $2,000 in nominating, continuing and entry fees paid.

Miss Bar Leo, the swift little Houston, Tex., filly made a supplementary nominee, was the only horse in the event to lose money. She placed seventh and returned owners O. C. O'Quinn and Calvin Klein $7,096.25 on their $12,000 investment.

Even the last place horse showed a profit. Jerry Thompson's Palleo's Jeep earned $3,041.25 on his $2,000 investment.

The public had so much confidence in Jet Deck that it set a new track wagering record for a single race. The crowd chunked $123,989 through the mutuel machines to pass the previous mark of $110,219 set two weeks ago when Jet Deck won the Cal-bred Futurity and paid the same price, $2.80.

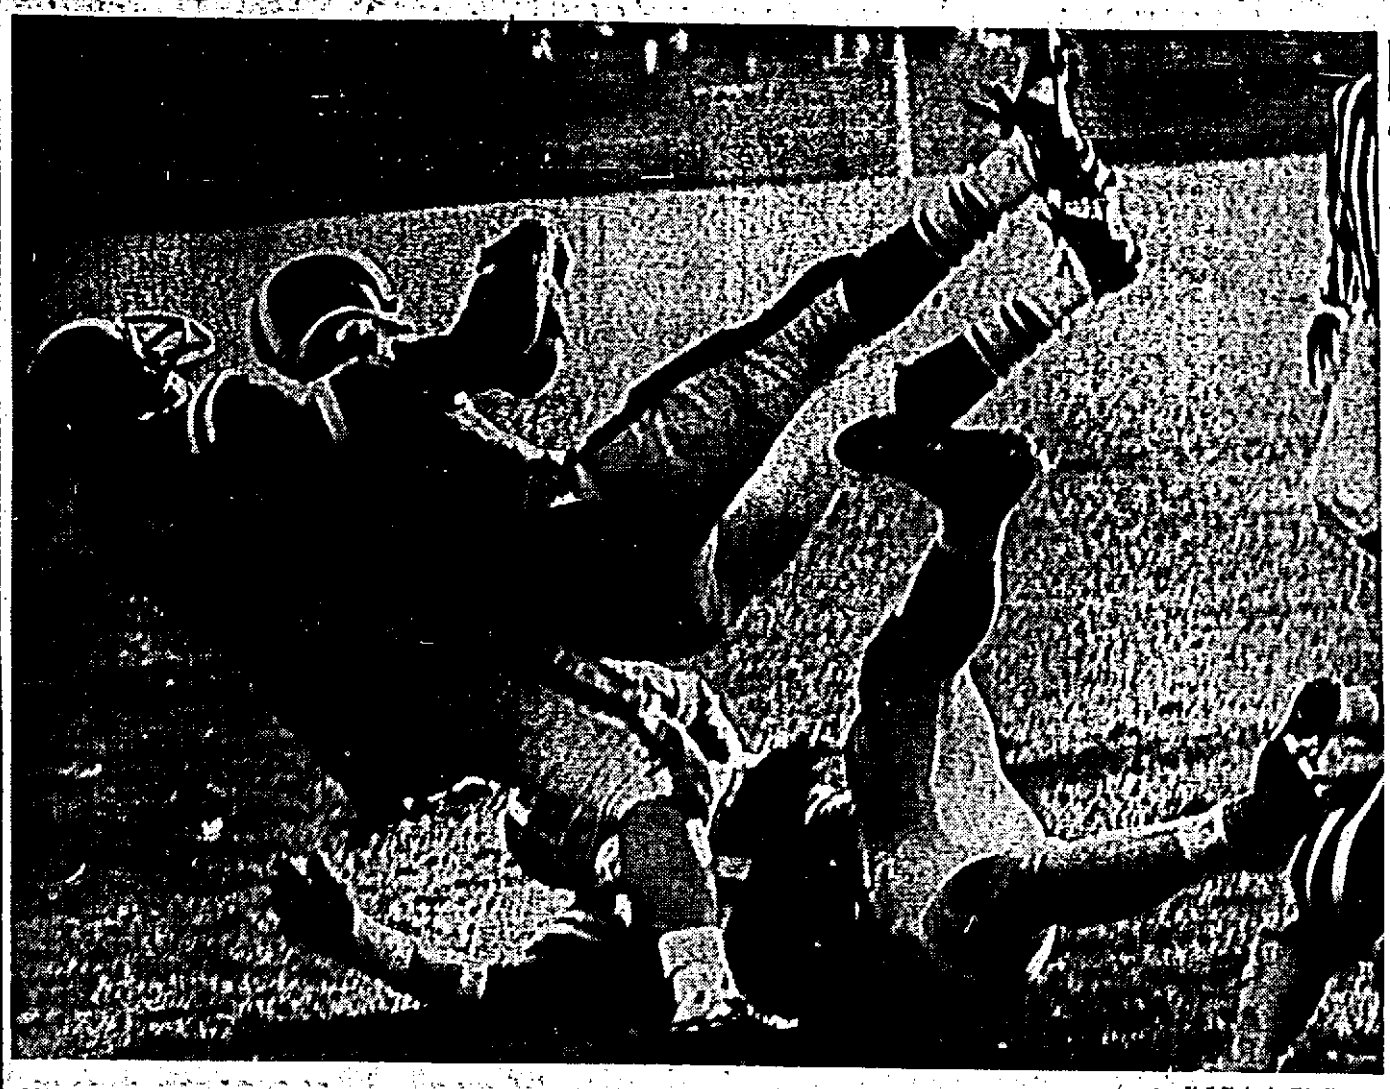

The day's handle, $850,356, was the second largest in the history of the track.

In the race, Jet Deck showed he was just as confident of victory as were his supporters. He came out of the gate on top with Lightning Belle and the rocket-starting Miss Bar Leo — just as jockey Charles Smith had predicted.

• • • •

FROM THE gate he steadily and easily pulled away from the field, though Lightning

Basin Sets 17-Yr. Mark 'Most Inept'

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

Santa Ana College humiliated Columbia Basin College of Washington, 20-0, in the 17th Junior Rose Bowl football game Saturday before a crowd of 41,709.

It was the first shutout since the game's inception in 1946, and Columbia Basin's showing was the most inept in the game's history.

In 59 plays from scrimmage the Hawks netted a combined total of 59 yards rushing and passing. And their four first downs were the least any JRB team has ever compiled.

Santa Ana was in charge all the way although the Dons didn't hit the scoreboard until the second quarter when quarterback Dunn Marteen kicked two field goals and plunged for a touchdown to pile up a 12-0 halftime lead.

• • • •

MARTEEN WAS named "player of the game." He received 35 of the 63 votes cast to beat out teammates Don Davis and Wylie Carlyle.

The all-America sophomore actually did not turn in one of his better performances. He was obviously bothered by a swollen finger on his right hand, and he completed only one of nine passes and had two intercepted.

It was field leadership and general all-round excellence that accounted for the award.

Marteen and halfback Mike Anderson each netted one more yard rushing than the entire Columbia Basin team totaled both rushing AND passing. Fullback Steve Ledbetter was only two yards behind the entire Hawk squad in rushing.

• • • •

COLUMBIA Basin was so inadequate offensively that it is difficult to give all the credit to a fine Santa Ana defense—especially after watching Hawk halfback Bud Hare run into a teammate on five occasions.

The Hawks netted only six yards rushing and one yard passing in the first half. They could advance no further than their own 39. In the last half they spurted to the Santa Ana 28 and to their own 45, but on six other opportunities they couldn't get past their own 24.

With all due admiration for Santa Ana, the Dons by right should have doubled the score. Instead of settling for two field goals, they should have had two more touchdowns. And in the final half they were stopped on the 1, 4 and 5 yard lines, the last time by the clock.

• • • •

IT IS debatable whether this lack of punch was because of a spirited Hawk defense or in actually sputtering Santa Ana offense.

But it really doesn't make any difference. The win was the 10th in a row for the unbeaten Dons and it enhances their claim to the mythical national junior college championship and a ranking as the best of all Orange County football teams.

Marteen's field goals of 24 and 27 yards broke the 21-

K.C. Routs Chiefs, Only 4 Percentage Points Out of Lead

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Steers pulled within four percentage points of the Long Beach Chiefs in the tight American Basketball League race by swamping the California invaders, 110-89, here Saturday night.

The victory gave Kansas City a 16-7 record for a .696 percentage. Long Beach stands at .700 with a 14-6 mark.

High-scoring Bill Bridges, who recently set an ABL record of 55 points and has been around 40 ever since, had to settle for 27 points Saturday night, but it was enough for high-scoring honors.

• • • •

THE GAME was decided in the first half as the Steers built up a 14-point advantage. They were 11 points on top after the first 12 minutes.

Long Beach had only one less field goal than the Steers, but K. C. converted 34 shots from the foul line, including 19 in the first half. Long Beach made only 18 of 31 from the charity line.

Guard Grady McCollum of the Chiefs kept Long Beach from being demoralized in the second half. He wound up with 21 points.

These same clubs battle again tonight. In three games to date, Kansas City has won two.

LBCC BAND HAD ALL BEAT
Hawk 'Power' Jammed

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Long Beach City College's fine marching band represented Columbia Basin College at halftime Saturday in the Junior Rose Bowl and after it was all over, Hawk supporters wouldn't have cared if the Viking football machine were on the field in its place.

The Hawks from Pasco, Wash. probably wished they were back among the tall timber playing the likes of Yakima and Grays Harbor after what Santa Ana College did to them in what must go down as one of the duller JRB games on record.

• • • •

WHEN HERALDED Dunn Marteen was able to complete only 1 of 9 passes playing with a jammed finger and still win "player of the game" honors simply because he runs and kicks better than most halfbacks do, one gets the feeling CBC wasn't the greatest JC team ever to trot onto the Rose Bowl turf.

"Marteen was psychologically 95 per cent ineffective out there because of that finger," said Don coach Homer Beatty after the game.

"Even Orr (second string QB Don) had one of his poorer days. We were simply able to jam all their power plays up the middle.

"We decided to let them get the fitters and let them make the mistakes," said Beatty, explaining why Santa Ana chose to kick off after winning the toss.

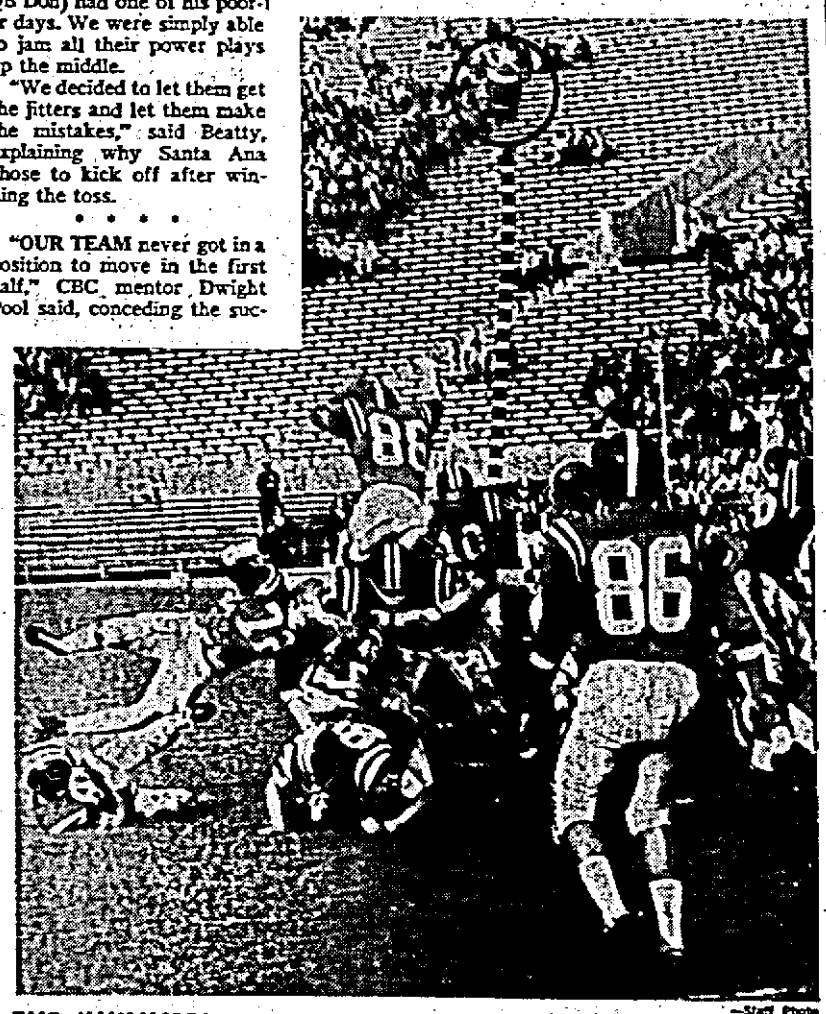

• • • •

"OUR TEAM never got in a position to move in the first half," CBC mentor Dwight Pool said, conceding the success of Beatty's decision.

Pool, who closed the dressing room to the press for 10 minutes, said Santa Ana "did just about what we expected on offense. I have no complaints on how our boys played."

Pool admitted that maybe he should have opened up a little more in the second half, but he didn't sound too convinced.

"It was a great day for the Dons, but that Viking band still had them all beat.

Giants Trade Miller, McCormick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Giants and Baltimore Orioles made a wholesale exchange of 1962 pitching disappointments and threw two young catchers into a six-man deal announced only a few hours before Saturday's midnight inter-league trading deadline.

The National League champions sent Sru Miller, Mike McCormick and catcher John Orsino to the Orioles for Jack Fisher, Billy Hoeft and ex-National League catcher Jim Coker.

In other late inter-league transactions, the St. Louis Cardinals sent first baseman Fred Whitfield to Cleveland for pitcher Ron Taylor and infielder Jack Kubiszyn, and Washington purchased catcher Don Leppert from Pittsburgh.

Miller, who will be 35 Dec. 26, was the National League earned run average champion in 1958 and a 14-game winner in 1961 as he led the Giants' bullpen staff. But the righthander slumped to 5-8 and a 4.12 ERA last season as wildness plagued his effectiveness.

McCormick, a 6-year veteran though he is only 24, signed with the Giants for about $65,000 in 1956. He won 15 games in 1960 but was only 5-5 in 1962, complaining that his left pitching arm hurt whenever he threw hard.

Oddly, he and Miller each had .500 career records: 59-59 and 67-67, respectively.

Fisher, at 23 the youngest pitcher in the deal, won 12 games at Baltimore in 1960 and 10 in 1961, but was 7-9, this year with a poor ERA of 5.09. He is a righthander.

Hoeft, 30, has been in the majors for 11 seasons. He won 16 games at Detroit in 1955 and 20 the next year but has won no more than 7 in any year since 1958.

Troy Wins 7th in Row; Bruins Drub Missouri

By JEROME HALL

The USC basketball coach doesn't understand it either.

After seven contests, the Trojans are undefeated and standing in line for a place among the top 20 teams in the nation.

The Trojans continued their mysterious romp through supposedly strong opposition Saturday with a 66-51 triumph over Oklahoma U.

• • • • •

UCLA's defending Western champion Bruins put on a racehorse exhibition for the second night in succession and downed Missouri. The score was 72-55 in a game played at Santa Monica CC before a capacity crowd of 2,200.

"I'd have to say we're coming along pretty good," commented Trojan coach Forrest Twogood who pointed out that his team was behind by 14 early in the game and won by 15 over a ball club that previously had beaten Southwest Conference kingpin SMU and eastern power St. John's in this young season.

"I guess that shows we've got the makings of something," the Troy coach concluded.

• • • •

THE TROJANS do not as yet resemble world-beaters, but it's undeniable that already this season they have collected about as many victories as most thought they'd get for the entire schedule.

Saturday they played an afternoon game before 14,435 empty seats in the 15,000-seat L.A. Sports Arena and got off to a horrendous beginning, falling behind by 10 points before they could score their second basket.

The Oklahomans were shapes of wrath after the 101-64 licking they'd taken the night before against UCLA. The Sooner bench was a wild scene—a stark contrast in the huge arena otherwise uncluttered by onlookers.

The Trojans stole the ball in the first 10 seconds of the game, cashed it in for a quick field goal, and then didn't get another for five minutes as Oklahoma ran up a 13-3 advantage.

It went to 21-7 before Troy settled down. USC caught up 2½ minutes before the half (27-27) and everybody knew it was all over.

52 for Elgin as Lakers Rip Warriors

By ROSS NEWHAN

The organist at the L.A. Sports Arena no longer serenades the Lakers with "Angeltown." Instead, in honor of Elgin Baylor, the hit parade favorite has become, "It's Getting to Be a Habit With Me."

Tick Tock clicked off 52 points Saturday night — the third consecutive evening he has surpassed the 50 mark—as the Lakers ran the San Francisco Warriors back to the Bay, 113-104.

A crowd of 8,013 gave Baylor a standing ovation when the pros' pro left the court with 52 seconds remaining after directing the Lakers to their 12th victory in 13 Sports Arena contests and their fifth in a row over the "Stilted" Warriors.

• • • •

THE LAKERS thus kept intact their three game advantage over St. Louis and will turn the sports scene over to the Rams today as they rest in preparation for an invasion by the high-scoring Syracuse Nationals Monday evening.

Baylor's superlative performance marked the first time in his spangled pro career he has scored over 50 points in three consecutive games. He hit 19 of 32 shots and his passing was something for Roman Gabriel to behold.

While Baylor was supplying the offensive spark, rookie Gene Wiley and veteran Jim Krebs were throwing a blanket over Wilt Chamberlain. Wiley, guarding the Bay giant in the first and third periods, and Krebs taking over in the second and fourth stanzas, held Chamberlain to 24 points, his low water mark of the season.

• • • •

"THEY BOTH did a great job on him," said coach Fred Schaus. "You've got to make him move back instead of laterally when he goes for the jumper and that's exactly what they did."

Leading only 57-54 at halftime, the Lakers salted away their 16th victory in their last 18 games with a mighty surge in the first four minutes, 11 seconds of the third period.

While holding the Warriors scoreless, Jerry West pumped in three consecutive field goals and the Lakers raced to a 70-54 advantage. Ex-UCLA and New York star Willie Naulls put the Warriors' offense back together, but it was too late and the Lakers coasted and clowned—Hot Rod, of course—to victory.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

Hockey Looms Big Business Here

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . That ice hockey is destined to go over with a big bang here was demonstrated in tremendous fashion Friday night when the semi-pro Gulls lured 3,436 souls into Long Beach Arena. The action was considerably more lively than in most of the Western League games at Los Angeles . . . and you can wager safely that most of the patrons on hand Friday night will return.

. . . Action in American Basketball League games here involving the Chiefs similarly has been lively, yet only two dates of 11 yielded throngs of over 2,000. The reasons for the attendance difference are twofold, as far as this corner is concerned. One: The $2 hockey tops compared to the $3.50 basketball ceiling. Two: The considerably more time the hockey people have been able to spend in legwork and grass roots promotion.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . The Long Beach area is completely qualified to support hockey and basketball. Unless I'm 100 per cent wrong, hockey is here to stay. With a season under its belt to correct unintentional errors and make important adjustments, pro basketball could flourish here also. Certainly, the brand of ball exhibited by the Chiefs has left nothing to desire.

. . . Art Wild, the able city editor, takes permissible exception to an L.A. newspaper story describing the Chiefs as "colorless." His proof was in a wire service story that made the first page of most sports sections this past week. The wire story described the Chiefs as "a colorful, fighting organization." (Art should be informed that this particular L.A. paper has done nothing to push sports in Long Beach. On the contrary, it has tried to squelch every sports improvement we have made!)

PAUL HORNUNG, whose status for today's game with the Rams is doubtful, is furious over a San Francisco newspaper story citing his "lack of humor" at being awakened at 1 a.m. before last Sunday's 49er contest. Four college students decided to make Hornung's acquaintance at that particular hour, then went crying to a 'Frisco columnist when Paul gave them the bum's rush.

. . . The fraternity boys then broke into the room of Jim Taylor and Jerry Kramer . . . and surprisingly were given a five-minute audience with the two Green Bay Packers.

. . . Asked about the incident when he arrived in Long Beach last week, Hornung said "no comment, but I'd act the same way all over again." I admire the friendliness of Taylor and Kramer, but I can't blame Hornung for his attitude. (Everything goes when the whistle blows, but not after you hit the sack!)

. . . The Packers, incidentally, were all business here this past week in preparations for their joust with the pitiful Rams. To the consternation of some, Coach Vince Lombardi treated the players as if they were being readied for the NFL title game. One athlete supported his coach for the simple reason "that if we blow this one to the Rams, we probably have to meet Detroit again in a playoff game." (After the way the Lions manhandled the Packers on Thanksgiving Day, more than a few people think the Detroiters right now might be the best ball club in either division of the NFL.)

BOB BLACKMAN, the Poly High product, was the subject of a lengthy feature in a national magazine last week for leading Dartmouth to the Ivy League championship. In relating how he was amazed by things that happen in the Ivy League, Blackman made this comment:

"A few years ago I had a valuable player come in before the Yale game and ask to be taken off the traveling roster. 'I can't make the trip,' said the boy, 'because I've got to study.' They'll never believe that in Long Beach."

. . . The Chargers' all-league defensive back, Dick Harris, is back in his San Pedro abode nursing a seriously injured eye incurred when he blocked a field goal attempt. Asked his viewpoint on the astonishingly sudden Charger downfall this season, the diplomatic redhead declared: "No comment. I may want to play there again next year.

. . . Ben Agajanian, who spent most of the past week working out at Vets Stadium with the Packers (humorously enough in getting ready for today's work with the winless Oakland Raiders), was grousing that he didn't join Marty Nishkian in purchasing a quarter horse named Tiny Chick. All Chick has done at the current Los Alamitos meeting is win three races. Ben threw all his eggs into the basket of a thoroughbred called (aptly enough) Tiny Spender, which hasn't yet been to the races, is out of training and (with luck) may limp into the Hollypark meeting.

. . . Best definition of the Green Bay club (as expressed by a Ram who wishes his identity concealed): "Playing the Packers is like reading a book that is difficult to understand. Those are the kind you learn from." ("And "our" boys have a lot to learn.)

Poly Five Races to Tourney Title

By NORM WILKY

Poly High withstood a late Dominguez rally to whip the Dons, 57-51, to win the Dominguez basketball tourney for the second consecutive year Saturday night.

Little Bennie Richard paced the Rabbits to their seventh successive win with 18 points and was named player of the tourney.

ALL-TOURNEY TEAM

Most valuable: Richard.

POLY HAD a 11-point lead midway in the final period, but the Dons pulled within in three, 50-47, with 2:53 to go. Richard's two free throws and John MacArthur's basket put Poly back in command, however.

Glendale defeated Crescenta Valley, 44-34, for third place, St. Anthony topped Palos Verdes, 54-50, in overtime for consolation honors and Jordan took seventh place by beating Lynwood, 67-44.

Guard Mike Horan was the hero in St. Anthony's win. He scored 20 points, including six in overtime and a basket with three seconds to go in regulation play to force the game into the extra period.

Steady Jim DeLong paced Jordan with 23 points, giving him 85 in four tourney games. Dave Sorenson added 17 for the Panthers.

49ERS BEST GAME, BUT . . .

Free Throws Beat Long Beach State

By AL LARSON

Orange State's deadly accuracy at the foul line paid rich dividends as the Titans outscored Long Beach State, 100-89, Saturday night in a tension-packed contest on the Fullerton JC court.

A crowd of 600 held its breath as coach Alex Omalev's club, outshot by two field goals, cashed in 32 of 41 free throws to lock up its fifth win without defeat.

The setback for Long Beach was a bitter one since the 49ers turned in their best performance of the season, and at distinct odds.

Stan Andersen, the 49ers' leading scorer, was shut out completely for the first time in his career, but there was ample reason.

• • • •

THE FORMER Millikan great was strapped with his fourth personal foul by the time the game was only seven minutes old. He finally fouled out with 1&10 remaining after playing a total of only 13 minutes.

Orange State had to turn on its fiercest firepower of the season before locking up the game with three minutes to go. Until then the 49ers matched the Titans basket for basket. But then Orange State went into 1-and-1 foul situations and Edgar Clark, Jon Brettman and Terry Hermann rattled off six gift shots and LBSC was doomed.

By contrast, Long Beach never did get to the line for a bonus shot. A total of 25 personals were whistled against Long Beach while officials detected 14 on the winners.

• • • •

ORANGE STATE jumped off to an early lead and never trailed, although the 49ers did deadlock the contest twice in the late stages, 68-68 and 70-all on baskets by Lyn Hodge.

• • • •

HODGE SHARED scoring honors with Johnny Johnson as both pumped in 25 points. Hodge had another perfect night at the foul line and now has slipped in 15 attempts without a miss this year.

Brettman won individual scoring honors with 32. The Titans hit 45 per cent of their shots compared to 40 for the visitors. Long Beach sank 17 of 20 at the foul line.

Dick Perry discovered a new star in Al Windfeldt, who came on for Andersen and scored 16 points. The former San Pedro High flash sank seven of eight shots from the field as he kept the 49ers in the game late in the first half.

Bad Dream for Vikings: Bow to Palomar, 79-66

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Somewhat surprised to find themselves enjoying an eight-point halftime lead, host Long Beach City College found little Palomar College harder to shake than a bad dream Saturday night in the last 20 minutes and when they awoke it was too late.

The Comets, from the little town of San Marcos in San Diego County, came on strong to nab an impressive 79-66 decision and hand LBCC its fifth loss in 11 games.

• • • •

AFTER PLAYING their best half of the season, the Vikes tired badly and faded. The absence of regular Bob Lowes who turned an ankle Friday night, caught up with the Norsemen who have relied on a liberal substitution policy to go with their fast-break offense.

John Fairchild, 6-8, and Ted Repa, 6-5, pulled down numerous rebounds and tipped in those they didn't grab to pace the comeback.

Palomar, trailing 32-40 at half, slowed down the action and caught up 46-46 with 12 minutes remaining. After that the Comets gradually pulled away.

• • • •

THE VIKINGS rallied once and closed to two points, 54-52, with 6:30 left, but that was as close as they could come.

Despite a slow start, LBCC got great shooting from Frank Roy and Romie Hargrove in the first half. But both tired badly in the latter stages and when Hargrove fouled out it was all over.

John Rambo played his usual steady game and scored 27 for high point honors. Roy had 16 for the Vikes while Repa with 21 and Fairchild with 20 led Palomar.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Stanford staved off a series of threats Saturday night and squeaked by with a 44-43 victory over the University of San Francisco.

Man to Man

WYNN

STARR

By JERRY WYNN

He has the name of a two-gun cowboy, the fame as one of the finest quarterbacks in football, and he makes claim never to use "that greasy kid stuff."

Yet Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers really is not at home in the hero image he commands.

A quiet, publicity-shunning pro veteran of seven years with the sandy hair and soft smile of the nice boy next door, Starr graduated from the University of Alabama with a Phi Beta Kappa key as well as gridiron honors.

Today, in addition to leading the NFL in passing and pulling the trigger to one of the most explosive offensive teams ever seen, he probably is the foremost authority on the Civil War among pro football warriors.

As a transplanted Southerner living in Green Bay, Bart, are you reconciled to the North having won the Civil War?

"No. At heart, I'm still a boy from Alabama and favor the South."

How do you like living in Green Bay?

"Very much. It's a little town, but first class. The people are great and the living is easy. I love most everything about Wisconsin except the temperature in the winter. My wife and boy (Bart Jr., 5) have grown to like it too. You can't beat the recreation."

What are your favorite recreations?

"I like to hunt, small game, no deer. I like to golf, score about 80. I like to read, mostly articles and Civil War books."

Do you consider playing quarterback more of a mental or physical challenge?

"I consider it more of a mental challenge because I'm not big enough (6-1, 195) physically to challenge anybody. Pro football is the greatest game of cat and mouse ever seen. It's a lot of fun to play."

Sideline experts have said that anyone can play quarterback on such an outstanding team as the Packers. How would you answer them?

"I would agree. I feel very privileged to play for the Packers. We've got a great line and great backs. I'm not naive enough to believe I could play on some other teams although I have my strong points too."

What makes the Packers world champions?

"Many things. Pride, a tremendous dedication by every one from the head coach to the trainer, a feeling of unity between the players regardless whether they play offense or defense. You could go on and on."

Millions of TV viewers felt sorry for you against the Lions Thanksgiving Day. How did you feel?

"Those things happen, but they haven't happened many times to us in the last four years. I'd call it one of my sorriest days. I'm sure they couldn't play that way against us again."

Would you like to enter coaching when you retire as a player?

"Yes, very much so. It's a great challenge and becoming greater all the time. In just my seven years in the league, I've seen the game change tremendously. The players are smarter, faster and rougher. Coaching is teaching and I've been fortunate to play under a great teacher like coach Lombardi."

What has been your greatest thrill in football?

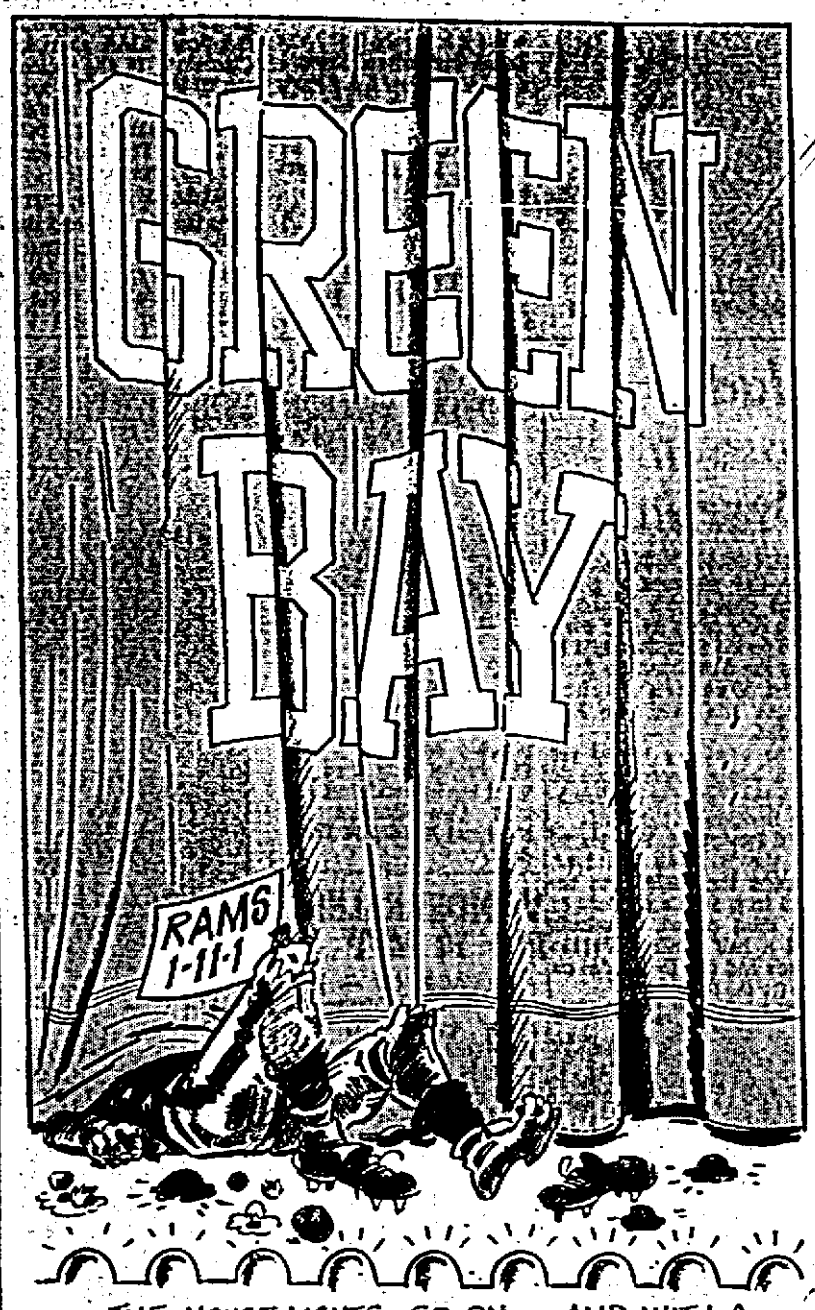

"It was great to win the championship game last year, but just playing on this club is the greatest thrill. It really is."

Do the Packers fear the Rams Sunday?

"We don't fear any team. We respect the Rams. They've always played their heads off against us. I think Gabriel's going to be a great quarterback, and I wish I had his height. After looking at their game films against the Bears, I think Bass was born to play in the snow. He sure can run. We're looking for a rough game against the Rams.

A star among stars—and a fine person—is Bart Starr.

Rams End Black Season

Expect 55,000 to See Packers

By JERRY WYNN

The Rams pack up all their cares and woe and say bye-bye black 1962 season today when they engage the fearsome Green Bay Packers at the Coliseum at 1:35 p.m.

While the Rams will try to give an anticipated crowd of 55,000 a good final show, the Packers will be playing this one for keeps. The current Long Beach tourists have gone through a total of 20 games this year, and won 19 . . . and yet, a loss today could be the ruination of the entire campaign.

WYNN'S WINNER
Packers 35, Rams 17

For if Green Bay should lose and the Detroit Lions beat the Chicago Bears, it would throw the NFL Western Division into a deadlock and force a playoff game. And you remember what happened to the Packers the last time they encountered Detroit!

* * * *

BUT SPECULATIONS of a Ram upset today borders on fantasy. The savage young men of coach Vince Lombardi trounced the Rams, 41-10, in Milwaukee two weeks ago and are favored by 18 points to coast into their third successive division title today.

Still, Ram coach Harland Svare isn't conceding.

"We've had the odds against us all year," he said, "and we're not going to toss in the towel now."

Highlight of the game should be the ground-gaining battle between Jim Taylor and Dick Bass.

"Player of the year" Taylor will seek to nail down league titles in both rushing and scoring. He has a comfortable 216-yard lead in the first category, and is seven points ahead of Lou Michaels in scoring. He needs 210 yards to break Jim Brown's league yardage mark.

* * * *

BASS IS ONLY 45 yards away from becoming the first Ram player to gain 1,000 in a season. In the game at Milwaukee, he outgained Taylor 90 to 71 on two less carries.

Another interesting duel will be between Bart Starr, No. 1 passer in the league who has an amazing 64.0 completion percentage, and rookie Roman Gabriel, who in the last game of the season will be making his Coliseum debut as a starter.

The Rams lineup has several changes.

Linemen Duane Putnam and Joe Carollo and fullbacks Glenn Shaw and Art Perkins are out with injuries. Bass will be at fullback with Jon Arnett returning to left half, Lamar Lundy and Larry Stephens will switch defensive tackle and end positions in an experiment which worked well last week.

Green Bay is at full strength with only Paul Hornung, listed as a starter, still a question mark. Lineups:

Baker's 99-Yard TD Gives OSU 6-0 Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Terry Baker, the Mr. Everything of college football, turned a threatened safety into a 99-yard touchdown run Saturday and it carried the Beavers of Oregon State to a 6-0 victory over underrated Villanova in the fourth annual Liberty Bowl game.

The Beaver all-America quarterback, winner of the Heisman and Maxwell Trophies and UPI college back and player of the year awards, spun his way from his own end zone midway through the first period to go off on his scoring jaunt which gave Oregon State the verdict before 17,048 frost-nipped fans.

Baker pulled the Beavers from a deep, deep hole, set up when Villanova's Larry Glueck touched a booming punt by Dick Sherlock dead on the Oregon State one-foot line.

* * * *

HE CONTINUED wide, outstripping the massed-in Villanova defense to head for the clear. Glueck seemed to have him pinned against the sideline at the 15, but Baker eluded the tackle and went racing behind blockers the length of the field to count.

But, in the nationally televised game played in numbing 25-degree temperatures with players of both teams wearing sneakers, the afternoon was one of frustration for Villanova, including the recall of the tying touchdown by Billy Joe for a holding penalty.

Barely rated among the first 10 teams in the East, and facing one ranked nationally in the top 20, the Wildcats carried the fight to the Pacific Coast eleven, which was a two-touchdown favorite, and almost pulled it from the fire.

* * * *

VILLANOVA outgained Oregon State 309 to 299 overall and outrushed them 246 to 176, with the Westerners' ground total including Baker's 99-yard sprint. Baker, the nation's leader in total offense, completed nine of 21 passes for 123 yards.

Mira Brilliant, but Miami Bows

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Ross ran 92 yards with a kickoff return and scored a second touchdown in the final period Saturday as Nebraska edged Miami 36-34 in a spectacular Gotham Bowl football game despite a dazzling passing show by George Mira, Miami's all-America quarterback.

It was a pity that only a small crowd of 6,166, not including the kids in the bleachers, sat in nearly-empty Yankee Stadium to see this gaudy battle of wide open offense.

* * * *

NOBODY stopped anybody. That was about the story of this contest in which both teams scored in each of the four periods. In the end it was a two-point conversion run by Bill (Thunder) Thornton after Ross' second touchdown that proved to be the difference.

When Mira started firing away with his passes in the final minutes, Bob Brown, the Cornhuskers' 6-foot-5, 251-pound guard, intercepted a pass to stamp out the last threat of the Hurricanes with only seconds to play.

Mira, voted the outstanding player in the game, broke a University of Miami record by completing 24 of 46 passes for 321 yards and two touchdowns.

His scoring pitches were a 10-yarder to Ben Rizzo in the first period and a 30-yard bomb to Nick Spinelli in the second.

Dennis Claridge, a junior quarterback so highly esteemed that Green Bay recently drafted him as its No. 3 choice as a "future," did a brilliant job of meshing the Cornhuskers' solid ground game, built around Ross, Thornton and Dennis Stuewe, with his own passes.

The statistics looked like a lopsided Miami victory for the Hurricanes had 34 first downs to 12 for Nebraska and outgained the winners in total offense 502 yards to 296 yards.

The game was tied at 6-6 at the quarter, 20-20 at halftime. Each team held the lead twice before Nebraska went out front to stay with Ross' 1-yard drive over center, completing a 39-yard march in five plays, after 3 minutes, 28 seconds of the final period.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Quarterback Len Dawson of the Dallas Texans, was named Saturday American Football League's official "Player of the Year" in a poll conducted by the Sporting News.

49ers Lose in Mud Bowl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fullback Jim Brown sloshed through the mud for 135 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 13-10 victory over the San Francisco 49ers Saturday.

Only about 20,000 rain-drenched fans showed up for the Mud Bowl game at Kezar Stadium, although 35,274 tickets were sold.

Ripping off huge chunks of yardage nearly every time he got the ball, Brown scored a touchdown on a five-yard run in the first quarter and scored again in the second stanza on a 12-yard romp.

Despite his great effort, Brown failed to join the 1,000-yard circle when he was thrown for a four-yard loss on the next to last play of the game. He finished the season with 996 yards.

San Francisco scored a touchdown on a 74-yard march the first time it got the ball. The score came when quarterback John Brodie rolled around end from the one.

But the Browns came right back to go 71 yards in seven plays with Brown picking up 50 yards in four plays.

On the next series of plays Brown carried the ball three times for 21 yards in a 52-yard march before he scored.

Tommy Davis kicked a 14-yard field goal for the 49ers midway in the second period.

San Francisco had a 7-6 lead in the first period because of a missed conversion attempt by Cleveland. Lou Groza was back to kick the point after touchdown, but the ball squirted out of the hands of Ross Fichtner, who was supposed to hold, and Groza picked it up and passed to one of the linemen. The play was ruled dead.

USING HIS HEAD
Head blocks, as thrown by Dave Phillips of Washington against Spencer Puls of Kansas State, may be controversial subject at January meeting of football rules committee.

GORING MANNER?

Head-Blocking Stirs Controversy

SEATTLE (AP)—To hit a man in the chest with your forehead deliberately may sound like courtship with disaster. Football linemen at University of Washington consider it a way of life.

This forehead-block or head-block may be a controversial subject at football committee rules meetings at Los Angeles, Jan. 12-14.

Coach Jim Owens, if the matter comes up, will defend the style of blocking that helped his Washington teams post two Rose Bowl victories and win 30 and tie three of its 40 scheduled games in the past four years.

* * * *

HERBERT O. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan, chairman of the NCAA football rules committee, said recently he expected the group to rule out blocking with the head or require a change in headgear.

"Many coaches have players using their heads in a spearing or goring manner," Crisler said, adding there have been reports of an increasing number of head injuries.

"It is widely taught," Owens said Saturday, "and probably all coaches do not teach it in the same way. Our sole object at Washington is to obtain blocking efficiency and there is no spearing or goring.

"I cannot recall a single instance of a player being hurt, even enough to necessitate a time out, from being blocked in this manner. I have never heard a coach complain about our use of the block.

"It is a technique of teaching and I do not see how our blocking differs much from any other team's. We teach players to aim for the middle of the opponent's chest or his leg—depending upon the type of block desired—keeping his eyes on the target.

"If we tried to teach the shoulder block contact still would be made with the head much of the time. If there is a danger in our system it is to the blocker."

Can USC Repeat as No. 1?

Nobody dreamed USC would wind up the 1962 unbeaten . . . and ranked No. 1 in the nation. The talent was there for a big season, of course, but there were an awful lot of "ifs" standing in the way of such a high finish.

Some consider the Trojans were a bit on the lucky side . . . and that is probably true. Whenever any team wins a championship, there have to be a few lucky "bounces."

Next year, of course, Troy will be favored from the very start to wind up No. 1 again.

The manpower is proven and deep; losses few, and the replacements more than adequate. In fact, winning is a great recruiting factor and the Trojans reportedly will get some outstanding performers from the junior college ranks again next season who will be ready to step into first and second string positions.

Even without further help, the Trojans would still be all right. They lose only four starters and just five more men off the next three units. Tackle Marv Marinovich possibly will be the most serious loss, but help in that position appears coming from the jaysee ranks. Ben Wilson will be gone, but he was a factor only in the final two games. Pete Beathard, Willie Brown and Hal Bedsole will still be the offensive threats.

IT WILL BE A tremendous team. There is no doubt about that. But will the Trojans be able to go through unbeaten again next year and retain the No. 1 rating?

The schedule is representative enough to maintain top ranking—Colorado, Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Washington, Stanford, Oregon State and UCLA. And it is also one that the Trojans could sweep through if they don't suffer a letdown along the way.

Taking them in order, let's see what the opposition will offer:

COLORADO—Riddled by losses the past year due to recruiting scandals, the Buffs were kicked around pretty good . . . 62-0 by Oklahoma and 57-0 by Missouri. There is no hope of rebuilding in time for next year and it should be a very easy opener for Troy.

OKLAHOMA—Sooners came on strong during past season as their sophomore crop developed. Won Big Eight title and will play Alabama in Orange Bowl. Club figures to be even better next year and will be one of USC's most rugged tests—if not the very toughest.

MICHIGAN STATE—The Spartans, who had a very disappointing season this year after a high pre-season rating, suffer crippling losses. No less than seven seniors have been drafted by the professionals.

NOTRE DAME—Irish turned in disappointing showing for followers against USC after smashing Iowa the week before, 35-14 . . . but 25-0 loss was not as bad as it may seem. Might have been different story in rematch a week later. Trojans got the jump and that was it. Final two touchdowns came late in game as N.D.'s gambles began to backfire. Irish have nine starters, nine second stringers and six more from third unit returning. If they can replace Daryle Lamonica at quarterback, this could be another team that could stop the Trojans next season.

OHIO STATE—Buckeyes also had disappointing season after being a hot favorite for national crown. They lose seven starters, but have 16 back from second and third strings. Key losses are in line, but replacements appear available to take up nearly 90 percent of the slack. Three fine backs returning in quarterback Joe Sparma and halfbacks Paul Warfield and Arnie Chonko. Fullback is question mark, though, and that spot usually is key to Ohio's success.

CALIFORNIA—Bears definitely will be better, but caliber of manpower still very much shy of that at USC. Key to what success Cal may enjoy next year is status of quarterback Craig Morton, who was sensational late in season. Two injuries had baseball scouts in a frenzy and it is reported they may pressure him into signing a bonus contract this spring.

WASHINGTON—Huskies lose seven starters and six second stringers. Only "class" back returning will be Junior Coffey. Club is big questionmark as it now shapes up—before Jim Owens starts bringing in replacements. It seems doubtful he can come up with enough new talent to threaten Trojans even though he'll have home field advantage.

STANFORD — The Indians new coach, whoever he will be, might make some noise next season. Stanford was doormat of Pacific Coast in 1937 and '38 and then Clark Shaughnessy arrived in 1939 and swept to title and Rose Bowl in 1941. Indians have seven starters back plus 30 of next 33 men.

OREGON STATE—Beavers lose exactly half of their first 22 men plus ace quarterback Terry Baker. Thus, it appears that next season will be spent rebuilding.

UCLA — The Bruins can always be depended upon to give the Trojans trouble. They lose six starters including Kermit Alexander and Andy Von Sonn, but have good nucleus of 16 from second and third units. The backfield should be better even though Alexander will be sorely missed. Mike Haffner is due back after being out this year with a knee injury; Warren Jackson will be at fullback; and Carl Jones and Larry Zerno will produce steadier quarterbacking.

Oklahoma State represents the Big Eight and also comes into the Long Beach classic with an unblemished record. Oklahoma State is well known through the years in NCAA championship circles and is under long-time coaching great Hank Iba. The Cowboys have dumped Hardin-Simmons, Montana, Arkansas and Texas to date.

Bentleys Reunite Today When Gulls Test Burbank

By DOUG IVES

There will be a Bentley family reunion today when the Long Beach Gulls battle the Burbank Stars in a California Hockey League matinee game at the Arena.

KTLA, channel 5, will televise the contest beginning at 2:30.

Four Bentleys will be on the ice today, but three of them will be skating for the opposition, Long Beach, of course, is coached by Doug Bentley.

Brother Max is the coach of the Burbank team and his son, Lynn, is the star performer. Nephew Bev will be the starting goalie. He was the No. 1 net-tender with the San Francisco Seals of the WHL last year.

At stake will be the CHL lead as Burbank currently holds a two-point bulge. The Stars have a 3-0-1 record as compared to 2-0-1 for the Gulls.

With both squads featuring young and rather inexperienced players, more fireworks appear likely. In the Gulls' home opener Friday against Bakersfield, there were no less than three fights and 16 penalties.

Ken Watson, Don Makow and Vern Wildeman lead Long Beach in scoring with seven points apiece.

The knockout came suddenly as Folley was leading going into the seventh round. The fifth ranking heavyweight contender had floored Jones with a left and right in the first round and seemed on his way to his second victory over Jones and his tenth in a row.

Italy's Loi Regains Title From Perkins

The pint-sized, 33-year-old Italian thus avenged his decision defeat at the hands of the 25-year-old American in this same city last Sept. 14.

It was their third meeting and evened the series for the 140-pound division title. They drew in their first fight in Milan Oct. 21, 1961.

After losing the crown to Perkins three months ago, Loi said at first he was through with the junior welterweights because he found it too difficult to make the weight limit. He said then he intended to campaign only as a welterweight and defend his European welterweight 147 pounds crown.

Loi then decided to make one more try for the 140-pound title. It paid off in his home town.

Hunters, Look South to Catalina

As incredible as it might seem, the best quail hunting in California is within an hour from Long Beach, but to get there you have to drive to Long Beach Airport, board a Catlina Channel Airways plane, fly to Catalina Island's Isthmus, climb into a four-wheel-drive station wagon and start shooting a mile from where you landed.

Photographer Chuck Sundquist and I did just that last week, going over one day and returning the next. A limit of California Valley quail was no chore except to use some rather flabby leg muscles climbing Catalina's hilly and rugged terrain.

We could have had several limits of bird except that the Department of Fish and Game frowns upon more than one limit each in possession.

Had we stayed several days, we could have shipped two limits each and still have brought back one each. And, in case a hunter wants to try for a prize trophy goat, or a wild boar, he has an excellent opportunity of getting both.

In fact, Flavio Bisignano, 2137 W. 183rd St., Torrance, who owns the Flavio Beauty College in Torrance, had done just that. He had preceded us to the Isthmus by several days and already had killed six boars and one big billy.

HUNTING ON CATALINA ISLAND calls for more than just a mere flight across the channel and a hurried ride into the hills. First, you must have a state hunting license, then a permit from the Santa Catalina Island Company.

You can not rent a U-drive car and do your shooting. You must go with a licensed guide and in his vehicle, even though you are gunning only for quail.

Harbor View Inn at the Isthmus—in the summer it is used as the Cataline Island Girls' Camp—is your hunting-lodge headquarters while shooting on Catalina. It's possible to land at Avalon and go by car to the Isthmus, but it's far more convenient to fly directly into the Isthmus. Catalina Channel Airways provides that service from our own airport and then picks you up on a flag-stop arrangement.

Fred Kindel, Catalina's game manager since August, meets you as the amphibious CCA goose "walks" ashore and deposits you in a matter of minutes. In our case, we got a brief look at the hunting lodge, then drove on around two or three bends in the road.

We found our first covey of quail within sight of the famed Isthmus, jumped from the station wagon and started a chase that led up and down hills through patches of cacti, toyon bushes, manzanita, scrub oak, sugar and lemonade berry bushes. That might sound like a soft drink but, all in all, the scramble through such brush can be rough.

A LIMIT WAS a quick cinch for rugged Fred, who has spent many years climbing Idaho's great mountains hunting everything that state has to offer. For Chuck and me, the story was different. Chuck was armed primarily with cameras, I with my trusty 20-gauge Savage pump.

To get a limit of quail on Catalina, one has to shoot twice that many birds because the quail fall and disappear in cacti and sugar-bush thickets and not even a dog can get 'em out.

When we returned to the lodge—and Isthmus visitors might recognize it if I called it Banning House—we found Flavio in a teriffic state of excitement. While hunting quail, he had run into perhaps the largest boar seen on Catalina for years. He had only a handgun, .44 Magnum, and he let old grandpa boar have it with that before gramps got to him.

It was the sixth boar in nine days for Flavio, as exhuberant an Italian as I have ever seen. A man in his thirties, Flavio sports a handlebar mustache and certainly doesn't look like the operator of a beauty college.

Chuck and I then met three guides, Gene Wyman, Stan Wells and Ken Meador. Also Fred's attractive wife, Ruth, and their two lively sons, Tim, 8, and Tom, 3.

CATALINA'S QUAIL SEASON, conforming to California's general quail-shooting period, ends Dec. 31, but goats and boars may be taken through March 31. There is a state limit of eight on quail, one boar per day, but no limit on goats. The hills are full of goats and are they wild!

The island has a small population of deer, but there is no open season for those animals. Likewise, there is no season on the 100 head of buffalo that roam the island. One hunter, poaching on the island, killed a buffalo, paid a $500 fine and had to produce an additional sum to replace the animal.

While it might seem easy to land on the island and start hunting without a permit, don't try it. The island is well patrolled by security officers and there are heavy penalties for poaching.

Finally, let me say that hunting on Catalina isn't cheap. When a guide's pay, a vehicle, comfortable sleeping quarters and three wonderful meals per day are considered, a hunter certainly gets dollar-for-dollar value. We had steaks and prime ribs that couldn't be excelled anywhere on the mainland.

For information, write Fred Kindel, Box B-2, Avalon, Calif., or call Avalon 650-J or 650-W.

Runabout King Joins Wilson Regatta Field

Don Towle of Los Angeles, 1962 national SK racing runabout champion, Saturday joined the big field of inboard stars in the benefit regatta for critically injured Red Wilson, Sunday, Dec. 23, at Marine Stadium.

Towle, who will drive his champ boat Haf-Gast-Too, won the title this year in the nationals at Guntersville, Ala.

Competition for Towle will come from the likes of Ed Olsen of Garden Grove, Tony Maricich of San Pedro and Carl Dethlefsen of San Rafael among others in the 5-mile SK feature.

Olsen, cigar chewing baker, will drive his hot Cream Puff VIII, Maricich will pilot his Suddenly and Dethlefsen is bringing Honker Too south.

THE SK DIVISION is but one of nine classes of inboard competition in the benefit regatta. All proceeds go to defray Wilson's medical expenses. The popular Long Beach boat racer was critically injured recently in a race at Parker Dam, Ariz.

The benefit is co-sponsored by the Southern California Speedboat Club and J. C. Agajanian.

L.B. Surf Club Sends Powerful Team to Hawaii

The Long Beach Surf Club will send the strongest surfing team in the nation to Hawaii this weekend for the Makaha International Championships.

Heading the Long Beach team are Ilima Kalama and Gudie Wilcke, 1962 men's and women's West Coast champions, and Marge Calhoun, former Makaha International champion and recognized as the greatest woman surfer of all-time.

The Long Beach team will be seen on TV's Wide World of Sports, which will cover the entire event.

STARR BATTLES MASKED CHAMP

Ricki Starr, who tries to do with trickery what others fail to do with force, will get his chance against the heavyweight champion in this week's wrestling attraction at Municipal Auditorium.

Starr will battle The Masked Destroyer Tuesday night on a program that also has the former champ, Edouard Carpentier, in a tag team event.

T. Davis Wins Three NL Batting Categories

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Tommy Davis of the Dodgers missed winning the triple crown but he wound up with three separate batting titles anyway, in official National League averages.

The 23-year-old outfielder-third baseman led the league in hitting with a .346 average, drove in the most runs, 153, and collected the most hits, 230.

Davis thus became the first National Leaguer to lead all three of those departments since 1948 when Stan Musial of the Cardinals accomplished the feat.

The only major title Davis failed to capture was the home run championship and that was what cost him the triple crown.

Willie Mays of San Francisco was the league's home run leader with 49. Davis had 27.

Frank Robinson of Cincinnati led the league in runs scored with 134, and hit the most doubles, 51.

ANDERSON'S 23 runs tied the JRB ball-carrying record set in 1951 by Pasadena's Al Napoleon and Addison Hawthorne.

The shutout was Columbia Basin's first in 19 games and makes you wonder whom they've been playing.

For the record, here is how Santa Ana scored:

With 35 seconds gone in the second period Marteen booted his first field goal to climax a 38-yard drive. Three plays earlier Dunn had sprung into the end zone from the two, but a penalty nullified the touchdown.

With 10:05 left in the half Marteen capped a 46-yard march with his one-yarder, then with six seconds to go he kicked a three-pointer from the 17-yard line to climax a 30-yard drive.

Anderson leaped a yard with 6:12 left in the game, and Marteen sprinted around right end for the conversion to end the scoring. It was set up after the Dons had been stopped on three tries from the one. Carlyle intercepted Mike Monahan's pass on the Hawk 12 and returned to the five. Marteen rammed to the one, and then Anderson went in.

JET DECK WINS--

Belle tried to make a run at him toward the end.

At that, she improved over her finish in last week's trials, when she finished second, 2¼ lengths behind.

After the race, the usual solemn-faced Smith wore a broad grin as he sat astride the tall colt posing for pictures — and who wouldn't smile for 10 per cent.

The winner's share also gave Jet Deck a money-earning record for 2-year-old quarter horses. He now has banked $130,092, beating the great Pokey Bar's $120,697.

And Jet Deck still has one more race to run this year — the $15,000 Kindergarten Stakes next Saturday at Los Alamitos. The winner's share of that one is $8,200.

Rudolph Twosome Takes Scotch Lead

AVON PARK, Fla. (AP) — Mason Rudolph and Kathy Whitworth shot their second 67 Saturday to take a four stroke lead after three rounds in the 72-hole, $30,000 Scotch Mixed Foursome Golf Tournament.

Hornsby Condition Said Satisfactory

CHICAGO (UPI)—Hall of Fame baseball player Rogers Hornsby suffered a stroke Friday while recuperating from minor eye surgery in Wesley Memorial Hospital, it was learned Saturday.

A hospital spokesman said Hornsby, 66, was in "satisfactory" condition. Hornsby served as a scout for the New York Mets of the National League last season.

Foul Rejected, Switchback Nabs San Mateo 'Cap

SAN MATEO (AP)—Switchback slogged through the mud and became the 2-year-old champion of the current Bay Meadows season by beating Luck O'Lea by a neck Saturday in the $15,000-added San Mateo Handicap.

Jockey Alex Maese on Luck O'Lea lodged a claim of foul against Ray York and Switchback, but the stewards did not allow it.

Switchback went off as a slight favorite and stuck close to the early leader, Nevada Battler, until York moved his mount to the front around the far turn.

The winner ran the distance in 1 minute, 47 3-5 seconds and paid $8.80, $4.60 and $4.00.

Free and Easy Parking in New Lincoln Park Garage

SHOPPERS in Downtown Long Beach can now pamper their cars in this sheltered, underground facility. There is no need for them to pay the twenty-five cents per hour parking charge (with a maximum of $1.00 for all day).

Most Downtown merchants give Free Park & Shop stamps. All that is necessary is to ask for them at the time a purchase is made.

One Park & Shop stamp is good for one hour of free parking in Lincoln Park Garage. If an extended shopping session is planned, all the shopper has to do is ask for additional stamps when additional purchases are made, at the same store or at different stores.

That takes care of the "Free" part.

Now for the "Easy" part. All shoppers have to do is drive down the wide, gently curved ramps—one is located just west of the intersection of Pacific Avenue and Broadway, the other just east of the Library, at Pacific Avenue and First Street.

Take a serve-yourself ticket on the way down. Park on the first level if there is room, if not, go down to the lower level.

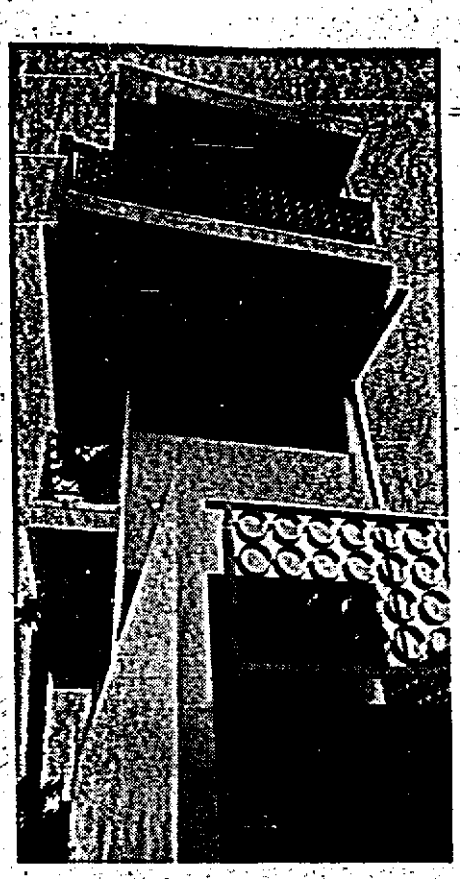

Park your car yourself—nobody but you will be moving it. Lock your car if you wish, then take the handy escalator to the surface.

Shop with the assurance that your car is receiving the finest storage it is possible to get, anywhere.

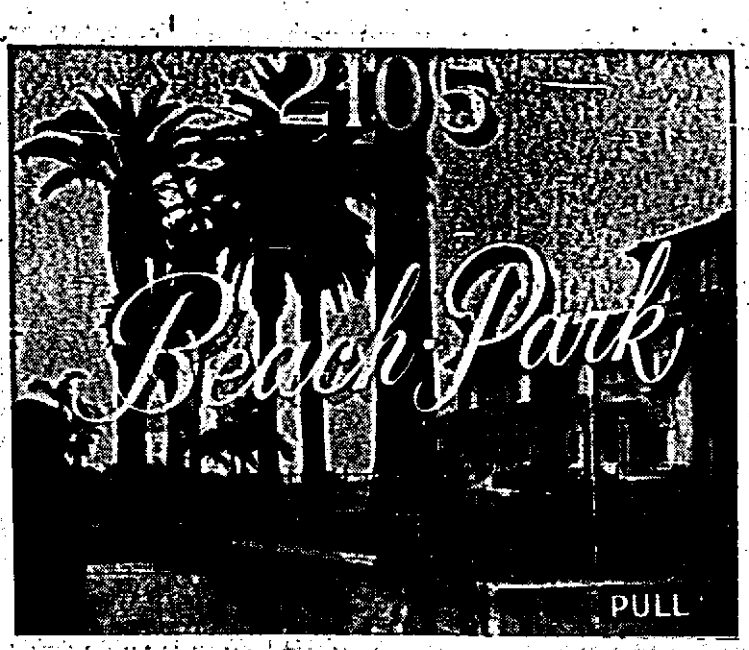

Free and Easy? You bet it is! Try parking at Lincoln Park Garage next time you are downtown—and make it soon!

BALCONIED APARTMENTS typical of 'new look' on Ocean Boulevard.

PALM TREES LEND TROPICAL TOUCH TO OCEAN BOULEVARD

FLOW OF 'LOCAL CAPITAL' URGED

Ocean Boulevard High Rise Buildup in Sight

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Ocean Boulevard — Long Beach's 'picture window' with a sea view—which has been taking on a new look with recent apartment house developments, stands on the threshold of a spectacular high-rise era.

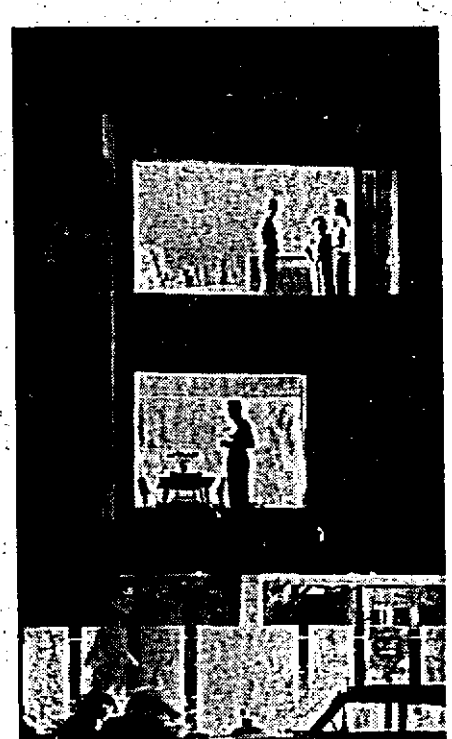

Millions of dollars have been spent the past few years in modernizing apartment houses and in construction of plush new rental units.

Balconied fronts lend a Waikaki touch and offer tenants box seat views midwesterners dream about. Many dwellers of new apartments now tuck their cars away in underground garages and ride elevators to their abodes.

MODERN APARTMENT LIVING'S 'DIFFERENT' NOW

Plan Pageantry When L.B. Notes 75th Birthday

When Long Beach has its 75th birthday next year there will be a month-long party, with everybody invited, according to plans now taking shape.

Topping the program is expected to be a "musical spectacular" of pageantry telling the story of this city and Southern California.

• • • •

IT IS HOPED that arrangements can be made for an internationally known entertainer to headline the pageant, in which a thousand or more local residents would participate.

Already, the City Council has approved naming of Harry Buffum, merchant, and A. L. Code, Edison Co. executive, as honorary chairman and general chairman, respectively, of the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Long Beach was incorporated in 1888.

• • • •

COUNCIL ACTION followed recommendations of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce for a month-long celebration. Harry Krusz, Chamber executive vice president, was named secretary of the planning committee, which is currently selecting a general advisory committee.

In addition to the pageant, suggested festivities include:

Special neighborhood observances in North Long Beach, Los Altos, Bixby Knolls, Naples and Belmont Shore.

A history of Long Beach in book form sold to the general public.

Special days recognizing elements in the community spectrum to celebrate the diamond anniversary, including military, church, industry, women, youth, sports and the Port of Long Beach.

A temporary civic mall on Pine Avenue.

"This is an opportunity to focus the nation's attention on Long Beach's assets and activities," a spokesman stated. "And it will serve to unite all community organizations in a common purpose."

• • • •

WICK PARKER, 1961 recipient of the "Realtor of the Year" award, presented the trophy and the title to the 1962 winner E. Thornton Ibbetson.

Ibbetson is a past president of the board, having been vice president in 1960 and president in 1961. He has served as CREA director for the past two years and is vice chairman south, CREA, of the CREA Planning and Zoning Committe. He is very active in civic and service work and has just been elected president of the Bellflower Community Chest for 1963. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Water District, among many other activities.

• • • •

WINNER of the "Associate of the Year" award was made by Grover C. Crisp who was honored with the title in 1961. The 1962 winner is Mrs. Esta Rodgers, who has been active in both board and state association work during the year. She was chairman of the Achievement Book Committee for 1962 which won first place in the state competition for boards of its size and was quarterly chairman of the Weekly Caravan of the board.

While not having been "selling" many years, she has a background in the industry through her connection for several years with the board office.

Dancing to the music of Memo Barnabei and his band followed the completion of the installation and awards program.

Ocean Boulevard High Rise Buildup in Sight

ing sites are getting scarcer and costlier.

So, it's high rise time in Long Beach. And the future is fantastic, according to expert observers.

These authorities foresee that numerous tall buildings will dot the skyline along Ocean Boulevard between the downtown district and Belmont Shore in not too many years.

Those already started or on the drawing boards include:

600 East Ocean apartment building, 15 stories.

The Galaxy, own your own, Orizaba Avenue and Ocean, 20 stories.

Pacific Holiday Towers, 1900 E. Ocean, 21 stories.

Taper Apartment Towers, 3500 E. Ocean, 33 stories.

These are only a beginning, a survey indicates.

This does not include other high rise structures being built or planned in other parts of the city. Already on the beach skyline are the Breakers International, Doric Capris and Villa Riviera hotels and the Pacific Coast Club.

• • • •

NO SATURATION point problem is seen. On the contrary, it is noted that more "high rise" will draw higher-income people to Long Beach —already a "Star in the West" for many easterners who yearn for warmer climes.

Population growth of neighboring Orange County also is expected to add to the density of Long Beach, which is the "big city" of the area below Los Angeles.

It is pointed out, too, that high rise will be a natural development as old buildings prove unable to carry the tax burden.

• • • •

LAND VALUES have pushed ever upward, with current going prices in the neighborhood of $1,200 to $1,500 per lineal foot, and depending on size of the parcel.

One source speculates that the increased affluence of Ocean Boulevard high-growth will tend to encourage uplifting of the downtown district, bringing in more "big name" stores.

• • • •

BUT MAJOR handicaps are seen in zoning and traffic conditions; and in lethargy of local money in "getting in" on big projects.

Citizens should "get off the dime," one prominent citizen says, and push for R-5 zoning along the ocean front.

Another commentary deplores the fact that much "outside money" is coming in and "exploiting" Long Beach whereas local money interests —which are abundant—seem slow to seize their opportunities.

• • • •

EMPHASIS also is placed on urgent need for improving downtown traffic conditions to meet future needs. It is noted that this could be a factor in keeping more big stores from locating in the central area. It is observed, too, that the problem already is under study in connection with the plans for the World's Fair here.

Satisfactory traffic flow is seen as a major factor in attracting investment capital.

• • • •

BUT THE potentials are amazing, says one commentator, disclosing that even now a monied San Francisco group, which had voiced enthusiasm over Long Beach's "natural resources" on a recent visit, is contemplating a big project here.

The trend to high rise on Ocean Boulevard is expected to have great effect on adjoining properties. Highly restricted zoning is urged by some observers in order to maintain fine standards.

Mixed with high rise, it is forecast that garden type apartment projects will find favor along nearby streets.

• • • •

BARRING WAR or unexpected economic snags, general concensus is that the city is on the way up in more ways than high rise. Development of the World's Fair and consequent influx of many thousands of visitors, it is felt, will persuade many people to locate here.

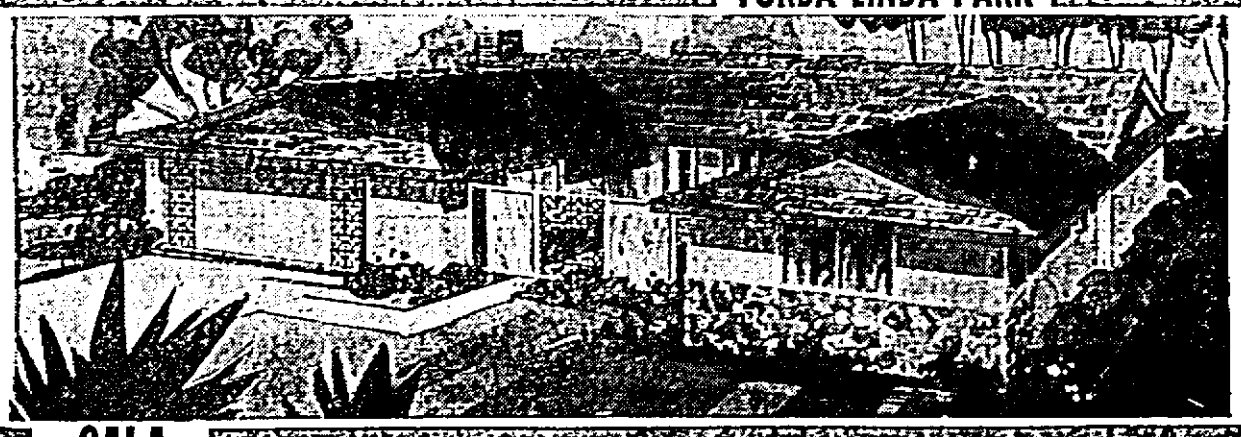

Persons who can afford luxury living. Persons who will patronize stores with fine merchandise. Persons who will help build a greater Long Beach.

Sales Total $1½ Million in November

November sales of homes in the Lakewood-Long Beach areas six regional offices of Walker & Lee, Inc., showed a gross dollar volume of $1,500,000, Art Hancock, a vice president of the firm and manager of the Carson Street-Palo Verde offices, has announced.

"The figure represents a total of 65 resale homes sold," Hancock said.

Other offices and managers contributing to the high volume of November sales are Park Estates and Los Altos, managed by Dave Rams; and Dutch Village and Woodruff Center, managed by Ollie Speraw.

During the last week of the month's sales effort—ending Dec. 2—there were 19 homes sold for a volume of $381,451, Hancock said. Eight of the sales were made by the Carson Street office for a total of $161,000.

Oil Group to Repeat L.B. Meet

Petroleum Production Pioneers, some 300 of whom recently met at the Petroleum Club in Long Beach for the group's 19th annual meeting, have announced they will meet in this city again next year.

President Rex Hensel presided at the meetings, held in Long Beach for the first time.

Dave Carnahan, reporting on membership, said 261 new members had been added the past year, making a total of 2,306 in PPP.

This growth was attributed largely to establishment of additional luncheon clubs, at Bakersfield and Ventura.

* * * *

PRESENTATION of various awards was a high spot at the dinner session which concluded the meetings.

William 'Andy' Anderson, founding chairman of the Long Beach PPP Luncheon Club, was recipient of a plaque, as was Floyd York, the 1961 chairman, for their efforts in organizing and supporting the luncheon club program.

Lending emphasis to the support being given the parent organization by the luncheon clubs, was the presentation of a check for one hundred dollars by Floyd Vaughn, chairman of the Long Beach PPP Luncheon Club, to Hensel as a donation to the PPP Memorial Fund, the second such gift made by that club this year.

Real Estate Club to Have Yule Party

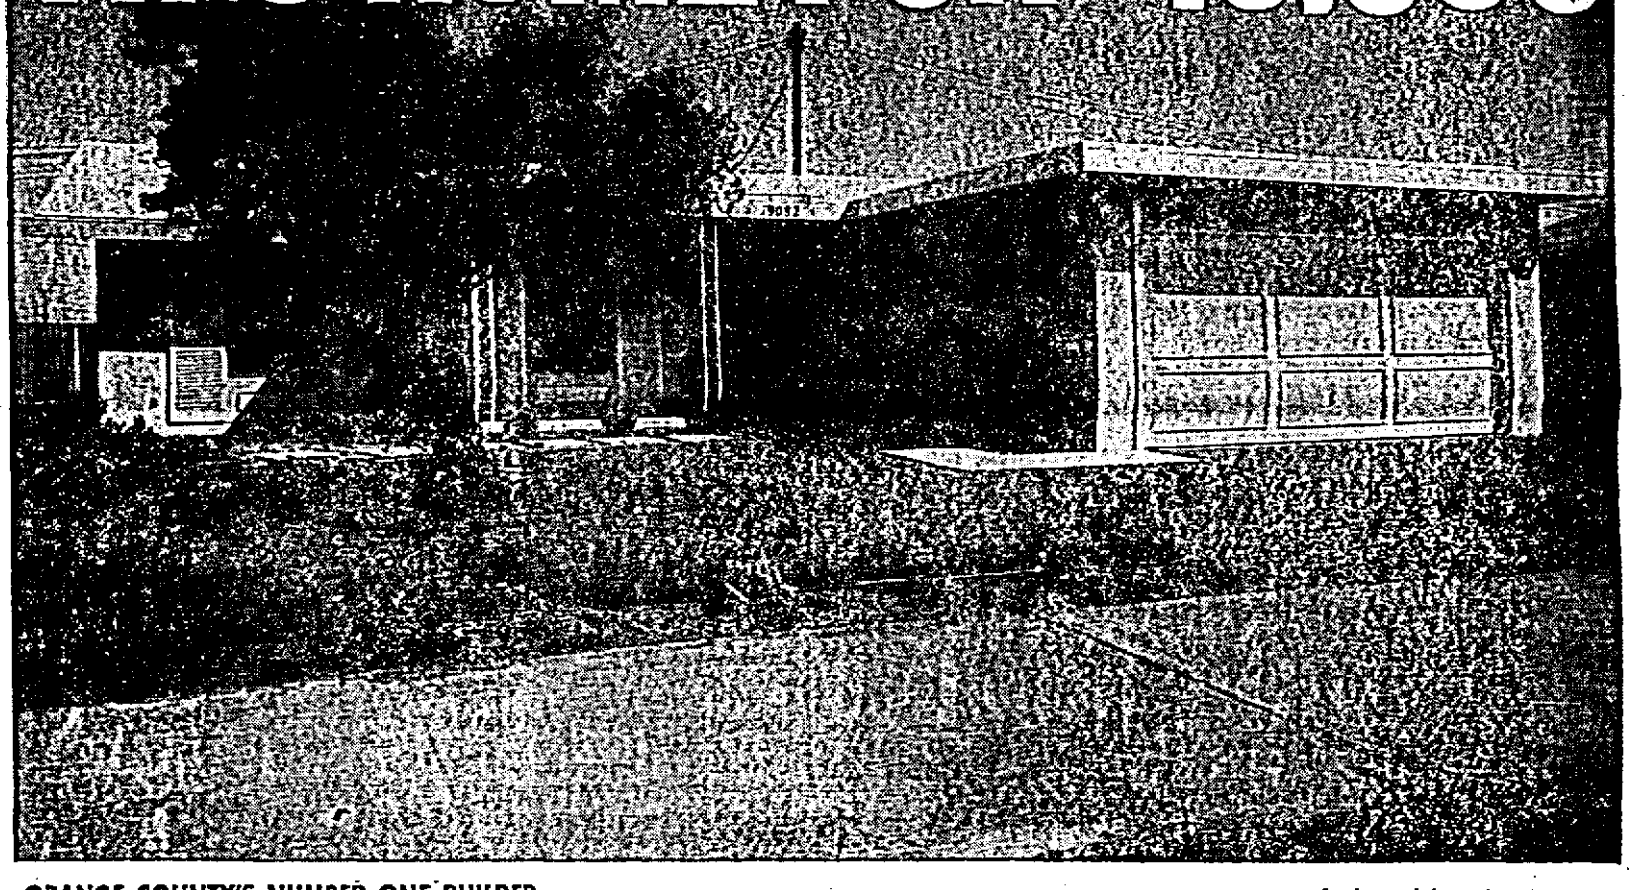

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club will have its Christmas party Thursday at its 8 a.m. breakfast meeting in Mayo's Restaurant, 5925 Cherry Ave.

Named were Harry J. Kruse, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber, and Ron Watson, manager of government affairs for the body.

Boyd said Kruse and Watson had distinguished themselves in the field of Chamber administration and that he was pleased to "call upon their knowledge and experience" in furthering work of the organization.

Purpose of the committee is to study and make recommendations for improving standards of performance of Chamber executives.

Daniel P. Orange County 'Builders' Elect

The 1963 edition of the Orange County Home Show will be first major project for incoming officers of the Orange County Builders' Exchange, to be installed next month at a date still to be announced.

COLOURIS BRADLEY

George Colouris of Newport Beach will become president of the association, succeeding Ray Bradley of Costa Mesa. Other officers include John Backman of Santa Ana, first vice president; G. W. (Bud) Coombs of Garden Grove, second vice president; and Andy Dudics of Anaheim, treasurer.

Colouris said that the home show will be April 3 through 7 at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa. It will be the ninth to be sponsored by the builders' association.

Chairmen to plan the show and handle other details of the exposition will be named soon, the president-elect said.

L.B. Group to Share in Yule Bonus

Irwin Harris, manager of Leed's shoe store at 257 Pine Ave., has announced his firm has voted a $300,000 Yule bonus to all employes of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., of which Leed's is a division.

Christmas checks in the amount of $300,000 will be shared by the firm's employes in 480 stores located in 211 cities and 41 states. This is the 29th year in which the firm has distributed Christmas bonuses.

All regular staff members of the local Leed's store will receive a gift check, the amount depending on position and years of service.

Edison Brothers also announced that it will contribute $389,000 toward the estimated 1962 costs of its Pension Plan—paid for entirely by the company—and its welfare trust funds for employes.

Starts Work on Addition

COSTA MESA — Servonic Instruments, Inc. has started construction of a major building addition—a 10,000 square foot facility to house Research and Development, Prototype Production and the Environmental Test Laboratory.

Scheduled for completion on or about the first of March, it will bring the total company plant area to over 35,000 square feet.

This new area represents the first major addition to the company's facilities since it was occupied in late 1960.

P. S. Chase

It will be temperature-controlled with pressurized filtered air to maintain the dust-free atmosphere necessary for the production of sensitive instrumentation.

According to Patrick S. Chase, president of Servonic, this new addition plus its equipment will represent an investment of almost $250,000, making this the most modern facility in the industry.

Servonic Instruments is one of Orange County's fastest growing electronic companies. It was founded in 1952. The products, primarily used in the aerospace industry, convert physical phenomenon such as pressure and motion into electrical signals, and are used on virtually every major U. S. missile and spacecraft.

College Park, Norwalk, Opening New Apartments

OPEN HOUSE BRUNCH TODAY
This is the Wilshire, newest in the Garden Park apartments in Norwalk which will be open today with brunch offered. They are at Alondra and Gard in Norwalk.

An open house "brunch," to which the public is invited Sunday, will launch the luxurious new "Wilshire" at 15900 Gard Ave., corner of Alondra, in Norwalk, newest in the elegant Garden Park complex of spacious "balanced power" apartments, according to officials of S&S Construction Co., builders. Owners are the Shapell Brothers and Max Webb.

Theme of the open house is "Start the New Year Right—See 'The Wilshire' Today and Move in Tomorrow." From 11:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday, the Gas Co., co-hosts, will serve coffee, sandwiches and other refreshments, and there will be an exciting demonstration of the art of cookery.

• • • •

"THE WILSHIRE" is the third of College Park Apartments' multiple-unit buildings. There is diverse selection of one and two-bedroom apartments keyed to the maximum of privacy and gracious living. Large living rooms open to private patios or balconies, and the lovely deluxe wall-to-wall carpeting or rubber padding and the beautiful draperies are included in every apartment.

Examples of the "balanced power" concept where gas and electricity each does the job it performs most efficiently and economically, the kitchens are equipped with built-in gas wall oven and range and built-in fully automatic electric dishwasher plus refrigerator, the spokesman said.

• • • •

WITH THE draperies and carpeting furnished, and the host of attractive appointments, apartments in "The Wilshire" are ready for occupancy. They are now leasing from $110 a month.

There are a select few apartments available in College Park's "Bel Air" and "Beverly," with monthly rentals from $99.50, and there are both furnished and unfurnished apartments. The "Beverly" welcomes children.

The College Park apartment complex is, the spokesman said, "a way of life", offering three heated pools, a playground, and a luxuriously appointed recreation room.

There is ample covered parking, with individual storage lockers in the parking area, and the laundry facilities are excellent. And, Max Webb, one of the principals says, all of this is centered in one of Norwalk's finest and most accessible areas.

College Park Apartments new "Wilshire" is at 15900 Gard Ave. at the corner of Alondra, Norwalk.

New Property Exec Named by Home Savings

ROSS WOOD

Long Beach-Belmont Shore resident Ross M. Wood, veteran real estate and constructive executive, has been named property manager of Home Savings and Loan Association, it has been announced by Kenneth D. Childs, Home president.

Before joining Home, Wood was employed by the Lansdale Construction Co., Downey, for eight years. Previously he served as commercial supervisor for General Telephone Co. in the Downey, Long Beach and Santa Monica offices.

Too Much Work Not Too Good, Businessmen Told

The businessman who puts in long hours, makes frequent business trips, takes home his work, and plays golf with customers may think he's doing his firm a favor. But he may very well be handicapping himself, denying his family, and hurting his company.

So say two industrial psychology specialists in Business Management magazine.

Furthermore, they assert that corporations which encourage this kind of behavior are being rewarded with less efficiency and production from their top managers.

• • • •

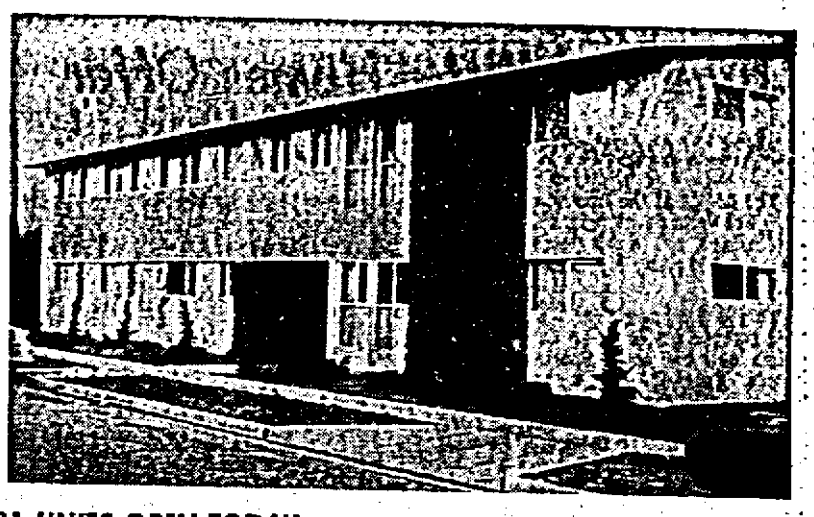

THEIR REASONING — which may strike discordant notes in some corporate circles — is this: The businessman who focuses on work at the expense of all other interests creates both a personality and emotional imbalance because of his constricting range of interests and limited viewpoint.

Also taking an emotional toll are conflicts and guilt feelings on the part of an executive who neglects his family for his work, and receives hostile reactions from his wife and children.

Drs. Srole and McLean suggest a solution. To work at his most productive level—for the good of himself, his family, and his firm—executive should apply some business methodology to his personal life.

"Businessmen spend a lot of time in long-range and short-range planning," notes Dr. McLean. "I say, let's do more of the same for our personal lives."

They agree that he should take a few steps back periodically to take a good look at himself and his goals, and apply the principles of diversification to his private world.

21 UNITS OPEN TODAY

Large Sol-Vista Homes Offer Occupancy Before Christmas

The homes at the luxurious new Sol Vista development in Santa Ana are a bit large, perhaps, but ready for Santa's gift bag.

This is good news for boat and camper owners who can move into the new "Sportsman's Special" series by Christmas. These homes have a detached garage which faces on an alley to facilitate moving equipment and storing it with ease. A limited number of these plans are available within the Santa Ana development.

SANTA ANA HOME

* * * *

FUN-LOVING families have bought an average of one home a day in this quality community by Alco-Pacific Construction Co. One of the reasons for the success of the sales program is that these elegant residences are conveniently located near the beach and recreation centers of Orange County and Southern California.

They are loaded with features to insure "easy living" such as Frigidaire range and oven, color coordinated range hood, brick planters, ornamental street lights, Whirlaway disposer, new or used brick fireplace, and Payne forced air heating.

The three and four-bedroom, two-bathroom homes sell for $16,950 to $18,100, with FHA/FA terms available as well as conventional financing.

Prospective home buyers may view the models at the corner of Sail Avenue at Sugar Street, just east of Brookhurst, Santa Ana.

Builder Blasts 'Archaic' Codes

CHICAGO—The United States is being pushed toward socialized housing by archaic building codes and inflexible community planning, according to the West Coast's largest home builder.

Lawrence J. Weinberg, president of the Larwin Co., Los Angeles, told a news conference at the National Association of Home Builders convention that the free enterprise builder finds it increasingly difficult to provide low cost housing.

"If the public doesn't take the steps to make low cost housing feasible," Weinberg said, "a tidal wave of public housing projects and the increased taxes to support them are imminent."

Outmoded zoning requirements and inflexible community planning are "discouraging home ownership for a substantial segment of the population," he said.

* * * *

ROBERT C. WEAVER, administrator of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency told the convention the home construction industry is making more money this year because of the Housing Act of 1961.

Weaver said the industry has enjoyed a 16 per cent increase in dollar volume under the Kennedy administration.

Bank Establishes New Data Processing Center

Citizens National Bank has established a new Data Processing Center at 2706 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, which consolidates all electronic equipment and supporting manual operations for the bank's headquarters office and 72 branch offices in the Southern California area.

Location of the modern two-story building, near the major arteries and freeway systems stemming from Los Angeles, makes transportation, deliveries and pickups easily accessible to all branch offices.

Presently, three IBM computer systems work around-the-clock at the center processing paperwork from branch offices.

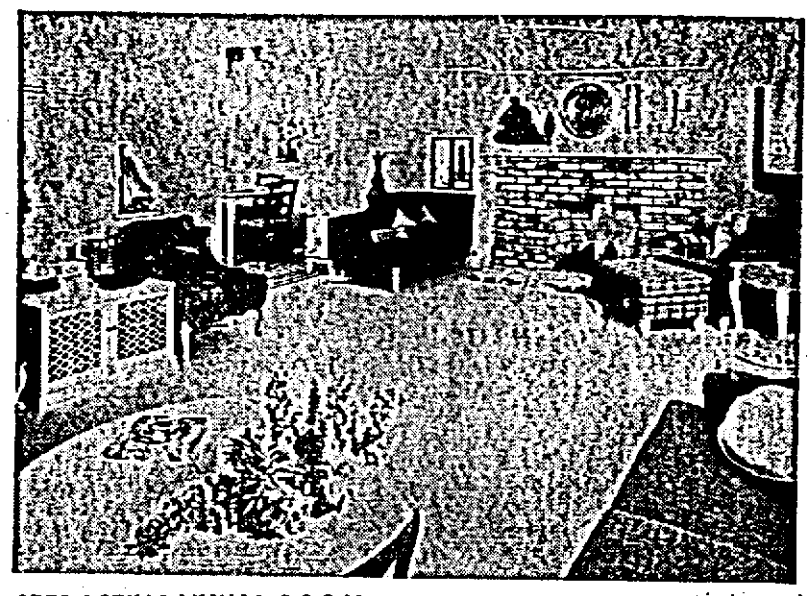

The latest equipment in this system is a 1419 Magnetic Character Reader, one of the fastest machines yet offered to the banking industry for the electronic processing of checks. This machine automatically "reads" and sorts checks encoded with magnetic ink characters at speeds up to 1,600 a minute.

Specifically designed for the installation of heavy-duty electronic equipment, the 43,000-square-foot building provides 17,903 square feet of operating space on the ground floor and 17,266 square feet on the second floor.

The basement contains the service areas, boiler room, air-conditioning unit and storage rooms. Parking is provided on the roof.

Citizens, one of the first West Coast banks to utilize electronics, is now in its 73rd year and has total resources of more than $700 million.

Bolsa Park Sales Soar Over $4 Million Mark

ATTRACTIVE LIVING ROOM

The large fireplace adds much to the attraction of this large living room in a Bolsa Park model. The homes have been selling faster than anticipated.

Sales totaling more than $4,000,000 have been reached at Bolsa Park since the opening of the Huntington Beach community's newest unit. "The success of our homes has gone beyond all expectations," stated Ernie Merrill, sales director. "We are now completely sold out of our first two units, and we except to begin delivery on homes in our new unit at the end of this month."

Merrill reported that the Bolsa Park sales' leader is a three-bedroom design with a free standing floor-to-ceiling Palos Verdes stone fireplace. Other plans, including a new one offered for the first time in the recently opened unit, include three, four, and five bedrooms. All homes have two baths.

THE homes offer lath and plaster construction, as well as a lavish use of ceramic tile in ceramic tile kitchen with breakfast bar, full ceramic tile bath with shower over tub, and separate ceramic tile shower with special decorator tiles.

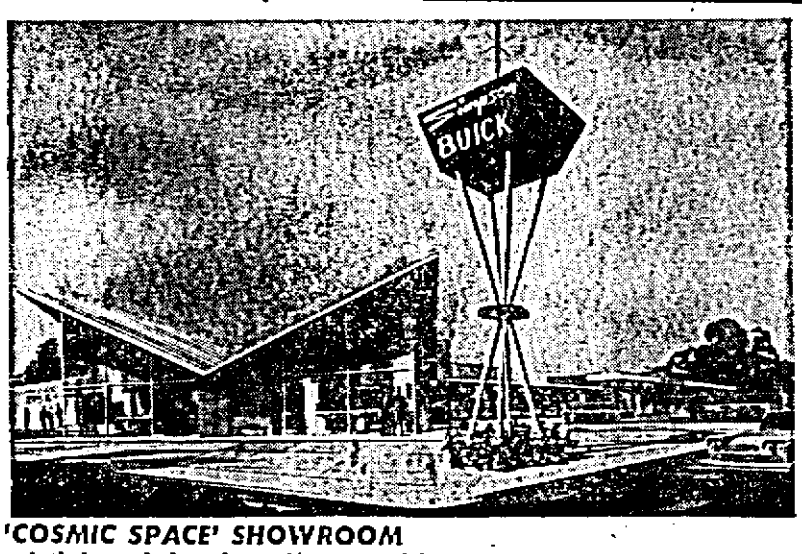

Features of the Medallion kitchens include Gaffers & Sattler colored electric range and oven with triple rotisserie, Waste King dishwasher, In-sink-erator disposal, custom range hood with recessed light and fan, and custom natural ash kitchen cabinets.

PRICED FROM $20,300 to $23,490, Bolsa Park Homes may be purchased with veterans no-down-payment terms. Available also are FHA 30- and 35-year 5¼ interest terms with $1200 down, Cal-Vet and conventional financing.

Merrill also announced that only 3 homes remain in the previous unit. Two of these were used as model homes and are complete with carpets and drapes, landscaping, sprinklers, and fenced-in yards. Also available is one four-bedroom home with some of these features offered at a special low close-out price.

Bolsa Park may be reached from Long Beach via Seventh St. east to Bolsa Chica Road, turning right to Bolsa, left to Springdale, then right on Springdale to the models.

City Must Be Good Place to Live as Well as Work, Planner Says

"If our downtowns are not to become ghost towns, we have to re-inject quality into our cities so that they are good places to live as well as work," says Victor Gruen, a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and a noted city planner.

His remarks about the state of the nation's urban centers, large and small, appear in a study of "Cities and Urban Growth" in the current issue of INCO Magazine, a publication of The International Nickel Company, Inc.

The issue examines the subject of quality in its relation to many aspects of modern living.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH four out of five Americans live in urbanized areas, many of our cities "are languishing in social and cultural life, deteriorating physically and shrinking as far as their economic importance is concerned," Gruen points out.

"The towns themselves are not growing; it is the number of people in them that is expanding. As quantities grow in our urban areas, quality seemingly disintegrates, and the cities now have less to offer more people."

If we want to revitalize our cities, the architect continues, "we must understand that quality is the main criterion of urban life. Quality of environment, of public services, of buildings, of transportation should make the city different from less organized human settlements, from the suburbs and the countryside.

"A city which doesn't offer excellence in all of these loses its raison d'etre and thus will languish and finally cease to exist."

* * * *

QUALITY OF ENVIRONMENT can be achieved, Gruen writes, first through a realization that the city must be a many-purpose place, with diversity and variety, representing the finest in many fields: the best stores, the best hotels, the best restaurants, prestige office buildings, highest types of civic administration, the best theaters and other cultural and recreational facilities.

"If, as so many of our downtown areas tend to do, it winds up being only a place to work," then, in Gruen's words, "it is not a city but just a factory. The city must also have desirable living quarters to attract and hold its own resident population. Only by being a complete expression of all the diverse human interests and activities can the city work."

Low Price Luxury in Garden Park Estates

A GARDEN PARK ESTATE

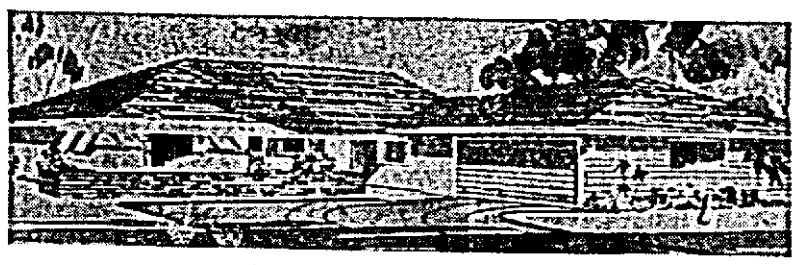

Peak sales at Garden Park Estates, where a new unit of one and two-story executive-type residences has just opened at Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Freeway, are credited to the quality construction which meets the high standards demanded by today's value-wise home buyer, officials said.

Because "upgrading" is an important requisite to today's knowledgeable home buyer, the quality components incorporated in Garden Park Estates' one and two-story luxury homes is rated a top contributor in the community's sales success, officials said.

Homes in this walled "city-within-a-city" are constructed with lath and plaster walls and ceilings, cast iron tubs, rockwood insulated ceilings, custom-type electrical fixtures, and driveways of concrete. They also have forced-air heating, baths with imported mosaic tile and pullman lavatories.

The new Garden Park Estates unit at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway offers an exciting selection of architect-designed conventional and contemporary residences. Floor plans are flexible and there are one-story models with two bedrooms and convertible den, and three and four bedrooms with dining rooms and family rooms. The beautiful "award-winning" two-story dwellings have five bedrooms and each is highlighted by two lovely fireplaces: one is in the second floor master bedrom, and the other in the spacious living room.

The impressive roster of luxury and convenience features is included in the moderate full prices from $18,250 to $25,600. Garden Park Estates also offers an exceptionally comprehensive range of financing plans. Veterans may purchase on VA loans on terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs with monthly payments from $101.00 including principal and interest, and for "everyone" there is choice of 30 or 35-year FHA loans. Cal-Vet and conventional loans are also available.

A free gift of a completely fenced rear yard and front yard landscaped to home buyers of Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, Unit 2, who move in before Christmas has attracted many interested home buyers, according to S. V. Hunsaker Jr., vice president of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders. He further stated that the new 1963 series Unit 3 homes offered with a down payment of $95, plus nominal impounds, has created great buyer acceptance.

Offering the home buyer a widely diverse selection of architectural elevations with all models offering floor plans designed to provide maximum living for the larger families, Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, Units 2 and 3, have three and four bedrooms, two full baths, family room, and large two-car garage.

Lakewood Manor Is Appealing

Sales records are being broken daily at Lakewood Manor as 277 new homes have been sold in 210 days at this magnificent Hadley-Cherry, Inc. planned community.

It takes a lot of features to make a house a home, and these pioneer builders-developers have spared no expense in order to create a luxurious atmosphere. Included in the purchase price are wall-to-wall carpeting, master bedroom suites, family rooms, double hall design, fireplaces, kitchen nooks, snack bars, all-electric kitchen built-ins, ceramic tile counter tops, dishwashers, disposals, and shake roofs.

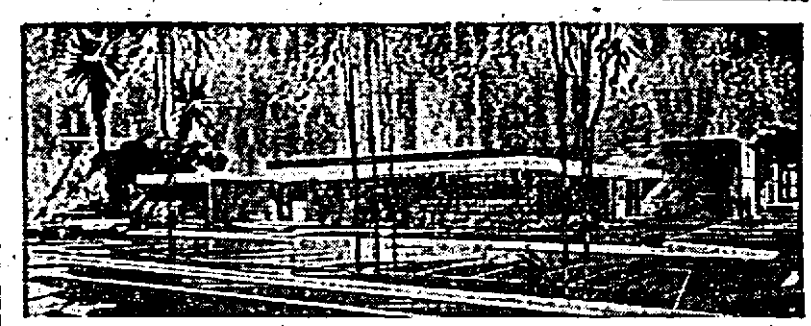

• • • •

THESE THREE AND four bedroom residences are priced from $18,750 to $20,850, with monthly payments ranging from $116, depending on the down payment. Some of the elevations have brick facades.

Lakewood Manor has a protective block wall and an estate type entrance for privacy and dignity.

To commemorate opening of the new Candlewood Unit, the builders have unveiled a stunning new four bedroom model which was especially designed in response to popular demand of Southland families.

Elegantly furnished models may be viewed at South Street and Palo Verde in Lakewood.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT TORRANCE FOR WALLACE CO.

FOR BUILDING FOUNDATION

'Earth Raft' Used Instead of Caissons

TORRANCE — Construction is under way on a new Torrance warehouse and office building for R. G. Wallace Company, Inc., which utilizes the "Earth Raft" principle.

After soil investigations determined a low bearing, spongy soil, Architects Benton & Park, A.I.A., used this principle to avoid expensive concrete caisson foundations.

• • • •

EXISTING SOIL was excavated to a depth of five feet and hauled away. Then high bearing soil was imported and compacted to a five foot thick high density "raft" upon which the building is supported.

The project, which features brick and tapered steel construction, provides more than 15,500 square feet of warehouse and office space. The building is set back from the street and is fronted by extensive landscaped grounds and parking area.

Air conditioned offices utilize the exposed brick walls, complimented by wood panelling and terrazzo floors.

• • • •

THE DECOR is further enhanced in the executive office suite by sliding glass doors which open to the garden and patio area. Kitchen facilities are planned for use of 40 employes.

The project is located at 18333 South Main St., near the intersection of the San Diego and Harbor freeways.

Contractor, Deutsch Construction Co., schedules completion for early 1963.

Home buyers now offered the combined advantages of California's coast attractions together with their homes in the distinctive Chestnut Lane suburban community, more convenient than beach cities to major industrial, commercial, and educational centers.

Family membership in the exclusive Laguna Beach Golf and Country Club is included with the purchase of each Chestnut Lane home in Orange.

"The young executive families moving into Chestnut Lane have indicated appreciation of their gift membership in the country club, where they can spend refreshing days, meet compatible couples, and participate in individual and family activities," stated T. E. Gildred, president of Costa Pacifica, builders of Chestnut Lane homes.

Bonus Plans Widely Used

Most large American companies are using bonus plans to reward employes beyond their base salaries, according to a National Industrial Conference Board study just released.

This study — which covers 405 manufacturing firms listed on the New York Stock Exchange — shows that about two-thirds of these companies now give bonuses to some or all of their management personnel.

The report indicates that bonuses are not always intended solely to stimulate performance, as is generally assumed.

Other major reasons are: to attract qualified personnel, to hold talent a company already has, to reduce payroll costs during lean times, and to lighten the tax load by deferring part of the employe's income.

Most bonuses are now paid in cash at the close of the business year, but an increasing number of firms are deferring at least part of the bonus until retirement or until employment ends, especially for top-echelon executives.

Virtually all the plans include company officers, but many do not cover lower levels of management and only one-third include first-line supervisors.

We're in the Pink From Browning As We Visit Nearby Vacation Spot

By BILL EMERY

Last week end, we were introduced to America's full-size sports car sensation. The car—Oldsmobile's stunning new 1963 Starfire.

Dick Browning of Dick Browning Oldsmobile, 1227 Long Beach Blvd., studied my reaction as I took possession of the glamorous hardtop coupe. Little did he know that I am partially color blind. Little did I know the Starfire was pink.

To my eyes, this adventurous Olds was a silver blego ... a most pleasing color to behold. It was not until I drove into my driveway that I learned the car's true color. I felt better about the whole thing when all agreed ... it was a pleasing color, an epitome of elegance suggesting a sports car of distinction.

The Starfire's 345 h.p. engine is the top performer of the Oldsmobile line. The wheelbase is three inches shorter than the 98 but there is less than 100 pounds difference in weight between the two series. Standard equipment on the Starfire includes Hydra-Matic, power brakes, power steering, bucket seats, power console and tachometer to mention a few on the long list.

Tilt-Away Wheel

In addition, the fresh new styling of the concave rear window complements its highly individualized roofline.

One major problem on the trip was getting a turn to drive again after letting my wife take a turn at the wheel. She took possession like the Long Beach Chiefs when they get on that basketball court.

An option offered on all '63 88's, 98's and Starfires with power steering is the new Tilt-Away steering wheel. By operating a small lever on the steering column, the wheel can be set in any one of seven angles or released to high position for ease of getting in and out of the car.

A new sponge-type headliner adds attractiveness to the inside decor and cuts wind and engine noise at high speeds to the very minimum. The '63 Oldsmobiles corner better due to improvements in sway control. For added maneuverability, turning diameter has been reduced almost three feet.

Real Playground

Jack Skirball, Hollywood movie producer who gained notoriety with his 1938 documentary "The Birth of a Baby," envisioned a family vacation village designed for companionship or seclusion, depending on the movement of your mood.

Recreation facilities are more varied than a weekend permits, with the opening of the new Barefoot Bar six weeks ago ... a bomb shelter bar for barefooted swimmers and boaters ... and an 18-hole, par-3 golf course three weeks ago, the village continues to expand with activity.

Three swimming pools are strategically located thruout the family area. The cottages on the beach have private patios and sliding glass door access to the beach.

All rooms have combination tub and shower bath, complimentary coffee maker, refrigerator, morning newspaper, television and direct dial telephone.

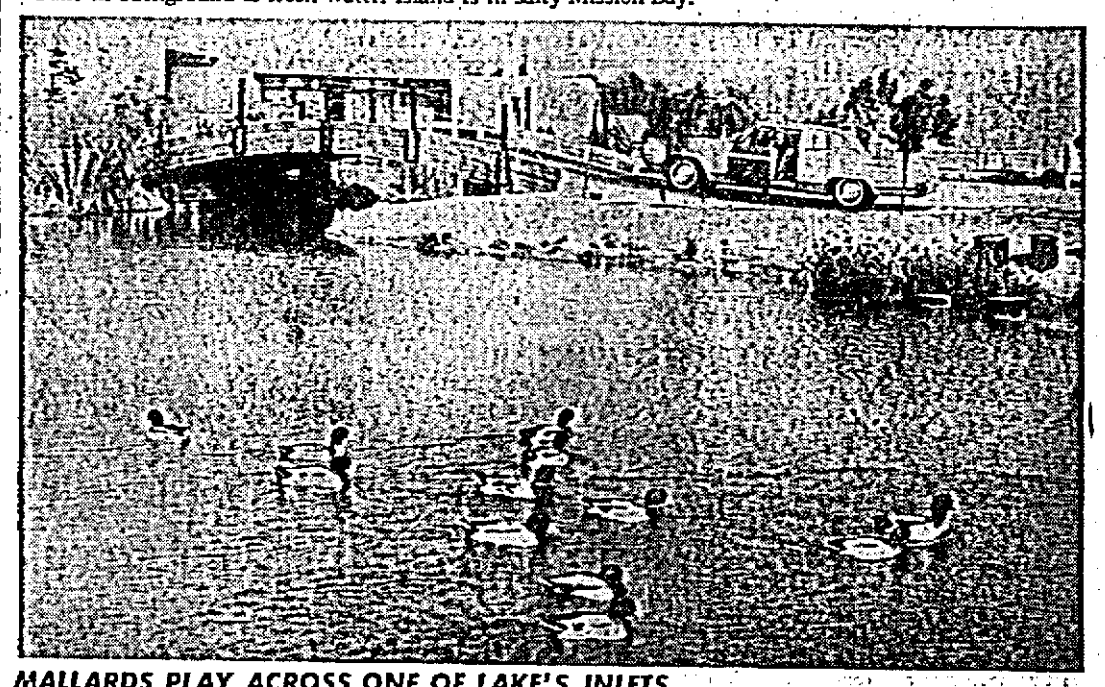

After several miles of sightseeing in hilly San Diego and more local miles around Long Beach, a gasoline check showed the Starfire averaged 14.9 mpg. That's economical luxury!

TRAVEL ISLAND BY ROAD OR PATH
Room service cyclist rolls merrily along the winding trails but yearns for just a little of 1963 Starfire Oldsmobile's power to cross high arched bridge.

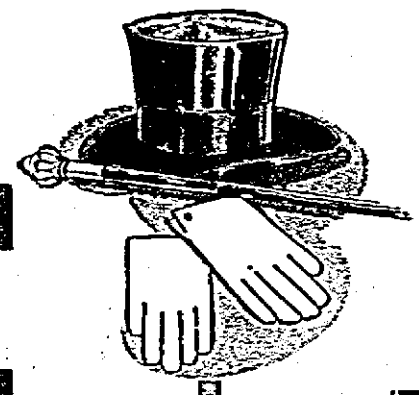

PINK STARFIRE OLDS VISITS ISLAND RETREAT

MALLARDS PLAY ACROSS ONE OF LAKE'S INLETS
Game fish and birds of all sizes have been introduced to fresh water lagoon. Starfire sports car pauses at arch bridge before crossing to family-size cottage in background.

No, Virginia, It Isn't Florida

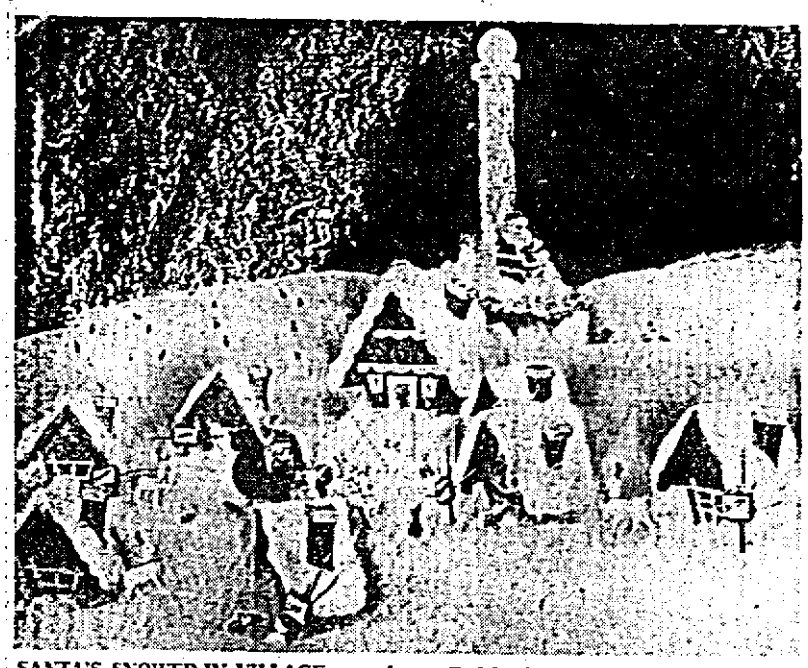

... it's genuine do-it-yourself California snow-by-the-yard!

CAROLERS IN THE SNOW . . . made for a song by Perrin Endriss from household castoffs. Bodies are bushel baskets; heads are old paint cans—chicken wire gives them shape. Their covering: White and red foil.

SANTA'S SNOWED-IN VILLAGE . . . also at Endriss home. Reindeer huts are plywood covered with foil; snow is fiberglass atwinkle with tiny lights. North Pole (back of Santa's house) revolves on turntable.

By MARY ELLIS

The cold facts are . . .

Southern Californians don't have to dream of a white Christmas just like the ones they used to know.

Wishing will make it so.

Just ask any one of several self-styled Long Beach snowmakers who have taken the weather into their own hands for the holiday season.

They've found snow in all manner of unlikely places . . . in bottles, boxes and batting; in spray cans, sawdust and styrofoam; in flour, fiberglass and foil.

Some of their attempts have been as unpredictable as Kansas weather, some have been so-so . . . but by trial-and-error methods, many have come up with snow that would buffalo an Eskimo.

TAKE AMBROSE D. FORTNA, a long-ago migrant from cold-in-the-winter Lebanon, Pa., who's been working on White Christmas techniques for 24 years.

He turns his usually sunny abode at 2236 Golden Ave. into a winter wonderland for the Christmas season with fiberglass, plastic sheeting and cotton batting—plus a few dozen other touches.

His snow on the roof is white plastic sheeting anchored down with white rocks. The lawn is covered with four rolls of fiberglass (each 65-feet long, 6 feet wide at $39 per). Shrubs are "drifed" with white cotton batting.

Snowballs are beach balls, painted white and glittered. And the "heavy" in his Christmas display—a 400-pound snowman—is fashioned of two barrels shaped-up with chicken wire, papier mache and covered with 200 pounds of flour!! mixed with water.

In his 24-year "weather" experiment, Fortna has not been without his blow-ups.

Like four years ago when he snowed the roof with cotton batting . . . only to have it blow away in a wind storm.

"There's still some of that 'snow' draped in neighborhood trees and high power lines," he moaned. "That year I wasn't very popular with the neighbors."

COTTON BATTING snow proved unsuccessful, too, for Long Beach's lady Santa Claus, Mrs. Doris Wolfe, 122 Roycroft Ave. . . . unsuccessful, that is, until she made a discovery. . .

"At first cotton blew all the way down to Second Street," she reminisced. "But now I've found a way to keep it on my own home ground."

Her technique: She spreads the lawn with cotton batting, sprinkles it with mica . . . then wets it down thoroughly, three times a day.

"I was afraid water would ruin it," she recounted. "Instead, to my surprise, the water gives it unusual snow-like qualities. The batting becomes lumpy . . . and the mica makes the same sort of hard crust that forms on real snow.

"And after it's been on the lawn three weeks, the grass begins to peep through, just like when snow melts."

Best of all: when you haul the soggy batting off to the trash barrel, the lawn comes out of "cold storage" looking healthier and greener than at any other time of the year.

PERRIN ENDRISS, snowmaker extraordinary at 1860 Faust, finds that the fiberglass covering for his lawn also

SHADES OF THE NORTH POLE . . . here achieved by Long Beach's well-known lady Santa Claus, Mrs. Doris Wolfe, 122 Roycroft, who's been handing out gifts to local children for 14 years. Her self-styled snow is cotton batting covered with mica and wet down (three times a day) for anchorage, authenticity. She's "on duty" nightly in her yard from 7 to 10.

The Wild Waves Say . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

BOYOHboyohboy and oh-boy, what a lof of parties. I can't remember a gayer December. Festivities are springing up, like mushrooms, all over town.

"As mushrooms do..."

With a reputation for producing pretty parties, Ola and Don Murphy's open house next Sunday should be one of the real delights of the week. Friends have been bidden to stop by for an egg nog in good cheer from 5 to 9 p.m. They'll have several couples assisting — but don't think there's a one whose name won't appear in other stories as you progress through these lines.

• • • •

ANOTHER large and delightful affair will be Margaret and Marvin Davis' holiday buffet next Friday evening, and that's a known fact, although it's a foregone conclusion, to the about 120 bidden.

Decorations will be in elegant white and gold. Among those assisting will be Doris and Jim Wood, Virginia and Tell Tuffli, Flo and John Brooks, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson of San Marino (Marvin's sister and brother-in-law), Phylis and Dave Alcorn and Maggie and Hal Beckley.

• • • •

READY TO go again? Lillian and Harold Maggart will host another of the week's out-of-this-holiday-world parties, a cocktail buffet on Thursday night from 6 to 9.

A partial list of those assisting reads like Dorothy and Dan Dunlap, Edna and Bill Abrams, Mary and Dr. Ford Kesling, Gladys and Walter Furie and Pauline Simons.

If you're a neighbor of the Maggarts', don't expect parking at your own front door easy to come by that night. Well over 100 invitations (real gay ones, incidentally) were mailed.

• • • •

FOR THE NONCE, let's leave the big, big galas and concentrate on a little one—a warm and folksy one. Four couples will have a progressive holiday dinner Friday for themselves and their children, ranging in age from nine months to nine years (the chillen, not the adults!). Progressing merrily to each others' homes will be Harriet and Reed Williams, Georgeanna and Pat Hamilton, Pat and John Brennan and Ruth and Jack Grisham.

• • • •

SO, MERRY Christmas and away we go again on a really huge holiday open house. This one to be co-hosted by Phyllis and Harlan Miller and Martha and Jack Tylicki. Brave, wonderful party providers — they've invited 250 to the Tylicki home for a wassail bowl session from 6 to 9 p.m.

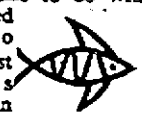

Assisting will be Shirley and "Mott" Peek, Nance and Bill Winston, and Barbara and Martin Paquette. Big hearts, big home, big, merry crowd.

• • • •

A POTPOURRI of lots of favorite people will be brought together by hosts, Coni and "Bud" Townsend, next Friday for a Christmas buffet, 7 to 10 p.m. Party site will be Burton and Polly Chace's spacious home on Country Club Drive. Coni's a smart daughter. Polly always does such wonderful Yule decorations and is such a know-hower about party planning. Besides, Polly and Burt's noses would be out of joint for a month if they didn't get to see the gay, young throng — many of the guests they have known since they were learning their Three R's.

TAKING TIME out for a fish story right here. A fish story that has to do with Helen and Jed Welsh, who returned just a few days ago from an extravagantly successful vacation in Puerto Vallarta — almost. That's part of the fish story.

"Fish story"

With friends from Sacramento, they rented a beach cottage nine miles from town and right on the beach. Only way to get to and from town was by a boat provided for them, complete with their own ocean-going chauffeur!

One day going back or forth, whichever the case might be, Helen hooked into a sailfish — a real beaut and the leader broke. Only one poor fish in that crowd. Jed. He had provided the gear.

On the bright side for the "poor fish" is that he subsequently caught a rooster fish which may well be the world's record for medium tackle. It weighed 72 pounds! With the assistance of world famous angler, Art Hall, Jed has sent along to the proper authorities the necessary affidavits, samples of line, etc., needed to record the catch for posterity, if, it is indeed, a new record.

In addition, they flew to Mexico City and Guadalajara and had a ball.

• • • •

"REMEMBER Ellen?"—"What do you hear from Dorothy?"—"How's your brother, Bill?" Questions like these plus answers will hold the conversation tempo to a steady buzz next Sunday at "Baba" Graham's home. It will mark the annual reunion-at-the-holidays for all former Phi Gams. Founded at Poly in 1922, the sorority is now a YWCA sponsored club.

"Baba" wants all alumnae whether they have heard directly from her or not, to feel free to join the teatime fun from 2 to 4 at her home, 3503 Pine Ave.

Thelma Pearsall, one of the founders, is bound to be there. Other well known localites eligible would be such women about town as Georgeanna Hunter, Marguerite McClain, Marian Martin, Doris Secord, "Middy" Masterson, Bea Hart, Dorothy McCook, Pat Van deWater, Laddie Macrate, Lou Lovell, Louise Voigt . . . and on ad infinitum.

Collegians, home for the holidays, expected include Mary Barbee, Karen Browning, Lynn Vignola, Susie Chappell, Diana Wilhoit, Pam Combs, Nancy Elliott, Lori Macrate and Susie Ward.

• • • •

FAR AS I can discover, only Long Beach notable in the very select audience at the Times' Woman of the Year ceremonies Monday was Kay (Mrs. William) Nesbit, a member of "Buff" Chandler's Blue Ribbon committee. President of L.B. Auxiliary to the So. Cal. Symphony Association (it's such a long title you HAVE to abbreviate), Kay said it was very impressive and a real thrill to meet the many prominent winners.

• • • •

MRS. ST. NICKS, at one of the gladest feminine fun fests of the current season, were co-hostesses Byrd Garten and Lillian Irish.

These two provisionals of Assistance League welcomed their old and new-found friends within the group to a brunch at the League House Wednesday. Among sponsors assisting them (remember I'm not naming many complete lists due to duplications this week) were Julia Witz, Helen Reagan, Marion Ritner, Marion Ten Eyck and Kas Barker.

• • • •

STRIDING, verbally, along the suave party path again we come to Dell and Don Berry's happy hours cocktail buffet party of Friday night last. Simply angelic!

"Angelic"

Assisting the hosts greet best-of-friends guests were Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm and "Artie" and Al Stevenson.

• • • •

BEFORE SHE had her suitcase unpacked, Geneva Weiss had pen in hand jotting off invitations to holiday parties. She and Stan returned a little over a week ago from visits in Tennessee (to see her parents at their home in Lebanon) and to New York (lots of shopping and shows) and already, voila!, they have had a cocktail buffet. It was Saturday and included many of their out-of-town friends. They plan to have another an open house, on the 20th to help friends get in training for that date with the 31st!

A MATTER OF TASTE

Tried--But Trite, Not True

By WILLIAM PAHLMANN
Fellow, AIID

The picture window, as its name implies, was originally designed by architects to frame a vista or view. Such windows were intended to be situated so that neither privacy nor the control of light would be a major problem.

However, this concept has been so abused in its adaption to mass-produced housing, or employed in private housing without reference to its original intention, that we have picture windows that have no reason for being.

In new real estate developments, the only view framed by a picture window may be the picture window across the street.

THE CURTAINING of such windows is unusually important. Curtains which traverse or draw across the window are almost necessary to secure privacy and to control light at various times of the day and to cover the large black glass expanse at night.

A lined curtain drawn across the glass expanse of the picture window in the daytime may give a blank look to the exterior of the house. It is better to choose a fabric for such curtains which looks well from the outside as well as the inside.

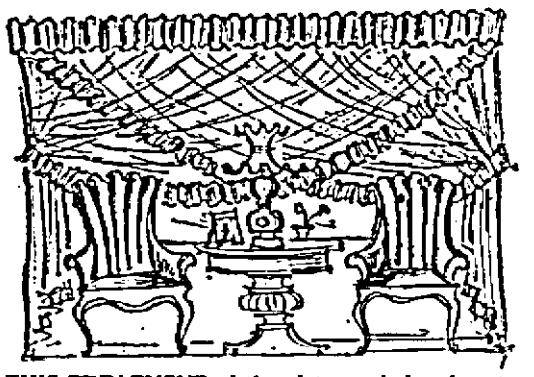

I use glass curtains of semi-sheer fabric, with lined overcurtains that traverse on such windows. Overcurtains go to the floor. The window wall can then be treated as any other wall—furniture placed before it or at angles to it.

• • • •

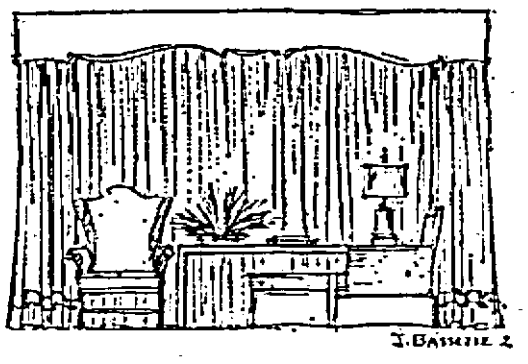

ONE OF THE most depressing aspects of present-day suburban life is the use of the picture window as a set piece—criss-crossed, ruffled curtains which do not allow for privacy or control light in any way, a round table with a lamp directly in its center, flanked by two chairs. This monotonous sight can greet you through miles of streets.

If you have one of these problem windows curtain it so that you have privacy for the activities of the family and so that you will not be blinded by uncontrolled light. To avoid monotony, place a loveseat in front of the window. Put a desk at right angles to it. Try a long rectangular table before the window instead of the ubiquitous round table. If you must use a round table, try a low bowl of greens or flowers on it and don't use twin chairs.

The picture window is neither a shrine nor necessarily the focal point of the room. It is just slightly more difficult than other windows. Treat it so that it becomes part of the room and not something set apart.

THIS TREATMENT of the picture window is not only trite, but lets in glare and robs room of

TREAT PICTURE windows like other windows for the maximum in comfort, looks and use of space.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Keep Being Responsible

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and am treated like a baby, Abby. My mother says I have to be home by 12 o'clock when I go out on a date, no matter what. If I go to a school dance, and the band plays until 12, I have to leave the dance at 11:30 to be sure I am home on time. Last Saturday night we went to a movie and, Abby, I had to ask my date to leave before the movie ended because of that midnight rule. Please help me make my mother understand how embarrassing her rule is. I have never yet been late coming home.

—EMBARRASSED

ABBY

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You shouldn't have to leave a dance or a movie before it is over, but if you continue to respect your mother's "rules," she's bound to ease up a bit. I hope so. You seem like a responsible girl.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: We almost came to blows over something I wish you would settle for me once and for all. I have always called my brother's wife my SISTER-IN-LAW. Now they tell me that she is NOT my sister-in-law—she is nothing to me. They say the only sisters-in-law I have are the sisters of my husband! I am going mad trying to figure this out.—EVA

DEAR EVA: Technically, the relatives gained by marriage are "in-laws." Your brother's wife is indeed your sister-in-law.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the solution for decreasing the divorce rate. Marriage licenses should cost $350 and divorces $2. That way people would think plenty before rushing into marriage.

—SUBSCRIBER

DEAR SUBSCRIBER: Perhaps if a marriage license were more expensive people would not be so inclined to rush into what should be a life-long partnership. But why should a divorce be cheap? Perhaps if divorce were even more expensive, folks would try harder to make a go of the marriage.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Am I crazy or are there other people like me? I positively go out of my mind when I HEAR someone eating an apple. I can't describe what it does to me, but I feel that I want to jump out of my skin! How can I overcome it? Please don't tell me to see a psychiatrist.—ROSE

DEAR ROSE: An apple a day is supposed to keep the doctor away, so I am not about to send you to one. However, there is no need to torture yourself. When someone starts to crunch an apple—exit.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I think the jerk who invented Mischief Night (Halloween) must have hated his parents. I am the mother of three frustrated children who are not allowed out on Halloween. I fail to see the humor in poor old Mrs. G. down the street with a bad back having to crawl around mopping up squashed pumpkins. Or Mrs. P. across the street, who is pregnant, having to spend hours unrolling toilet paper from her trees and bushes and scoop up smelly garbage from her overturned garbage pail. The children of this nation should thank God that they are living in a country where there are more comforts, more food and more fun than anywhere in the world. I know, for I was raised in a war-torn country.—MAMMA

FOASBERG'S FABRIC CARE COUNSELOR

YOUR HOLIDAY FINERY

In addition to beauty and fashion, you want to know some of the basic facts about any new garments you buy. For example, the new plastic zippers are wonderful — but they do melt when touched by a hot iron. Acetates are beautiful — but they do dissolve when spotted with alcohol. Brilliantly colored garments often run in the first washing and should not be washed with other items.

My advice is to save all of the information tags on new garments — save them and read them. They are most important in maintaining your wardrobe.

Christmas Wrappings
fancy fashion 'furbelows'

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Among the fadiest, fanciest wrappings for the holiday season are fur boas of mink, sable, squirrel or fox.

By any other name—fur ringlets, necklaces, circlets, ruffs or fur fillips—they look just as chic with suits, coats or wool dresses.

A scarf of mink, for instance, can be worn as collar, ascot, muff or hat. Clip it to frame a neckline or create one . . . drape it into a fashionable hat . . . twist it for an unusual cowl collar or set it straight to ring a bateau neckline . . . shape it to collar or scarf your many suits and dresses.

Ranging in price from $25 (squirrel) to $200 (sable), it's the kind of fancy gift wrap every fashionable lady wants for Christmas.

No, No, Virginia--It Isn't Florida
. . . the undercover story

enhances its beauty.

The commercially-made insulation holds in the heat and moisture to give grass a new lease on life, he noted.

Beauty of the fiberglass covering (though expensive): it does not mat or tear, can be washed off, rolled up and used year after year.

Fiberglass on the lawn is anchored securely with staples to underlying wooden planks. And synthetic drifts (fiberglass) on the roof also are stapled to keep the wind from whipping underneath.

"Snow" banked at the entrance twinkles with hundreds of tiny blinking lights.

Endriss has other snow stoppers, too. Like the white-touched evergreen around his windows. It's really last year's blocked Christmas tree, cut up and stored through the year in plastic bags.

BUT WHEN it comes to snow men, king of them all is at the home of June and Jack Park, 370 Santa Ana.

This snow-covered gargantua with the top hat and heart of thistles is eight feet tall and almost as wide.

He's fashioned of huge tumble weeds (snipped from Airplane Hill) and is covered with a roll of mattress batting (it's heavier, lumpy and costs $5).

So proud he almost bursts his buttons (they're Christmas tree baubles), his smile is put on with a string of ornamental beads and his eyes have the twinkle of Christmas tree balls.

Nice thing about him, he won't melt.

Clever these Californians. They can even make weather that doesn't change with the elements!

MR. SNOWMAN keeps smiling as do-it-yourself snowmakers June and Jack Park show his undercover secret. His body and head are made of prickly tumbleweeds, which hold cover of white batting securely.

Typographical Women to Meet

Woman's Auxiliary 124 of Long Beach Typographical Union 650 will meet Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Bert Courtney, 12922 Gilbert St., Garden Grove. Mrs. Roger Thoren will assist the hostess. A Christmas gift exchange will follow the noon luncheon.

Philippine Missionary to Speak at Tea Thursday

Madaline Klepper of Philippines will be guest speaker at the First Methodist Church's annual missionary tea Thursday at 1 p.m.

As director or the Methodist Social Center in Manila for the past 12 years, Miss Klepper will receive a plaque from that city in her absence.

• • • •

THE PLAQUE will honor her work with the YWCA Board, National Health Board, Youth Co-ordination Council, Boy's Town Girls' Committee and Censor Board for Movies in that city.

She is the only protestant and only American to be so honored.

Mrs. Harold Seymour, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, will preside at the meeting. Devotions will be given by Mrs. James Parsons. The "Speaknicks," a group of retired teachers, will present holiday choral readings.

A social hour and tea will follow the program.

Tasty Treat

Prepare plenty of these tasty hors d'oeuvres ahead of party time, but bake only a few at a time before serving. Mix shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, ripe olive wedges, mayonnaise and touch of garlic together. Spread on thinly sliced dry salami on rounds of rye bread. Broil about 5 minutes.

Love, Honor, Go On Working Not for Her

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Everything is fine with our wedding plans. We expect to have our house finished and our furniture paid for when we move in. He will have his car paid for. What more could anyone want?

Well, he says I must keep my job after we are married. But I think my place should be at home, taking care of it and him and my responsibilities. After all, Molly, that's why I'm marrying him—to be a happy housewife and to be with him. He works seven days a week from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. It's a good-paying job and we can make it without my job. Am I a—SELFISH FIANCEE?

DEAR FIANCEE:

It's not cheaper for two to live than one, but it's smarter for one to work—if it can be done. And it sounds like you have it made if you can bring him round.

Try the taking the "food out of the mouth of another babe" approach. You don't need the job. Someone else does. Promise to keep busy for him. Perhaps a baby-to-be, or night school classes. I think he may be more troubled by your time alone than the money alone.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

An attractive girl from out of the states is dating a campus wolf. He has spread the word that they are doing research in human and social relations.

We really believe she is a respectable girl but is impressed with the cad's money. He says it will buy anything.

We understand she comes from a good family with a professional background and we feel she deserves something much better than this wolf in sheepskin.

Our problem gets closer to home when other boys remind us what is going on and think some of us ought to do research, too. We are here to learn and earn our degrees, but we aren't sold on this course.—JO ANNE

DEAR JO ANNE:

The course has its hazards all right, and there are lots of graduates in unwed homes and ill-famed houses. Co-eds today take the subject lightly, but life invariably downgrades it heavily.

Have a heart to heart talk with the girl on the stand that you're taking. It may surprise her.—M.M.

• • • •

NOTE TO SOUNDS IN THE NIGHT: Your mother, like any woman, has the right to change her mind about the slumber party. Screaming over it is silly. —M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

He's a real dream, all six feet of him, blond hair, blue eyes, quiet but not shy. He's not just another infatuation. He's two years older than we are, but he won't notice any of us. How can we get him to?

—THREE UNNOTICED GIRLS

DEAR UNNOTICED:

Three of you want the same advice? You're joshing, and pulling Molly's leg may be fun; but it isn't very nice to get me in the middle of a four-way huddle like that. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Two men want to marry me. My former husband, and a friend.

My husband and I lived together off and on for seven months. He told me he didn't love me more often than he said he did. Then he told me to leave. He got the divorce and now wants to marry me again. I love him with all my heart and he tells me the same. But how can I be sure?

The other man says he loves me, too, but I don't love him. What shall I do? —J.W.

DEAR J.W.:

Lucky girl. You have a second chance to keep your vows.—M.M.

Exposed by Safety Play

When is a safety play not a safety play? When it guards against one combination of cards but exposes you to a more likely combination.

When South played today's hand he won the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and promptly cashed the ace and king of diamonds in order to discard his other club before the defense could make a club trick. Then he led dummy's jack of spades and the hand collapsed.

West won with the ace and led a club which South had to trump. This put South down to equal trump length with West. Later when West gained the lead with the ace of hearts he forced South to ruff again and South could only make nine tricks.

NORTH pointed out that if South had simply led trumps at trick two he would have lost a club trick but made the hand. However, this particular safety play would have cost South the contract if the hearts had broken 6-1 and the spades reasonably and that particular combination was fully as likely as the actual 5-0 spade break.

However, South should have made the hand on his own line of play had he led the five of spades from dummy instead of the jack. He would never lead a second trump and eventually would make his tenth trick by ruffing a heart with the jack of spades.

Doggone It! It Takes Real Bow Wows to Wow Them

By MARY NETH

If you are looking for a stuffed bowwow for Christmas, you're barking up the wrong tree.

Any child would prefer a real Rover.

For, a cuddly canine can perform as well as an automated toy any day.

He'll walk, wet and woof without benefit of wind-up keys or push buttons, and he's friendly and furry, too.

Why, then, the popularity of plush pups with simulated yips and nylon fur?

It's the result of some serious misunderstanding, that's all.

Seems many people—mostly moms—rate dogs a bother.

To combat this anti-pooch attitude and bring dogs out of the dog house (and into human homes), here's a list of puppy ownership advantages.

1. Suffer from insomnia? A puppy will provide friendly company during sleepless nights.

Pups need lots of rest. They cat-nap (excuse the expression) on and off all day. In the evening, they'll snuggle down on a hot water bottle to the ticking of a clock for hours—which usually brings them up to about midnight.

Then, you'll have your company. You can play games, or, if the rest of the family insists on sleeping, go for a ride or sit-it-out in the garage.

2. Do you have children who are careless about putting away things? Don't nag. Leave reforming to the pup.

Here, the rule is everything that's not picked up will be eaten up. Doll house furniture and toy trains make just as good chewing and chomping as do suede gloves, feather hats, evening wraps and bone colored shoes. Your little Johnny or Janie will catch on to this quick.

3. Do yesterday's newspapers tend to stack up on your coffee table or back porch? With a pup, you can put them to good use.

They are just the thing for housebreaking. Put a paper down near a door and wait. We guarantee that soon you'll have the best informed dog in town—even if you still have puddles on the floor.

As to that bone of contention, carpet stains, this is a misunderstanding we can clear up right here. They needn't happen. A quick splash of vinegar does the trick—really.

Carry a bottle at all times. One never knows—not even a pup—and you'll find the odor of pickled upholstery does grow on you.

We've listed only a few of the very wonderful advantages to having a puppy in the family. There are others, too. As the pup grows up you won't be annoyed by cats in the back yard or strangers (mailmen, milkmen or meter readers) coming up the front walk.

So, for a real doggy Christmas leave those wind-up facsimiles on the toy store shelf and buy a live one.

This reporter already has. The result: The family has been living a dog's life ever since and my seven-year-old is in seventh heaven.

WHY GROW OLD?

Kitchen Beauty Cabinet Keeps You Always Neat

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How many women have a spot of their very own at home?

Few have a bathroom which is exclusively theirs. Their dressing table may be shared with or raided by a daughter and every bathroom is as crowded as Grand Central station during the early morning rush for work and school.

A spot which is yours alone, no matter how small or how it is or how hectic the rest of the family may become, is a real treat. Have you ever thought that the best solution is a beauty cabinet in the kitchen?

This may sound like a mad idea at first but it really is extremely practical. With a kitchen beauty cabinet you will never greet your family at breakfast without lipstick. You can escape the family rush in the morning and make yourself pretty while the coffee perks and the egg water heats.

• • • •

SUCH A cabinet is wonderful for quick repairs in the midst of work, when the doorbell rings unexpectedly and also when you are entertaining at dinner. While you are getting dessert and coffee ready you can touch up your face without taking time to go elsewhere in the house to do so.

A steel cabinet is probably the best kind to use. It is inexpensive and easy to install.

If you try a kitchen beauty cabinet, don't clutter it up with items you only use once in a while.

• • • •

YOU WILL need:

(1) A mirror which can be attached to the inside of the steel door with adhesive picture hangers.

(2) A couple of lipsticks; one tending toward pink or clear red and the other with some coral, to match whatever you happen to be wearing.

(3) A comb; to flick your hair into place in a hurry.

(4) Powder and a couple of puffs.

(5) An emery board to quickly repair a jagged nail.

(6) Colorless nail polish to temporarily mend a broken nail or catch a run in your stocking the moment it starts.

(7) Cologne, to make you feel fresh and to banish food odors.

(8) Hair spray, to perk up your coiffure after the more strenuous last minute chores are done.

(9) AND, of course, hand lotion, several bottles, to use many times daily.

Alamitos Bay Group to Party

Brunch, program and a gift exchange have been planned for members of Alamitos Bay Garden Club for their annual Christmas party to be held at the home of Mrs. John A. Richards, 6424 E. Ocean Blvd., at 11:30 a.m., Thursday.

Jean Norris will play Santa Claus and distribute gifts from her pack during the "no guests" party. She will also play the piano for the singing of carols.

• • • •

PHILANTHROPY committee, headed by Mrs. Russell P. Hill, will accept donations of canned goods for the city-wide Christmas dinner for the less fortunate, an annual event under the auspices of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Don Gillespie, president, will be assisted by members of the executive board as hostess for the brunch. Mrs. E. H. Chase, hospitality chairman, will serve as coordinator. Officers and chairmen include Mmes. Demler, John M. Davis, David MacLeod, Harry L. Wells, Albert C. Ramsey, N. J. Rautenberg, Edward R. Ingle, Dorothy Collins, John A. Graye, Arthur C. Hjelm, Richard P. Glasco, Max E. Nichols, Gilbert Wagner, R. P. Hill, Frederick C. Tebbetts, Scott Gillespie, Thomas J. Norton and Mary M. Lyon.

COUNTER ACTION

Counter Action

When it comes to holiday decorating, it's really the little things — those individual little touches — that count.

This year, we again visit one of our favorite places for yule decorations. There you'll find everything from the tree itself to the ornaments to place on it, all selected with the greatest of care.

Under $1

For that odd-size wall that needs a Christmas lift, decorate with white doves. These beautifully fashioned imports from Orient, can be placed in staggered arrangement to balance any size space. With addition of gold tinsel, draped from beak to beak, you'll have complete wall piece at little cost.

* * * *

FOR unusual tree decorations use inexpensive ornaments of paper. You'll find large selection of exquisite baubles to choose from: gold foil birds (four to a pack), fold-out snow balls (all sizes), angles (a number of styles). All can be used in interesting holiday mobiles, too. Imported from Scandinavian countries and Japan.

Under $5

With this sleigh — away you'll go on a decorating binge. From Hong Kong, it's of natural ratan (about eight inches in length) with all curlicues of picture book illustrations. Wonderful for under the tree Santa scenes or sophisticated Christmas centerpiece.

* * *

JEWEL of a cloth. Shimmering paper cloths in gold, silver, and metallic pink, blue and green add sparkle to Christmas table. Each comes 72 inches long and a yard wide. Useful in many other holiday decorating schemes, too.

Under $7

WOODEN figurines fashioned by old world craftsmen add up to delightfully old fashioned Christmas decor. Included here: tiny creches from Austria and a small angel and piano grouping from Germany. Also, not to be overlooked, minute brightly painted figures from Italy and Switzerland priced 50 cents and up.

ACETYLENE TORCH is tool Claire Falkenstein uses to create her metal and glass sculpture. Working within the circular form, she creates an "open center" design for forthcoming exhibit.

CLAIRE FALKENSTEIN, in Long Beach, looks up through section of giant chain which hung in her exhibit in Paris and will be shown again at the Esther Robles Gallery. Exploring the use of the circle in combinations, she says, "The circle has many implications, including the balance, serenity and equilibrium which are a necessary part of living."

Conductor Emphasizes the Music of Opera

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — Thomas Scherman, a slender, tireless hunter of forgotten music, has found a new enthusiasm.

It is grand opera — but with a difference. All the familiar trappings of massive scenery and elaborate costume are out. Simplified action and artful lighting are in. The result is intensified performance.

"Without a lot of distracting realism," he explains his purpose, "the music becomes more dramatic."

Scherman's project is being unveiled in a series of four performances at Philharmonic Hall in New York's new Lincoln Center shrine of culture. With a virtually complete ticket sellout in advance assuring the first season's success, he is planning ahead to a cross-country tour next year.

* * * *

THE CONDUCTOR is no road newcomer, for the Little Orchestra Society which he founded 15 years ago travels frequently. Its local and itinerant activities have been somewhat curtailed temporarily while the Concert Opera Association gets going.

The latter actually is an offshoot of the orchestra. In 1950, Scherman tried Gluck's "Orpheo ed Euridice" as a program item.

"I didn't know what I was getting into," he smiles of the enthusiastic public response.

Tenold Peterson's Art Is Mystic and Daring

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The one-man show by Tenold Peterson on view at Atelier 7, 3316 E. Seventh St., until Jan. 5, is a puzzling, challenging one. While Tenold's work in oils, charcoal, graphics, ceramics, and sculpture is in the mode of the present day, his expression is intensely personal.

Tenold is preoccupied with a mystic relationship between indescribable and, oftimes, well-nigh indiscernable forms. It would be valuable to know their significance to the artist himself. To the viewer, they are monumental and angry, reinforced by harsh color, largely black and white.

* * * *

THE CRUCIFORM seems to underlie Tenold's compositions. It is clearly delineated in the graphic "Crucifixion" and again in "Nemesis," a rather lovely, elegant wood structure. It recurs even in small charcoal drawings entitled "Krinkle" and "Krankle."

* * * *

TENOLD gives his works titles which refer to subject matter though the works themselves go way beyond. "Book Burners," a huge oil, does give a sense of self-righteous vigilantes doing their noxious worst. Another oil, "American Gothic," could be a take-off on the classic by Grant Wood.

The scope of media investigated and the daring of his approach indicate that Tenold is embarked on a vast undertaking. He was recognized by inclusion in the La Jolla show this year. This local exhibit is an opportunity for the many art-minded in the community to acquaint themselves with an extremely original and creative body of work.

CLAIRE FALKENSTEIN:

'Artists Must Create'

By ELISE ESIERY

Sculptor Claire Falkenstein, who has excited admiration and stirred controversy in the international art world has come from Paris to Long Beach to execute two commissions and arrange for a show at Esther Robles Gallery, Los Angeles.

Now at 25 10th Place in a large room converted into a studio for her use she is surrounded by wire, sheet metal, glass and coils of copper tubing as she creates a suspended fountain for the new home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Buffum.

* * * *

A TALL, slender young woman, Miss Falkenstein works in a bright red peasant blouse, beige wrap-around skirt, brown woolen hose and red tennis shoes. Her softly waved blonde hair is pinned in a French roll, her gray-green eyes are wide and direct, her teeth white and even. Her hands are strong and square. Her chief working tool is an acetylene torch.

In a working day of 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. she paused to discuss her plans and theories.

"When I begin a work, I never start with a preconception. I take myself, my tools and materials and go to the place I am designing for. As you adapt to a new place, the environment contributes something to you, and you sense its mood."

What if an idea for the work doesn't come?

* * * *

"THAT NEVER happens," said Miss Falkenstein firmly. "It is the artist's lot to create. If he cannot, he is in the wrong field."

The fountain she is constructing for the Buffum home will be a 3-foot circular form of welded copper tubing, into which pieces of glowing colored glass are fused. Above this will be a cap of beaten sheet metal. The fountain will be suspended over a basin. Water will fall over the cap and fountain into the basin in perpetual circulation.

"I want the water to come over the fountain in a sheath, not spurting and splashing."

* * * *

IN HER current works, Miss Falkenstein is exploring the "open center" in composition, in which the eye may go into the piece as well as around it.

"We must go beyond the problems of three dimension which occupied artists for centuries, and explore space itself."

Her philosophy is to "touch the eternal with the now, to attach oneself to universal values.

"This attachment can come only through realizing and exploring contemporary attitudes and needs. We can't copy another period; it is useless to try to be any other person than oneself, or to live in any other time."

* * * *

THE UNIVERSAL values, the artist believes, are vitality, ordered expression and communication, and the penetration into the context of cultural and technical developments.

"Our 'open center' in composition is a way of communicating our attitude toward the universe NOW. Euclidean geometry is inadequate as the means of defining our contemporary concept of space."

For her month-long show at the Robles Gallery which will open Jan. 7, Miss Falkenstein brought from Paris part of a chain which she exhibited at the Musee Rodin.

"I decided to exploit open air and to take my commission from the trees.

"The 50-foot chain was made of huge interlocking circles of tubing and was suspended 20 feet above the ground from a cable strung between two enormous trees. I had no idea what would happen when it was hung.

* * * *

"IT WAS astonishing! The chain moved constantly as the trees moved, and the cable alternately tensed and relaxed just as though it were breathing."

After the show, the chain hung for two years by her Paris studio. It was seen there by Esther Robles, who invited the artist to exhibit in her Los Angeles gallery, and also commissioned a new work for the show. About 16 feet of the chain will be hung in the display, which will include some of Miss Falkenstein's gravures as well as pieces of sculpture.

When Miss Falkenstein left Long Beach in 1960, she returned to New York for her second show there, then went to Rome to exhibit for the New York Art Foundation, and on to Paris for the show at Musee Rodin. A second show there followed in 1961.

* * * *

NEXT CAME a commission to do the great gates for Peggy Guggenheim's estate in Venice. At 701 San Gregorio, Palazza Venier Dei Leoni, the gates of wrought iron and fused glass are unmistakably the work of Claire Falkenstein.

It was at an exhibit of Falkenstein work in Venice that the Buffums met the sculptor and commissioned her to do the Long Beach fountain. Not until she completed a promised exhibit in Paris was she free to come here.

WHEN SHE completes her work, she will go to New York for an exhibit at the Martha Jackson Gallery, then on to Europe.

"This is 1962," she said, "but I work almost as artists did in the Renaissance. On command, I pick up my tools and materials and go to the spot to work."

'Thailand' Painting at Museum

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Post Editor

An exhibition of 54 paintings from Thailand, most of them done in the 18th and 19th centuries, opens today at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The works are from the collection of James H. W. Thompson of Bangkok and are one of a series of exhibits on Oriental Art being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution.

The subject matter is primarily religious, for the purpose of the paintings was to inspire the devout. As is typical of Asiatic art, perspective is lacking and the figures and objects are outlined, then filled in with flat color and gold leaf. The paintings are on silk, cotton, paper or wood, with mineral and earth pigments mixed with binders.

The museum will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day. Because no films or concerts are scheduled for Dec. 20 or 27, the museum will not be open on those Thursday evenings.

• • • •

A RECEPTION from 2 to 5 p.m. today will mark the opening of a two-man show at Pacific Coast Club.

Exhibitors are G. Arthur Hopkins, art instructor at West High School in Torrance, and Larry Macaray, art instructor at El Camino College.

Hopkins will show oils, graphics and pastels. He has exhibited in Guadalajara and San Miguel de Allende in Mexico and in several cities in Southern California. His paintings are in collections in Canada, Mexico, Central America and the United States.

Macaray will exhibit oils and collages. He has been represented in the National Veterans Exhibition in Washington, numerous shows in this area and at the Harvey Marlowe Gallery in Hollywood.

This summer Macaray will conduct a six-week tour of Europe. The group will leave July 8 and will visit 12 cities. For further information, write Macaray at El Camino College or at Box 536, Anaheim.

TWO MEMBERS of Artists League of Seal Beach are exhibiting 17 oil paintings in Bay Shore Library auditorium through December. They are Lillian Unruh, who taught for many years in the Long Beach public schools, and May Platt, graduate of the Artists School in Westport, Conn. Library hours are from noon to 9 p.m.

• • • •

MARIE BUCHER, who currently has an exhibit at Saylor's Art Gallery, 420 E. Fourth St., will leave in January for Paris where she will continue her art studies. She is special exhibits chairman for Long Beach Art Association.

Other association's members having one-man shows are: John Weeks at General Telephone Co., 3925 E. Seventh St.; Elaine Sagerhorn, General Surgical Supply, 1776 Obispo Ave.; Dr. Eugene Wallin at Buffums', Pine and Broadway; Geoffrey Holt, Park Pantry, Anaheim and Long Beach Boulevard; Mary Buhl, Park Pantry, 17511 S. Susanna Road, Compton; and Robert J. Adams, Park Pantry, Katella and Los Alamitos, Rossmoor.

The association's gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. will be closed to the public from Dec. 22 to 29, but will receive entries on Dec. 28 for the January oil painting exhibit.

LONG BEACH artists C. W. Artman and Jack Lowe are represented in "The Southwest: Painting and Sculpture" show in the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, Tex. A three-man jury chose 83 works from 889 entries submitted by artists from Arizona, Southern California, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Thirteen paintings and one sculpture were recommended by the jury for purchase by the Ford Foundation for donation to museum collections. Among these were an oil, "Compote Dish," by Jean Clad of Los Angeles, and a mixed media, "San Pedro Steel Mill," by V. Jaramillo, also of Los Angeles.

• • • •

DR. WARD YOURY, chairman of the crafts area of Long Beach State College art department, is one of 428 artists represented in the 22nd Ceramic National at Everson Museum of Art, Syracuse, N. Y.

The bi-annual event, largest in this category in the nation, alternates with an Invitational international show.

From the display, 154 pieces were selected to go on a two-year national tour which will start at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City Jan. 25 to March 10. Dr. Youry's small-necked vase, shown last spring at Long Beach Museum of Art, is among those selected for the touring show.

Viola Gains Stature in Hands of William Primrose

By RACHEL MORTON
L.P.T. Music Critic

The viola, as a musical instrument, is not the most illustrious among its fellow string members, the violin and cello taking far-out precedence. But when the viola is in the hands of a master like the celebrated violist, William Primrose, the others have to look to their laurels.

Recently this great artist was a guest of honor at a luncheon in the home of two notable Long Beach musicians: Margaret Main, violist, and Lewis Main, violinist. It was a jolly occasion and many a quip and humorous tale flew back and forth among the guests—all well-known musicians.

The strongest characteristic of William Primrose is his contagious, good humor. His blue eyes were full of merriment and the ruddy face bespoke a friendly kindness. Perhaps this disposition is what accounts for his much younger appearance than the 58 years he acknowledged.

• • • •

WILLIAM'S father was a professional violinist in Glasgow, Scotland, where the lad was born. He early showed marked musical talent and was sent to London for study.

"But I wanted the best instruction available," he said, "so I went to Brussels where for two years I studied with that great violinist, Ysaye."

Primrose is not quite sure in his mind whether Ysaye, who loved string quartet playing and needed a viola player to join him, or whether he really believed, as he put it:

"There are many fine violinists, William, but very few excellent viola players. You have just the hands for the instrument and a special aptitude."

• • • •

ANYWAY, from that time on, Primrose concentrated on the viola. Nathan Milstein was also a pupil of Ysaye and played second violin in this informal quartet.

Back in London in 1922 he made his debut under Langdon Ronald, playing Elgar's Concerto. He joined the London String Quartet and played with them in many concerts from 1935 to 1939, using a beautiful Amati viola.

"But now I play on a Guarnarius made in 1694—an instrument I'd wanted all my life."

Toscanini, under whom Primrose had played on many occasions, casually remarked to him at rehearsal one day:

• • • •

AND HE MADE his first Atlantic crossing—one of 50 crossings by ship—(now he flies) and played the concerto with the NBC Orchestra in Carnegie Hall.

He remained with Toscanini, playing first viola, until the orchestra was disbanded. Then came the war.

"It was a difficult time," continued Primrose, "folks would meet me on the street, slap me on the back and ask what I was doing these days. I've quit the orchestra, I would say.

Good, they would reply—you should be doing only solo viola concerts. All very well—but how was I to earn a living when there were no solo engagements?"

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Cooks a Good Deal

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

He'd confuse even the most proficient prognosticator. He's the son of a Baptist minister—majored in geology—and ended up in the automobile business. His eventual fate was probably the result of an accident.

Today's Chef of the Week, James A. Willingham, is co-owner of Boulevard Buick, a partnership which was formed in January 1961, with Charles W. Campbell.

Born in southeast Missouri near Cape Girardeau, his early life, as the son of a minister, was mostly in transit from one pastorate to another. Two years in one state is the longest he can boast. In fact, it took the mileage of four states—Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas—to get him through high school.

• • • •

LATE IN World War II he was exposed to the Marine Air Corps, and two years later, at the government's convenience, was honorably discharged.

Returning to the States, he entered the University of Missouri on a football scholarship. A broken leg and bad knee injury during a football game in the fall of his junior year, ended that chapter of his life.

Good things, however, lay ahead of him. Mary Durkee, a Long Beach girl and a student at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., whom he had been dating, graduated and returned to her home. What better place was there in which to recuperate than on the beach at Long Beach!

He recovered, they were married and the automobile business was the field they chose.

James A. Willingham

Completing an apprenticeship with Studebaker, Pontiac and Buick agencies, he decided to really bone-up on the finance end of the business. They mastered, the present partnership was formed. In October 1961, they took on the Jaguar franchise, also.

• • • •

PRESIDENT of the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association, Willingham also serves on the state board of Motor Car Dealers. He is deeply involved as chairman of the distinguished salesman award committee of Sales & Marketing Executives, and as member of the Major Gifts Division, Community Chest.

A charter member of the 49'ers Club, Long Beach State College, he belongs to the Century Club, the Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce. He's also active in alumni activities of Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Willingham is a member of the Board of Trustees, First Baptist Church.

He loves to hunt, both big and little game, and shoots to a 13 golf handicap. With a barbecue set-up par excellence, quite naturally his recipe is for barbecue sauce.

BARBECUE SAUCE
A LA BOULEVARD

1 cup chili sauce
½ cup wine vinegar
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 small onion, grated
4 tblsp. brown sugar
1 tblsp. paprika
Dash cayenne
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. Worcestershire
½ lemon—juice and grated rind

Blend ingredients in sauce pan and heat to simmering. Simmer 15 minutes. Do not boil. Baste meat ever 10-15 minutes with sauce.

Plan Cheer for Veterans on Dec. 25

On Dec. 25, the 10 chapters of B'nai B'rith Women's Harbor Council will give a tea for men and women at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital who are unable to return to their homes for the holidays.

Tuesday, the council staged a gala variety show in the hospital auditorium. After the entertainment, the women served refreshments and distributed 300 gifts to patients.

• • • •

B'NAI B'RITH Women have been dedicated to service to disabled war veterans since the end of World War II when they adopted the slogan, "We'll never forget." In addition to the annual parties, chapters sponsor monthly entertainment at the Veterans Hospital on a year-round basis.

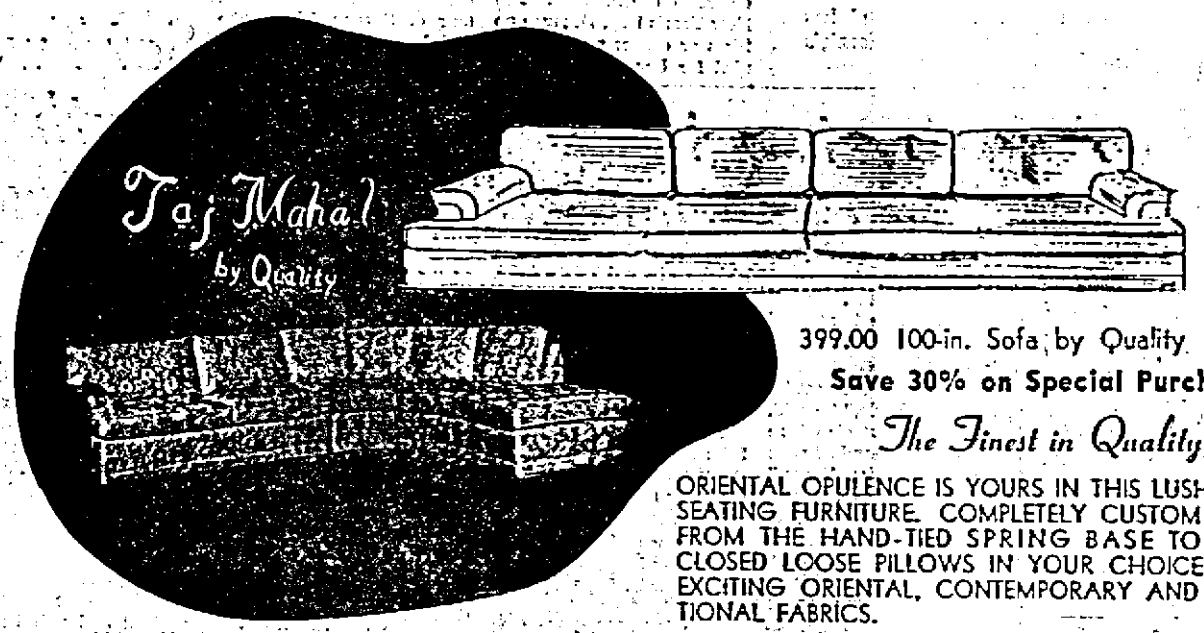

Mrs. Sidney A. Hartmann is veterans chairman for the Harbor Council.

White pigeons, rather than the famed swallows, adorn the adobe walls and fountains of Mission San Juan Capistrano at this time of the year. But perhaps to be more permanently engraved on the mind than the birds of a season is the sight of the bell wall as seen through the garden on its north side. It is always there, and through both its own perseverance and the efforts of preservation by others it is likely to afford a memento through another 187 years of European man's arrival in California. Cameraman Roger Coar's talented lens looked through bougainvillaea blooming on the garden wall for this touch of Christmas color. More about Mission Capistrano at Christmastime on Page 7.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haslin

Q. What is the difference between an oratorio and a cantata? K. C.

A. An oratorio is a musical composition for chorus and solo voices, with orchestral accompaniment, set to a poem on a religious subject. It may be termed the equivalent of a sacred opera given without scenery, action, or costume. A cantata is also for chorus and solo voices, but may or may not have orchestral accompaniment. The name is sometimes applied to a short oratorio of narrative type, or to a short opera not intended for the theater.

Q. What nation was first to use a divining rod to find hidden things? H.L.

A. The use of a divining rod for locating something hidden is of immemorial antiquity, and most ancient nations used some version of it. In the 1500s, books by two German scientists, Georg Agricola and Sebastian Munster, described the use of a forked twig of hazel or willow (virgula furcata) for locating metal or water beneath the earth's surface. In the 1400s, German prospectors had started to use the "dowsing" rod in trying to locate minerals in the Harz mountains, and its use spread to the mines in England's Cornwall. Later, the dowsing rod came to be used more in the search for water than for metals.

Q. What important mineral deposits are there in the Sahara? E. O.

A. The most spectacular discoveries in the Sahara have been those of coal, oil and gas. The geological configuration of the area and the results of recent exploration indicate the probability of rich mineral deposits of various kinds. There was not even a geological map of the Sahara until the 1950s, and systematic exploration has only lately been undertaken. Among the first discoveries were a lode of manganese estimated at a million tons of ore, a vein of iron ore estimated at two billion tons, a vein of copper with reserves of 500,000 tons of ore. There are indications of the existence of uranium and precious metals.

Q. Does the U. S. Constitution forbid all Americans to hold foreign titles?—P. G.

A. No. The Constitution says (Article I, Section 9): "No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince or foreign State."

Q. Where was the first funeral sermon preached in this country? T. M.

A. In the Colonies, the first sermon over the dead is believed to have been the one preached in 1697 by Pastor Ichabod Wiswall of Duxbury, in burying Jonathan Alden, one of the sons of John Alden. In the early days of the Pilgrims, the corpse was laid away in silence, without prayers of any kind. By 1730 the ceremony of a sermon at the grave had become well established.

Q. What does the federal government do with old records that have no historical value? H. R.

A. The Archivist of the United States is responsible for the appraisal of documents in terms of their value to the government, to scholars and researchers, and other persons. He submits to Congress lists of records which are not worthy of preservation. After Congress approves, these records are destroyed or otherwise disposed of.

P.E. SERVICE IN LONG BEACH TEEN YEARS

The Car That Went to Zapheria

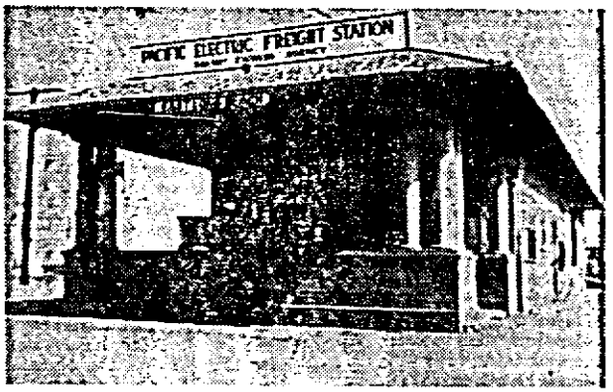

By Mabel V. Hoadley

YOU TAKE the car that goes to Zapheria, but you don't get off at Zapheria. You get off at Serbe Junction."

Two women were planning a day together, and one was telling the other how to reach her home on Orange Avenue. The journey would be made on the red cars which ran from Ocean Boulevard and Pine Avenue by way of East Third Street and Redondo Avenue.

On the outside these cars were bright and shining, and on inside the roomy, restful seats were exactly the right height, with upholstery as good as new. This was in the teen years of the century, for service between old Zapheria and Willows, with stops at Temple, Serbe and Colby Junctions, was not offered in the beginning. Also the name Zapheria was removed from the Pacific Electric station at Obispo and Anaheim and replaced by the name East Long Beach more than 40 years ago.

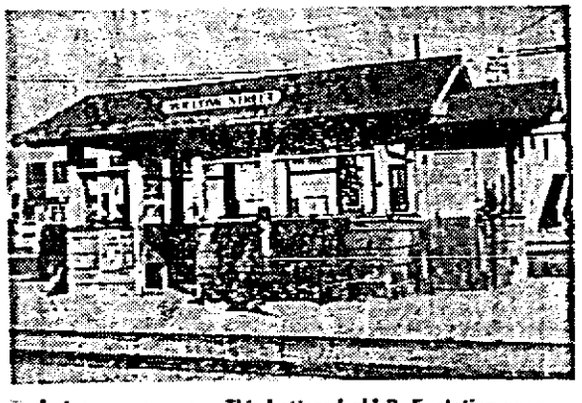

The Pacific Electric Company had a rail line to Newport Beach, and service between Zapheria and Willows was started by way of that line. Another Pacific Electric line branched from Dominguez Junction to Wilmington and San Pedro. Travel by Pacific Electric between Long Beach and these harbor towns was by way of Dominguez Junction. However, Los Angeles annexed Wilmington and San Pedro in 1909, and shortly thereafter the Pacific Electric Co. announced its intention to build the line which old-timers remember as the Long Beach, Wilmington, San Pedro "short-cut." This line was completed and put into service in June 1910.

East Long Beach, reads the sign, but more than 40 years ago the name was Zapheria on this P. E. station board.

THE RAIL LINE for the red electric passenger cars between Los Angeles and Long Beach was finished July 3, 1902. The next day the first trip, beginning at Sixth and Main streets in Los Angeles and ending at Ocean and Pine in Long Beach, was made. All day long trips between the two cities were made to accommodate the crowds of people who wanted to ride on the new red cars. A great celebration of the event was held in Long Beach, and the story is told that when the last red car left for Los Angeles that night, several hundred visitors who had been having such a good time that the hours sped by unnoticed, were left behind. Long Beach was a small town of 4,000 inhabitants then and was unable to provide shelter for such a host of people, many of whom slept on the beach.

The name of the junction station at Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard (then called American Avenue) was changed to Willowville because a northern California town was named Willows. Sometimes freight intended for the northern town found its way to the Long Beach station. When a junction near Compton was named Willowbrook it seemed advisable to give the station a name which would tie it in with the city in which it was situated, so the name NORTH LONG BEACH was chosen. Everything is comparative, however, and when Long Beach grew rapidly and extended far to the north, the name that seemed so appropriate when it was chosen became illogical. Old-timers went back to calling it "Willows," "Willowville," or "the Willow Street Station."

THE NETWORK of Pacific Electric rail lines served Long Beach and its citizens well. It carried passengers into the very heart of Long Beach, as well as to cities and hamlets to the east, west and southeast. From the beginning it was an important channel of traffic, and for many years the only rail service between Long Beach and the outside world.

Many months ago the Pacific Electric line was abandoned. Only the rails remain. Most of the old red cars have been taken to a junk yard on Terminal Island to be cut up for scrap metal. Even the battered old station near Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard is gone. A wrecking crew made short work of reducing it to dust and rubble. But to many who have lived in Long Beach for 40 or 50 years, memories keep alive the past that lies buried underneath today.

They 'Hypo' the Ocean Floor

By Lou Jobst

SCIENCE is putting the principle of the hypodermic syringe to work in submarine drilling to recover laboratory-perfect bottom samples.

The new type coring device is called a "hypodermic harpoon" by its developer, the ocean systems division of the Lockheed-California Co.

The "hypo" corer is a notable advance over present bit drilling methods in that it can remove a 5-foot long ocean floor specimen without disturbing data on structure, compaction and bearing strength. This has been virtually impossible in the past.

Hypodermic needle principle is called into play for sea floor sampling. Men here ready "needle" for dive.

THE DEVICE, designed by marine geologist A. L. Inderbitzen, a graduate of both USC and Stanford, is currently undergoing tests in off-shore deeps.

By providing scientifically accurate information the corer should be a boon to undersea mining surveys and sampling and testing work for underwater construction including off-shore oil drilling installations, ocean radar towers, bridges, piers and breakwaters.

SCIENTIFICALLY it is expected to collect information needed to unlock geological history of the ocean floors.

The nine-foot long corer is equipped with a stainless steel nose, a piston and expendable plastic barrel, weights and cables.

Weighted to 100 to 300 pounds, depending on the type of ocean floor to be penetrated, the corer is sent plunging to the bottom from a ship or any other structure on the surface.

MECHANICALLY triggered by a small "messenger" device that touches the bottom first, the steel-nose corer is driven into the sediment by its own weight. The piston remains stationary while the plastic barrel gathers in the sample.

The core sample is locked in the plastic barrel by a vacuum created by the piston, providing a completely undisturbed sample.

Christmas Is Coming Gently to Mission San Juan Capistrano

Mission San Juan Capistrano has an honored place in California's chain of sanctuaries established by the Franciscans, and here Christmas will come gently again as it has over the long years of church history.

By Vera Williams

CHRISTMAS is coming gently—the way Christmas is supposed to come—to the Old Mission at San Juan Capistrano.

As always, the sign at the gate greets you: "Bienvenidos a la Mission San Juan Capistrano de Quanis-Savit, Founded by the Venerable Fray Junipero Serra on November I, the Feast of All Saints, in the Year of Our Lord 1776 and the 17th Year of the Reign of His Most Catholic Majesty Senor Don Carlos III, King of Spain."

Inside are peace, serenity and the unhurried approach of Christmas. Roses, poinsettias and geraniums are in bloom, and Christmas berries gleam in the green shrubbery.

CLOUDS OF white doves gather as always around the fountain and the pool in the front mission garden. And as always they settle on your head and shoulders and eat from your hands. (There are a few blue ones and you wonder idly who their grandparents were, and what they are doing in the mission garden.)

Bells in the great bell wall or companario ring melodiously, calling the faithful to prayer.

Spanish troubadours stroll through the grounds practicing Christmas music.

Bright-eyed youngsters in the mission school chatter about Las Posadas, the annual Christmas Eve pilgrimage in which children take the part of Mary and Joseph seeking admission to an inn. And they chatter gaily about the pinata, which they will smash with sticks, catching the rain of candy which falls into their hands.

MONSIGNOR Vincent Lloyd-Russell, now in his 12th year as pastor at the mission, and Fathers James Toal and Paul Martin announce Christmas masses from 6 to 11:30 a. m. Confessions will be heard all day before Christmas and until late Christmas Eve.

For the occasion, the altar in Father Serra's Church will be decorated with poinsettias and boughs from the mission gardens.

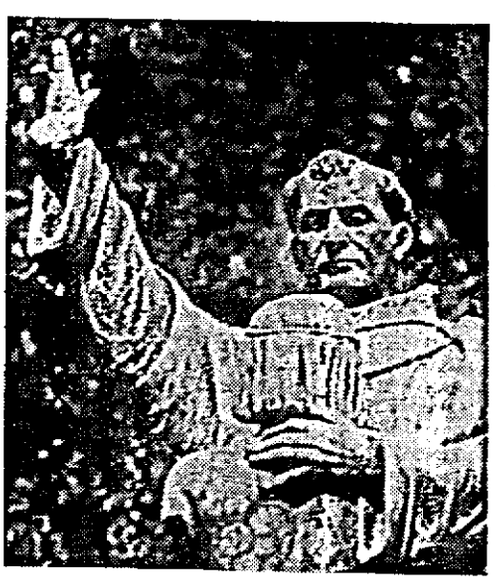

And it IS Father Serra's Church, the only church still standing in which the founder of the Franciscan missions in California officiated—and the oldest building in the state.

Its adobe walls are four feet thick. The structure is long but narrow because when it was built in 1776, only short ceiling beams were available.

Many of the furnishings are originals, older than the church itself. The altar is an early Franciscan baroque of the 17th or 18th century, brought from Barcelona about 1806. The retablo is hand-carved and gold-leafed.

SO FAR AS the public is concerned, Christmas interest in the San Juan Capistrano Mission centers on Las Posadas at 7:30 p. m. Christmas Eve. Children dressed as Mary and Joseph move from door to door of the mission grounds, seeking admission. They are followed by a procession of children in the costumes of shepherds, kings and wise men—and then musicians and the public, because anyone is welcome to join.

At last the main gate is opened, all surge into the mission grounds past a larger-than-life size Nativity scene, and then on to Father Serra's Church for the benediction.

Fray Junipero Serra founded the mission and this statue of him is erected there.

After that, the youngsters hurry into the gymnasium to hit the pinata, a gaily wrapped basket of goodies. When the pinata breaks, candy pours out and the children scramble for it.

The story of the founding of Mission San Juan Capistrano, in Orange County, 42 miles from Long Beach, is one of the most interesting in California history.

THE FIRST ATTEMPT to found the mission was made Oct. 30, 1775, the octave of the feast of San Juan Capistrano, when mass was celebrated in a shelter of boughs by Father Fermin Francisco de Laseum. But rejoicing over the happy beginning was halted by the startling news of an Indian attack on the mother mission in San Diego. The small party hastily buried the mission bells and hurried back to San Diego to take refuge in the Presidio.

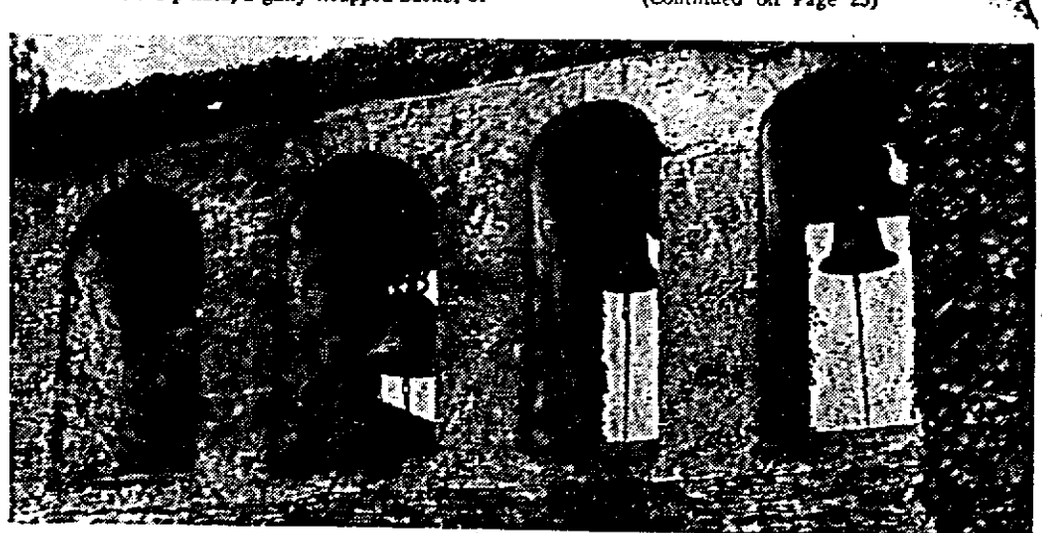

When peace was assured, Father Serra headed the second founding party which arrived at the spot chosen the year before, found the cross still standing. Digging up the bells and hanging them again from a tree, he recited the service. San Juan Capistrano thus became the seventh mission established in the chain of 21 from San Diego to Sonoma.

In another year, the first little church was built. Father Serra returned to it many times for special services.

In 1796 when the little church was outgrown, work was begun on a new stone church. An expert stoneman from Mexico was put in charge of the construction and he incorporated many unusual features. Designed in the form of a cross, three of its seven domes vaulted the transept and a massive bell tower crowned the main entrance.

HERE STOOD the most magnificent church of all the California missions, 90 feet wide and 180 feet long. It was cathedral-like, yet constructed of local stone, mortared with limestone.

Bells in the companario or bell wall at Capistrano call the faithful to prayer during Christmas season, as they have done for generations. Flowers bloom and peace and serenity reign within the mission walls.

California Christmas ... 1846

By Maymie R. Krythe

CHRISTMAS, 1846, the first under American rule, was spent in varying fashion in California. That year was a vital one in the Golden State's history; it was the time of the Bear Flag Revolt and the short-lived California Republic which gave the state its flag. During 1846, Commodore Sloat took over Monterey; both San Diego and Los Angeles gave in to the gringos, and Kit Carson was sent overland to inform President Polk that California was free from Mexican domination.

However, the Californians, angered by Lt. Gillespie's high-handed tactics in Southern California, revolted and the Americans had to go through the process of re-taking Los Angeles, in January 1847. At Christmas time, Americans under Commodore Stockton and Gen. Kearney were marching north from San Diego, while Gen. Fremont and his forces started down from the north to assist in the conquest.

These men were caught in a heavy storm in a difficult pass of the Santa Inez Mountains and spent "what was probably the West's wildest Christmas of that year."

IN HIS DIARY under date of Dec. 25, 1846, Lt. Edwin Bryant wrote of this memorable but unhappy experience. Because of the difficulty of getting the cannon up the slopes, the main body did not reach the summit until noon. When they started down, the storm broke and continued until 2 o'clock the next morning. As the soldiers drove their horses before them, the animals slid down slippery banks; the men had to wade through deep ravines, filled with mud or foaming torrents, where some of the horses were drowned.

That night was unusually dark and the company had to camp on such wet ground that, each time they took a step, men and the animals sank into deep mud. It was impossible to make any campfires as they spread their blankets on the saturated ground; and the officer reported that when he tried to sleep, streams of water ran through the tent and between the bodies of the worn-out soldiers.

Gen. Fremont, in his "Memoirs," left an account of this unhappy experience. Luckily, so he wrote, the next morning the sun came out and the tired forces made their way into Santa Barbara.

THIS SAME holiday season was also a sad one for the ill-fated members of the Donner party, who were snowbound and starving in the Sierra. One man, Peter Breem, wrote in his journal on Dec. 25, 1846.

"Began to snow yesterday, snowed all night; and snows yet rapidly; extremely difficult to find wood; uttered our prayers to God this Christmas Day; the prospect is appalling; but we trust in Him."

On Christmas Eve some of the children recalled the visits that St. Nick had made to their homes, before their families started on that fatal journey across the country. Now these youngsters realized that Santa Claus would not find them "in the pathless depths of snow" in which they were marooned.

One mother, a Mrs. Reed, whose husband was missing, prepared a Christmas breakfast for her children by boiling rawhide. This was called "a pot of glue." However, some time before, she had planned a surprise for the youngsters. When the last ox was killed, she hid the tripe outside the cabin; she also saved a teacupful of beans, a little rice, some dried apples, and a small square of bacon.

If they did manage to live until the holiday, Mrs. Reed wanted to give them a Christmas "feast." When she got this food out of hiding, their "joy and gladness knew no bounds." At their dinner, she cautioned the children to eat slowly; for she knew they faced starvation the following day.

Even though the little family enjoyed the unexpected food, they were saddened by Reed's absence; for they did not know whether he was buried under the snow, or still alive and struggling on to get relief for his snowbound family.

OF THIS SAME Christmas, the Rev. Walter Colton, a Navy chaplain and first American mayor or alcalde of Monterey, has left a detailed account in his book, "The Land of Gold, or Three Years in California."

He was much interested in early California customs, and has given an excellent description of a performance of the old folk play, "Los Pastores" (The Shepherds), at the Mission in Monterey. The theme of the drama is the conflict between right and wrong, with right finally victorious, when El Diablo fails to prevent the shepherds' going to Bethlehem to worship the newborn Christ Child.

Following the church production, the local actors gave the play in various homes, including that of Alcalde Colton. About 50 spectators were present in the hall.

"They brought their own orchestral accompaniment, which consisted entirely of violins and guitars. . . . The dialogue and chant of the shepherds would have awakened their appropriate associations, but for the obtrusions of the hermit, hunter, and devil, who now give much freer scope to their characteristic peculiarities than they did in church."

Rev. Colton did not favor the bits of comedy which the players inserted and declared that they really staged a burlesque. He spoke of seeing the actors on their way on a Sunday to give a performance at the home of Gen. Castro, and said the play was "ill-suited to the sacredness of the Sabbath." He also added:

". . . there is not a truth connected with man's redemption which can derive any force from scenic representation. Every passage in the life of the Redeemer, every act He performed, and every precept He inculcated, are invested with a solemnity, which should exempt them from the attempts of dramatic art. They have a significance and force which transcends the evanescent triumphs of the stage."

Bright little sprites like this chubby rascal await adoption by good parents.

So You Want to Adopt a Baby!

Anglo-Puerto Rican tot is a lively bit of humanity hoping for somebody to love.

By Bob Schmidt

DEPRESSION and World War II have combined to create a unique problem for the nation's adoption agencies.

There aren't enough prospective parents!

Jean Selden, Long Beach district director of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions, explains the problem:

"The birth rate dropped drastically during the 1930s, the depression years, and accelerated greatly during the war years. The result is that there are fewer couples in their 30s—the age when people usually start thinking about adoption—and more in their late teens and early 20s—the age range from which comes the greatest number of adoptable babies."

THE PROBLEM is an uncommon one, Miss Selden points out, because until recently there were so many applications in comparison to the number of babies available that applicants frequently had to wait two or three years before getting their child.

Walter Heath, director of the Los Angeles County agency, points out that only one thing is keeping the problem from being considerably more serious than it already is, and that is the changing attitude toward adoption in this country.

The adoption process begins, usually, with a discouraging report from the family doctor. The couple can't, or shouldn't, have children.

Once, that would have been the end of it. A generation ago, adoptions were comparatively rare. Reasons were many and varied, but sociologists seem to agree that there were four essential factors.

First, couples were reluctant to admit they couldn't have children, and adoption was considered a public admission of the "deficiency."

Second, great importance was placed on family "blood." Heredity was considered to be the key element in the molding of a child's character, with environment not then given the importance it now is. And, of course, one "really didn't know" about the child of unknown parents.

Third, and related to the second, was a rather general belief that children born out of wedlock (then, as now, a major source of adoptable babies) had some sort of moral taint to them.

Fourth, and the reason that adoption agencies themselves have done the most to eliminate, is that there was little legal protection for either the adoptive parent or the child. For despite the fact that the process of adoption was recognized in ancient Roman law, it has only been during the past 100 years or so that legislatures have been paying much attention to it.

There were no adoption laws of any kind in California, for instance, until 1870, and it wasn't until 1923 that legislation was enacted requiring a report on how the child and its new parents were getting along together.

By 1950, 45 of the 48 states had enacted laws requiring an investigation of the prospective parents. It is still possible to get a "quickie" adoption in some states, however, and Miss Selden cited one instance of a couple who took a child to another state, legalized an adoption in a procedure which took all of 15 minutes, then returned to California.

EXPERTS POINT out that loose adoption laws can be harmful to both the child—for example, when couples would adopt a grown child and immediately put it to work—and the parents—as in frequent instances of a couple raising and growing to love a youngster and then losing it via some legal loophole to the natural mother.

There are two general kinds of adoptions. One is the "independent" adoption, which has been the most frequent, and the other is the "agency" adoption, which is probably the more familiar.

An example of an "independent" adoption is the case of a widow or divorcee with children remarrying. Her new husband adopts his wife's children in order for them to carry his name.

With increasing frequency, childless couples are turning to agencies for children. Last year, nearly half of the 3,500 youngsters adopted in Los Angeles County were adopted through the county's one public and six private agencies.

THE OPERATION of the agencies involves a considerable amount of money. When necessary, the agencies assume the cost of the natural mother's lying-in care. The mother is cared for until she is well enough to leave the hospital. The child is cared for in the hospital until it is well enough to leave, and then is placed in a foster home until it is adopted. This stay in a foster home can be of a few weeks duration or a few months, or, possibly, a few years. The expenses are borne by the agency, including, of course, frequent medical checkups.

Meanwhile, possible adoptive parents are being investigated, and this costs money, too. And the family study continues after adoption.

To give you an idea, the oldest of the state's adoption agencies, the Children's Home Society of California, had a budget of $1,353,406 in 1961. Services involving the children, the natural parents, and the adoptive parents cost more than $1 million, with the remainder going for various administrative needs.

First steps in adopting a baby through one of many agencies are a briefing and interview of prospective parents by social worker, as exemplified in this photo. Agencies are finding that there aren't enough parents.

LA REINA RULE — WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of TEDESCO—S. H., Harbor City.

S. H.: TEDESCO interprets as "sons of the German." This informative Italian name is from an old imitative word "tedesco," taken by the Italians from the Middle High German word "Tiutsch" meaning "German or Dutch." The Tedesco family ancestor was undoubetedly from Germany, and settled in northern Italy. The Tedesco coat-of-arms, granted at Verona, is a shield having a human forearm in a red sleeve, holding a blue scythe in the hand, on a silver background for the upperhalf. The lower half of the shield is blue with no emblem.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on WEIRICK and WYRICK—I. W., J. L., Long Beach; J. W., Artesia.

J. W., J. L., J. W.: WEIRICK and WYRICK are the result of spelling distortion of the English surname Warwick meaning "fortress of the true one." The English pronunciation of Warwick is "Warrick." In some sections this was further modified to Wyrick and Weirick. This family were natives of Warwickshire, where the famous cities of Coventry and Birmingham are located. The family shield is blue, emblazoned with three rampant silver lions.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on McCAUSLEN.—Mrs. J., Long Beach.

MRS. J.: McCAUSLEN is traced to the Clan MacCaiselein from Tyrone, northern Ireland. This ancient Gaelic name meant "sons of the curly-headed, powerful one." The family shield is gold, emblazoned with a black, rampant lion holding a crooked sword in its right paw.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze NICOLAI.—Mrs. A. N., Garden Grove.

A. N.: NICOLAI is from the Slavic Nikolai, a Polish and Russian baptismal name that became a surname many centuries ago. The ancestor was christened in honor of St. Nicholas, patron saint of old Russia, whose name meant "victorious army." The Nicolai coat-of-arms, granted in medieval Livonia, is a shield colored gold on the upper half, blue on the lower half, with no emblems on it.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you trace WOODRUFF?—C. W., Bellflower; E.B., Lakewood; A. W., Huntington Beach.

C.W., E.B., A.W.: WOODRUFF is from the Middle English phrase "Wode-refe" meaning "forest guardian." Thirteenth century land owner lists include several ancestors. John Woderove of Oxford and Robert Woderove of Huntingdon. A Woodruff was lord mayor of London in 1579. The family shield is red, emblazoned with three black buck deer heads on a silver chevron across the center.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on STEVENSON and STEPHENSON.—B. S., J. H., I. S., Long Beach.

B.S., J.H., I.S.: STEVENSON and STEPHENSON were interchangeable names in the Middle Ages, taken from an English ancestor baptized Stefan meaning "crowned one." Stefan was used in honor of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Old records list Gilbert "son of Stephan" of Lincolnshire in 1273. The Stephenson shield is red, engraved with three green leopard heads on a diagonal silver stripe. The Stevenson shield from Derby, York and Lincoln has the same design.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on SANFORD and SANDFORD.—N. S., Glendale; A. S., S. S., Long Beach.

N. S., A. S., S. S.: SANDFORD and SANFORD, meaning "dweller at the sandy river ford," are old English names. Ancestors include Ralph de Sandford and Richard de Sanford of Oxfordshire, recorded in the late 1200s. Towns named after these families are in Devon, Berkshire and Shropshire. Thomas de Sandford accompanied William the Conqueror in the 11th century Norman subjugation of England. His coat-of-arms was a shield divided in half by a chevron, the upper half black, the lower half ermine, with two gold boar heads across the top. John Sanford was a Massachusetts resident as early as 1650.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give genealogy on OCHOA.—F. O., Long Beach.

F. O.: OCHOA is traced to the Basque provinces of northwestern Spain. In the prehistoric Basque language Ochoa was a baptismal name translated as "little wolf," symbolic of the wolf's proverbial strength. The Ochoa coat-of-arms has a black, gold-bordered stripe across the center of a silver shield. Above the black band is a blue fleur-de-lis; below the band is a green olive branch.

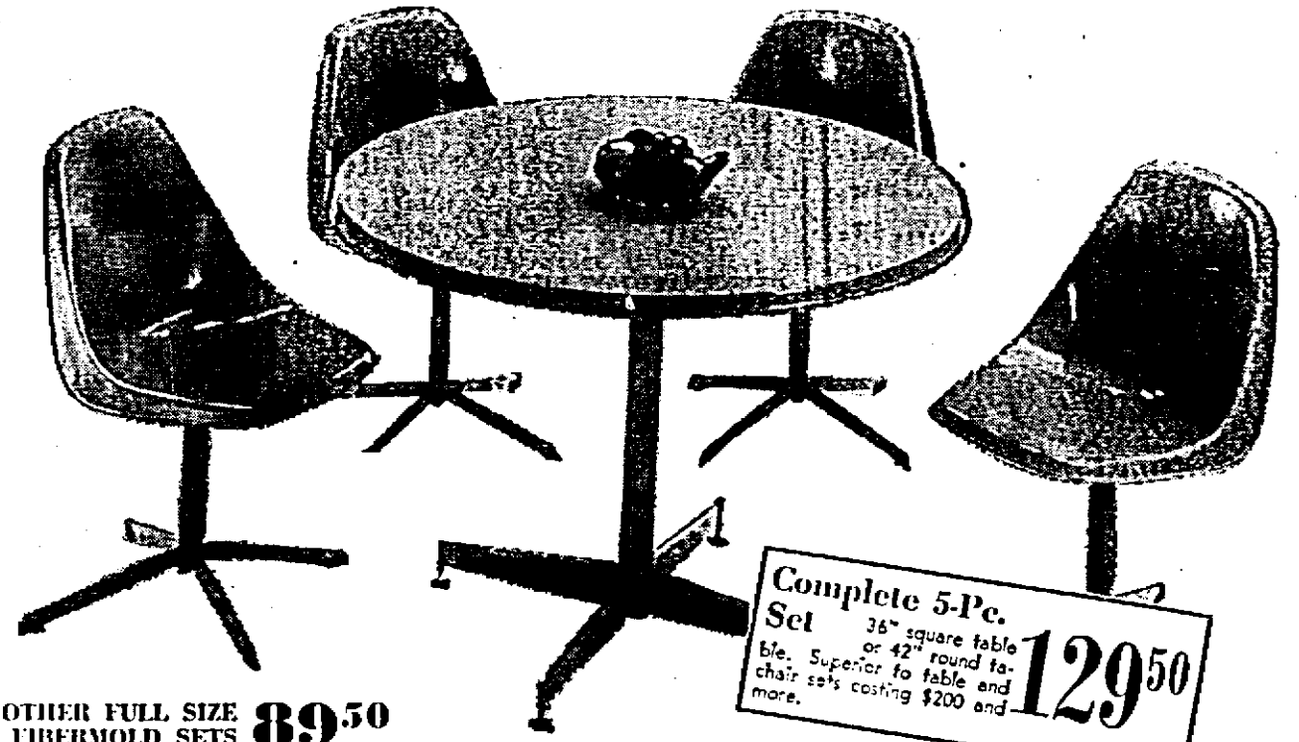

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the history on WATERS and WATTERS.—E. J., Long Beach; D. W., Santa Ana.

E. J., D. W.: WATERS and the variation WATTERS are from the early French "Watier," a form of the given-name Walter meaning "army ruler," a title of prestige. The oldest shield for these families, from about 1377, has three silver swans on a black background.

Extensive use of knotty pine throughout the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Johnson creates an informal, homey theme. Game table (rear) serves for dining and for cards.

With Emphasis on Knotty Pine

By Stella George

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Terry Johnson took over their home at 3865 Greenbrier Road, they set about erasing evidences of the tract house that it was and creating the atmosphere of a custom-built residence. Today, even the exterior has been given an individual charm.

A low, white fence surrounds the property and a winding walkway leads to the front door. Diamond-paned windows have been installed to give the dwelling a new perspective of the world outside.

The entrance hall, one of the structural changes, provides a clue to the charm of the home itself. A small chest, topped with pitcher and basin, faces the front door and indicates that the decor is Early American. One wall in the hall is fitted with a guest closet. Here a knotty pine motif begins.

Carpeting is brown-beige, an excellent complement to the furnishings. A long brown couch, flanked with fruitwood end tables, faces the fireplace in the living room. At one side of the fireplace are twin wing-backed chairs, upholstered to match the drapes; on the other side are a leather chair and hassock, obviously keyed to the comfort of the man of the house.

Trim, white fence, winding walkway and neat landscaping are exterior signs of well-being; a home that's enjoyed.

Family room, as seen from kitchen, presents this warm scene, a bid to relax and be completely at home.

THE WALL surrounding the fireplace is finished in knotty pine and a small, low cupboard holds extra firewood. This is a fireplace that is used, not merely an ornament.

The dining end of the room is uniquely furnished. The Johnsons like to play cards; therefore, they have a fruitwood game table, heavy, substantial and attractive, placed under an overhead light in the room. This serves the dual purpose of a dining table when needed, but makes the area less formal if furnished with a dining set. Nearby, a low chest topped with a bouquet of flowers hides its other purpose: that of a complete bar when opened up.

The knotty pine kitchen opens to a small family room which has its own used-brick fireplace. Beamed ceilings with attractive wallpaper placed between the beams add to the decor of the room. There is plenty of space in one corner for a round table and heavy, curved, fruitwood chairs. A TV is in one corner, with a small sofa facing. Nearby, a former back porch has been transformed into a three-quarter bath, handy for guests.

Large sliding glass doors open to a surprise area of the home: a large enclosed lanai with a waterfall and fishpond at one end. There is ample room here for dancing and entertainment. Furnishings are casual blue patio pieces.

ONE BEDROOM with a lowered, curved ceiling, is done in maple with twin beds and matching chest. The master bedroom has a canopy bed, and is bright and gay with bright red predominating. The third bedroom has been transformed into a small sewing-TV room.

Still Time to Install Carpeting for the Holidays

The Willbanks Story

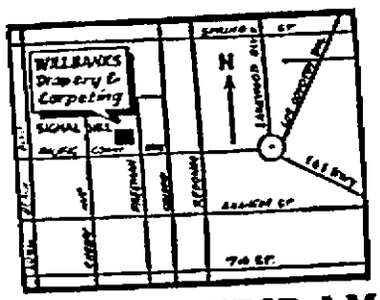

The Willbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark-up in sufficient volume to be profitable.

The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill.

By eliminating high rent and other cost-raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet at less cost.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Detailed plans tell how to build this modern, 3-piece set of couch, glass-top coffee table and armchair.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

WITH JUST a few pieces of wood, a handful of hardware, a pair of foam rubber cushions and an easy-to-follow plans anyone having average ability can build a modern armchair.

Made with arms and legs of redwood, the chair has a light, modern look that belies its strength and durability. To make sure lack of furniture-making experience does not cause trouble, legs are firmly anchored with bolts and metal angle brackets are used to secure the back.

The three-in-one plan also details construction of two other modern pieces: a 72-inch long couch and an attractive coffee table with a drawer section and a glass top.

THE CHAIR has popular low lines. Arms are only 17 inches high, and—without cushion — seat is only 7¾ inches off the floor. Removable seat and back cushions are 20 inches square.

Couch stands 11½ inches high without cushion. The coffee table is 40 inches long, by 22 inches deep. Both couch and table employ ready-made legs which are purchased with brackets that make mounting legs easy.

Handy Space Saver

One of the handiest space-savers you ever saw is this back-of-the-door shelf installation pictured with NBC actress Jewell Lain. It can go in the broom closet, basement, bathroom, pantry, linen closet or on back of a kitchen door. It will hold household supplies of many kinds, and it's handy in a workshop, too. Building the shelf is easy by using a full-sized pattern with detailed directions. Just trace the pattern on wood, cut and assemble. make it taller, wider, smaller, as desired. To order the Shelf Pattern No. 171, send 50 cents with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Natalie Wood plays Gypsy Rose Lee in Mervyn LeRoy's production of "Gypsy" for Warner Bros., a gaudy adventure into the life and times of America's most celebrated striptease artist. Costars are Rosalind Russell and Karl Malden.

Here Comes Gypsy Now

Natalie Wood has grown up! Long one of Hollywood's most able child performers, she now plays the provocative role as the worldly burlesque queen, Gypsy Rose Lee, in "Gypsy," Warner Bros. smashing motion picture musical to be released around Christmas time. Produced in Technicolor-Technirama, the film is based on the long-run stage show which was one of the most successful musical comedies in recent years. There are 14 song hits by Jule Styne and Stephen Sondheim, among them "Everything's Coming Up Roses" and "Let Me Entertain You."

Rewards Spur Study

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associates

QUESTION: Should you reward a child for good work in school?

ANSWER: Yes, but not with money or gifts. In school, virtue should be its own reward, and when properly recognized, it will be enough.

Human beings and animals, alike, respond to rewards by seeking further rewards.

A mouse will learn to find his way through a maze to a reward of food.

Chimpanzees learn how to deposit coins in slot machines to get water and food.

A child's necessities of life are furnished as a matter of course. His reward for good school work must be more subtle, something to raise the spirit and nourish the ego—credit, recognition, praise.

When Johnny brings home a good math paper, tack it up proudly on a wall or a door, as you might a prize-winning painting.

Give him honor for work well done. You'll find him striving to earn it again.

QUESTION: Is there such a thing as "overlearning"?

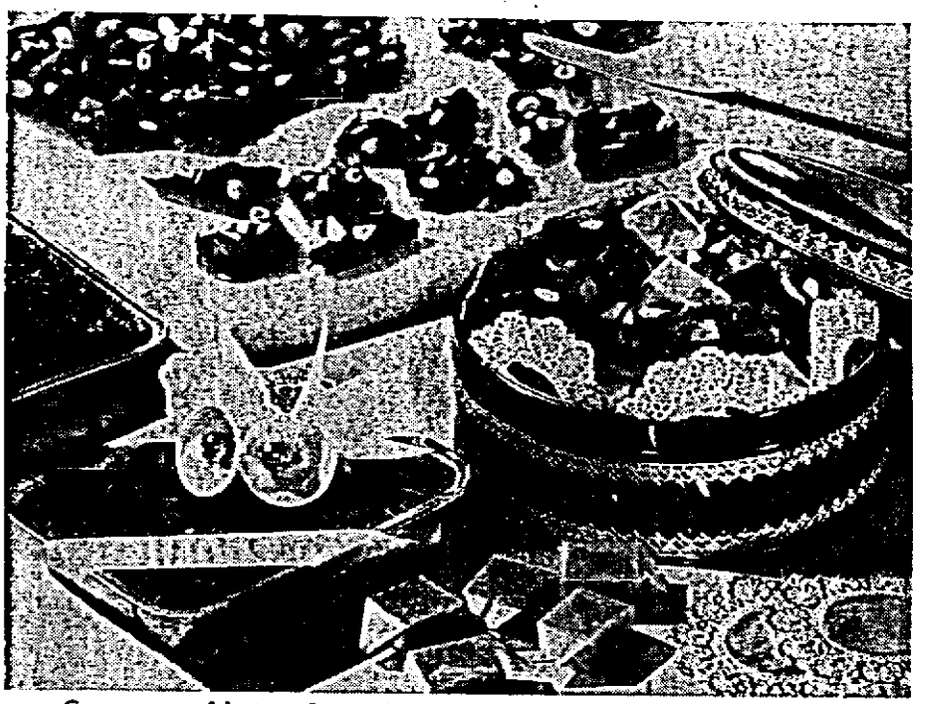

ANSWER: Yes. But "overlearning" does not mean learning in excess. In the educational jargon, "overlearning" means studying a lesson beyond the point where you are able to give a single recitation.

Overlearning is the difference, for example, between learning a word well enough to use it in conversation just once, and learning it so well that it remains in your active vocabulary for the rest of your life.

Overlearning is the difference, very often, between an "A" student and a "C" student.

Homemade Candy: Welcome Gift

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

HOME-MADE candies are a special treat at Christmas time and are always welcome gifts.

Caramels, chocolate fudge and butter almond toffee are candies to make a holiday more enjoyable.

Creamy Caramels

2 cups sugar
Dash of salt
2 cups light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup butter (1 stick)
2 cups half and half or light cream (1 pint)

Combine sugar and corn syrup in large heavy saucepan. Heat to boiling and cook to 245 degrees F., firm ball stage, stirring occasionally. Gradually add butter and cream, so slowly that mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture returns to 245 degrees F. Stirring is important since mixture will scorch easily. Remove from heat; add vanilla and mix well. Pour into buttered 9-inch square baking pan. When cool turn out on waxed paper and cut into ¾ inch squares. Wrap individually in waxed paper. Makes about 2 pounds.

Chocolate Fudge

1¼ cups milk
4 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate
3 cups sugar
2 tblsp. corn syrup
¼ cup butter (½ stick)
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups coarsely chopped nuts

Heat milk and chocolate together in heavy pan over low heat until chocolate melts. Add sugar and corn syrup; stir until sugar dissolves. Wash sugar crystals from sides of pan with damp cloth wrapped around a fork. Cook to 234 degrees F., or soft ball stage, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; add butter and let cool until 110 degrees F. or luke warm, without stirring. Add vanilla and nuts and stir until candy holds its shape and begins to lose its gloss. Pour onto buttered platter or pan. When set cut into squares. Makes about 3 pounds.

Butter Almond Toffee

1 cup chopped roasted ununblanched almonds
1 cup butter (½ pound)
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
2 tblsp. water
½ tsp. soda
3 oz. semi-sweet chocolate, bits or bar

Sprinkle half of the almonds on a buttered 9"x13" pan. Melt butter in a heavy pan; add sugars and water; mix well. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking to 300 degrees F. or hard crack stage. Remove from heat; stir in soda; work fast. Pour carefully over almonds in pan; let cool about 5 minutes. Sprinkle chocolate bits or shaved bar chocolate over toffee; (heat of candy will melt chocolate) spread out evenly. Sprinkle rest of nuts over chocolate and press in lightly. Cool. Break into pieces. Makes about 1½ pounds.

Handful of Yuletide

By Eleanor Avery Price

IT'S ALL very well to select and buy a peppy puppy for Christmas—provided you are willing to love and care for it properly. There may be lots of emergencies that will arrive at any given time, and you will need information to assist you immediately while awaiting veterinarian help. Dogs are like children. They depend on their older humans to keep them safe and well.

So get yourself a "health book." A very good one is First-Aid and Nursing For Your Dog, by F. Andres Edgson, M.R.C.V.S., and Olwen Gwynne-Jones, (Arco, 480 Lexington Ave., N.Y. 17, N.Y. $1.95). First-aid can be harmful unless you are guided, and this book does just that in as comprehensive a way as possible. It also tells you how to care for your dog in a variety of conditions.

While we are on health of your dog, remember that Christmas "snow", tinsel, and similar items can be dangerous to any pet. Do not let them eat such things. Parakeets in particular must be guarded.

WHEN pet-minded for Christmas giving, don't forget that many desirable dogs and cats and sometimes unusual pets are available for adoption at the Animal Shelter, 3001 E. Willow St.; the Humane Society, 2150 Cowles St., and other humane organizations. It is recommended that adopted animals be altered to help prevent the birth of unfortunate creatures that will never have a happy-ever-after.

Dos Passos and WWI Tensions

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

TENSIONS were building. Republicans were accusing the President—a Democrat—of failing to stand up to the aggressors, a Latin revolutionary was harassing the United States in the South.

1962?

No. The 19-teens.

It's the era of John Dos Passos' "MR. WILSON'S WAR" (Doubleday, $6.95).

The title is misleading because the 502-page closely-written volume covers more than the two years of United States participation in World War I. It goes back to the turn of the century when the situations at home and abroad began shaping up, ultimately climaxing in the "war to end war."

Included are fascinating biographies of the great of the era—Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, William Jennings Bryan, William McKinley, Charles Evans Hughes, William G. McAdoo, Charles G. Dawes, John J. Pershing, Robert LaFollette, Col. Edward M. House.

It's proof that Dos Passos is a first-rate non-fiction as well as fiction writer.

THE DARKEST thing about Africa is American ignorance of the continent, claims Ruth T. Plimpton in "OPERATION CROSSROADS AFRICA" (Viking, $3.95) which describes the workings of the organization which takes American and Canadian undergraduates to Africa in their summer vacations to do useful manual labor in the bush with their African student counterparts. It is considered one of the most successful of the many American experiments in international living. Preface is by Adlai E. Stevenson.

PICASSO, master of modern art, has created many book illustrations. Printed in small editions, most of the books are so rare that few collectors are able to acquire them. For the first time, a comprehensive study of this art is made public, 'PICASSO AS A BOOK ARTIST" by Abraham Horodisch (World, $6.50). Thirty half-tones, 40 line drawings and provocative text make this an art find.

"We are living in a dangerous and splendid age in which the end of a world and the beginning of another are locked in a desperate embrace . . . We have, I am convinced, to look back to the Middle Ages if we wish to find another age as dramatic as the one in which we now are living." These words by Fernand Leger, Norman artist, set the tone for "LEGER," biographical and critical study by Robert L. Delevoy (Skira Art Book, distributed by World, $6.75). It was translated from the French by Stuart Gilbert.

"THROUGHOUT a third of the earth's habitable surface forms of government and law which men practice are based on forms of government and law evolved in England before the discovery of the ocean trade routes and the colonization of North America."

In these words, Sir Arthur Bryant, recently knighted by Queen Elizabeth, describes the influence of England in "MAKERS OF ENGLAND" (Doubleday, $5.95). It is the first of a projected three volumes collectively titled "Atlantic Saga."

"Makers of England" begins 8,000 years ago with the island's first inhabitants —"solitary, shambling, unaspiring, sheltering among the rocks of the Cheddar Gorge or Gower peninsula." Swiftly sketching in the traces of these vanished men, Sir Arthur moves on to the first major invasion of Britain, that of Julius Caesar and his Roman legions.

Describing the unique contributions of each successive invader, Sir Arthur tells of the unceasing wave of migrations that brought the Jutes, Angles, Saxons and finally the Normans to the shores of England. "Makers of England" concludes with the close of the 13th century, by which time a nation recognizable as England had risen.

EVERY MARINE and every former Marine, if there be such a person as a "former" Marine, should own a copy of Robert Leckie's latest book, "STRONG MEN ARMED: The United States Marines Against Japan," (Random House, $7.95).

Here is the story of "the long dark night of Guadalcanal and the short hell of Tarawa," the stories of Bougainville, Saipan, Peleliu, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and all the others.

The men are here, including the principal Japanese officers in each action. The name of every Marine winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor is woven into this excellent narrative.

The fear is here. And the courage. The smells and noises are here; the heat, the fatigue, death and the laughter are here.

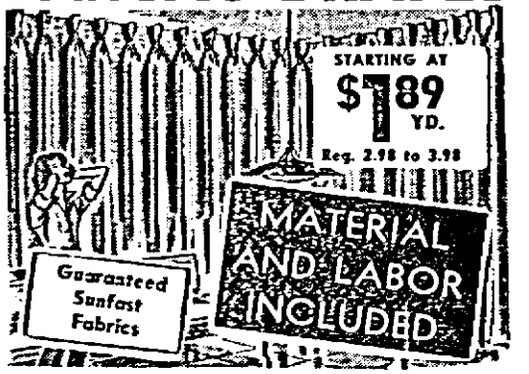

A good part of the Japanese side of the story also is here, from the thousands of yellow-skinned men who fought and died in dozens of Pacific Alamos to the last defender of a stronghold on Guam who, untypically, surrendered and told his captors his commanding officer ordered the position defended "to the last man."

THE "NUCLEUS" of our deer herds, from "THE WORLD OF THE WHITE-TAILED DEER" by Leonard Lee Rue III, with photographs by the author (Lippincott, $4.95).

Dwarf Trees Are Space Savers

Dwarf fruit trees provide the answer for growing fruit in limited spaces. The dwarfs are half the size of normal fruit trees, but they produce heavy crops and the fruit is of standard size.

Another solution for small home gardens is the combination fruit tree—a single tree onto which have been budded two or three varieties of fruit. A typical combination tree might bear plums, peaches, and nectarines on the same rootstock, or three different cherry varieties. These trees are of normal size, but the saving in space is obvious when you consider the variety of fruit which one tree can bear.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Antacid Drug Value Stressed

By Ben Zinser
Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

DIETARY restrictions appear to be of little value in the long-term treatment of peptic ulcer, two San Francisco researchers say.

The important thing is antacid drugs, they contend.

Drs. J. Alfred Rider and Hugo C. Moeller conducted a study among 116 patients attending the Gastrointestinal Clinic of the University of California School of Medicine. The patients had chronic, recurring ulcers.

Half the patients were placed on a restrictive diet and given antacid drugs but were allowed to eat what they wanted.

Finding: No significant difference between the recovery of the two groups.

Antacid drugs were effective when taken frequently, the doctors report in GP, a medical journal for family physicians. Drugs used were a combination of aluminum hydroxide gel and magnesium trisilicate. Antacids neutralize excess acidity in the digestive tract, to permit an ulcer to heal.

The doctors recommend that antacid drugs be taken once every hour throughout the day, if that frequency of medication is possible.

A YOUNG MAN caught in a snowstorm in Northern India was later found in the fields, apparently dead. His entire body was covered with frost. When doctors struck his body with a percussion hammer, it sounded like wood.

A film of ice covered his open, staring eyes. Physicians could detect no breathing, heartbeat or pulse.

Yet they went to work. They warmed up the victim, rubbed him with alcohol. Heart massage and artificial respiration were begun.

After 40 minutes there were signs of breathing. Then—a faint pulse.

Doctors packed hot water bottles around him. Gradually the victim regained consciousness.

Now a year later he is well and able to work. The only complication: Shortly after recovery, doctors had to amputate portions of seven fingers.

The report is in the Indian Journal of Public Health.

PARENTS of children with rheumatoid arthritis should not coddle them, a team of Texas doctors reports. Coddling, they contend, may hamper normal recovery.

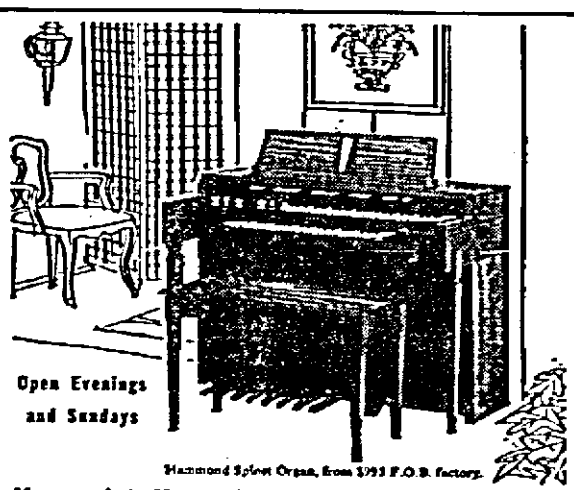

Dr. Earl J. Brewer Jr. and colleagues, after studying 50 young arthritics in Houston, say that parents are the key to success or failure of a home-treatment program.

The doctors say no special privileges should be granted the arthritic children. Regular school attendance is urged—even on days when joints are painful. Arrangements should be made with the school nurse for the child to take his medications at required times.

The researchers made their recommendation at a meeting of the American Congress of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation.

The Camera Goes to the Theater

Comedy magic and a Rolleimagic on manual produced this theater highlight photo that is a prized album item. Tri-X film was used and the exposure was 1/50 at f6.3.

By Irving Desfor

MEMORABLE on life's pleasant side are many of the happy hours the stage has given us in drama, comedy, musical show and concert and it is with regret that we often find some of the best of these times have faded from memory; at least, into fuzzy retrospect.

Photography is an answer to this problem. With color slides we'll have a permanent record of colorful costumes and artistic settings along with a show's personalities and dramatic highlights. Black-and-white pictures can be put into a photo album along with the printed program where they make a ready reference record, easy to find and talk about at any later date.

There are rarely any taboos on picture taking except in some legitimate theaters in some big cities. Even then the regulations which prohibit taking pictures are theatrical union rules intended to regulate the commercial use of the pictures.

TODAY, with high speed films in both color and black and white, it is fairly easy to capture the natural illumination of stage settings. In fact, it would be a mistake to use accessory flash or strobe light because it would tend to destroy the authenticity of the stage lighting or dramatic effect of a spotlight.

High Speed Ektachrome Type B (for artificial light) is the fastest (ASA 125) color film available for both 35mm and 120 roll film cameras. Super Anscochrome Type B is also available in both sizes and is just a bit slower (ASA 100). An exposure of 1/50 at f/4 with High Speed Ektachrome has proved satisfactory on many previous occasions. This can be used as a starting guide because it is almost impossible to take accurate light meter readings from a spectator's seat. A possible exception is the Heiland Pentax Spot Meter which pinpoints an area of only three degrees for a reading, even from a distance.

In black-and-white, Tri-X film, with a speed of ASA 400, has proved very effective in capturing available light stage action with exposures of 1/100 at f/5.6. Super-Hypan film, though rated at ASA 500, is a bit slower than Tri-X in actual use, I've found. Royal-X pan film is the fastest roll film available (ASA 1600) but it fogs easily and is limited to the developer recommended by the manufacturer for best results.

MANY private organizations are glad to have their shows photographed and may possibly arrange front row seats for the purpose. In other cases, a seat in the center of the first row balcony or mezzanine of a theater offers many advantages.

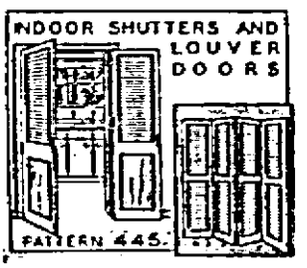

If your seat is not near the stage, it's an advantage to use a 35mm camera with interchangable lenses. Telephoto lenses will fill the frame fully or get close-ups. The normal 50mm or a wide-angle lens will show the complete stage setting.

TRAVEL REPORT

Around the World

By Aline and Bob Vosler

YOU SEE the ships pull in and out of Long Beach Harbor. Occasionally you meet a friend who arrives on one. Then comes the time you sail out of the same harbor on a trip of your own.

The trip you've been waiting for—years, perhaps. That trip around the world.

The SS Chusan of the P & O Orient Lines was on its way to London, via the Orient, the night we boarded her and began the great adventure. Sailing at midnight seems to give a special magic to sailing, too. Surely Long Beach looked beautiful in the moonlight, with the lights fading as we steamed out of the breakwater and headed toward the open sea.

Life at sea settles down fast. The ship's a tight little world of its own. Inside a day or two you're concerned by the weather, the mileage, because you've a small wager in the daily ship's pool. You look at the maps and charts on the promenade dock and wonder if you'll really hit all those ports.

The Chusan is a happy ship. Not one of company's largest nor newest, it's nonetheless giving us one of the best cruises we've ever had. As this is a British ship, most of the stewards are British or Australian. Some of the waiters are English; some are from Goa. A few months ago, when they sailed, they were citizens of Portugal. Now they are Indians, due to a political move. Rugged, strong and fearless "Laskars" work on the decks, climb spars and certainly add color. They wear blue demins and red turbans and come from a province of India.

Passengers are a scattered lot, and change from port to port. As we started out, there was a generous sprinkling of Canadians who had boarded at Vancouver; many Californians, some of whom boarded at San Francisco and others who came on at Long Beach. We've now picked up a handsome sprinkling of Indians, Japanese, Filipinos, Chinese, and from Hong Kong on, many British again, with their families, on leave and en route to England for a holiday.

We spotted some passengers from Orange County—Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Esse of Anaheim, Miss Grace H. Hanson of Anaheim and Mrs. Avah N. Fosbury from Garden Grove.

PORTS of call are right out of some of the most colorful sections of the world: we've dined on the beach at Waikiki; joined the traffic at Tokyo; visited shrines at Kobe in Japan; shopped our way through Hong Kong; been enchanted by Manila's reconstruction since World War II; visited Singapore and seen a Sultan's palace in Johore; been enchanted by the lush beauty of Malaya, especially in the Island of Penang; become dizzy with the beauty of Ceylon; thrilled to the harbor of Bombay and the city beyond; seen a genuine camel market on the edge of the great desert in Arabia, and are even now on our way to Suez, where we'll leave the ship long enough for a quick trip to Cairo and a glimpse at the Pyramids before steaming into Naples and ultimately right up the Thames River into London.

It's all just like the folder said—that great, big, wide, wonderful world is all here, and as thrilling as we thought that night we sailed out of Long Beach.

Funny thing, though.

We thought we were taking this trip to get our eyes full.

We're just getting them opened—to how much more there is to see.

We want to sail out of that harbor again.

No Chimneys!

Reykjavik, thriving capital of Iceland, is a town without a chimney! Actually, visitors to this city of more than 70,000 persons will see chimneys, but these were built many years ago and are now inoperative.

The winter climate of Iceland is somewhat similar to that of New York although not as cold, and heating is needed throughout the long winter—but Icelanders have done away with fumes, smokestacks and air pollution by using natural hot water springs to heat their entire capital city.

Even new skyscraper apartment dwellings will be heated by natural thermal water, which is kept under pressure and piped to buildings to provide both heat and hot water. The hot water is "soft," and is perfect for bathing and washing—it also saves on fuel bills!

New Travel Shop

Because so many of her patrons constantly are inquiring about the proper attire for cruise or resort wear, and packing and coordinating their wardrobes, Rita Dugan has opened Traveline Fashions—a shop offering fashions for "around the clock and around the world"—next door to her Belmont Shore Travel, at 188 Park Ave.

Miss Dugan's unique new shop also offers such items as luggage, travel clocks, travel irons, bon voyage gifts, jewelry and accessories in addition to travel attire.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"What medicine did you prescribe for the stomach problems I understand are prevalent in Mexico?"

I DON'T prescribe anything—in print. Around the house I keep "The Ship's Medicine Chest at Sea"—U.S. Public Health Service. And am a great amateur prescriber for everybody. But not in print. I think there's a law or an AMA resolution against it.

What I said was the Mexican doctors in the fashionable tourist hotels used to give us entero-vioform—a non-prescription pill, made mainly of iodine I understand.

The Mexico City correspondents' club got mad at the Ciba (entero-vioform) press agent. Now the medics seem to be pushing something called Neotracina—also non-prescription at Sanborn's drug stores.

I think this is a press agents' battle. Both did OK for me.

Health in Mexico is a big tourist item of conversation. Couple of things you can be sure: There is a splash of typhoid. You should have shots. You have to have a smallpox vaccination within the last three years to get back into the United States.

There is a country-wide cleanup on malaria-carrying mosquitoes. But a friend of mine got it at the Acapulco airport a year ago. Your doctor will give you an anti-malaria pill.

I AVOID any water but bottled water — there's a big jug of "agua purificada" on every hotel floor. Get the maid to change the water in the jug in your room. It probably hasn't been changed since the last occupant.

Generally, I lay off fruits or vegetables I don't peel myself. A Swiss Army pocket knife with those many, many blades is invaluable in Mexico. You can repair door hinges with it too.

About a million Americans go into Mexico each year. They all come out alive.

It's the most fascinating — endlessly fascinating country to me. From fireplace mountain country to banana tropics in an hour.

If you want a digest of columns I've written on Mexico, send a self-addressed and stamped envelope. If you want specific prices, ask for that.

". . . about driving into Mexico?"

It's the way I like to go. (And the airlines will hate me for saying so.)

Just be careful about driving at night. They don't mark road obstacles with flaring lights.

Little-Known Spots Go on Travel Itineraries

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

IN VIENNA'S suburban villages of Nussdorf and Grinzing and surrounding areas, there are some 1,900 vineyards, some no bigger than a home vegetable plot. No matter, every farmer here fancies himself a vintner and innkeeper to boot.

For more than half a century it has been the custom for these growers, whenever they had a batch of new wine on hand, to clear out the front rooms of their homes, install homemade tables and chairs, hang some heirloom decorations, hire a few of the local boys who could play the squeeze-box and violin and perhaps stammer out a few lyrics, and go into the pub business.

Chaos-on-the-Danube ensued, with everybody and his brother selling wine whenever he felt like it. A few obtained permanent licenses. For the rest the government legalized the informal practice—known as Heurigen—by permitting each entrepreneur to operate for three weeks at a time once or twice a year.

THE DOZENS of taverns in old stone buildings are all alike, and all different. Many, like Karl Trumler's, are set in gardens. Here there is a wine press in the back room, and strolling musicians pour forth their melodies.

At Poldi Kurtz the carved fronts of wine barrels are wall plaques. Best of all, there is a three-piece ensemble of accordion, piano and violin that drips a brand of Vienna schmaltz rarely heard elsewhere.

Elsewhere Karl Harlass' famous "Third Man" zither or a gypsy zimbalo may provide the music, and a voiceless accordion player—likely the local choirmaster — may bark out the lyrics a la Rex Harrison.

But the effect is always the same — timeless, sentimental, pure Viennese, and what the heck, let's have another glass of wine even if we do hate ourselves in the morning.

WE DROVE eastward the next morning through the rolling farmlands of eastern Austria, past the Russian cemetery where red stars instead of crosses decorate the graves.

Sport-gliders swooped silently like gulls above the ruins of a hilltop castle. We passed through towns entered via massive medieval gates, some still equipped with portcullises. In the Alpine fashion, house fronts are painted with picture stories.

The hills are terraced at odd angles and striped with the colors of autumn. Apples from the trees lining the road crunched under our tires.

In a village we passed a solemn funeral procession led, traditionally, by the local firemen wearing their war decorations.

We passed through Bad Deutsch-Altenburg, once Carnuntum. The ruins of an 8,000-seat Roman amphitheater still stand. This was the easternmost of Roman European settlements. They went no farther because beyond, in the Carpathian Mountains, dwelt Goths and Vandals./

They still do. Just out of sight lies the Danube, bordered on the Czech side with barbed wire instead of trees. Ahead of us, the lovely Castle of Bratislava in Pressburg, almost within reach, the Iron Curtain falls across the road and brings an effective end to a Westerner's casual tour.

Beyond are watchtowers, mine fields and other impedimenta of tyranny, effectively preventing tourism from the other direction.

CATERING to the traveler's wishes to get off the beaten path, airline and steamship companies are putting many more inviting spots—once all but unknown to globe-trotters — on their itineraries.

This is a definite indication that regular travelers, having visited such places as Europe, the Near East, Asia — and such way spots as Mexico and Hawaii—are constantly inquiring about how to get to stranger lands, see strange people and study their way of life.

All of this, of course, has developed because Americans have more money and more leisure time for travel, and because the big jets have shrunk the globe, making it possible for them to journey great distances in a short period of time.

FOR INSTANCE, Alitalia Airlines has arranged a "Shangri-La Discovery" jaunt of 41 days which takes travelers via DC8 jet from New York to Rome and Nairobi, Kenya, to see the sights in east Africa before boarding ship for a short voyage to Port Victoria, Mahe, Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean—reputed to be among the least visited yet among the most beautiful and exotic islands on earth.

Ethiopia, another interesting African area, also is being opened for tourists with the recent inauguration of the new Bole International Airport at Addis Ababa. This heretofore almost inaccessible (for two, three and four-week travelers) is now only a few hours from such European cities as Frankfort and Madrid via Ethiopian Airlines.

In the Near East, historic Jordan's only seaport, the modern Port of Aqaba on the Red Sea is being "discovered" by tourists. The port has just been extensively improved and a new tourist hotel is part of the city's development as a model city.

Pan American World Airways has opened more interesting South American spots. Pan Am's Clipper flights to Brasilia, the new capital of Brazil, now continue 2,000 miles across jungle and rivers to the port of Belem where adventurous globe-trotters may continue on safaris through the virgin jungle of the Amazon River basin in the heart of Brazil.

Pan Am also inaugurates new weekly flights between New York and Montevideo, Uruguay, this week—a 14-hour junket including stops at Caracas and Rio de Janeiro.

THE POSSIBILITIES go on and on. Scandinavian Airlines System and THAI Coronado 990 jets now link such centuries-old Malayan cities as Kuala Lampur and Malacca, and the strange world that is the island of Penang, with major cities of Europe and the Far East.

The South Pacific, fast becoming the hottest spot in travel, is expected to become even more popular with more sea and air transportation available. Matson's cruise ships, the SS Mariposa and SS Monterey, are calling every three weeks at Pago Pago, Samoa, and a $4½ million landing field has just been completed at Tutuila, largest of the seven American Samoan islands. The Tutuila islanders now are attempting to raise $1 for a modern hotel.

You can make book that 1963 travel possibilities will be the most inviting in history.

NEW SIGHT-SEEING tours from spots already on the travel map will make easier-to-reach destinations more inviting. One example is a side trip—until recently unheard of—through the famous Alaska-Juneau gold mine for visitors to our 49th state. This is advertised as a never-to-be-forgotten junket, with visitors traveling all the way through towering Mt. Roberts and coming out on the other side for one of Alaska's most spectacular views.

RAY SILVIUS, former aviation editor of The Arizona Republic in Phoenix, has been appointed director of public relations for Western Air Lines with headquarters in Los Angeles. In making the appointment, Arthur F. Kelly, vice president-sales, said Silvius will be responsible for public relations activities throughout the company's system, including press relations, employe communications and shareholder publications.

By E. J. Leslie

ANYONE harassed by budget problems may consider spreading his bedroll on the soft desert sand beside a maguey (Agave Americana, Mexican aloe, century plant) and forget about the vanishing American dollar. If a man will provide the elbow grease, the maguey will supply all his basic needs except meat, and for that he can slingshot a rabbit.

Food, drink, soap, medicine and dressings, paper, pins, clothing, needles and thread, cordage, woven sandals, roofing, baskets, brushes, mats and sleeping pads, hammocks, saddle blankets, waterproof fiber dishes, cattle fodder in times of drought and an impervious corral are all available in the miraculous maguey (Amaryllidaceae).

Long before the Spanish conquistadores stumbled on the rich Aztec empire and blood-bathed it in their lust for gold and glory, slave girls were cleaning house and shampooing Aztec ladies with soap (amole) produced from the roots of the maguey which grew profusely on the plateaux of Mexico and is now common in the American Southwest.

AMOLE WAS USED for snake bite, vermin extermination, body rashes, religious rites, washing the dog and catching fish. Soaproot rubbed on rocks in fast water foamed and choked the fish which rose to the surface of the river.

Possibly an Aztec youth picture-wrote his mash notes on paper made from the macerated leaves of maguey, rolling them on a stick and tying them with a cochineal-dyed ribbon before entrusting them for delivery to a servant in a tunic of nequen, a coarse, maguey-fiber cloth. Nequen tunics were also worn as a gesture of humility by young princes attending priest's lectures.

Legends, records and historical data were contained in the volumes that fed the bonfires of the conquerors. Rolls, reams and blank volumes of paper (fan-folded like some modern postcards) with thin, decorated wood covers, were bartered in the market places, and used as tax tribute.

AZTEC COOKS served baked maguey roots with their turkey dinners, agave buds baked to a candied-yam consistency, and cornmeal muffins, cakes, wafers and chocolate sweetened with agavose, a rare sugar obtained by evaporation of the maguey sap. After dinner, the older men lingered over their octli (pulque) as they bragged about their conquests and concubines.

When the maguey is disbudded, it dies slowly but the sap continues to flow into the scooped-out cavity in the center of the broad, overlapping, gray-green leaves. One plant could supply 2,000 pounds of sap which was sucked out with slender gourds and stored in skin bags. When allowed to ferment for 10 days, it produced the madre pulque, a thick, ropy, sour-milky substance which, when added to the sweet sap (agua-miel), stepped up fermentation to two days instead of ten. The pulque industry in Mexico is a major source of governmental revenue.

The Indians baked the roots and buds in primitive stone ovens in the ground wherever they found an agave grove. Since, by disbudding, the plant seldom came to bloom, it is said to flower every 100 years (century plant), though it could bloom in eight if undisturbed. A panicle of tubular, yellow flowers rises on a 40-foot scape basally up to one foot thick, straight and rigid, from a rosette of fleshy, spine-tipped, lanceolate spine-tipped, lanceolate leaves leaves which are armed with marginal prickles.

Sweet Peas: No Stakes

Bijou is a new, bush-type sweet pea that grows only 12 inches tall and is suited for window boxes, beds and borders. No staking is required to hold up the plants. Stems long enough for cutting are topped with sprays of 3 or 4 large, ruffled and fragrant flowers. Colors include white, salmon, pink, rose, scarlet, mauve and blue. Separate colors of the Bijou, a Burpee development, won 15 awards from the Scottish National Sweet Pea Society and the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain.

Let Tulips Say When It's Spring

By Joe Littlefield

TIME WAS when a single tulip bulb was worth more than $50 and one specific variety was bartered for merchandise worth in excess of $1,200. That was during Holland's tulip craze from 1634 to 1637.

Today, any gardener can have a dozen fine tulip bulbs for approximately $1.50.

You're missing a good garden bet if you don't plant tulips for lots of spring color. Plant them six to eight inches deep, in groups. There are several types, and they don't all bloom at one time. Some bloom earlier, others several weeks later, and others still later on. Check with your local nurseryman to be sure you keep the different groups separated. Work some bone meal into the soil at planting time.

AS SOON AS bulb growth pops through the soil, water plants well and don't let them get too dry.

Finish planting daffodils, Dutch hyacinths, Dutch Iris, and lilies, as well as any other bulbs available, because most of them are long term investments in yearly returns of spring flowers.

Bulb hobbyists fertilize bulbs with a balanced plant food that contains less nitrogen than phosphorus, during their peak of bloom. Bulbs store the food for next year's growth and lovely flowers.

You'll help iris furnish better blossoms and richer colors by feeding them twice throughout the winter, with a balanced plant food containing less nitrogen than phosphoric acid.

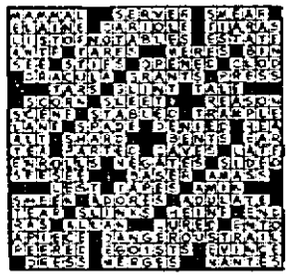

IRIS that should have been divided a year or two ago, whose rhizomes (thick root stocks) have almost pushed themselves up out of the ground should be mulched with manure now. Be sure the soil is moist first. Half fill a one-pound coffee can with bone meal and scatter over a 50-square-foot iris bed, lightly scratch the fertilizer into the soil, and spread one-half inch of cured steer manure over the area. Soak well. Keep moist several days, then water as needed.

Use a balanced fertilizer for the plants in February. You'll be pleased with the results. Be sure to dig up these iris in July, separate and throw away the old knobby plants, reset the young ones.

One of the pests are aphids that get into the fold area of leaves near the rhizomes where insecticide sprays are ineffective. You'll get more effective control by adding some oil emulsion to the spray to act as a carrier with the insecticide. Put it in a watering can filled with warm water, then pour over the iris plants and also the premoistened soil around the plants. I've done this and found it gives good control. Even better if the insecticide spray has one of the chemicals that has a strong fuming odor that seems to last overnight.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

Most of the work was done by Indians, who carried the stones from the canyon of Mission Vieja, six miles away. Carretas brought the boulders, large stones were dragged by chains, and smaller ones were carried by the neophytes. Even women and children carried stones in nets on their backs. For endless days they formed two lines to the rock-filled creek beds, going empty-handed, and coming back laden.

When the church was finished, a big celebration took place, a two-day fiesta, the largest in the early days of California. Dignitaries came, dressed in black and gold. Soldiers wore bright red uniforms. Indians wore tribal costumes, red bands around their heads.

This most elaborate and beautiful of all the mission churches, completed in 1806 after nine years of labor, stood only six years. On Sunday morning, Dec. 12, 1812, during a special mass, a heavy rumbling and rolling of the land preceded a splitting of the domes, then a great crash. The heavy tower shattered and stones and mortar fell on the kneeling congregation, crushing 40 worshipers.

IT WAS UNTHINKABLE to raise the elaborate structure again. The tired padres moved back to Father Serra's Church.

In 1813, the four bells which had hung in the stone church, were moved to the companario. They are dated 1796 and 1804 and inscribed with descriptive legends such as "Hail Mary, most pure, Ruelas made me and I am called St. John, 1796."

At San Juan Capistrano Mission, you visit Father Serra's Church and the remains of the old stone church; you marvel at brocaded vestments that came from the original church; you stop at the Indian cemetery; you walk through the rooms where the Indians lived and worked, you see ruins of tallow vats, a smelter, an olive and grain crusher, all used in the early mission days. You note erosion of time and weather on the old columns and holes in the pavement caused by the dripping of rain for close to two centuries.

YOU LOOK at the eaves, where the swallows made their mud nests. Mission padres say as long as the memory of man, they have returned on each St. Joseph's Day, March 19, and they disappear to the southward in September. No one knows where they go, but they do a good job of housekeeping and raising families while they are at Capistrano.

On your way out, you buy more feed for the pigeons. You make sure that the blue ones get some, too, because they must feel like outsiders in that cloud of white.

You pass through the outward gate, and Christmas or any time, you look back for the old Spanish farewell: "Vaya con Dios" (Go with God.)

Dorothy Digs

I wonder if there is anyone who doesn't know that roses SHOULD NOT BE PRUNED IN DECEMBER.

Nearly every year I give this warning but it seems to be one of the erroneous practices that people cling to.

Rose growers all over the country definitely agree that roses should not be pruned until the first touch of spring starts the sap flowing in the roses, or until the swelling of the buds becomes visible. By that time you have a greater selection of the best buds to retain in order to promote new growth, and by that time there is little danger of your pruning operation being followed by a heavy frost.

In various sections of the country, a different method of pruning is followed; also, different classes of roses must be considered individually when pruned; therefore, if you intend to prune your roses yourself, my advice is to take advantage of all the pruning exhibitions given in your locality.

Safety factor of a seat belt is lost unless belt is fastened. New device makes sure it's secured.

Seat Belt Reminder

HAVE YOU remembered to fasten your seat belt? A Long Beach firm is manufacturing an ingenious device which makes it impossible to start your car until your seat belt has been fastened securely.

The device, covered by U. S. patent pending, and When the seat belt is tightened, the pressure trips a called the Stay-Safe Reminder, is remarkably simple: safety mechanism inside the Reminder which, in turn, "unlocks" the car's starter solenoid.

Unless the seat belt is snugly fastened, as it should be for maximum safety, the car cannot be started, say the manufacturers, the Caravan Mfg. Co., Inc., 1363 Oregon Ave., Long Beach 13.

However, after the auto is started, the Reminder will not interfere with the operation of the car, engine or accessories. Attractively chrome plated, the Stay-Safe Reminder ($4.95) is a smart addition to a seat belt and can be installed by a service station attendant in 10 minutes.

So You Want to Adopt a Baby!

Steps in adopting a child:

FIRST OF ALL, call one of the seven agencies in Los Angeles County or four in Orange County. The phone book or your church can provide you with a phone number, but to start you off, the Los Angeles County office in Long Beach can be reached by telephone at HE 7-0851. The Children's Home Society number in Long Beach is HE 5-2463, and in Orange County, KI 2-3997.

You'll be invited to attend a briefing session along with other interested couples, and the adoption procedure will be outlined. If you're still interested, you make formal application. The agencies have standard fees, but they're usually flexible and can be adjusted to your ability to pay. The main thing, you'll be told, is to find a good home for the children they have.

Your doctor will be asked to submit a report on your health. Your friends will be asked for the customary character reference. You will be asked to show that you have a steady income.

Your physical attributes and education background will be noted, because the agency will try to find for you a child whose natural parents come as close to you in those factors as possible.

AFTER you've been approved as adoptive parents, there will be a waiting period while the agency tries to find a child its experience indicates will be the right one for you.

While you're waiting, you'll probably be trying to assure yourself that when the baby finally arrives you'll love it just as if it were truly yours.

And when the child finally does arrive, daddy will be proud and mommy will be nervous.

Just like parents everywhere.

AL HENDLIN
Pampered Prime Rib

MRS. MARY PREEN definitely knows what a piece of pampered prime rib should taste like.

And, Mrs. Preen — who lives in Long Beach and who happens to be actor John Wayne's mother — knows a place where a 10-ounce slice of delectable prime rib is served on Sundays and Mondays for $2.35.

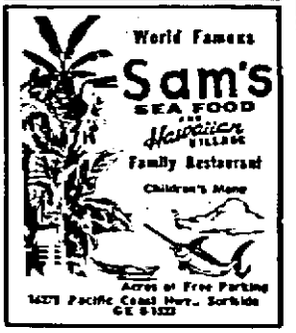

As a result she and her husband, Sydney, visit Al Hendlin's beautiful Coral Room, 4130 Paramount Blvd., at least every other week and sometimes as often as twice a week. The prime rib, served Sundays from 3:30 p.m. on, and also Monday nights, is offered chuck-wagon style. On their first trip to the buffet, the guests load their plates with 10 fresh salads. On their next trip they receive a fresh plate, the prime rib, and their choice of au gratin or mashed potatoes, or rice, and bread and butter.

When she and her husband visit the Coral Room in mid-week, Mrs. Preen tries some of the other specialities which chef George Wise prepares with tender care. These include filet mignon ($3.50), wrapped in bacon and broiled; fancy disjointed southern fried chicken $2.50); thick, hickory-cured ham steak ($2.75); splendid barbecued spare ribs with pineapple ($2.75), and such sea food treats as Nantucket Bay scallops and broiled fresh halibut steak, both $2.25. All include chilled appetizers (kosher pickles, carrot slivers, celery and olives), huge, fine salad; baked potato, bread and beverage.

Hendlin recently redecorated his banquet room in smart white, golds and yellows, added handsome chandeliers, a mural and a teakwood floor. Seating 65, it is available for banquets and parties.

UPGRADE PETTY OFFICER

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Name Jackie Cooper Lieutenant Commander

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Cooper has traded his television make-believe Navy officer's stripes for a real life commission as a reserve lieutenant commander.

The one-time child star who grew up to be a television producer, director and actor held that rank when he played a Navy doctor in the "Hennesey" series.

During World War II, Jackie was in a Navy band that toured Pacific Ocean island bases entertaining servicemen. He was discharged from the Navy as a second class petty officer.

While filming "Hennesey," Cooper's interest in the Navy took him to military bases and schools drumming up interest for the service. The Navy recently honored him with its Distinguished Public Service Award.

* * * *

COOPER, now a producer and actor at Four Star Television, said he kept working on Navy programs after "Hennesey" went out of production.

"When we started on that show we asked the Navy for favors and they would ask me to do things," he said. "So we would shoot promotion films for recruiting drives and we also made radio tapes.

"I made all the things I could afford to and during the summer I'd go to Navy bases, not so much for entertaining but for talking."

Cooper also worked with the Navy League, a civilian organization interested in naval activities.

"The Navy called and asked me if I would produce, direct and appear in a show about modern sea power for the Navy League convention in Chicago," Cooper said. "My associate producer, two Navy captains and I wrote this presentation. It was a 90-minute show."

* * * *

NAVY OFFICERS became interested in Cooper's work and asked him to consider telling the fleet's story to high school and university students.

"When they asked me to start speaking to young people I said it would make more sense to do it in uniform," Jackie explained.

Cooper was then commissioned a lieutenant commander in the reserve. He'll have two weeks of active duty time to serve each year plus speaking engagements.

"My commission is what they call a restricted line officer category, a public information officer," Jackie said. "I'm in advertising and sales for the Navy.

"My going to sea for two weeks each year won't do the Navy any good. But I could do some good as a public information officer. For instance, I'm going to England soon on television business. I can do something for the Navy over there."

* * * *

COOPER'S desire to help the Navy increased when he came in contact with national defense planners in Washington, D.C.

"During 'Hennesey' I used to visit the Pentagon once or twice a year and I'd see dedicated people working to protect their country," he said. "The spirit of these guys rubs off. They have trouble getting money to tell their story. It's easy for someone like me to help them."

Cooper considers his Navy service as more important than working for a political party, something many Hollywood stars do.

"I take greater satisfaction doing something for the Navy than I would stumping for a politician," he said. "I don't agree with actors participating in political campaigns. A guy shouldn't win votes because he has a greater influence with movie stars than his opponent.

"Over 90 per cent of the actors represent a big company or sponsor. An actor is indirectly affecting that sponsor's sales and, therefore, employment. If a sponsor is a Democrat and the actor is stumping for a Republican, that puts a Republican reflection on the sponsor. And if most of the sponsor's buyers are Democrats that affects sales."

Moore to Coast

Garry Moore is going to work his two CBS network shows from the West Coast for a period beginning the last week of February.

"I've Got A Secret" and "The Garry Moore Show" will come from Lake Tahoe, Calif., on Feb. 25 and 26, respectively.

The shows will come from Hollywood on March 4, 5, 11 and 12.

Dickens 'Christmas Carol' Animated With Music

(Editor's Note: Television's first animated cartoon version of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" airs 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on channel 4 in COLOR. The voice of Jim Backus, in the video presence of Mr. Magoo, will be that of Christmas-hater Scrooge. Augmenting the production, which faithfully follows Dickens' version, will be original music penned by Jule Styne.)

JULE STYNE
Music for Scrooge

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Whitman heard America singing, he said. But that was in the last century.

Nowadays, and in another context, if you hear an American singing—or humming, or whistling—it's most likely to be a popular song of the day. And there's a very good chance that the melody will be one of the more than 500 written during the last two decades by a dapper little gent named Jule Styne.

Many of his songs are standards, many have topped the hit parade, and his scores for motion pictures, Broadway musicals and the ballet have been freighted with honors.

His pop tunes started with "I Don't Want to Walk Without You, Baby," and ranged through "I've Heard That Song Before," "I'll Walk Alone," "Three Coins in the Fountain," "Five Minutes More," "Let It Snow," and on and on and on through such as "Bye Bye Baby," "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend," "Captain Hook's Waltz," and into "Just In Time," "The Party's Over," and "Everything's Coming Up Roses."

• • • •

THE MAN hopped into show business from a box seat at the age of three. His parents had taken him to a London music hall. On-stage the great Sir Harry Lauder was singing "I Love a Lassie." At Jule's tender age, it seemed reasonable to join him. So he leaped to the stage and did. Thereafter, he did his Scottish-burr imitations of Sir Harry on the sidewalks of his neighborhood.

JIM BACKUS
Voice of Scrooge

When he was seven — the year was 1912 — he moved with his family from London to Chicago. In the latter city —although the boy was a piano prodigy who appeared with symphony orchestras— he fell in with people who were playing something called jazz. He learned to play popular music, and that was the start of a lifetime career.

• • • •

ON TUESDAY night for an hour on NBC-TV, he's hopping into something a little new for him—that is, writing music for an animated movie. He's joined forces with the redoubtable, myopic Mr. Magoo and—who else at this time of year?—Charles Dickens. The product is an animated cartoon, "Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol."

In view of Styne's impressive record of scores for Broadway and Hollywood musicals, it is remarkable to hear him say of the Magoo version of the Christmas classic:

"It's quite unusual. It's authentic Dickens, and it's entertainment. It may be about the best thing I've ever done.

"You are taking, here, a very touching subject. The animation is more touching than if real people did it. It is so affectionate and meaningful and, believe me, the way these cartoon people do it, it's well done. It's in the best taste, as though they were doing a two million-dollar movie.

"It's really a confection. Adults and children will see different things in it. We had fun doing it—my musical part of it took me four or five months—and there's really a fun side to Dickens, rather than scaring the kids to death. I've been a Dickens fan all my life. This is a further extension of what music might do for Dickens.

• • • •

"IT'S ADULT in the same manner as when I wrote the score of the Broadway musical of 'Peter Pan'—that was the adult Barrie rather than a child's Barrie.

CONCERNING THE
Parkcrest Church of Christ
(LAKEWOOD'S CHRISTIAN CHURCH)
Christian Churches and Other Churches of Christ

THE OBJECT OF OUR EXISTENCE IS:
1. TO RESTORE primitive Christianity, and the consequent union of all followers of Christ in one body.
2. TO EXALT Christ above party and His Word above human creeds.
3. TO BUILD a church of Christ without denominational name, man-written creed or other barrier to Christian unity, whose terms of fellowship shall be as broad as the conditions of salvation and identical with them.
4. TO LEAD sinners to Christ in the clear light of the New Testament teaching.

THEREFORE WE TEACH AND PLEAD FOR:
1. THE BIBLE as the only rule of faith and practice (II Timothy 3:16, 17).
2. CHRISTIAN as the name of Christ's followers (Acts 11:26; 26:28).
3. CHURCH UNITY (John 17:20, 21; I Corinthians 1:10).
4. BAPTISM of BELIEVERS (Mark 16:15, 16; Acts 2:38, 41; 16:32-34).
5. IMMERSION AS BAPTISM (Mark 1:5-10; John 3:23; Acts 8:26-40; Romans 6:1-6).
6. LIVING THE CHRISTIAN LIFE, working as if all depended on us, trusting as if all depends on Christ. (Hebrews 12:1, 2).

YOU CAN LEARN HOW THESE TRUTHS WILL:
1. GIVE YOU PEACE of mind in spite of our troubled times.
2. GIVE YOU SECURITY in the face of possible war.
3. GIVE OUR COUNTRY strength to win over communism or any other "ism".

Pan and Fan Mail

(Editor's Note: Following are excerpts from letters in connection with NBC-TV's Monday night series, "It's A Man's World," which is slated for cancellation after Jan. 28.)

It is the only television program that I make sure I watch.

Extra work, dishes and telephone calls have to wait until 8:30 on Monday nights.

I think the cast and the program are just great.

Please! Don't take "It's A Man's World" off the air.

Mrs. William Thomas Smith, Long Beach

Our whole family loves it and we look forward to it every week. It is so interesting and refreshing, so down to earth.

When we finally get a program of this type on the air, don't take it away.

The Gailen Bonde family, Los Alamitos

Which way do you go to surrender?

First "Hennesey" and now "It's A Man's World."

Mrs. James C. Mitchell, Long Beach

Why do the good programs on television so often lose out to old shallow, synthetic shows?

Is it because of a sponsor's stupidity or does the average viewer only want sickening frosting and no cake?

It breaks me up to learn that "It's A Man's World" will be ending soon.

Margaret Soder, Long Beach

If the sponsors would stick with it for the rest of the season, "It's A Man's World" would be one of the top-rated shows by next year.

Donna Peters, Long Beach

That show is the best one on TV.

Mrs. D. E. Burns, Long Beach

I have just read that the outstanding television program "It's A Man's World" is going off the air in January.

I ask you, how can NBC-TV commit such a crime?

Shirley Drake, Fullerton

Where could I reach Gene Kelly (actor and dancer) by mail?

Mrs. Paula Dietrick, Long Beach

Care of ABC-TV, Prospect and Talmadge, Hollywood 27, Calif.

When are you going to stop running letters about "Soupy Sales"?

Martin J. Grabonsky, Long Beach

When Soupy stops writing them.

Recently you had a letter about a mustache in a shaving commercial.

My wife and I have talked about the half-mustache left in the shaving ad and we thought maybe they were saving it for the summer reruns.

Weldon B. Huffman, Long Beach

TV Emcee Linkletter 'Kangaroo Land' Investor

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It costs him $100,000 a year, but Art Linkletter has faith in his romance with the continent of Australia.

Since 1957 the genial television emcee has been investing in Australian agriculture, taking his losses like a man and going back for more.

ART LINKLETTER

He recently returned from his annual trek to Kangaroo Land (it's springtime there now) to check on his 22,000 acres of land, located in the southwest area of the country. The ranch is roamed by 16,000 sheep and 500 head of cattle.

"There will always be a market for food and clothes," Art said, "and I'm raising beef and wool.

"But the real romance of Australia is that it is one of the remote primitive areas of the world that can become one of the great breadbaskets of all time.

"Right now the land is so bleak and barren it would repulse a goat. But by adding minerals—zinc, copper and sulfate—it blossoms, like bringing water to the desert. I've proved in the past five years it can be fertile."

Linkletter, who hosts CBS-TV's "House Party" every day, blew a half-million bucks proving his point.

"I TRIED TO DO THINGS too fast," he grinned. "Some of my partners backed out after the first year, but I changed management and went at it again.

"For a city boy like me there is no thrill like standing on my own property and watching it stretch out to the horizons. There's even a Linkletter School on my land with 12 students in it."

Because his "People Are Funny" and "Linkletter and the Kids" programs are popular Australian video shows, the American capitalist is a big favorite down under. When he travels around Australia he is a welcome guest of the government.

"AUSTRALIA IS A swinging continent," he went on.

"I've heard some important American businessmen say that if they were starting over again today they'd go there to build their fortunes.

"The opportunities in Australia are like they were in the American West 100 years ago. There is plenty of elbow room for a man to grow and develop a future."

Does Linkletter propose to continue pouring $100,000 a year into the sprawling young country?

"I should say not," he replied. "If my investments work out according to plan they should begin to pay off at $100,000 a year for the next 50 years. And I expect to be around to collect."

Cooper Documentary

"Gary Cooper — Tall American" is the title of a one-hour career profile of the late movie star that will be aired on the NBC network at 7:30 p.m. next March 26. It will be the product of the network's own Project Twenty staff.

Sweet Singer

One of the pleasant little developments of the season has been the emergence of rubber-faced comic Frank Fontaine as the possessor of a sweet singing voice especially appropriate to ballads, as demonstrated in his weekly appearances on Jackie Gleason's CBS hour.

Naturally, a recording album deal is in the works.

Frank, by the way, has nine sons and two daughters at home in Boston.

Newhart Goes Back to College

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Newhart, who won an Emmy and lost his show simultaneously last season, has gone back to college this fall and made a fortune.

In the past few months the comedian appeared before uncounted thousands of collegians at 20 universities across the country.

College kids forgot about pep rallies and panty raids long enough to dig Newhart's incisive comments on the current scene, convincing Bob that they are truly hip audiences.

During his year as a weekly video funnyman Newhart discovered the bulk of his viewers were between the ages of 18 and 42. It figured, then, that he would be appreciated on campus.

BOB NEWHART

"College students come to a performance to have a good time," Newhart said on his return from the tour. "They're not cynical and jaded, and they're brighter than the average audience.

"You're dead if you try to give them broad comedy because they want intellectual stimulation and a challenge. Those kids are on the ball—they have to be, just to meet the entrance requirements."

Bob's style remains the same for students as it was on video, but he does add special material with appeal for young people.

"I do a bit about old grads holding a reunion and another on hanging the football coach in effigy. Their favorite is the one about a professor's travelogue," he said.

"I GAUGE THE AUDIENCE by its response to my first routine. If the lines go over their heads I play it a little broader, but if it plays well then I use more understatement."

Newhart averaged 4,000 students a night. In two nights at Purdue he collected 18,000 paying customers. The crowds provide him with a bigger income than he was drawing on television.

"Playing colleges is much better than the nightclub circuit," he said. "There's more money in it and you don't have to put up with distractions and drunks."

There is a possibility that he will crank up another weekly TV show of his own for the 1963-64 season.

"We're still talking about a deal," he admitted. "It might be a situation comedy series or something along the lines I did last year.

"Despite the fact that it went off the air I was proud of my program. Maybe we got too many awards."

Local Area Teeners on Television Monday

Five talented teen-agers from Long Beach, Norwalk and Anaheim will appear on "Kidding Around" at 10:30 a. m. Monday, channel 5.

They're members of a combination called "The Rumblers" which records for Dot Records.

The teen-agers currently have a popular record, "Rose," on the market.

Another Girl Bites Video Dust

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The Wild West has claimed still another feminine victim, Terry Moore.

It has been announced that pert Miss Moore will be written out of the television series "Empire," as will another co-star, Anne Seymour.

Television ratings, it appears, have slaughtered more gals in the West than marauding Indians ever did.

TERRY MOORE

"There is simply no place for a girl in a western series," said Terry matter-of-factly. "Neither is there room for actresses in most action-adventure shows. The only gal I can think of who survived in the West was calamity Jane.

"When I accepted my role in 'Empire' I had hopes that I could break the jinx. It sounded like a take-off on 'Bonanza,' with two men and two women instead of four men. But I was wrong."

NBC-TV will replace Terry and Miss Seymour with a pair of new characters—both male, naturally.

"I DON'T KNOW WHY, but once an actress leaves the home, or any indoor set on television, she has nothing to do. Maybe it goes back to the old belief that a woman's place is in the home," she said.

"All the script writers are men, and they cannot write good parts for women. From the masculine point of view it is unfeminine for a woman to take an active part in sports or physical labor, such as women did in the real West 75 years ago.

"The funny part of it is that men like outdoor girls who will go bowling or skiing with them."

Terry noted that even indoor dramatics have been hard on television actresses in recent months. Loretta Young's new show was canceled and "Saints and Sinners," co-starring Barbara Rush, has been axed.

SHE ADDED that Jane Wyman, June Allyson, Annie Farge, Barbara Stanwyck and Ann Sothern had suffered video's indifference to the fair sex.

"They even discriminate against little girls," Terry said. "If you'll notice, all children parts in series are played by boys.

"Look at 'The Rifleman,' 'The Andy Griffith Show,' 'Leave It To Beaver,' 'Lassie' and dozens of others. It's never girl children, just boys."

FCC Chief Receives TV Group Award

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal Communications Commission Chairman Newton N. Minow will be presented the National Assn. for Better Radio and Television's Lee De Forest Award at a special luncheon next Wednesday.

The organization's president, Mrs. Clara Logan, announced the award and said Minow was chosen to receive the fourth award since 1953 because he "has transformed the Federal Communications Commission into a vigorous agency which is bringing into focus the responsibilities of the broadcasting industry in its service to the public."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONCERT — Leonard Bernstein conducts the N.Y. Philharmonic in the second of four hours, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2. Asking the question "What Is a Melody?" Bernstein uses works by Wagner, Mozart, Hindemith and Brahms to prove his theory that melody is not just a tune, but a theme, motive, bass line or counterpoint of many tunes.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The winning fighter, being interviewed by Don Dunphy, thought he'd do the announcer a favor. Said the fighter:

"I'm going out tomorrow, Don, and buy some Gem blades."

Said the announcer:

"Gillette will be happy to hear that."

DON DUNPHY

Dunphy's humorous retort made a joke out of what could have been an embarrasing close shave.

For Gillette is Dunphy's sponsor and has been since June 18, 1941, the day he started radio broadcasting the fights. The sponsor remained the same when Dunphy switched to television in 1960.

"They say that television has hurt boxing," said Dunphy, "and I don't want to argue the point.

"But if television stopped covering boxing now, boxing would fold."

If boxing did fold, it would be a terrible loss, particularly for the minority races, according to Dunphy.

"Boxing is the last outpost of the underprivileged," he said.

In addition to being financially rewarding, it keeps a lot of youngsters off the street, according to Dunphy. It develops sportsmanship.

* * * *

WHAT ABOUT CRITICS who want it outlawed as a "murderous" activity?

"Listen," said Dunphy, "supposing you were a sports czar in a country where you didn't want people to be hurt.

"Now if you were going to eliminate one sport would it be the one where 26 persons were killed in a four-months' activity, or 35 were killed in a year-round sport or 11 were killed in a year?"

Breaking down the fatality statistics, Dunphy said that the 26 deaths occured in baseball, 35 in auto racing and 11 in boxing.

I noted that baseball and auto racing had more people participating.

"The degree of participation," replied Dunphy, "doesn't make it any easier on the surviving loved ones of those killed."

Holding little brief with those shouting "Outlaw boxing," Dunphy said:

"They want to protect the poor kid who can't get anywhere any other way.

* * * *

"ROCKY GRAZIANO could tell you that he might have ended up in the electric chair if it wasn't for boxing.

"I can name you 50 former fighters right now who have all their mental and physical abilities intact. I've met some punch-drunk people, but they never did any boxing."

Dunphy added that boxing is "much cleaner" than it ever had been before.

"I know of no association now with the underworld," he said. "But some of the things in the good old days would make your hair stand up."

When he made the transition from radio to television, Dunphy eliminated the blow-by-blow description and became more explanatory.

* * * *

HIS "BLOW-BY-BLOW description" terminology reminded him of a radio announcer who once literally created a hockey broadcast.

The match was scheduled to go on the air at 7 p.m. For some reason, it had to be delayed about 35 minutes.

The delay didn't bother the radio announcer. A sponsor had paid for radio time starting at 7 p.m. and it was produce or forfeit the loot.

So the radio announcer started giving a "blow-by-blow" description of the mythical hockey match at 7 p.m. sharp. At that time, there wasn't a member of either team on the ice.

Everything went along smoothly until 7:35 p.m. when the band, preceding the start of the real match, played "The Star Spangled Banner."

It didn't bother the radio announcer.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he told his radio audience, "our national anthem. The district attorney has just arrived."

Television, a seeing-is-believing medium, eliminated that type of fakery.

It's a medium which Dunphy's son, Don Jr., 19, a Notre Dame student, wants to enter as a sports announcer.

Dunphy is trying to dissuade his son from attempting to follow his footsteps.

"I'm trying to encourage him to become a television producer or to engage in some other facet of the industry," he said.

"The days of the non-athlete sports announcer are over,"

FM STATIONS

KATHARINE HEPBURN is slated to attend premiere of "The Long Day's Journey Into Night," which will be covered by channel 11 at 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Need More Education TV, Report States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The current number of channels allocated for educational television falls far below the nation's needs, according to results of a survey issued today.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the survey indicated that more than a thousand channels would be needed in the next decade.

At present 309 are allocated for educational television while 275 actually have been reserved. Only 62 were in use at the time the survey was made.

The survey was prepared for the department by the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters.

The group said more than 95 per cent of public schools reported "serious curriculum deficiencies or teaching needs." Most said these could be met, or greatly helped, by broadcast television.

BEFORE AND AFTER: THE MAGIC OF MAKE-UP

WALTER SCOTT'S

PERSONALITY PARADE

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Sorry, the volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that Princess Margaret's husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, used to be coxswain on the Cambridge crew?—R. J. Fuller, White River Junction, N.H.
A. True.

Q. I would like to find out what's happened to Pia Lindstrom, daughter of Ingrid Bergman.—A. Edgar, Pocatello, Idaho.
A. Pia, 24, has moved from Spoleto, Italy, to an apartment in Paris to be near her mother. Miss Lindstrom went to Italy following her divorce from textile heir Fuller Callaway.

Q. The present governor of California, Pat Brown—where did he get the name "Pat"?—George Thurtle, Oakland, Calif.
A. Brown was a student orator at Fremont Grammar School in Sacramento when a boy. In his graduation speech he quoted the immortal words of Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death." Schoolmates immediately dubbed him "Patrick Henry Brown," later shortened it to "Pat."

Q. Is it right that Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain is not permitted to accept honorary college degrees? If so, why?—Peter Martenson, Duluth, Minn.
A. It's true. As head of the British Commonwealth, the Queen is constitutionally not permitted to be placed in any subordinate role. Receiving a college degree would place her in that position.

Q. I understand that Pablo Picasso, the great artist, has a medical checkup from his doctor every month. Why is this?—Nora Fenston, Jacksonville, Fla.
A. Picasso, 81, takes good care of himself, goes for a weekly physical examination rather than a monthly checkup.

Q. Who is the author of the following quotation: "A woman forgives only when she is wrong"?—Kenneth Glover, Denver, Colo.
A. Arsène Houssaye, French writer (1815-1896).

Q. How old is Chiang Kai-shek, and how much money have we given him since 1949?—P. Keller, Texarkana, Texas.
A. Chiang is 75. Since 1949 we've sent him about $3,000,000,000 in foreign aid.

Q. Henry Fonda's daughter Jane has been going with a Greek director, Andreas Voutsinas. I read in PARADE that they were supposed to do a Broadway play together. What happened to it?—Frank Levis, Scranton, Pa.
A. The play, The Fun Couple, opened on Broadway this season, closed after three performances.

Q. When Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt passed away last month, flags were ordered flown at half-mast. Isn't this done every time a First Lady dies?—B. L., Memphis, Tenn.
A. No, it is not. Mrs. Roosevelt was the first President's wife so honored.

Q. What is Rudy Vallee's real name, and is he as "scotch" as the rumors have it?—Denise V., Waterford, Me.
A. Vallee's real name is Hubert Prior Vallee. He adopted the "Rudy" from his boyhood idol, saxophonist Rudy Wiedoft. Vallee is not a spendthrift.

Q. How old is Paul Robeson, and what is he doing?—Oliver York, Troy, N.Y.
A. Robeson is 64, for the past 18 months has been singing in Australia, New Zealand and Europe.

Q. I read that Marlon Brando's present wife starred in the 1935 version of Mutiny on the Bounty. Is it true? How old was she at the time? What role did she play?—L. Hanson, Fairfield, Me.
A. Movita Castenada Brando was 16 at the time. She played the Tahitian girl friend of Fletcher Christian, leader of the mutiny. Clark Gable played the Christian role in the 1935 version.

Q. I've been told that actress Brigitte Bardot suffers from a bad case of acne and must use very thick make-up to hide her skin blemishes. Please verify or deny.—Victor Leshner, Baltimore, Md.
A. Verified. She has a bad skin condition.

Q. Where did Johnny Unitas, the great professional quarterback, play as a college student?—J. P., Winston-Salem, N. C.
A. University of Louisville, Ky.

Q. I understand that a "whiz kid" named Alain Enthoven is really running the Pentagon these days. Who is he?—O. Hans, Jacksonville, Fla.

The magical world of make-up

by NANCY HAGEN

HOLLYWOOD.

HAVE YOU EVER WONDERED how come many of the middle-aged actresses you see in the movies and on your TV screen look so youthful?

The one-word answer: Make-up.

In this day of chemical and cosmetic wonder, the tricks of the make-up magician are indeed fabulous. He can take a baggy-eyed woman with sagging flesh, her face deeply rutted and heavily jowled, and in less than an hour transform her into a bright, silken-faced Cinderella.

One magician who's been performing thusly for almost 30 years now is Bill Tuttle, 50, make-up chief at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Tuttle has made up most of the top-flight stars in the film game—everyone from Hedy Lamarr to Elizabeth Taylor—and in the process has developed all sorts of aids to compensate for the ravages of time.

His most valuable device—especially for middle-aged stars—is the lift.

A lift consists of a thin strip of gauze with pinked edges, one end of which is reinforced by double adhesive. Attached to the adhesive is a piece of string or a piece of string and a rubber band. The materials for one lift cost about nine cents.

THE LIFTS ARE USED to pull back and make taut the loose, crepe-like skin around the eyes, forehead, chin and, of course, the neck. They are tied behind the head, and a wig is employed for camouflage.

According to Tuttle, any woman can take 10 years off her age by using these ingenious devices.

Several big-name actresses were asked by PARADE to demonstrate the magic Tuttle works on them, but they refused. Said one in dismay: "Are you crazy or something? Not even my husband knows that I occasionally use lifts!"

The woman in the photos at the right is feature actress Lucille Dare, 49. Lucille reported to MGM one morning at 9:30 A.M., ready for "the works." One hour after Tuttle started on her with his bag of magic, she emerged a youthful 35 and, glancing at herself in the mirror, said she even felt like one.

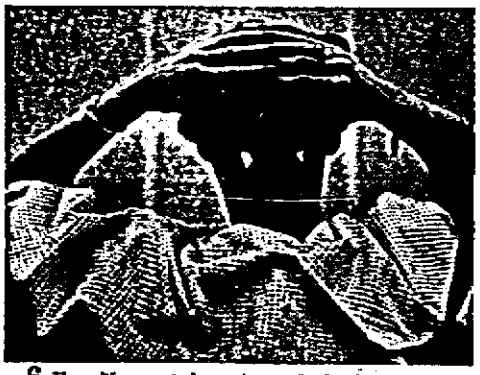

The photos on the right reveal the step-by-step process used in accomplishing this transformation. Tuttle offers one final bit of wisdom: "The basic process of applying make-up is neither new nor secret. The trick is not so much in the amount of make-up used but rather the manner in which it is applied. Remember that subtlety is the key. A successful make-up for any woman is one in which the desired illusion is effected without visibly divulging the methods employed."

1 MGM make-up expert, Bill Tuttle, with our model Lucille Dare, who has just had make-up and surface oil removed from face and neck.

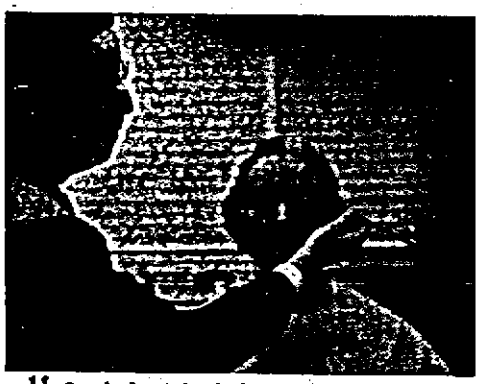

2 Close-up of a lift, showing size and shape. Lift is held against piece of leather for contrast.

6 These lifts are tied together under hairline at base of neck. (Lifts are removed at end of day with acetone or any make-up remover.)

7 After over-all (face, lips and neck) application of a good foundation with a damp sponge, a high-light tone (2 or 3 shades lighter than foundation) is applied to deep wrinkles between nose, mouth and chin, and under eyes.

11 Eye shadow is brushed on subtly with soft brush and blended upward and outward between top of eye socket and outer half of eyebrow.

16 Lipstick is applied with brush. Outline, then fill in.

17 One of Tuttle's special tricks is applying liquid adhesive (with wooden tip of fineline brush) fold under lower eyelid. As adhesive becomes tacky, skin from puffy area just below is lifted gently and "stuck" to adhesive line, thereby lessening degree of puffiness under eye.

3 The first lift is placed in front of ear, running down cheek. It's secured by spirit gum brushed on the cheek under and over the gauze.

4 When second lift has been secured on opposite cheek, it's joined to the first by tying string on one to rubber band on other, over crown of head.

5 Another set of lifts is secured on neck below ears.

8 Next, a shadow tone (2 or 3 shades darker than foundation) is brushed on tip of nose and down middle of chin, and edges then blended over with foundation. Next, the face and neck receive a generous application of loose face powder which is "beat" into skin with puff to "set" make-up.

9 Excess powder is brushed away with powder brush; then dampened sponge is rubbed gently over entire area to restore skin texture.

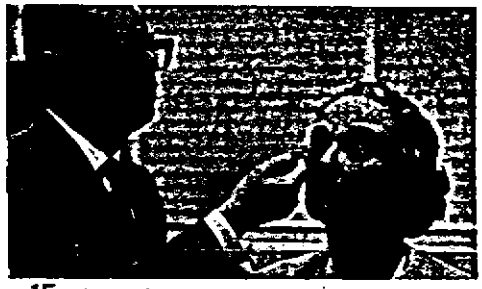

10 The hair across front hairline, from ear to ear, is pinned securely into large pincurls to prepare for wig and also to secure taut skinline before application of eye make-up. (Hairdresser is Mary Keats of MGM.)

13 Eyeliner is applied with fineline brush, just above lash, on upper lid only. Eyebrow pencil is then used to widen and soften this line and extend slightly corners of eyes. The pencil is also used to make soft line beneath lower lid. (Both upper and lower lines are drawn from inner corner toward outer corner and upward.)

14 Dry rouge is applied very lightly with full brush and blended with soft upward strokes from cheekbones toward outer eye corners.

15 False eyelashes are applied (just below eyeliner and above own lashes) with liquid rubber adhesive. Lashes should be trimmed for natural look, snipping them short near the nose and leaving them longer at outer corners. Mascara is then applied to upper and lower lashes, with heavier application at outer corners.

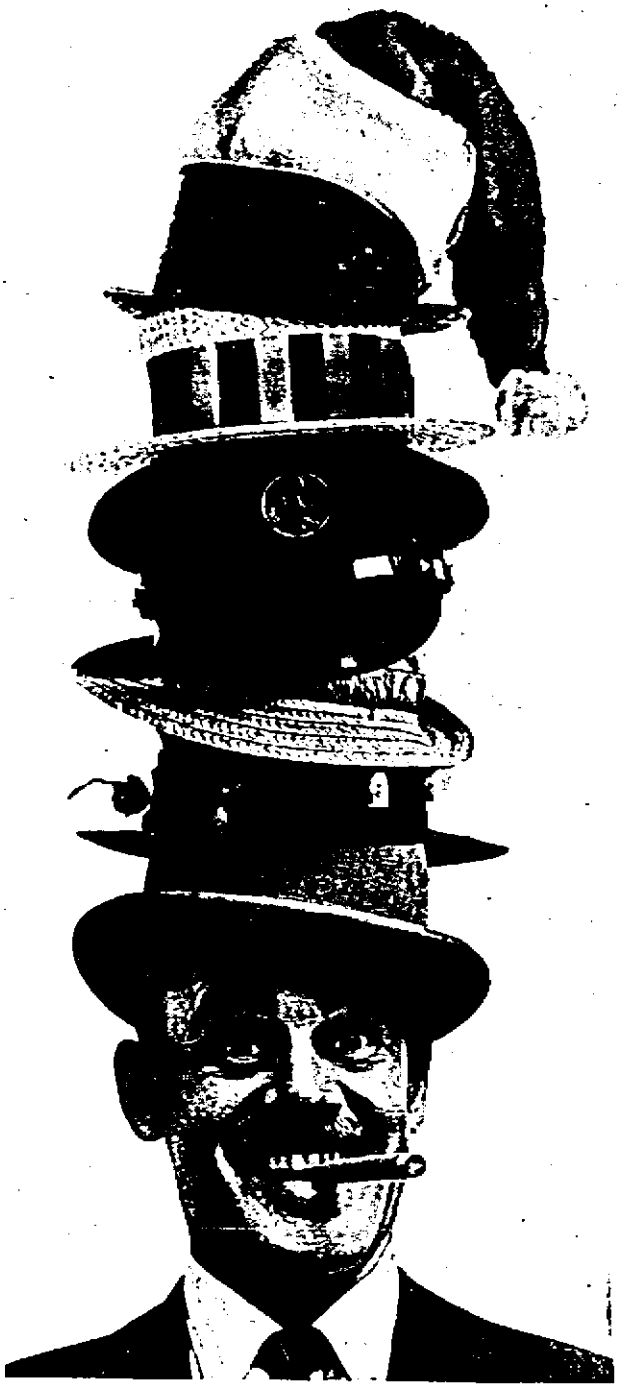

18 Make-up now complete, a wig band (wide strip of gauze) is wound around head, and back and forth over crown, covering all hair, secured at each turn of gauze by hairpins through gauze and into hair.

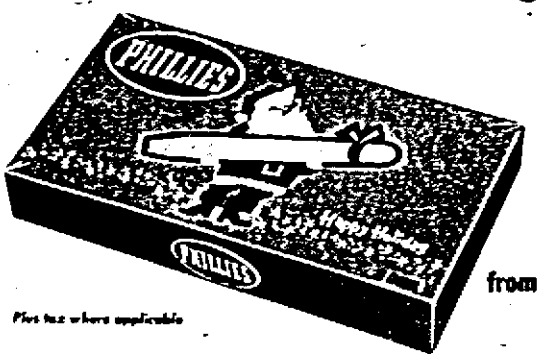

19 Wig is placed over wig band and anchored by numerous strategically placed hairpins.

20 Combed hair conceals all hairpins and lifts on face and neck. Finished product is shown above.

John McCone

Secrecy is his business

by JACK ANDERSON

An interesting study, by Karsh, of the man who heads the Central Intelligence Agency.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

With his silvery hair, rimless glasses and strong but kindly face, 60-year-old John Alex McCone looks more like a minister than a spy master. He likes it that way. As chief of the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency, he zealously guards his reputation as the nation's most secret man.

He shuns the press, makes no public speeches, grants no interviews. Even on his rare appearances before congressional committees, he speaks softly and scarcely moves his lips. During his first year as boss, he has drawn the cloak of invisibility ever tighter around the CIA. He would like it to vanish from the limelight altogether.

McCone's insistence on secrecy makes it increasingly difficult to evaluate the work of the CIA, its successes and failures. But this can be said: he has shaken the CIA to its roots and made it a tauter, more efficient cold-war instrument.

His predecessor, Allen Dulles, ran the CIA like a great secret fraternity, of which he was the amiable, tweedy professor, forever lighting, tamping and puffing on his pipe. He was absorbed in the cloak-and-dagger activities of the agency; nothing delighted him more than weaving the threads of international intrigue. But his last grand design—for the Bay of Pigs invasion—didn't turn out according to pattern, and he was gently eased out. As he closed his brief case and crammed on his battered hat, a subordinate whispered softly: "Good bye, Mr. Chips."

To replace Dulles, President Kennedy called McCone off a California golf course where he had been playing with former Vice-President Richard Nixon. McCone pondered the offer for a week before accepting the post which Sen. Richard Russell, the Senate Armed Services chairman, described as "second in importance only to the office of the President."

As President Kennedy swore McCone in, he said: "You are now on the bull's-eye, and I welcome you to that spot."

A week later, McCone suffered a deep personal tragedy. His wife, Rosemary, died, ending an idyllic 23-year marriage. He salved his grief by submerging himself in his new work.

Taps Public Sources

He performed major surgery on the CIA, cut out whole sections, tied up loose arteries through which valuable information was trickling away. He soon recognized that 80 per cent of intelligence comes not from undercover agents but from public sources. He strengthened the technical teams that process routine information.

Now, behind CIA's barred doors, a doctor can diagnose the illness of a Kremlin official 6,000 miles away; an engineer can figure the performance of a Soviet missile from a news picture snapped during a parade; a scientist can tell almost all there is to know about a Russian H-bomb from a sample of the fallout.

McCone also brought in able assistants. For his deputy, he asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the best man they had, not some chairborne brass hat they wanted to palm off. He was rewarded with Lt. Gen. Marshall Carter, a quietly competent Army officer. For his straw boss, McCone picked blond, brainy Lyman Kirkpatrick, Jr., a polio victim, who works harder from his wheelchair than most men do on their feet.

Away from the office, McCone found comfort in the companionship of a family friend, Mrs. Paul Pigott, whose husband had died only a few weeks after Rosemary McCone. The two women had been as close as sisters and together had chosen the furniture for the McCone home. Nine months after the tragedies in both their lives, John McCone and Theiline McGee Pigott were married. As they set off for a European honeymoon on September 1, crisis was brewing in the Caribbean.

The CIA files were bulging with reports of a Soviet arms build-up in Cuba. Most of the information came from Cuban refugees who were being interviewed at the rate of 250 per day. Unfortunately, the CIA had few reliable contacts in the Cuban underground who could verify the information. It sent a U-2 plane over the island twice a month, but it brought back photographs only of antiaircraft rockets.

The reports were analyzed by the U.S. Intelligence Board, on which sit representatives of the Armed Forces, Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Agency, Federal Bureau of Investigation and CIA. As the President's No. 1 intelligence officer, McCone normally presides.

In Cuba—A Wrong Judgment

The Board sets national intelligence estimates, which form the basis for all our cold-war planning. In the case of Cuba, the board concluded that the Soviet build-up was strictly "defensive." Never before had Russia permitted long-range missiles outside its borders, and it seemed inconceivable that she would plant them in Cuba, on America's doorstep. So the Board advised the President that Premier Khrushchev was interested in Cuba as a political, not a military, base.

But the sudden appearance in Cuba of SA-11 antiaircraft missiles designed to shoot down high-soaring U-2's troubled McCone.

From his honeymoon, he began to pepper the CIA with coded cables. He questioned why the Russians would install rockets to knock down reconnaissance planes unless they had something to hide, and ordered the air watch on Cuba increased.

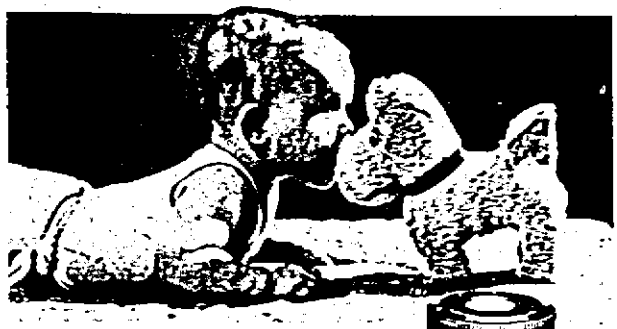

When McCone returned from his honeymoon he endured yet another personal tragedy. His stepson, Paul "Pat" Pigott, Jr., was killed in the crash of his racing car. McCone had gone to Seattle for the funeral when, on October 15, he was dramatically summoned back to Washington. The first photographs of Russian offensive missiles in Cuba had been developed. From that moment until the Cuban crisis broke, John McCone was at his desk almost day and night.

McCone worked his way up in the steel industry from riveter to tycoon. During World War II, he and his partners turned a swamp into a shipyard, and in 4 years turned out 467 cargo carriers and tankers. One of his partners, Stephen Bechtel, called him "the greatest organizer in the United States."

A Republican, he has served under both Democratic and Republican administrations. He was President Truman's Air Force undersecretary, President Eisenhower's Atomic Energy chairman. Now President Kennedy values his judgment and organizational ability higher than ever.

But it is true that McCone has been—and remains—rigorously anti-Communist. He is more convinced than ever that Nikita Khrushchev always has a trick up his sleeve.

LONG OR SHORT? The battle of the hemline

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

THE LOOK OF ELEGANCE has finally hit home, but not peacefully. Should you wear your at-home skirts ankle length or short? This is the new question for hostesses to ponder this winter.

Fashion dictates the new long look for informal evenings at home, but a large segment of women are going to stand hard and fast by their existing hemlines.

To solve the problem diplomatically, here are the long and short versions of the informal-at-home evening wear. Women who want to feel deliciously feminine are taking up the banner for length. The ladies who like to feel unfettered are wearing their skirts short—just below the kneecap. To bolster their stand, they claim they can wear the same skirt out of the house as well as at home.

We present the twin costumes with attractive pullovers in contrasting fabrics. Which do you prefer, the long or the short skirt?

Whip gelatine mixture until it is light and fluffy; then fold in whipped cream. Spoon into individual punch cups; chill until firm. Store in refrigerator until ready to serve. Garnish with additional whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 12 servings (½ cup each).

my favorite jokes

by SAM LEVENSON

If the authorities on child care told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but about the joys of raising kids—there would be no more kids.

A father I know, one of those do-it-yourself fellows, had just finished applying the last touches to his brand new patio when his little boy walked into the nice, fresh cement dragging his kiddy-car behind him. The loving daddy landed a clout on the kid's head. The clout made such noise it attracted the attention of the neighbors.

"Hey, I thought you liked kids," one neighbor protested.

"I do," said the father. "I like them in the abstract, but not in the concrete."

One grandma told me that her darling grandson, age 4, came to spend the day with her recently. Towards evening grandma called her daughter and said, "When do you want me to bring Bobby home?" Without a second's hesitation the mother answered: "When he's 21."

The young father of eight assorted kids answered the doorbell. He found himself facing a man carrying a small black bag. "Dear Lord," he muttered. "I hope you're the piano tuner."

One smart couple I know have worked out an agreement which guarantees a long and happy marriage. "It's this way," the wife explains. "We swore on a Bible that whichever one of us asks for a divorce will have to take the seven children."

I think that marriages would last longer if prospective couples were told in advance that children are frequently as wacky as they are wonderful, and that wives and husbands run at about the same percentages. As one insurance company questionnaire puts it: "Have you ever been judged insane by anyone outside your immediate family?"

The modern woman feels that without romance her marriage has been a failure. Not so my mom. She used to look at her eight kids and say: "It's a lucky thing papa ain't romantic yet."

On the subject of raising kids my father anticipated President Kennedy by about 40 years when he said, "Ask not what I can do for my children, but what can they do for me."

I'm glad I'm not a mother. Thank heaven I've got the greatest excuse in the world for leaving the scene of the crime every morning. A man's got to go to work. What an out! Most mothers would trade places with their husbands at half the salary. "I'll go to work. You stay home!"

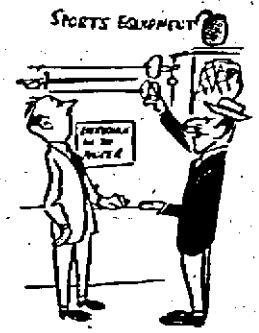

As an emancipated husband, let me be the first to admit that there is no harder work in all the world than staying home all day with the children. As one mother put it at the end of a long diaper-washing day, "I can't figure out why the nations of the world would want to live together like one big family."

Duel Purpose

MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
Italy's newest export

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

THE MOST SOUGHT-AFTER international leading man in motion pictures at the moment is a tall, thin, handsome Italian blessed with soulful, sophisticated brown bedroom eyes. He is named Marcello Mastroianni.

These are four of his most recent and successful films which have played or are still on release in this country.

For the 38-year-old Italian actor they've aroused a dedicated following, particularly among women movie-goers who describe him as "a Roman dreamboat . . . the sexiest male since Rudolph Valentino."

In Hollywood a few weeks ago, where he was offered long-term contracts by five major studios, all of which he refused, Mastroianni turned out to be one of the most frank, honest, outspoken actors this town has ever welcomed. Usually foreign stars arriving here become as phony as three-dollar bills, posturing, posing and pretending.

Not so Marcello. Speaking to him in Italian, because his English is scanty, I asked Mastroianni if he agreed that his appeal was primarily physical and limited to women.

Why He Appeals to Women

"Who is so wise," he answered, "that he knows what appeals to women? I think the audience likes me because I represent to them the average, weak, immature, mixed-up, wary man—a man puzzled by life, who finds himself swept along by the broom of circumstance. They are trying to make me out a great lover. Maybe that's my screen image. But I am no great lover. Ask my wife. I'm too thin. Look at my arms, my legs—no muscles.

"At best," he continued, "I am what you would call 'simpatico,' which is not too translatable into English. But I am also lazy, something of a hypocrite, frequently dull, occasionally enthusiastic. I have learned to take life as it comes, and frankly I regard my screen success as a happy accident.

"I am not going to sit here and tell you, 'I was always burning with the desire to become a motion picture star—I knew if I worked hard enough I would make it.' Nonsense. I come from poor peasant stock in Fontana Liri, a small town near Rome. My father was a carpenter. We were very poor. As a boy I wanted to be a construction engineer, build houses. I still want to do that, but let's face it. I am now irrevocably lost. I don't have the will power to chuck $60,000 a picture and suddenly start drawing plans and laying bricks.

"I am an actor, which seems to me an unmasculine profession. All actors are insincere. We don't like our original identities, so we take on others. After a while we don't know who or what we are. I started out knowing who I was. I wanted to be Mastroianni, the construction man, but while I was studying surveying I drifted into amateur theatricals. Then when I couldn't find work as a builder, I turned to the other thing I knew, which was acting, and as an actor I found work on the stage. And then after the war, I began to make movies. Now I alternate between the two, but mostly I do movies.

Mastroianni as he appears in Divorce—Italian Style.

"Because of this, journalists ask my opinion about many subjects as if it is worth something. I know it is not. I am no authority. I know practically nothing about literature, art, music, but they ask me. And mostly they ask about women. 'What do you think of American women?' I hardly know any American women. To me they seem too practical. Beautiful, well-cared-for bodies without souls. As soon as we are introduced, they say 'Ah, you are an Italian.' A big joke! Then they add: 'We can believe nothing you say. You are all such outrageous flatterers.'

No Imagination

"American women don't seem to understand that to an Italian a woman represents dreams, fantasy, life in limitless horizons. So many women are singularly without imagination. To tell you the truth, here in America I love more to look at the houses, the buildings, the streets, than the women.

"What kind of a great lover would you call that?" the actor demanded. "As a movie star I guess I am a big disappointment to you. Probably what you call a jerk."

I assured Signor Mastroianni that he was quite the opposite, in fact the rarest movie star I had ever interviewed, one who was brutally, completely and refreshingly honest.

In Hollywood they don't make that kind, and never have.

Oh, yes—Mastroianni is married. His wife, Flora Carabella, is a former actress. They have a 10-year-old daughter, Barbara.

"The two women in my family," he says, "are good souls. They tolerate me." ■

DO YOU TAKE VITAMINS AND STILL FEEL TIRED?

If you take vitamins, get enough rest, yet still feel tired—you may need more than ordinary vitamins to restore your normal strength and energy. Your worn-out feeling may be due to iron-poor, Tired Blood.

Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because GERITOL contains 7 important vitamins and, in addition, supplies the therapeutic amount of iron needed to build iron-rich red blood. Just 2 GERITOL tablets, or 2 tablespoons of GERITOL liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver! It is this rich source of iron, combined with high-potency vitamins, including essential B vitamins in 3 to 5 times the minimum daily requirements, that make GERITOL such an effective strength-building tonic. In only one day, GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests!

Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency anemia frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement—further confirmed by laboratory tests. Remember, ordinary maintenance vitamins can't do it! But the high-potency combination of vitamins plus iron in GERITOL can help you regain your strength and energy.

So when you feel tired, check with your doctor and if this is your problem, take fast-acting GERITOL every day. You must feel a noticeable difference in the first seven days . . . or your money back from the maker.

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

Doctor-approved bulk stimulant helps keep you comfortably on schedule as no ordinary laxative can!

As we grow older, our systems may often need outside aid to help maintain a normal regularity pattern. Continued use of strong drug laxatives can be irritating, even dangerous. That's why many doctors recommend SARAKA, the pure, all-vegetable bulk stimulant laxative for middle age and over. SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system plus Vitamin B₁.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

Take Alka-Seltzer before you go to bed.

Take Alka-Seltzer® (Brand) before bed. It works wonders before morning.

TEENAGE TAKEOVER. By 1965 half the people in the U.S. will be under 25 years of age, constituting the fastest-growing segment in the consumer market.

MARCH OF DIMES. Upcoming in January is a March of Dimes TV spectacular starring Bing Crosby, Dean Martin, Ed Wynn, many of the nation's show biz greats. The National Foundation is now in its 25th year, and since infantile paralysis is on the wane, the Foundation, through the March of Dimes, is currently dedicated to establishing a nationwide network of medical care centers for victims of birth defects and arthritis as well as polio.

SOFT-WATER MYSTERY. Persons living in British cities with soft water die of heart disease at a rate more than one-third higher than those who live in hard-water communities. Why? Dr. Jeremy Morris of London, who made the survey, can offer no reason for the fact. "To tell the truth," he says, "we haven't the foggiest."

FACT OF LIFE. In 1915 one in every 10 babies died before its first birthday. Today it's about 1 in 40 in the U.S. Approximately 30% more male babies than female babies die in the first year. Utah has the lowest infant death rate — only 20 deaths per 1,000. Highest death rate is in the southern states.

AIR UNION. It's just a question of time before Air France, Lufthansa, Alitalia, Sabena and other European airlines form an Air Union as a logical extension of the Common Market. They will probably do it before 1963 is out. Here's the way it will work: Each carrier will maintain its separate identity, but all will combine their financial accounts and operate on a quota system, using the same operations facilities to cut costs and compete against American and British companies. The merger into Air Union may cause Pan Am and TWA to pool resources on the international routes.

DON'T MARRY YOUNG. Teenagers who get married are asking for trouble. Within five years of the marriage ceremony, according to sociologists, such youngsters usually wind up in marital trouble. Nicholas Suntzeff, executive director of the Family Service Agency of Marin County, a suburb of San Francisco with one of the highest per capita incomes in California, points out that within five years most teenage couples have undertaken extramarital romances. By the time they're in their early 20s, they rebel against the responsibility that comes with early parenthood. Young wives usually say: "I really didn't know anything about boys. My husband was the first boy I dated." The husbands usually say: "She rushed me into marriage. I didn't have a chance to look around." Best advice to teenagers contemplating marriage: "Take your time in choosing a mate. Date as much as you want to, as much as you need to. There is always time for marriage."

U.S. LENSPOWER. Aerial reconnaissance has become a fine art. Our photo planes are now equipped with such powerful lenses that a photograph of you can be taken from an altitude of 80,000 feet which will reveal how tall you are, the size of your house, the condition of your front lawn. It takes trained photo interpreters, however — military intelligence specialists — to tell what is what and analyze the details, as they did so well in the Cuban affair.

Desi has a smile for new president of Desilu Productions.

LUCY TAKES OVER. Inside story on Desi Arnaz' resignation as president of Desilu Productions: For years Desi has been going around Hollywood complaining, "The television rat race is for the birds. Someday I'm gonna walk away from it." One day last month when Desilu Productions was in excellent financial shape, profits up and future rosy, the volatile Cuban-born ex-husband of Lucille Ball did exactly that. He offered Lucy his 300,350 shares of Desilu stock for $2,500,000, bringing her total holdings to 52%, and she readily accepted. A self-made millionaire at 46, Desi makes no secret of the fact that in recent years he has become addicted to horses and golf. He plans to spend most of his time between his $500,000 Corona breeding farm and his $500,000 Indian Wells Hotel near Palm Springs. By concentrating on tees and turf and similar pleasurable pursuits, Desi hopes to live to a ripe old age. "Packaging television shows," he declares, "is the quickest route to the mortuary yet undertaken by man."

KEPT MILK. Milk which will keep for six weeks without refrigeration is now being secretly tested in Switzerland. The basis of the process is rapid heating and cooling and a bacteria-free container. Biggest problem has been the bacteria-free container which last week was solved by AB Tetra-Pak of Lund, Sweden. The manufacturers have developed a special paper carton which assures a bacteria-free milk. It's hoped that eventually this will lead to once-per-week milk deliveries.

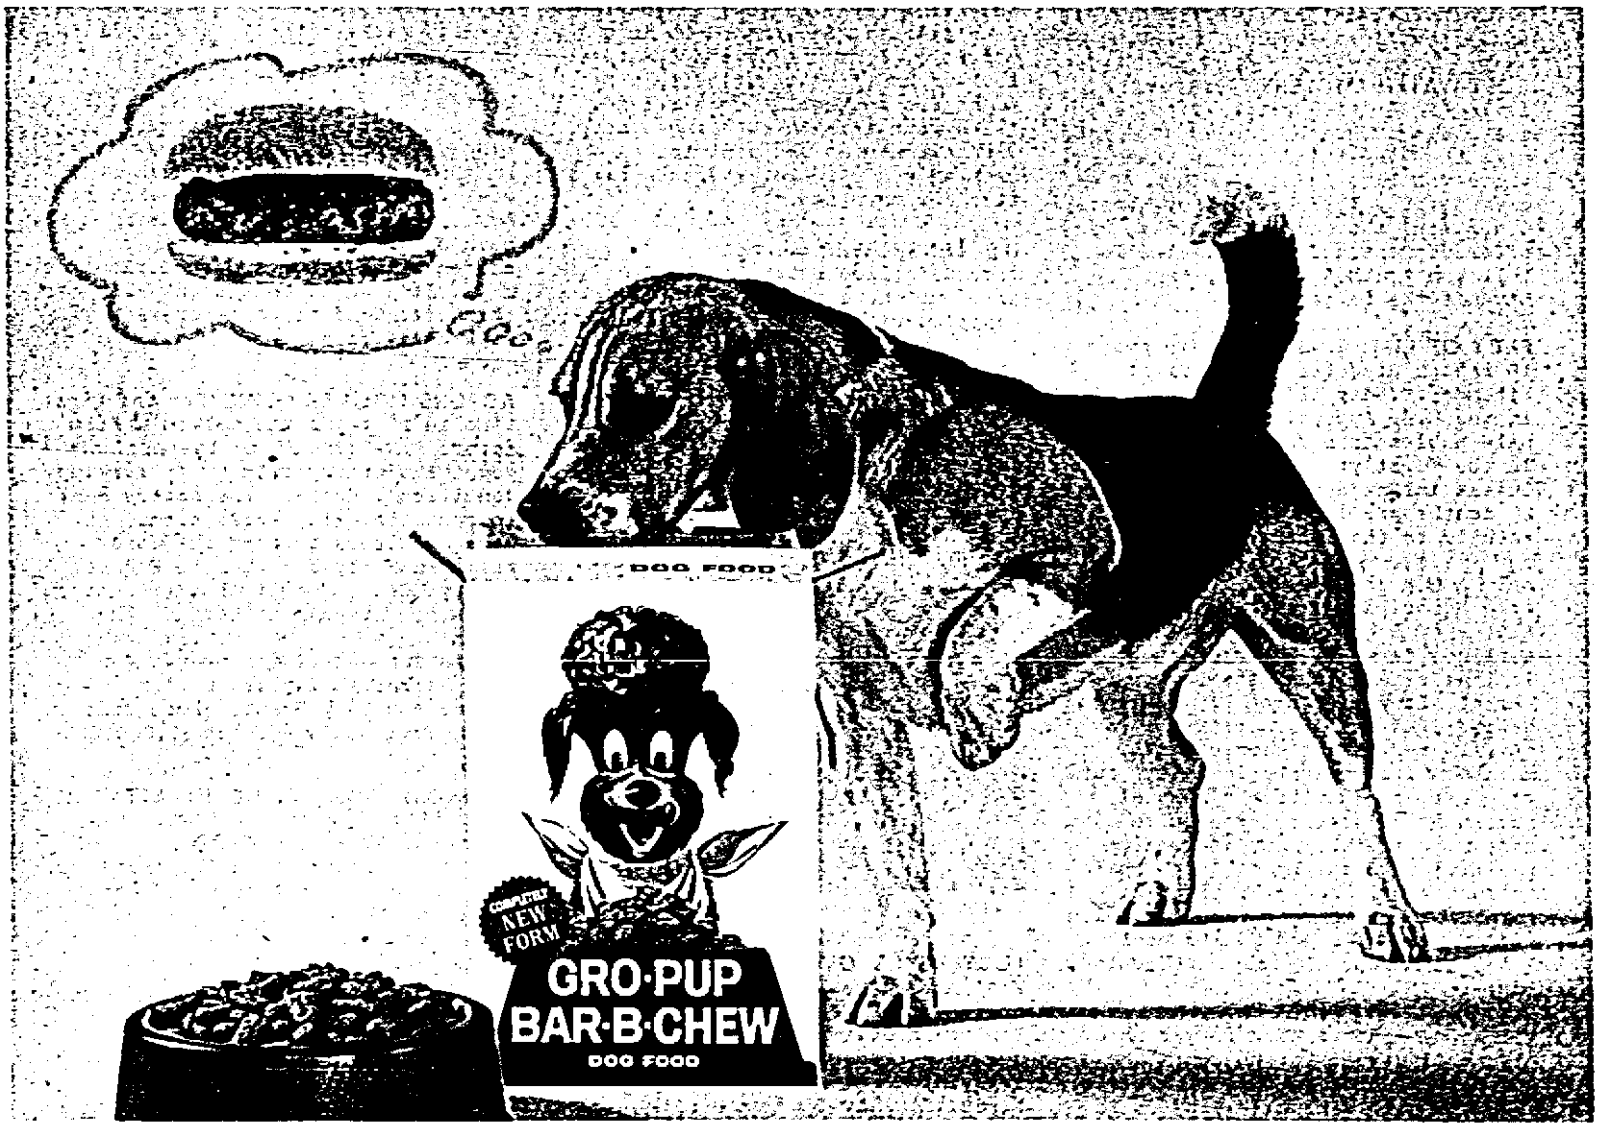

ACTORS HOLD PAY LINE. For the first time in 29 years the nation's film actors have agreed to by-pass any wage hike or improvement in working conditions. Reason: The actors want to combat runaway productions, get more producers to turn out more films in Hollywood than in Europe. Most producers admit that production costs are staggering because they haven't got the guts to try new actors instead of the proven few like Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando and Cary Grant, whose take on a film frequently exceeds $1,000,000.

WORKING GALS and HEART ATTACKS. Women suffer fewer heart attacks than men. Why? Many doctors agree women are simply stronger, that their hormones protect them against the possible ravages of excess cholesterol. Now comes a study which points out that women would probably be stricken by heart disease as often as men if they were subjected to the same competitive pressures. Of 345 female heart attacks studied by Drs. Norman Blackman and Yosuf Kologlu, 55% occurred in women engaged in commerce or industry. But only 9% occurred between the ages of 40 to 49, while 39% occurred between the ages of 50 to 70, proving that in the majority of cases female hormone production had diminished or ceased entirely at the time of the attack.
